BIG PARTIES SPLIT ON TOWNSHIP ISSUES

How They do it in North Plainfield Township.

SPRING ELECTION COMING.

VOTERS DIVIDED INTO FACTIONS BY GROGRAPHICAL LINES.

Greenbrook Holds Sway at Republican Primaries and Nominates That Ticket—Washingtonville and Part of Scotch Plains Combine in Citizens' Movement—The Offices to be Filled This Year.

Although there are only a hundred and fifty voters in North Plainfield township, that part of Somerset county has more than its share of excitement attendant on election time. This year the township election takes place Tuesday, March 14th.

While the party lines are strictly drawn on Nation and State issues, the township is entirely changed politically on local affairs. The Republican stronghold in the township is Greenbrook or Sebring's Mills. Washingtonville and a part of Scotch Plains make up the rest of the township and contain most of the Democrats in the township. The Republicans of this section have for the past three years united with the Democrats, forming a so-called "Citizens'" party.

On local issues, the Greenbrook faction has controlled the Republican primaries and nominated its own officers. The Washingtonville and Scotch Plains contingent have put their Citizens' ticket on the field and have, during the past three years, been mainly successful.

This year the offices to be filled are town committeeman, township clerk, constable, assessor, collector, the terms of which are three years, and overseer of the poor and surveyor of the highway, for one year each. There seems likely to be another hot contest between the two factions for the choice of most of these.

Wednesday evening, March 8th, the "Citizens" will hold their caucus at Finger's Hotel. The only contest of importance will probably be for the nomination for committeeman. The residents of the Scotch Plains section want representation, and have chosen Benjamin Schenck as their candidate. William Smith, of Washingtonville, will also be a candidate for renomination.

CITY HOTEL CHANGES.

Landlord Beerbower Contemplates Going Into the Restaurant Business.

John Beerbower, propriety of the City Hotel, is contemplating extensive changes in his house to meet the competition that has lately developed in that line of business in this city. The improvement in prospect is to alter the dining room of the hotel so as to make it suitable for a restaurant business.

With that in view Mr. Beerbower has a set of plains in the hands of a well-known builder who is figuring on them. If followed out they will necessitate tearing out the brick side-wall on Park avenue side of the dining room and putting in a full plate glass front, with large double doors for an entrance direct from the street into the dining room. If the changes are made it is expected to commence the work the first of April. When finished Mr. Beerbower proposes to serve a regular dinner at a moderate price and also to serve other dishes to be found in restaurants at all hours of the day and night.

Crusade Against the Saloons.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 1—The Elizabeth Anti-Saloon League held a meeting last night in the study of the pastor of St. James' Methodist Episcopal church. It was decided to bring Francis Murphy, the apostle of temperance, here next month to hold a series of meetings, so as to arouse the people, after which the league will begin a vigorous warfare against the saloons.

High Salvationists Here.

Brigadier Scott and staff, of the Salvation Army, came to Plainfield last evening and held a meeting with the local soldiers. The meeting was for the soldiers only and was private. There was also present a delegation from the Bound Brook branch of the department. Meetings will be held every evening this week and the public is cordially invited.

Mission Workers to Meet.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church will be held in the church parlors Friday afternoon, beginning promptly at 3:30 o'clock. An address by Mrs. Darwin R. James, president of the Woman's Board of Home Missions, may be expected.

CREMATORY PLANT TO BE OFFERED TO THE CITY.

THE DIRECTORS DECIDE TO SELL OUT

Annual Meeting Held Last Night—The Stockholders Do Not Care to Keep At It.

The Plainfield Sanitary Company held a meeting last evening at the Union County Country Club and elected directors for the ensuing year as follows: John W. Murray, Jas. Clark, Harry G Runkle, Andrew Lutkins, Lemuel W. Serrell, Jr., John T. Fritts and DeWitt C. Ivins. Another meeting will be held in a few days, when officers will be elected from the board of directors.

During the evening the directors entered into a discussion of the future of the plant on DeKalb avenue. Some members thought the plant could be run by the company so as to pay a good dividend. Others thought it would be better to dispose of the plant to the city and let them run it according to their own ideas. It was finally decided by the majority that it would be best to offer the plant to the city, and it is likely that this plan will be adopted at some future date.

M'CARTY'S TWO VICTIMS.

BOTH MEN WERE DISTURBING THE CITY'S PEACE.

One Fought the Policeman and Had to Be Clubbed—The Other Thought He Owned the Depot—Judge Fined Them.

Patrolman McCarty had two victims to look after last evening. The first one came at 10 o'clock. A man, who said he was Thomas Sullivan, wandered along Park avenue, near Front street, with an overload of intoxicants. He had started for Hopewell from New Brunswick and taken the wrong train. His brain was befuddled by the drink, and he had only a faint idea where he was.

McCarty started the man to the lockup. At Second street, Sullivan laid down and announced that he was going no further. Then ensued a lively time. Sullivan decided to disarm the officer, who was compelled to use his club. Meanwhile, Sullivan made the air fairly blue with his profanity. With the assistance of Patrolman Myers, Sullivan was finally locked up.

This morning, when arraigned before City Judge Runyon, Sullivan explained that he hadn't the slightest idea what happened during the night. The Judge fined him $5 for resisting an officer.

McCarty's other victim was W. P. Jerrolamon who thought that the North Avenue station was a privileged place for him. The officer said his language was very bad. Jerrolamon said he was drunk. The Judge remarked that Jerrolamon ought to know better, and fined him $8 or twenty days in jail.

City Judge an Entertainer

There was a good attendance last evening at Hope chapel when one of the series of entertainments was given under the auspices of the young people of the chapel. A very informal programme was presented consisting of popular selections by City Judge Runyon and recitations by Mrs. Frank Smith, all of which was greatly enjoyed. The balance of the evening was passed in sociability after which refreshments were served. Frederick H. Andrews had charge of the affair and under his direction a pleasant evening was spent.

Salamagundi Party.

A pleasant salamagundi party was given last evening by Miss Grace Emmons, of Jackson avenue, to about twenty-five of her young friends. All sorts of games were played and handsome prizes were awarded the winners. A portion of the evening was spent in dancing, and among those who indulged in the light fantastic was the genial "Pete" Emmons, father of the hostess.

New Clothing Store.

Matthew Cashin, who has resigned his position with William Sebring, the clothier, has associated himself with Schepflin & Schultz, the clothiers, on West Front street. The new store will be opened in the Schepflin building this week, but the formal spring opening will not take place until Saturday, March 11th.

Visitors Talked.

At the meeting of Washington Camp, P. O. S. of A., held Monday evening, the initiatory team from Camp No. 43, of Somerville, was present, and initiated several candidates. There were excellent addresses by Representative Bicknell, of Atlantic City, and Lawyer Frederick Pope, of Somerville.

—A sociable and entertainment will be given by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church Friday evening. It will be called a "Chinese Evening."

FIRST APPEARANCE BEFORE TOWN FOLK.

Successful Concert of Metronome Club Last Night.

AT MONROE AVE. CHURCH.

MISS MARION SHORT PROVED A PLEASANT ENTERTAINER.

Concert Was Under Auspices of Young Men's Bible Class of the Church—Church Was Filled to the Doors—Wasn't Even Standing Room Left—Miss Short Best in Humorous Sketches.

The crowd that turned out for the concert at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church last evening left no doubt as to the success of the affair. Even the sign "standing room only," had there been one, would have been removed before the programme had barely opened. The concert itself was very creditable to both promoters and participants.

The entertainment was given under the auspices of the Young Men's Bible class of the church. Owing to the limited seating capacity of the church the sale of tickets was necessarily limited. As it was the church was crowded to the last extent.

Prominent in the programme was the Metronome Banjo and Mandolin Club, a local musical organization This was their first appearance in Plainfield this winter. The club has been practicing steadily this winter and the result was apparent. They played with a skill and vigor that made the rousing marches sound better than ever. Their time was excellent and altogether the club made a showing that will compare very favorably with even the college organizations of that kind. Among their numbers was a medley of popular airs, arranged by Fred VanEps, musical director of the club. They were called upon for an encore at every appearance. They ended the programme with the ever popular "Georgia Camp Meeting."

Miss Marion Short is not a stranger to Plainfield, but her recitations was even more satisfactory than at her past visits. Her forte was certainly in humorous selections. Her imitation of the small boy in Eugene Field's "Limitations of Youth" was capital. The impersonation of the Irish servant, and the accompanying tale of her mistress' experiences at house-cleaning, was perfect. In her thrilling and dramatic selections she was good, but the audience liked best her funny sketches that had the gift of being just bubbling over with fun. While the selections themselves were well chosen, it was the personality of Miss Short that rendered them so pleasing.

Charles W. Harrison assisted in the programe with several tenor solos. He pleased best in his negro melodies which quite captured the hearts of the juvenile part of the audience. He also sang with banjo accompaniment.

The Metronome Club is composed of Fred VanEps and Fred C. Smith, banjos; Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, Raymond B. Carroll, J. Caspar Kirkner, Albert Littell, C. VanEps, mandolins; D. W. Littell, Jr., guitar; Mr. Harold, piano.

In Business for Themselves.

Ernest A. Lowe, of Fairview avenue, formerly manager of J. Jones & Son, New York, has opened a store of general electrical supplies at 183 Greenwich street, New York, where he can furnish you with everything in the electric line from a baby switch to a power plant. The new firm will be known as Lowe & Leveridge, and they cordially invite a visit from their many Plainfield and borough friends either for information, goods or socially.

To Preach in Dr. Richard's Place.

At the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church next Sunday Rev. A. F. Schauffler, D. D., of New York city, will occupy the pulpit morning and evening. In the evening Dr. Schauffler will deliver an address along Sunday-school lines, entitled "The Child and the Book."

$700 Made by the Fair

The members of Warren Engine Company realized $700 as profit from the fair recently held under their auspices. The company now has about $1,000 in their treasury, and about $600 is needed to complete the amount necessary to purchase uniforms for the company.

In a Newark Hospital.

J. Myron Hamilton, formerly of the borough, who has a severe attack of paralysis of both limbs, is now being treated at the Newark Hospital, but with slight hope of his ultimate recovery.

ADVICE TO ENDEAVORERS

IMPORTANT OPEN CONFERENCE OF YOUNG CHRISTIANS.

Missionary Work of the Society and the Remedy for Indifference Were Discussed in an Animated Manner.

Two questions of importance to Christian Endeavorers were discussed last night at the open conference conducted by the local Christian Endeavor Union held in the Trinity Reformed church. They were "The Missionary Work of the Christian Endeavor Society," and "Are Christian Endeavors Becoming Indifferent? If So, What Is the Remedy?"

The discusion of these two topics was the most important feature of the conference. The first discussion was led by Rev. A. I. Martine, who had a unique way of conducting open parliaments. After describing the importance of mission work, Mr. Martine called upon the chairmen of the missionary committees of the various societies represented in the local union, and asked them to give a brief synopsis of the work their society is doing. Responses were made from Dunellen, Washingtonville, Park Avenue Baptist, Trinity Reformed, Congregational, Warren Mission, Mt. Pleasant, First Baptist, East Third Street mission and the First Presbyterian societies, describing the kind of mission work, in home or foreign fields, that the society is engaged in. A few words from Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., and from Rev. A. E. Main, closed the discussion.

Rev. J. W. Richardson's theme provoked more discussion, for there were two opinions as to the indifference of Christian Endeavorers. E. E. Anthony didn't think they were as much so as the older people. Ethan Lanphear said that there were too many societies in the church any way, and suggested that those that lacked spirituality get out.

Mr. Richardson said that the causes of this alleged indifference were: First, a lack of personal responsibility; second, a dependence on real emotions for service; third, forgetting the judgment.

The remedy, he said, was: First, letting God take hold of us; second, a willingness to pay the price of a Christian character; third, to magnify the fact that I personally can help to pay the burden; fourth, by prayer and meditation.

The service opened with a service of song led by H. J. Martin. Mrs. E. E Anthony presided at the piano. During the evening Miss Charlotte Messersmith rendered a solo, and Miss F. G. Hawkins, president of the local union, presided. Three letters sent to the president by State officers, relative to the death of Dr. French, were read. The letters were from Dr. J. Cornelius Brett, State president; Miss Ida B. Stevens, State secretary, and Rev. L. R. Dyett, one of the vice-presidents.

THE BOROUGH REPUBLICANS.

Former Mayor Hegeman Calls the Primary for Saturday Night.

Former Mayor Hegeman today issued the call for the Republican primary in North Plainfield, to make nominations for the approaching municipal election. The time set is Saturday evening in the basement of the public school building. From present prospects the primary will be a lively one.

Unpleasant Echo of the War.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Asbury Park, March 1—The members of Company A, Third Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, have adopted resolutions asking Captain J. H. Muddell to resign. The volunteers charge the captain with overbearing conduct at Pompton Lake and Athens, Ga., and say that they will not serve under him in the National Guard.

Making Store Improvements.

The J. P. Laire Hardware Company is making some changes in the interior of their store to facilitate the showing and handling of goods. The high counters and stands placed about have obstructed the light, and these have been lowered and fitted up with small compartments in which small articles can be stored.

Father Miller Still in the Hospital.

Rev. Father Miller, of Manning avenue, is still confined to the hospital in Newark, where he submitted to an operation for appendicitis. He is, however, improving steadily. Rev. Father Brannon, of Perth Amboy, is in charge of St. Joseph's church, in the borough, while Father Miller, the rector, is ill.

Purse for Crow's Widow.

The friends of Mrs Crow, the widow of Manning T. Crow, the policeman, who was shot by burglars at Somerville, in January, are making up a handsome purse. The townspeople seem all interested in this fund, and are glad to show their appreciation of Mr. Crow's bravery in this way.

CITY'S POOR LIVE IN A COMFORTABLE WAY.

INMATES SEEM TO BE HAPPY

MR. AND MRS. TENEYCK ARE RIGHT PEOPLE IN THE RIGHT PLACE.

A Visit to the Home Shows it to be a Splendidly Conducted Institution—Building is Commodious and Pleasant—Plenty of Good, Wholesome Food Served—Good Conduct From Inmates.

A visit to the City Industrial Home, just off from West Front street on Rock avenue, will convince anyone that it is one of the best conducted municipal institutions to be found in the State. A Press reporter called at the Home a few days ago and was shown through the institution by Superintendent Israel TenEyck. The contented look which the inmates evidence shows plainly that Mr. TenEyck, assisted by his wife, is the right man in the right place. They are undoubtedly the best superintendent and matron the Home has ever had.

The Home is a commodious building, pleasantly situated with large open fields surrounding it. In the summer months it is a particularly pleasant place, and in the winter, when most of the inmates are compelled to remain indoors, it is comfortable, light and airy.

At present there are eleven inmates who are under the care of Mr. and Mrs. TenEyck. Though fate has landed them at the bottom of life's ladder they live their uneventful life in the serene satisfaction that they shall not want, at least, for the common necessities of life.

The front part of the building is occupied by the women and the rear by the men. While the rooms are not furnished as the average person would like, yet they are comfortable and clean. Mr. and Mrs. TenEyck are most kindly and considerate in their treatment of the unfortunates, and as the reporter passed through he heard nothing but praise for the superintendent and matron.

Supper was in preparation when the reporter visited the home, and he was impressed with the wholesome food which was being cooked, plenty of which was furnished to each one of the inmates.

The inmates are not kept under a strict espionage and discipline, as is the deplorable case in too many institutions of the same character, but are allowed to go pretty much as they please so long as they keep within the bounds of reason and good conduct. As a matter of fact, the generous actions of Mr. and Mrs. TenEyck are sufficient to make them appreciated, and whatever their wishes are in respect to the life of the Home are cheerfully complied with.

Italians Looking for Work.

Large parties of Italians are beginning to gather in the towns along the Central Railroad, in the hope of getting work on the trolley roads this spring. Word has been passed around among them that the trolley roads will be built, and they are swarming in this direction. There is hardly a ship entering New York from Mediterranean ports that does not bring some addition to the Westfield or Cranford population.

Gazelle Company May Disband.

There will be an important meeting of Gazelle Engine Company this evening when the company is likely to take such action as will provide for its disbandment in the near future. The company has been waiting for the Council to take some action on the new fire department. Now that there is a good prospect of immediate action on the subject, the members have decided that the time is here to retire.

A Tenicent Department.

If there is one thing that people in general favor it is a department filled with good, useful articles that can be purchased at reasonable prices. Recognizing this, VanEmburgh & Son have established a 10-cent department at their store on West Front street, and it offers an excellent opportunity for persons to secure many useful articles at a price within the reach of all. Inspection is invited.

His Leg Only Broken.

Mention was made yesterday regarding Arthur Tregembo, one of the injured victims of the Lehigh Valley Railroad wreck, and it was stated that he lost both legs. This is not true. He simply had a fracture of both legs, and in a short time will be able to get about all right.

Mrs. William G. Anderson, of Franklin place, has gone to Brooklyn to visit her daughter.

NEW RESIDENCES GOING UP IN THE WEST END.

COUNCILMAN LIEFKE'S ENTERPRISE.

Henry Leifke, the Front street baker, is making some improvements in the realty line that is going to enhance the value of property at the corner of West Front street and Grant avenue. He has purchased a sufficient amount of land on that corner to erect three handsome houses, each with a frontage of 66 feet, all with modern improvements. These houses will be built for speculative purposes.

The house occupied by Mr. Leifke at West End Park he has sold to W. H. Moore, who owns considerable property in that neigborhood. Mr. Leifke has secured another lot in the vicinity with a frontage of 53 feet and upon that he will erect a house for his own use. In the meantime while his new house is being erected he will occupy rooms over his store on Front street. W. H. Brokaw, the contractor, has the work of putting up the houses for Mr. Leifke, and one of the dwellings is now well under way.

NECESSARY PRECAUTION

Superintendent Maxson Arranging to Send Out Cards so That All Unvaccinated Children May See the Physicians

In view of the large number of children in the schools who are unvaccinated, and as a precaution against small pox, which is now epidemic in several States, the Board of Education has arranged with the school physician to make appointments at each of the public schools, when all the children whose parents desire it, will be vaccinated free of charge.

Superintendent Maxson is now arranging to send out cards, notifying the parent of each unvaccinated child of the date when the physician will be present at the school, and giving the parent an opportunity to express his desire for his child to be vaccinated. No child will be vaccinated without the written consent of the parent.

The occurrence of two deaths from small pox in New York yesterday emphasizes the wisdom of the school board in taking prompt action to make it impossible for the disease to get a foothold among the school children.

M'ALL AUXILIARY ELECT.

Mrs. Frederick G. Mead Chosen President—Vice Presidents From Churches.

At the annual meeting of the McAll Auxiliary, held in the Plainfield Public Library this morning, Mrs. Frederick G. Mead was elected president; Miss Zadie VanBoskerk, secretary and Mrs. John Gray Foster, treasurer. Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, who has served the auxiliary so long as chief executive, wished to be retired.

The vice-presidents from the various churches were chosen as follows: Crescent Avenue, Mrs. A. C. Baldwin; Grace P. E., Miss Florence Tweedy; Congregational, Mrs. W. B Wadsworth; Trinity Reformed, Mrs. Cornelius Schenck; First Presbyterian, Mrs. James Petrie; First Baptist, Mrs. Alexander Gilbert; Seventh-Day Baptist, Mrs. J. VanSickle; Park Avenue Baptist, Mrs. E. K. Fisk; Orthodox Friends, Minnie Wood.

The board of managers will remain the same with the addition of a few names which will be added at the next meeting. This morning the annual report was read, which will be printed in these columns tomorrow. A short executive meeting followed the regular meeting this morning.

Teased by Small Boys.

Henry Mohring is a well-behaved German living on South Second street. He has been frequently teased by some of the small boys of the neighborhood. Warrants were issued in the case for James Harding and Hudson Morris, colored. Both are small boys. Harding appeared as directed and the Judge suspended sentence. Morris has been hiding in a barn. He was afraid to appear when his companion did. Now the police are laying for him and it promises to go hard for the young colored lad if he is caught.

Had No License.

George Potter, colored, was arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning, charged with collecting garbage without a license and with depositing it on a private dump within the city limits. The complainant was Health Inspector Addis. Potter pleaded not guilty, and his trial was set down for Friday morning at 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Mattie Frisbie and son left yesterday for West Dover, Md., where they will spend sometime visiting.

A CYCLONIC TALK BY ASSEMBLYMAN MURRAY

Hearing Given on Bill to Reduce Telephone Charges.

BERATED THE MONOPOLIES.

SENATE PASSES THE BILL FOR THE PAY OF SOLDIERS.

Single Men Will Receive $4 and Married Men $6 a Month for the Time That They Were in the Service—The Volunteers Wanted More—A Bill Passed to Change New Brunswick Ward Lines.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, March 1.—"Just like a cyclone," said some of those who attended the hearing of the committee on corporations in the Assembly yesterday afternoon on Assemblyman Murray's bill reducing the rate of telephone tolls. The remark was occasioned by the steady flow of oratory that the Plainfield statesman used in the effort to win favor for his measure.

According to the terms of Mr. Murray's bill the rates should be as follows: In cities of over 100,000 population, $50 per year; cities of from 20,000 to 100,000, $40 per year; cities under 20,000 population, $30 per year. Mr. Murray, who is an indomitable talker, occupied the entire time of the committee. He told and retold of the monopolistic tendencies of the telephone companies.

Assemblyman Wood, one of the committeemen, while Murray was getting up some fresh steam, managed to get in a word to the effect that if the matter was not interfered with it would be regulated in time by the law of competition. Spencer Weart, of Jersey City, at another talkative period in Murray's hearing managed to enter a protest on behalf of the Independent Telephone Company. A further hearing will be given, as Mr. Murray did not get a chance to finish his argument.

Senator Ketcham, of Essex, succeeded in having passed his measure providing for the compensation of volunteers in the late war with Spain. Of the three measures pending in the Legislature the Ketcham bill made the smallest provision for the soldiers. It provides an allowance of $4 a month for single men and $6 for married men from the time they were mustered into the United States service until they were mustered out. On this basis the cost to the State will be about $200,000. The volunteers ask for an appropriation of a half million dollars. The legislators agree that with the demands on the public treasury for the improvement of State institutions, public schools, roads, etc., it will be impossible to appropriate more than the amount provided for in Ketcham's bill.

The House passed a number of bills, the one provoking the most discussion being the Senate bill which makes mandatory the readjustment of ward lines in any city where one ward has a population as great as that of three other wards. The bill affects New Brunswick. Assembly bills which passed were those authorizing cities to pension families of policemen killed in the discharge of their duty; appropriating $500 for the erection of a monument to the New Jersey sailors who were killed in the explosion of the battleship Maine; making five per cent. the legal rate of interest; making it a misdemeanor to use the American flag for advertising purposes.

The Assembly bill authorizing sparring exhibitions with six-ounce gloves was reported adversely and the report was sustained.

Governor Voorhees sent to the Senate yesterday the names of G. D. W. Vroom and John Taylor for reappointment as members of the Board of Managers of the Asylum for the Insane at Trenton. Mr. Taylor being an ex-Senator, his nomination was immediately confirmed. Mr. Vroom's nomination was referred.

Roundsman to the Rescue.

Dr. A. Willis Anderson, of East Second street, brought a large sized hunting dog up to the station this morning, expecting to take him to New York on the 8:30 train. But the dog refused to climb aboard, when the train pulled in, but sat down, and despite all the coaxing, declined to move. It looked as though the dog would win the day when Roundsman Frederickson picked him up bodily, and by dint of much scrambling and pushing, set him on the platform of the car just as the train pulled out.

Robbing Clothes Lines.

Clothes line thieves are at work in the Netherwood district of this city, the yards of Messrs. Schultz and Robert Dryden, 321 Hillside avenue, having been entered and robbed early in the evening of Monday last.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

HEART DISEASE.

SOME FACTS REGARDING THE RAPID INCREASE OF HEART TROUBLES.

Do Not Be Alarmed, But Look For The Cause.

Heart troubles, at least among the Americans, are certainly increasing and while this may be largely due to the excitement and worry of American business life it is more often the result of weak stomachs, of poor digestion.

Real organic disease is incurable; but not one case in a hundred of heart trouble is organic.

The close relation between heart trouble and poor digestion is because both organs are controlled by the same great nerves, the Sympathetic and Pneumogastric.

In another way, also the heart is effected by the form of poor digestion, which causes gas and fermentation from half digested food; there is a feeling of oppression and heaviness in the chest caused by pressure of the distended stomach on the heart and lungs, interfering with their action; hence arises palpitation and short breath.

Poor digestion also poisons the blood, making it thin and watery, which irritates and weakens the heart.

The most sensible treatment for heart trouble is to improve the digestion and to insure the prompt assimilation of food.

This can be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be found at most drug stores and which contain valuable, harmless digestive elements in a pleasant, convenient form.

It is safe to say that the regular persistent use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at meal-time will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.

Full sized package of these tablets sold by druggists at 50 cents. Little book on stomach troubles mailed free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

HILL SAYS BILL IS BAD

But Sponsor for the Army Bill Wants it Passed.

THE LAST CABINET DINNER

The River and Harbor Measure Itself May Fail If Necessary to Defeat the Nicaragua Project—Hull Says Responsibility of Army Measure Would be With the Senate.

Washington, D. C., March 1.—The army reorganization bill, which was passed by the Senate, was received in the House yesterday and at once on request of Mr. Hull, referred to the committee on military affairs.

Chairman Hull has called a meeting of the committee for to-day. He gave it as his personal view, and thought that the committee also so believed, that the bill was irretrievably bad, but it should be passed exactly as received and responsibility placed on the Senate.

Mr. Hull said: "The bill is so irretrievably bad that it may be best to accept it just as it is. That places the responsibility for such a measure where it belongs, on the Senate, and it enacts a law so clearly bad that further legislation to remedy it is assured. As it stands the bill is an absurdity from beginning to end. It is impossible for the House to whip it into shape in the few remaining days of the session, so that it is probably best to let it go as the Senate has seen fit to shape it."

The president and war department decided to accept the army bill as passed by the Senate for fear it will fail altogether, and Chairman Hull, although he reluctantly accepts the compromise, will get his committee to report it intact.

In speaking about the bill he said yesterday afternoon that while it professes to provide for one hundred thousand men until 1901, it actually provides for only forty-six thousand.

He pointed out that the Senate amendments adopted providing for the minimum of the campanies reduces the army to this extent.

Chairman Burton of the House river and harbor committee, said that in his opinion it was better that the whole river and harbor bill should fail than that the Senate Nicaragua canal amendment should pass as a part of the measure.

The committee will not take up the bill until to-day. General Catchings, one of the members, said:

"I think it will be some days before the committee reports back the bill—yes, some days," he added significantly.

General Grosvenor said: "The committee will report back that bill, or the Republicans in the House will know why, and who is holding it back."

It is the general opinion, however, that Speaker Reed has ordered the smothering of the bill, and this will be done, as it is part of the speaker's programme to kill the Nicaragua canal measure.

Public Buildings Bills.

In the House yesterday Mr. Mercer, Republican of Nebraska, chairman of the committee on public buildings and grounds, called up the special order for the consideration of the public building bills.

He explained the order in which the committee had decided to call up the bills favorably acted upon by the committee of the whole ten days ago. Sixty-two bills had been acted upon. The thirty-nine in the classification given preference provided for buildings in cities having first class postoffices. Federal courts or custom houses, and carried $7,290,000. The other twenty-three bills carried $1,322,000.

He then called up the first of the bills, that providing for a public building at Elizabeth City, N. C.

Mr. Maddox, Democrat of Georgia, secured twenty minutes in which to make a general statement. He said that he had led with success the fight against a public building combine in the Fifty-third Congress. He contended that in the present state of the treasury not one of these bills could stand alone and pass without the support of a log rolling combine.

He called attention to the fact that the states represented by the fifteen members of the committee got $5,700,000. The southern members, however, got only a pitiful pittance. For every dollar they got the northern members of the committee got $10.

The bill was passed, 111 to 14. The Elizabeth City bill carried fifty thousand dollars. The following bills were then passed, demands for the ayes and noes being defeated:

Oakland, Cal., $250,000; Elmira, N. Y., $185,000; Hot Springs, Ark., $78,000; Fitchburg, Mass., $50,000; New Brunswick, N. J., $100,000; Joliet, Ill., $100,000; Brunswick, Ga., $50,000; Cleveland, Ohio, $2,250,000; Topeka, Kan., $85,000.

After the passage of these bills Mr. Maddox admitted the inability of the small minority to place the members upon record. He had done his duty, he said, and so far as he was concerned he was now willing to have the rest of the bills sent up in a busch and passed.

Mr. Dockery, Democrat of Missouri, followed in the same line. He and his colleagues were powerless to antagonize the combination supporting these bills. They had the support of the committee on rules, and he would content himself during the remainder of the day with voting against each of the bills.

With the remark that if the experience meeting was over he would call up the next bill, for a public building at Beaumont, Tex., the work of passing the bills proceeded as follows:

Beaumont, Tex., $75,000; Dubuque, Ia., $100,000; Omaha, Neb., increasing limit of cost to $1,800,000; Wilkesbarre, Pa., $125,000; Jackson, Miss., $31,000; Elgin, Ill., $100,000; Minneapolis, Minn., $55,000; Butte City, Mont., $200,000; Salt Lake City, $300,000; Seattle, Wash., $300,000; Canton, Ohio, $15,000; Springfield, Mass., $20,000; Hastings, Neb., $20,000; Norfolk, Va., $20,000; New York city (custom house), $750,000; Fergus Falls, N. D., $75,000; Brooklyn, $20,000; Kansas City, Kan., $150,000.

In the Senate.

The shipping subsidy bill, it is generally believed, has no chance of passing this session.

It is thought the amendments offered by Senator Frye will fail to improve its prospects sufficiently to assure its enactment into law.

When the Senate convened, Mr. Frye, chairman of the committee on commerce, reported the shipping subsidy bill with a "good many restrictive amendments."

At his request it took the place on the calendar of the bill of the same title previously reported.

The new provision is as follows:

"The total compensation to be paid out of the treasury as provided in this section shall in no fiscal year exceed the sum of nine million dollars, and the secretary of the treasury shall make such regulations for the payment of said compensatin as will cause any excess in the total amount of compensation earned under this section in any one fiscal year over and above nine million dollars to be deducted pro rata from the total compensation due each individual or corporation entitled to such compensation hereunder during said fiscal year."

The bill as originally reported extended its proposed benefits to foreign built vessels under contract for American citizens on January 1 last. Advantage, it is asserted, already has been taken of this provision, and a number of contracts are said to have sprung into existence for the construction of ships abroad. As now reported, the language is changed so as to require that ships coming under the provision shall have been in actual course of construction on January 1.

The bounty to be paid to foreign built vessels is also reduced to fifty per cent., under the new additions to the bill.

The Last Cabinet Dinner.

Washington, D. C., March 1.—The last cabinet dinner of the season will be given by Secretary Long next Wednesday evening on board the United States steamship Dolphin, now lying at the navy yard dock.

NEW YORK STATE FINANCES.

An Effort to Keep Expenditures Within Appropriations.

Albany, N. Y., March 1.—The joint sub-committee of the Senate finance and the assembly ways and means committees, appointed by the last legislature to investigate the financial status of state departments, have submitted its report to the legislature and it was tabled and ordered to be printed.

Senator Higgins was chairman of this sub-committee. He reports that about ten thousand persons were found in the employment of the state in its various departments and public institutions. The report says:

"For many years appropriations have been made to various departments, institutions and commissions in lump sums, and could be expended for either salaries, clerk hire, labor, repairs or other expenses, in the discretion of the head of the department, and the various salaries or wages paid for labor performed in each department is frequently entirely dependent upon the business ability, conservatism, generosity, favoritism or caprice of the heads of the departments. These heads, without exceptios, consider themselves the best judges of the value of the services performed by each employe."

Senator Higgins introduced two bills carrying out some of the recommendations of his report. One of them empowers the governor to appoint and at pleasure remove, a financial secretary at a salary of four thousand dollars, who must be a certified public accountant. The financial secretary is authorized to investigate the accounts of any one expending state moneys.

The second bill provides that no state department or employe shall contract indebtedness on behalf of the state in an amount in excess of the appropriation available for the purpose.

It is also provided that moneys appropriated for a specific purpose shall not be expended for any other purpose.

Practical Co-Operation.

Boston, Mass., March 1.—The annual report of the savings bank commissioners relating to co-operative banks (building and loan associations) of this state, shows that the lowest rate of profit made for the year ending on September 30, 1898, was four and one-half per cent., and the highest six and three-quarters. Of the one hundred and twenty-three associations which made returns sixty-seven paid 5 8-10 per cent., twelve paid 6 1-4, nine paid 5, eight paid 5 1-2, six paid 6 1-2.

Last year the lowest rate was 1 3-4 per cent., and the highest was 7.

During the yea rthere was paid in $6,180,426 in monthly dues, $1,414,907 for interest, $54,103 for premiums and $48,743 for fines.

The total earnings were $1,138,025. There was a net increase of shares in force of 6,352. Real estate held by foreclosures increased nearly fifty per cent.

A Jersey Murderer's Day Set.

Trenton, N. J., March 1.—The supreme court have made announcement of the refusal of the application of Frank Bergen for a writ of certiorari to bring up for review the sentence of death imposed upon Louis Roesel in the Union county court for murder.

The application was based on the contention that the sentence naming March 10 as the day of execution was illegally made, because the court had previously adjourned for the term, and that the reconvening of the court was unauthorized.

Death of Ex-Gov. J. Madison Wells.

J. Madison Wells had a most unsavory political reputation. When General Sheridan was sent down to settle Louisiana affairs in 1867 he found Wells acting as governor and removed him, on the ground of wrongfully applying the sum of four million dollars voted for the repair of the levee. Later on he was chairman of the returning board of 1876, which declared the election of President Hayes.

ONE JUROR TOUCHED

Thomas Jarvis Says Quay Men Approached Him.

ADVANCES WERE REPELLED

The Point Breeze Shoe Maker Asserts That He Wants to See the Charges of Jury Tampering Sifted to the Bottom for Conscience Sake—The Harrisburg Deadlock Holds.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 1.—Speculation as to the cause of the sudden stoppage of proceedings in the trial of Senator Quay for conspiracy to misuse the funds of the state and of the People's Bank is growing rather than abating. That the reason for a discontinuance of the case is sensational is known.

The original intimation that the reason for the postponement was a discovery of an attempt to tamper with the jurors came from a trustworthy source, and no one associated with the prosecution has yet sought to deny published stories ascribing the delay in the trial to such a cause.

One of the men is the man declared without reserve that he has been approached. He is Thomas Jarvis, who has a shoe store at 1,517 Point Breeze avenue. Mr. Jarvis said to a reporter:

"Speaking for myself, I will say that one or two men have been to see me right here in this store in relation to the case."

"Do you mean to say they approached you with the expressed intention of influencing you one way or the other in the case of Senator Quay?"

"I could take no other meaning from their visit and their words."

"Who were they?"

"I can answer by saying that they were men whom I know to be politicians—in the business of politics—and they have not visited me in years."

"Of what shade of political belief were they—did they favor Senator Quay?"

"I should say they did."

"What did they say to you?"

"They did not say much. I saw at once what they came for and I shut them off. I let them see that the business was distasteful to me and they soon gave it up."

"Did they intimate that they would like you to be intimate to the senator?"

"That was my interpretation."

"Was money offered you, or were you in any other way persuaded?"

"I did not let them get that far. You can say," Jarvis added with decided emphasis, "that I for one will be glad to see these charges sifted to the very bottom, and I hereby put myself on record that I will do whatever I can towards clearing them up. The charges are a reflection on every man who is in that panel."

Quay Deadlock Holds.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 1.—The thirty-sixth joint ballot of the Pennsylvania legislature in the United States senatorial contest resulted in the following vote:

Quay 85, Jenks 67, Dalzell 11, Stewart 7, Stone 4, Huff 6, Irvin 5, Tubbs 2, Rice 2, Grow 1, Widener 2, Riter 3, Markle 1, Smith 1. Total 196. Necessary to a choice 99. No election.

It is generally expected that something important will happen within the next twenty-four hours, but nobody is willing to venture a prediction as to the nature of the break.

Congressman Joseph C. Sibley is here and there is a report that fifty Democrats are desirous of going to the anti-Quay men and forcing an election at once.

This move is feared by the anti-Quay managers for the reason that any slump from the Democrats may free other Democrats, who would go to the support of Senator Quay and assure his election. For the present, therefore, there will be no change, but it may come to-morrow.

The chairman of the bribery investigation committee said yesterday that the investigation would proceed without delay. He said that there was no disposition to conceal anything, but that the light would be turned on without fear or favor. The committee will be called together this week.

Steamship Moravia Lost.

Gloucester, Mass., March 1.—The fishing schooner Mondego, Capt. Corkum, which arrived here yesterday, reports that the overdue German steamship Moravia, bound from Hamburg for Boston, was ashore and broken in two on Sable island.

Captain Corkum says that he sighted the wreck on February 15. There was no sign of life aboard or near the stranded vessel, but quantities of wreckage lined the shore.

On account of the heavy sea that was running at the time the Mondego's crew could not approach the wreck.

Captain Corkum says that he believes that the Moravia's crew has probably been lost in the storm.

At the office of Funch, Edye & Co. it was said that the Moravia carried a crew of thirty men and a cargo of general merchandise.

Recorder Fines Ex-Recorder.

Montclair, March 1.—Justice of the Peace and ex-Town Recorder Charles B. Morris was fined six dollars in the police court yesterday afternoon by Recorder Adams for violating the town ordinance which requires property owners to remove all snow and ice from their walks within six hours after a storm.

The justice of the peace is nearly seventy years old, and the recorder scarcely thirty. This discrepancy of age only increased the anger of the former at the fine, and he refused to pay, declaring that he would appeal to the higher court in Newark. Recorder Adams has allowed Morris five days in which to pay or take the consequences.

THE BEEF INQUIRY.

Gov. Roosevelt Asked to Name a Day He Will be Able to Testify.

Washington D. C., March 1.—The beef court of inquiry convened yesterday with only officers present. It had been reported that Governor Roosevelt would not be called upon to testify. This was officially denied at the court. It was said that Governor Roosevelt had been sent a letter requesting him to name a day when it would be convenient for him to appear, but that he had not yet replied one way or the other.

This also disposed of the allegation that the court would ignore the volunteer branch of the service in the inquiry. The first witnesses called have been regulars simply because they have been more convenient to secure. A number of volunteer officers have been asked to appear, and will be examined in due time.

Lieutenant Ramsey testified that at his own request he was relieved of his duties as commissary, and joined his regiment as a company commander. There he received refrigerated beef.

"Did you then have any reason to believe that the refrigerated beef had been treated with chemicals?"

"Nothing more than my knowledge of the treatment of beef. I have been informed that packing houses always covered the exposed parts with a preparation."

"Do you know that?"

"Oh no. I have been so informed by butchers."

"What packing houses do that?"

"I don't know. I am merely told that western houses do it."

"But you know nothing of your own knowledge? To return to the original question, did you have any suspicion that the beef was chemically treated? Had you any reason to believe that it was?"

"Well, no. I had no reason to believe so. The outside of the beef had to be trimmed off. That is done by all butchers."

General Davis asked the witness about the canned roast beef and Lieutenant Ramsey said he had eaten some of it once.

"What was your experience with it?" asked General Davis.

"My experience is that it is a very inferior, unpalatable article of food—the canned roast beef, not the corned beef."

Replying to General Davis's further questioning, Lieutenant Ramsay described in detail the work of the loading at Tampa and unloading at Siboney of the rations intended for the troops.

Referring to the ill health of his company and regiment when he rejoined it, the witness said he certainly did think the food, being coarse, had a detrimental effect on the health of the sick men. He knew nothing of the primary cause of their illness, but believed that it was aggravated by the use of the food.

Asked to explain what he meant by coarse food he mentioned canned roast beef. He had seen canned roast beef before in the army.

"Where?" asked General Davis.

"At my own post exchange."

"Was it like that eaten in Cuba?"

"No, sir. Not the meat. The can was the same, but the beef was not."

"How was that eaten at your post?"

"It was very good. It would slice."

"What brand was that?"

"Armour & Co."

Pressed closely about the canned roast beef eaten by him in Cuba, the witness said that the taste was very flat and the meat very stringy. It was chuck meat, he said, and he declared that he never saw in any can a piece of meat weighing more than an ounce.

Colonel Gillespie questioned the witness further about the use of the expression "coarse food," asking him if that referred merely to food for convalescents, and if he meant to imply that the meat was not coarse for a well man. "You regarded it as an unsuitable food for a sick man?"

"I said I did think it unsuitable food for a sick man, but I did not say it was suitable for a well man," responded the witness emphatically.

Lieutenant Ramsay spoke in favorable terms of the canned roast beef eaten in New York.

Answering a question by General Davis about the practicability of unloading cattle on the hoof on the beach at Siboney, he replied:

"I should consider that a very difficult matter."

Hope for Mr. Kipling.

New York, March 1.—To-day brought something of relief to the friends of Mr. Kipling. The physicians, while not over sanguine, are a shade more hopeful to-day than they were yesterday, for the author passed an easier night last night and seemed to rest more easily this morning.

With the apparent change for the better, however slight, as indicated by the doctor's bulletins, it would seem that the real crisis of the disease is past.

It now remains a question of whether or not enough strength remains to combat the disease in the remainder of its course.

When Dr. Dunham was asked about this this morning he merely said that the facts of the case would have to be inferred from the bulletins. The above is the inference.

"The very fact that he is no worse," said the doctor, "shows that he is getting along. I shouldn't care to say, though, that he is getting better."

England and Germany Treat.

Berlin, March 1.—The minister of foreign affairs, Baron von Buelow, replying in the Reichstag yesterday to a question regarding Anglo-German commercial relations, said that Great Britain in February, 1898, communicated to the German government the draft of an extensive treaty, which was carefully examined and answered by a counter draft, to which no reply has yet been received by the German government.

Referring to South America, the minister of foreign affairs said that he was not aware that any one of the South American states was desirous of denouncing its commercial treaty with Germany, while, on the contrary, he added, several of the republics had made proposals for closer treaty arrangement.

Drip Pan Resolution Recalled from the Tammany Mayor—Gould Refused to Allow Auto-truck Company to Hang Compressed Air Pipes on Elevated Structure and That Caused Trouble.

New York, March 1.—The Tammany war on the Manhattan Railway Company collapsed yesterday afternoon in the municipal assembly. The council recalled from the mayor the resolution passed last week to compel the placing of drip pans under all the 114 miles of tracks within sixty days.

The resolution was amended to allow six months in which to complete the work. As amended the resolution was repassed.

This proceeding was regarded as a practical abandonment of the war on the elevated roads. The change in the programme was made on orders from Richard Croker.

The city hall was crowded at an early hour with Tammany politicians and persons anxious to witness the attempt to drive through the municipal assembly the strike bills against the Manhattan Railway Company. For an hour before the meeting of the board of aldermen there were many and conflicting rumors in circulation as to the progress of the fight against the elevated railroad.

Two additional strike bills were pending, one in each house, and it was understood that the Tammany members of the assembly had received orders to pass them. The two bills would compel the Manhattan Company to provide yards for the storage of cars and to enclose the platforms of stations.

Gould Makes a Report.

Stockholders representing a majority of the stock of the Manhattan Elevated Railway Company met at the office of President George Gould yesterday at noon.

At the meeting Mr. Gould made a brief speech explaining the attack made by Richard Croker on the company through the medium of the city departments in control of Tammany Hall and said:

"You have doubtless noticed that an attack is being made by the sudden and concerted use of the municipal machinery of the city to embarrass or thwart the company in its proposed improvements.

"This attempt first came to the surface simultaneously with this company's failure to comply with a demand made on behalf of the New York Auto-Truck Company to enter into a contract with that company to let it fasten its pipes on the entire railway structure of this company for a nominal consideration.

"That the effect of such a failure would be to bring on the attack on the part of the municipal authorities which has been made on this company was foreseen and feared fro mthe beginning.

"When this matter was finally submitted to our counsel, he declared that pipes containing compressed air at a pressure of two thousand pounds to the square inch being presumably dangerous, if these torpedoes were put on the railway structure and should explode and cause loss of life, this company would be culpable, its officers subject to indictment and the company's franchises liable to forfeiture.

"Immediately after it became evident that the contract would not be signed by this company the opening attacks upon this company by the board of health commenced, which have been followed by like attacks on the part of other departments of the city government.

"The company confidently relies upon the support of the public in its policy to make these improvements, and stockholders may rest assured that these hostile demonstrations on the part of the city officials will not be allowed to delay the proposed improvements for a single day."

BASEBALL MAGNATES ASSEMBLE.

Spring Meeting of the National League Opens.

New York, March 1.—Baseball magnates and players, together with a large crowd of persons interested in the national game, throng the corridors of the Fifth Avenue Hotel in attendance upon the annual spring meeting of the National League.

The principal topic among the managers and players is the consolidation of the Brooklyn and Baltimore clubs, which was brought to a successful issue late Monday afternoon.

That the deal would result favorably for all parties concerned was generally conceded. With a team of stars under the management of Hanlon playing at Washington Park, there could be no doubt, said the enthusiasts, that excellent support from Brooklynites and consequent big financial returns might be expected by the stockholders of the club.

Baltimore, on the other hand, it was said, would still be repersented by a fairly strong aggregation of players, composed partly of the men who represented Brooklyn last year.

The probable results that would arise from this week's meeting of the magnates were also discussed in the hotel corridors. It was thought by some that the circuit would be reduced to eight clubs, although the report that this would be done was denied by the club owners almost to a man.

Other important matters that will come up at the present conference are the question of increasing the power of the board of discipline, the restoration of the umpire's power to impeose fines on players, and the discussion of the report of the rules committee of the league.

To Demolish Spanish Forts.

Havana, Cuba, March 1.—General Ludlow, military commander of Havana, has ordered the destruction and disinfection of the Spanish forts at San Diego, near Regla, to make room for the camps of the Eighth and Tenth regiments, which will move from their present encampment in the Havana parks in a few days.

OUR FILIPINO FRIENDS LESS ACTIVE.

They Are Believed to be Running Short of Ammunition.

Manila, Philippine Islands, March 1.—Captain David S. Elliott and one private of Company G, Twentieth Kansas infantry, were seriously wounded yesterday morning at Caloocan.

The insurgents in the neighborhood of Manila are believed to be running short of ammunition, as their firing by night has been considerably slackened. The American troops are under orders never to take the initiative, and to reply to the insurgents only when their firing becomes unusually active.

There has been a recent improvement in the American trenches all around the lines, making them practically impregnable.

General Miller has prohibited the sale of intoxicants at Iloilo.

The rebels at Malabon fired upon the cruiser Callao from the jungle yesterday while Rear Admiral Dewey was visiting the Monadnock. Three shells were dropped by the monitor into the Malabon church, demolishing the structure and killing a number of rebels who were inside.

A factory at Malolos is reported to be running day and night to supply ammunition for the insurgents. The ignorance of the natives is shown by the fact that they have collected empty Springfield shells and are refilling them. More than two thousand of these cartridges have been discovered in houses in Pandacan by an officer of the Washington volunteers.

The cruiser Charleston and the gunboat Concord have gone on a ten days' cruise, presumably looking for filibusters. It is believed that arms are being landed in small quantities at northern ports.

Everything was absolutely quiet on Monday evening, both inside and outside the city.

The commissioners appointed by President McKinley to study the conditions in the islands are expected to arrive here Saturday.

Otis Reports Manila Quiet.

Washington, D. C., March 1.—The war department has received the following dispatch from Major General Otis, under date of Manila, February 28:

"A battalion of Twenty-third infantry sailed for Cebu on the 26th inst. A battalion of California volunteers will sail for Negros to-morrow. Everything has been quiet here for the past three days."

This message gave to the government the greatest encouragement in regard to the Philippine situation that has been felt for several days. It is now believed by the authorities that their fears of foreign complications were groundless.

Calm consideration has shown the administration officers that their anxiety was due almost entirely to the message from Admiral Dewey about "political reasons" demanding the presence of the battleship Oregon at Manila. As nothing further on that subject has been received from Dewey, and General Otis has not said anything in his reports about danger of foreign meddling, the authorities are now satisfied that they had nothing to fear on that score.

General Otis's report of sending troops to Cebu and Negros is regarded as important. It shows, the officers say, that the military conditions at Manila have so improved that General Otis can afford to send two battalions of our regular troops to garrison the islands of Cebu and Negros. If, it is argued, there were any fear on the part of General Otis that he did not have a large enough force to protect his present position against any army that Aguinaldo might be able to bring against him, he would not reduce his command by sending part of two of his best regiments to places where they could not be called on for service.

The dispatch of these two battalions is taken as an indication that General Otis is satisfied that Aguinaldo is preparing to surrender. Otherwise he would want all the men he could obtain to make the decisive blow for which the war department officers understand he is preparing, awaiting only the arrival of the rest of the reinforcements of regular troops from the United States before starting an aggressive campaign.

In one of his dispatches he said that if these reinforcements were at Manila he could put down the rebellion in twenty days.

In anticipation of the surrender of Aguinaldo, who, it is believed here, cannot hold out much longer, and will be unable to withstand another combined assault of the American troops, the officers are speculating as to what General Otis will do with the Filipino chieftain.

As Otis has full authority to deal with the situation he has not been prompted from Washington as to the manner in which he is expected to treat Aguinaldo when that person offers to make submission.

Wall Street Hears a Rumor.

New York, March 1.—Rumors that the government officers at Washington had received some news of a disturbing nature from Admiral Dewey gave a brief scare to Wall street yesterday and resulted in the selling of stocks and a slight shake down in values.

This rumor was really a repetition of one that was set afloat in Wall street last Saturday.

It was denied, however, dispatches from the best information sources in Washington stating that there had been no change in affairs in the Philippines.

Force Landed in Nicaragua.

Managua, Nicaragua, February 28, via Galveston, Texas, March 1.—General Reyes, the rebel commander, surrendered voluntarily on Monday to Captains Symonds and Burr, respectively commanding the United States gunboat Marietta and the British second class cruiser Intrepid, who then landed eighty marines from the ships for police duty.

The United States minister, Mr. William L. Merry, has visited President Zelaya socially three times since his arrival here, and the president entertained Mr. Merry at a concert given by the National Band on Sunday evening.

The official reception of Mr. Merry will take place to-day.

Grippe Cured.

"Last winter I had a bad cold and severe cough. I was lame in every joint and muscle. I was sick and felt as though I was coming down with typhoid fever. It was no doubt a bad case of grippe. Mr. E. P. Budge gave me a bottle of Brazilian Balm, saying he was sure it would help me. The relief was almost instantaneous. It quickly stopped my cough and took the grippe with all the pains and soreness out of my system. I gave the balance of the 50-cent bottle to Mrs. Bishop Wiley for her daughter. It proved so beneficial she says she never intends to be without it."—Edwin Fitz Jones, Cincinnati, Ohio.

New Rule of Running the Trolley.

It is a cause for regret that the Plainfield Street Railway Company has seen fit to abolish the practice of running their cars from this city into the centre of Dunellen, which plan has been in vogue since the opening of the Dunellen-Bound Brook branch of the Brunswick Traction Company's system. The inconveniences which the new order of things will cause, reviewed in The Daily Press news columns yesterday, will undoubtedly work in a detrimental way to Plainfield.

Outside of the question of increased cost of fare to make the trip to Dunellen from this city, the most deplorable condition which will result from the new order will be due to the fact that while the Plainfield Street Railway Company will be running five cars an hour to the terminal of the road at the city limits, the Brunswick Traction Company, under their present schedule, will afford but one car an hour to act as an intermediate carrier of the traffic between the city limits and Dunellen and points beyond.

Dunellen is essentially a part of this city, and it is a pity that the officials of that suburb and the officers of the two traction companies cannot come to an understanding and agreement whereby the old plan may be resumed. It seems to be the most advantageous for all hands.

The District Courts.

The bill designed to saddle the expense of conducting the district court in Elizabeth on to Union county, was killed in the Assembly yesterday. The measure, which was introduced by Assemblyman Squire, was discussed in The Daily Press sometime ago, and at that time we expressed the opinion that the proposed change was not in keeping with equitable government. It is gratifying to known that the bill was killed through the motion of Assemblyman Murray, who moved to strike out the enacting clause.

Another bill was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Francis which permits the establishment of district courts in cities of less than 20,000 population. If this bill passes it will permit Plainfield to organize a district court.

Assemblyman Murray has delved into ornithological subjects as a matter of legislation. He has introduced a bill which authorizes Fish and Game Commissioners to issue certificates for the collection of birds and their nests for scientific purposes. The bill ought to be killed. There is too much of such business prosecuted under the hifalutin excuse of science.

Owing to his position President Reed's name does not appear in the State Senate proceedings as the introducer of bills, but Monday night Senator Pitney introduced a Somerset county measure for the "Tall Sycamore." It incorporates and fixes the boundaries of Bernardsville as a borough.

A bill was passed in the Assembly yesterday which protects the police of Elizabeth and Rahway from removal from office for political purposes. Thus it is that other Union county towns take their cue from Plainfield, where the local government has already enacted such a condition.

In school matters New Jersey ranks as follows: In population, 18; in number of private schools, 23; in number of high schools, 24; in teachers employed, 26; in total expenditures, 12.

There are more public holidays in Honolulu than any other city in the world. Honolulu would make a favorable home for the man who believes in getting double pay on a holiday.

Several New England States have laws on their statute books forbidding kissing in the streets. It is a contemporaneous fact, however, that the law is as obsolete as it is old.

Tomorrow night will come the tug-of-war in the Democratic ranks in North Plainfield. Mayor Wilson's friends are ready for a good strong pull.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The Record has had a little side discussion with the Plainfield Press, which The Press has very courteously quoted. We must acknowledge a joke on ourselves in permitting an error to go through unnoticed, in which we credit Hackensack with "two trains a day," intending to say two railroads. Well, we have seventy trains per day, and the observation made will apply to them all as well as to two. So here's good luck to Plainfield, one of New Jersey's most prosperous and attractive municipalities. When the editor of The Press comes to Hackensack we will then as now acknowledge the joke and also indulge in the satisfaction of making him acknowledge that our town is no "jumping off place," as he would have it, but a pretty good place to visit and live in.—Hackensack Record.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A charming fraternal association in the United States Senate will be severed on March 4th. It is that between Senator James Smith, of New Jersey, and Senator Edward Murphy, of New York. They have snowy heads, ruddy complexions, and are of the same height and physique. They were sworn in together before Vice-President Morton six years ago, and they will leave the Senate arm in arm at the close of this Congress. They occupy adjoining seats in the Senate chamber and adjoining cottages at Elberon, N. J., in the summer season. Rarely do they disagree on votes on public questions. They work in the political traces like a span of blooded horses, and are universally popular among their associates. It is a cheering sight to see them at lunch in the Senate restaurant. The fare is simple, but good humor and hearty conversation give zest to the appetite. They glide along the cool, sequested vale of Senatorial life in the enjoyment of each other's society, regardless of the chill blast of politics.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

The Miles Company gave a fair interpretation of Con T. Murphy's play "An American Hero" last night. In the part of Col. Folk Mr. Miles finds scope for his versatility, representing five complete changes, all varied in their conception, a task that tests the artist. The play—a scenic one showing a sinking vessel, which disappears in view of the audience, the floating debris and hero and heroine floating in the midst of the same in open sea—brought much applause. The specialty department is a complete show in itself, being composed of pleasing artists. This evening they produce their strong play, "Lights of Gotham," a powerful comedy drama. Tomorrow matinee the beautiful comedy, "A Heart of Gold."

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, March 1—Today the new rule in regard to running the Plainfield trolley cars no further than the borough line went into effect, and the Central Railroad, before neglected for the trolley, is being used again. Just what the trouble is between the two trolley companies cannot be learned. It is pretty certain that there has been no trouble between the borough and the Plainfield company, for Mayor Brakeley yesterday did not know anything about the contemplated change until informed of it. It is said that the New Brunswick Traction Company want the Plainfield company to run their cars on 10 minutes headway instead of 12, and to let every third car go to New Brunswick. The New Brunswick company would then run their cars to Netherwood and thus establish a through line which would be appreciated by every one who has occasion to ride. The Plainfield company say that they do not make over $10 more a week by running their cars to the station, but this, the borough people say, is not so, as no one has been riding on the railroad lately when they could get a car. The new change has put those who ride to a great deal of trouble, and the general wish here is that the two companies will come to an understanding, and that the Plainfield cars will enter the borough once more.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, March 1.—The residents of the Plains were treated to a little excitement on Monday evening. Fritz Bendensteter, of Netherwood, had occasion to visit the village to replenish his wine cellar. While turning around on Park avenue his horse slipped and fell and absolutely refused to get up, notwithstanding Fritz said some kind words to the animal. Tiring of using vocal efforts he tried beating the poor animal until finally the crowd which had collected objected to this form of treatment. Fritz finally got hold of the rein and tried to pull the animal on its feet. This was only successful to a certain degree, as the rein broke and Fritz landed in the mud on even terms with the animal. The crowd finally got tired of jollying him, a rail was procured and the animal was soon on his feet and Fritz started on his way rejoicing.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongued coated, pain continually in the back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts., guaranteed, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store.

Fritz finally got hold of the rein and tried to pull the animal on its feet. This was only successful to a certain degree, as the rein broke and Fritz landed in the mud on even terms with the animal. TEA, COFFEE AND SUGAR.

Differences in the Averages of Consumption in Various Countries.

Twenty ounces a year for each inhabitant has been the average of tea consumption in the United States for twenty-five years. England's average for the same period has been 80 ounces for each inhabitant, or four times greater. Tea drinkers, as a rule, use more sugar than coffee drinkers do. Tea-drinking countries are the greatest consumers of sugar. In Spain, where chocolate is more popular as a drink than tea, and in France, where coffee is proverbially popular, and supposedly best made, sugar is, relatively, less used.

The annual consumption of sugar in the United States is now 2,100.000 tons, which is about 65 pounds a person. Of the total the United States produces 350,000 tons, 1,800,000 being imported. The United States pay annually over $108,000,000 for foreign sugar, and $20,000,000 for the domestic article. The American product of sugar has increased 50 per cent in 12 year. The English consumption of hugar is at the rate of 70 pounds per capita, the average of Holland and Denmark being 30 pounds, and of France and Switzerland 23 pounds.

The expression "enormous," often erroneously used by statisticians intent upon establishing a proposition, is correct in the case of Holland as a coffee-consuming country, for the total consumption of coffee in a year amounts to 40,000 tons, and the total area of Holland is 12,000 square miles—less than half the state of West Virginia. On the basis of the population the coffee consumption of Holland is 325 ounces yearly for each inhabitant, and the other countries with which comparison is made have the averages following: United States, 150; Germany, 90; France, 70; Austro-Hungary, 35; Italy, 17; Great Britain and Ireland, 15; Spain 9, and Russia 3.

The English taste for tea has never extended to the United States, but, oddly enough, in those portions of Canada in which the inhabitants are of English descent the consumption of tea is just as large as in either England or Ireland. In tea and coffee drinking the United States follow rather France and Germany than England, though the reason for this preference is not altogether clear.

Getting Patents.

If you look back on the history of human progress you will find that none of the great epoch-making inventions has ever been patented. The man who lit the first fire—whether Prometheus or the party from whom he stole the idea—did not get a patent for it. Neither did the man who made the first wheel—in every sense one of the most revolutionary inventions in the history of man. The same thing may be said of the invention of soap, candles, gunpowder, umbrellas and the mariner's compass, or, to come to our own day, of the steam engine and the electric telegraph.

Patents are mostly concerned with small mechanical details and improvements—it may be in the application of steam and electricity and by means of these patents enormous profits have been secured to second-rate inventors; but the great ideas and discoveries which underlie these details have been given to the world gratis.

There is a general notion that if you did not protect inventions by means of patents, inventors would cease to invent, and material progress would come to a standstill. But history does not bear this out in the least. Men with great mechanical gifts do not exercise them solely with a view to commercial profit any more than astronomers search the heavens for new worlds with an eye to registering patents on the results of their discoveries.

Training Cats.

A showman in England, Clarke by name, has succeeded in training a large number of cats to perform remarkable tricks. One of these is to walk over a long line of living rats, mice and canaries, stepping very carefully between the fluttering little bodies of birds and mice, and harming none of them. Another cat climbs by a rope to the roof, seizes the handle of a parachute, and descends by it to the ground from a considerable height.

Mr. Clarke repeats, what is well known, that the cat is the most difficult of animals to train to perform tricks. He has trained bears, lions, leopards, tigers and other wild animals, and finds them teachable and submissive when compared with cats. The cat, indeed, can never be so far conquered that her performances can be depended on. Mr. Clarke's entertainment includes only thirty trained cats, but he has to take with him sixty, in order that he may have substitutes for those who will not perform.

A Gloomy Prospect.

"You're somebody now," said the neglected horse, looking through the enclosure at the prize pig. "but one of these days somebody will invent a sausage that can be made of the cast off pneumatic tires of bicycles, and your name will be Dennis, too."—Chicago Tribune.

Difficult.

"So nobody," she faltered, "may come between us." His heart heaved.

"Whoever would do such a thing," he fiercely exclaimed, "would be contemptibly small."

And with that he moved even yet nearer to her.—Pick-Me-Up.

The corset, though railed against by a few dress reformers, will not go. It has a good grip on its wearers, and, as it were, has come to stay.—New Orleans Picayune.

A PREACHER'S WIFE.

MRS. HENRY WARD BEECHER GIVES SOME ADVICE REGARDING HER.

Her First Duty, She Says, is Within Her Home, and Other Women With Fewer Cares Should Lead in Mission and Church Work Generally.

Is not the first and most important work for all wives a faithful discharge of such home duties as should make home next to the very gates of heaven? If this work is kept constantly in mind—as the first duty—then a minister's wife may, with clear conscience, use the few square moments in each day in such work in her husband's church, and elsewhere if needed, as may bring all those over whom she has influence into closer union with each other, and promote and encourage active labor in every good work.

But I think few realize how much the home labors of a minister's wife can "strengthen his hands and encourage his heart." No man needs so much the help his wife can give him at home as a clergyman. Especially is this the case in large cities, where he is liable to be called upon to give much time and labor to outside work not absolutely connected with his church. People don't reflect that under such circumstances he needs more of his wife's help than other professional men.

If the wife is expected to take an active part or lead in parish work and all the charitable and benevolent associations that are connected with the church, what time can she have for such home service as can save her husband from constant interruption? Who but the wife can be ever ready to relieve him from the numerous and often important calls, and fequently be able to give such answers to these calls as will be satisfactory without any interruption to her husband? Who but the wife can take charge of the numerous letters brought by the daily mails and answer most of them, without his studies or labors being disturbed by them?

The help and relief that a clergyman's wife can give her husband, in these and many other ways, will enable him to do tenfold more good in his parish than he could possibly do if she presided over every missionary or charitable society connected with the church.

There are always many good, capable women in every church, even better fitted to take charge of all such societies than their pastor's wife is. But they could not take her place and give him the help and relief she can bring him at home. I don't mean that a minister's wife should not be interested in and appreciative of the work these women are actively engaged in and ready to assist them, giving every moment they can to work with them lovingly. But I do not believe she should be expected to make this her first duty.

Equal to the Emergency.

The Louisville Post is credited with a story of a city gentleman of simple tastes, some of which are not shared by his wife. He likes to do things that he used to do when he was a happy country boy.

The other day, according to his own account of the matter, he was sitting on the back porch shelling a big dish of peas. It was the servant's work of course, but he was doing it for pleasure. His wife, meantime, was entertaining some stylish callers. Suddenly the man heard one of the ladies say:

"Oh, I must see your pretty back yard. I have heard so much about it."

The next moment a window was opened, and out popped two pretty bonnets. The man was in a strait. His wife would be terribly mortified, he knew. With great self-possession he turned his head away and continued his work. His wife was not a whit behind him in quickness of course.

"Patrick," said she, "you musn't forget to mow that grass before Mr.—comes home."

"Yis, ma'am," answered the peasheller, with his best brogue, and the crisis was passed in safety.

Health Indications by Dreams.

Frightful dreams are a sign of determination of blood to the head.

Dreams in which one imagines pain or injury to any part of the body indicate disease of that part.

To dream of fainting indicates a weak action of the heart.

Gentle pleasant dreams, are a sign of a slight irritation of the head, but in nervous fevers often indicate the approach of a favorable crisis.

Dreaming is an experience common to humanity, though it varies widely in different individuals, and in a few exceptional cases is absolutely unknown.

Behind a Wall Within a Wall.

The Emperor of China, Kuang Hsu, cannot appear in public. He lives in a great palace surrounded by a wall. He was kept in the strictest seclusion throughout his youth, the Dowager Empress acting as Regent. He had in his palace yards miniature models of men-of-war, a train of cars which was an exact model of the first railway train run in China, and every toy that science counld invent or money procure. But he has never seen one of his own men-of-war or ridden in a real railway carriage.

The Sun's Bear Stories.

Not far from here, writes a New Mexico correspondent of the New York Sun, lives a half breed named Frank Monroe, who in his day has been a noted hunter. But he will not hunt no more, owing to a little misunderstanding he had with a band of grizzlies at Two Medicine Lake a couple of years ago. The servis berries were ripe and Monroe's women folks were anxious to gather a quantity of them for winter use, so he good naturedly hitched up a team and drove them to the foot of the lake, where the fruit was known to be abundant. While the women and children were gathering the berries he fished awhile, and, having soon caught enough trout for the evening meal and for breakfast, he roped one of his team, and straddling the old mare rode up on the ridge in the hope of getting a deer. As the old mare slowly picked her way through the down timber and brush, Monroe had his eyes open for game, and soon saw a yearling grizzly stripping a bush of its berries. Quietly slipping to the ground he tied the end of the lariat about his waist, and carefully aiming his rifle pulled the trigger.

At the report of the gun the bear squealed and disappeared, another one coming into view a short distance to the right. Monroe shot that one, and, like his mate, the bear seemed to fall dead in the brush, whereupon a very large female grizzly appeared to the right and stood on her hind legs, endeavoring to learn what all the shooting and squealing was about. Monroe then shot her in the point of the brisket, and she went down with a roar of pain. Just then still another grizzly lunged out of the brush behind him, and he just had time to fire a shot into the animal when the beast struck him, knocking him down and sending his gun for off into the brush. Then for a time there was a confused mass of bear, man, and horse, and the last thing Monroe saw before he fainted was the bear trying to grab the mare and she kicking him as hard as she could. When Monroe came to, he found that he had no clothes on above his waist. His cheek was torn, his breast laid open to the bone, his back was lacerated, his right arm badly chewed, and his left hand nearly bitten off through the palm. The old mare was still standing by him, except for a scratch or two apparently as sound as ever.

By this time the women and children came up, having heard the shooting, and managed to pack him to the wagon, and thence they hurried him down home and called the doctor. It was many months before he got outdoors again, and he never has recovered the use of his arm and hand. The old mare undoubtedly saved his life. The day after this happened the writer with a friend went over the battleground with the view of finding the carcasses of the enemy, but not a bear was to be seen; the ground was all torn and trampled, and there were several bloody trails which led off into the thick pine timber a little distance beyond. But these became more and more dim, and finally it was impossible to trace them over the thick layers of pine needles which covered the ground.

A number of years ago the writer was hunting buffalo on the Missouri. One morning one of the best hunters declared that he was tired of buffalo meat and that he was going up to the heads of the coulies to kill a blacktail deer for a change. So after breakfast he saddled his horse and rode away.

It was nearly noon when he came back down the long bare ridge from the prairie, walking beside his horse, and ere long he came into camp and rolled a very large grizzly skin off the saddle.

"Talk about your grizzlies," he said. "You ought to have seen this one fan me over the prarie."

"How was it?" some one asked.

"Well, you see, I rode out to the head of the long coulie, and saw a bunch of blacktail lying down at the head of a little fork of it. So I got off my horse and started to picket him, when this old mud rooter walks up out of the coulie right in front of me. I didn't lose no time putting a bullet in to him, and he let a howl out of him, turned a handspring or two, and come for me. Well, I jist climbed back onto old Baldy and lit out over the prarie and him right after me. I kept shootin' back at him, and consarn me if I could hit him, and he gettin' closer all the while, until finally he was a bitin' an' a grabbin' at Baldy's tail. In the meantime I had shot off all the cartridges in the magazine of my gun, an' when I reached down for my belt to git some more I found I'd forgotten to put it on when I started out this mornin'. Well, sirs, my hair jus riz straight up, and I was beginning to think my time had come when I found one cartridge in my trousers pocket. I slipped it into the gun, and I don t know but what I said a word or two of grace before I pulled the trigger. Anyhow, 'twas a lucky cartridge, for it struck the darned mud rooter square in the brain, and he keeled over dead. I've fought Indians, as you know, and been in several tight places, and I never was scart before. But you may believe it or not. I tell you that when I got down off that horse I was so weak and trembly like I couldn't wabble."

"She refused him when he was a civilian, you know, but when he came back from the army in a uniform she was crazy to get him."

"Well?"

"Well, he did the best he could for her. He married another girl, but he sent his uniform to her with his compliments. He said he knew what she prized."—Chicago Post.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Oesterreich.

Wien. In den hiesigen Kaffeelokalen und Restaurants werden die ausländischen Zeitungen jetzt eifrig von Polizeispitzeln durchschnüffelt, um herauszufinden, ob sie etwas Konfiszirbares enthalten.—Während der Aufführung von Dr. Theodor Herzls „Unser Käthchen" im Volkstheater entstand in Folge Brandgeruchs eine Panik, die sich jedoch bald legte, als bekannt wurde, daß nur ein Stück Kautschuk von der Elektrischlichtleitung zu glimmen angefangen hatte.

Bozen. Der Hausbesitzer Benedict Hofer überfiel auf offener Straße zwischen Tillach und Innichen seine eigene Frau und ermordete sie in bestialischer Weise. Hofer dürfte die That in Geistesstörung vollführt haben.

Graz. Eine Schneelawine verschüttete einen Bergführer und vier Soldaten, welche das Fort auf dem Predil verproviantiren wollten. Alle fünf Personen wurden gerettet, aber erst nach Ueberwindung großer Schwierigkeiten.

Innsbruck. Neulich Nachts entstand in der Teigwaarenfabrik des Herrn Rindfleisch ein Schadenfeuer, wodurch große Waarenvorräthe vernichtet und mehrere Maschinen unbrauchbar gemacht wurden. Der Schaden wird auf 20,000 Gulden geschätzt.

Lemberg. Die galizische Sparkasse erlitt durch große Engagements in Naphtha-Unternehmungen, deren Stand heute noch nicht geklärt ist, Verluste, die gegen 2,000,000 Gulden betragen. Außerdem hat sie zweifelhafte Wechsel im Betrage von 400,000 Gulden im Portefeuille. Von den beunruhigten Einlegern wird, trotzdem eine Regierungskommission vorläufig die Leitung übernommen hat, massenhaft die Rückzahlung gefordert und, obwohl dieselbe prompt erfolgt, hält das Mißtrauen an. Die galizische Sparkasse hat 30,000,000 Gulden Einlagen.

Schweiz.

Bern. Nach mehrjähriger Herz- und Nierenkrankheit ist Edmund Höhe, Direktor des internationalen Bureaus des Weltpostvereins in Bern, gestorben. Von der Pike an hatte Höhn im Postwesen gedient. Im Jahre 1855 trat er in den schweizerischen Postdienst, am 1. Dezember 1858 wurde er Beamter der schweizerischen Oberpostdirektion, von 1879 bis 1892 stand er als Oberpostdirektor an der Spitze der eidgenössischen Postverwaltung. Als Eugen Borel, der erste Direktor des am 15. September 1875 eröffneten Bureaus des Weltpostvereins im Jahre 1892 starb, wählte der Bundesrath Höhn zum Weltpostdirektor.

Luzern. In der Stadt Luzern ist die Initiative auf Einführung der Proportionalwahl des großen Stadtrathes durch Gemeindeabstimmung verworfen worden.

Uri. Dieser Tage wurde der 3597 Meter hohe Galenstock von zwei Mitgliedern der Sektion Uto (Zürich) des Schweizer Alpenklub ohne Führer erstiegen. Der Anstieg am Gipfel kostete stundenlanges Stufenhacken. Die Tour wurde mit sogenannten Schneeeisen ohne irgend welchen Unfall ausgeführt. Der Marsch von der Furka zum Galenstock und retour Furka-Realp-Göschenen nahm 18 Stunden in Anspruch.

Basel. Der ordentliche Professor für Chirurgie an der Basler Hochschule und Vorstand der Chirurgischen Klinik, Dr. August Socin, ist im Alter von 62 Jahren verstorben. Professor Socin hat als freiwilliger Arzt den deutsch-französischen Krieg 1870—71 auf deutscher Seite mitgemacht und seine Erfahrungen in dem Buche „Kriegschirurgische Erfahrungen" (1872) niedergelegt.

Graubünden. Die Firma Frote und Westermann in Zürich hat von der Gemeinde Brusio die Wasserkraft des Poschiavino (20,000 Pferdekräfte) für 20,000 Francs erworben, mit der Bedingung, daß eine Kraft von 4500 Pferdekräften zur etwaigen Verwendung für den Betrieb einer Lokalbahn Poschiavo - Tirano abgegeben werden muß.

DARK SIBERIA'S LIFE

A RUSSIAN SURGEON TELLS OF EXISTENCE IN SAGHALIEU.

In the Flogging of the Convicts the Worst Criminals are Generally Chosen to Wield the Terrible Knout—Escape is Out of the Question.

Passing a gloomy passage of the Alexander prison, whose walls are covered with black moldiness and reek with the strong scent of pine cones strewing on the floor, we find at the end of the corridor chairs and tables for the authorities who witness the infliction of the punishments; among the officials are a lawyer, the chief of the prison, and the surgeon, and a little way off is placed the "block" of threatening aspect, behind which stands the wielder of the knout, who awaits his victims with a curious look. His garb is apparently intended to make the situation all the more impressive; he wears a tall white head covering, soft felt shoes, a blood-red shirt with its sleeves turned up, and carries the knout in his hand. Along the wall stands a row of convicts with smoothly shaved heads and facing them is a long line of warders armed with loaded revolvers in the hand. The stillness as of the grave, which stamps all present is broken from time to time by the rattling of the handcuffs and the leg fetters and by a furtive cough or rusting of the papers upon the table of the prison governor.

"Who will be the next?" is the question that is all too clearly to be read upon the deathlike features of the "arrestants"—

"Sidoroy" is called out by the governor in a quiet, restrained voice. Sidoroy steps unsteadily and with an increasing totter and rattling of his chains out of the line of gray, long felt coats. I note his lips growing pale and the fear in his widely opened eyes, as though he were a hounded wild beast.

"Lie down!" is the command. Hastily making the sign of the cross on his breast, Sidoroy lies down at length on the bench, and throws each arm around it; he is then bound by leathern thongs to the bench, and his hands are tied together beneath it.

"How many?" asks the warder charged with counting the strokes.

"Look out," or "Pull yourself together," forms the general remarks of the knout wielder, and the next moment the blows are raining in fearful thuds upon the bare back of Sidoroy, who utters heart-piercing shrieks. One, two, three—the warder calls off the tale of the stripes, everyone of which hissed and leaves its mark on the culprit. The cry that at first followed every stroke has gradually become an unbroken howl and roar, and readers must have strong nerves if they can picture further all the hideousness of this diabolical form of punishment.

This sort of castigation is inflicted upon convicts whenever it is ordained by the law or by the police and local authorities. The dispenser of blows is always a fellow taken from the prisoners themselves, and in his hands the fate of the delinquents may be said literally to lie. The knout consists of a thick wooden stick, to which is fastened a strongly plaited lash, about thirty inches long and two inches wide, and this thong is cut so as to form three lashes as its end. A convict who retains the smallest degree of human feeling can never be indulged to undertake this office, and thus only the most reprobate and hardened criminals are chosen for the dread work. To these inhuman creatures the courts of Russia intrust human life. It is in their power to inflict only light punishment upon the condemned, to make him a cripple for the rest of his days, or to send him to his grave on the spot, and yet the officials never deem it necessary to put any restraint on these floggers.

The courts generally condemn to flogging confirmed criminals, fugitives from Siberia and vagabonds, many of whom have received altogether from five hundred to six hundred blows. An old Siberian tramp finished his curriculum vitae with the following words: "I have received all told fourteen hundred stripes of the birch rod, six hundred blows from the knout and numberless thrashings by sticks." As is to be expected, the statistics of the Siberian prisons show the futility of these punishments as corrective measures. In proportion as the punishments increase in number and cruelty, so the the relapses and backslidings into crime increase. Nostalgia, or intensified home sickness, is curiously strong in the inmates of the Siberian prisons and will not be suppressed by the most cruel system of whipping.

Hitherto we have dealt only with the knout, which is the rarer form of punishment, and must be ordered by a court of law. The usual corporal punishment by means of rods and sticks is somewhat different, for thy form the Alpha and Omega of the corrective measures in use in Siberian prisons. This form of punishment is regarded rather as a bagatelle, and yet its effects are much worse than those of the knout, for it is meted out to all in the same measure; it needs not to be ordained by a court of law, and the victim undergoes no previous medical examination as to his fitness to bear the punishment. Every governor of prisons can give thirty and every district governor one hundred of these blows, at their sole discretion. It is the naked truth that even criminals when grievously ill do not escape this punishment. A female prisoner in this district or Korsakov was whipped to such an extent that she fell down dead. —St. Petersburg Medical Record.

FOOLED HIS WIFE.

Mrs. Blank Tells the Joke at Her Own Expense.

It was in a town not many miles from Washington that there was recently given a couple of masquerade parties at private houses. At the second of these the hostess or the first party found herself talking very amicably with a mask in whom she supposed she recognized a gentleman who come to town after her own entertainment. Simply for the sake of indulging in conversation and of throwing the gentleman off the scent of her own identity she asked:

"Were you at Mrs. Blanks masquerade party?"

"No," he answered. "I was not honored with an invitation."

"Were you in town at the time?" she inquired.

"Yes," he replied, "but Mrs. Blank does not like me."

Consternation seized upon Mrs. Blank, but she instantly determined not to betray herself.

"Doesn't, eh?" the lady returned, carelessly. "Probably that is one of the things which you imagine. Some people are always assuming that others do not like them, you know."

Her companion seemed a trifle annoyed.

"I am not one of that sort," he retorted, rather brusquely. "Besides, she has intimated to me that she did not like me."

"Is it fair to ask how?" Mrs. Blank asked, entirely mystified in regard to the identity of her interlocutor.

"Why, I should not mind telling you if I were sure that you wouldn't repeat it."

"Oh, I never betray a confidence," the lady said, eagerly.

The gentleman leaned over until his face under the mask was near to hers, "I asked her to marry me."

Mrs. Blank was more startled than ever. The train of her old suitors—and in her day she had had not a few—came up before her mental vision, and she wondered which one of them chance had brought to her side tonight, but in vain.

"But, she said, slowly, "because a lady refused your hand it does not follow that she dislikes you. I am sure a woman is not to be supposed to dislike every man she does not wish to marry. That would be a most absurd assumption."

"To be sure it would," he assented cheerfully, "but in this particular case she did not refuse me."

"Did not refuse you?" echoed Mrs. Blank in astonishment. "She certainly did not accept you."

"That is precisely what she did do."

"It is not——" Mrs. Blank began, and then considering that if she mentioned names she might show more knowledge of Mrs. Blank's affairs than was compatible with pretending to be another person, she changed her sentence and said, "creditable that she should accept you and then marry another man."

"She didn't, Kate," her husband said, in his own natural voice, "she married me."

"Tom!" she exclaimed.

"Yes, my dear," Tom answered. "You told me at our party that I couldn't fool you, even if I did wear a mask."

"You are a wretch and a monster," she declared, "and I will never forgive you."

But she did, and told the joke at her own expense before the evening was over.—Washington Star.

Beware.

Widow to admirer (who has just proposed)—I loved my last husband as few women could love. I never let him out of my sight for long. He never stayed from home after 7, and he gave me all his money to take care of. I can make any man happy, but if he dares to trifle with my affections let him beware. Now you may kiss me.

A Natural Sequence.

Arbuttnot—"I hear that the ladies of an old Salvation Army are transferring their allegiance en masse to its new rival offshoot."

Arbuckle—"What reason is given?"

Arbuttnot—"It is said that the new organization has adopted a slightly more becoming bonnet."

Supplementary History.

Naturally when King Nebuchadnezzar took to eating grass it made more or less talk among the neighbors.

"He's touched in the head!" remarked some.

But there were others who were more rational.

"He's paying an election bet!" declared they, confidently.

Great Discretion.

Younger Sister—"Why did you tell Mr. Callagain how old I am?"

Elder Sister—"You're too young for that to make any difference. Now, it would be different if you were to tell my age."

"Well, I didn't. I only told him you were ten years older than I am."

In Extremis.

Husband—"My darling, when I am gone, how will you ever be able to pay the doctor's bill?"

Wife—"Don't worry about that, dear. If the worst comes to the worst, I will marry the doctor."—Medical Journal.

PROSPERITY OF HOLLAND.

The Industry of Its People and the Wisdom of Its Rulers.

The relations between England and Holland have known times of streets and storm that have left their mark on our songs and literature. They have burnt our shipping in the Thames, and struggled against us for the mastery of the seas. But those times are very distant. The only sentiment existing between the two nations at present is one of profound friendship. We should be among the first to resist any encroachment to the neutrality of Holland. That plucky, unambitious little race bids fair to rise above her old tyrant, Spain, in the scale of the nations. She has shed her colonies in South Africa, where an unhappy sequence of events caused a racial bitterness which most Englishmen deplore. But she shows no sign of losing her colonies in Java and the far East, where Dutch and English trade together in perfect tranquility. At home she adheres steadily to her part of the unambitious boy in Dame Europa's school. That boy does not always fail in the long run. He keeps out of scrapes, and saves his pocket money. Perhaps Holland may some day be able to save enough to face the scheme for draining the Zuyder Zee, which was once dry land, and might, it has been estimated, become dry land once more for 10,000,000 pounds. That would add another province to Holland. But as it is, the very existence of this little state is a miracle—with most of its land under the level of the sea, and with its state canals and railways overruning the land, and making it one of the finest commercial bases that Europe possesses. The prosperity of this country has always rested on two things—the industry of its citizens and the wisdom of its rulers. We shall all join the Dutch in their hope and prayer that the reign of Queen Wilhelmina may see it yet further advanced. With a healthy revenue and an increasing population Holland may yet see great changes.—London Chronicle.

Matrimony and Business in Africa.

The sailor who had a wife in every port he visited has his counterpart in the native trader of West Africa, who has a wife in every village with which he trades. There is one important difference—Jack's wives helped to spend his money, whereas the trader's wives help to make it. Miss Kingsley tells us of the custom and also gives the explanation.

It would be useless for the trader to sit at home and wait for his customers to come to him, because each village is usually at feud with all the neighboring villages, and the inhabitants dare not venture beyond their own district on pain of being robbed first and eaten afterward. On the other hand, it is obviously a risky thing for the black trader to travel from village to village with an assortment of the very goods best calculated to arouse the cupidity of the guileless African.

To lessen the danger he resorts to frequent matrimony. In every village he takes a wife from one of the most important families and so secures a faction who favor him. The African wife is not subject to jealousy, and so each of the wives is more than content to have a husband who can keep her supplied with cloth and beads to outshine her neighbors. Her relatives are proud of the one of them so important a man, and hope to be especially favored in the business. In return they take her in disputes and help him to collect debts and treat him generally as a respected member of the family.

The Sultan's Pleasing Manners.

As to the sultan's working habits, I have known him to be at work at 5 in the morning, and keep a whole staff of secretaries going at that hour who had slept overnight on couches in the rooms in the palace they habitually work in. Munir Pasha, the imperial grand master of ceremonies, and one of the most kindly, distinguished men it is possible to meet, once said to me: "There is one characteristic of his majesty which conveys a constant lesson to us all; it is his extraordinary self-control-his impassive calm. It is almost sublime. No contrariety, no trial, seems able to ruffle his perfect self-possession. It is truly marvelous."

The prepossessing impression which the sultan is universally admitted to produce on those who are privileged to come into contact with him is doubtless in part due to that charm of manner, that quiet dignity, so free from angular self-assertion, which is more or less characteristic of all well bred Turks. But in his case it is supplemented by a pleasing smile and an unusually sympathetic voice, the notes of which always seem to convey a pleasant impression, even to the stranger who is unable to understand what his majesty has said until it is translated by the interpreter. The sultan usually gives audiences on Friday after the ceremony of the Selamlik, when he wears a Turkish general's uniform, with the star of the Imtiaz order in brilliants hung from his neck. As he sits in front of you, with his hands resting on the hilt of his sword before him, and you watch him speak to Munir Pasha in his quiet, dignified way, you cannot resist the impression of his picturesque dignity.—Harper's Magazine.

Better Fuel Than Coal.

A newly discovered mineral which is of a lustrous black color and which as a fuel surpasses coal and all other substances heretofore known, is described by the Journal of Geology. It is found on the island of Barbados, in the Lesser Antilles, where the natives call it "manjak."

ON BOARD OF A SHIP

A SACRIFICE MADE ON A BRITISH STEAMER.

The Very Extraordinary Rites of Malay Sailors—A Heathen Diety is Worshiped Under the British Flag—The Decks Blood-Sprinkled.

On the deck of a British steamer—the City of Dublin—and beneath the shadow of the Union Jack which waved in the breeze from her mizzen mast there were enacted recently ceremonies the most strange and weird ever witnessed in this port.

Had the crew been Americans, Englishmen or of any other civilized nationality the strange proceedings would have rendered the participants fit candidates for a lunatic asylum, but as the entire company, with the exception of four men, are full fledged Malays and Lascars from the Malayan archipelago, the performance excited only the most unbounded astonishment not unmixed with fear on the part of those who witnessed it.

It is rather singular that there should be so many of that fierce oriental race represented on the City of Dublin. Vessels have reached this port before carrying six or sometimes a dozen who had been shipped in far off ports to fill up the ranks of the former crew depleted by sickness or death, but probably never before has a captain visited this port before the arrival of Captain Rae of the City of Dublin, who evidently preferred these yellow skinned individuals to his own countrymen.

He shipped the odd assortment on the voyage out from London to Pekalongeau, of which the present voyage is the conclusion, at Port Said and Aden, Arabia. He intended getting rid of them at Colombo, Ceylon, but they proved themselves such good men that he engaged more until nearly all the original members of the crew were discharged.

The City of Dublin came up the river and dropped anchor in the stream off Spreckels' refinery. She was boarded by the inspector. Everything was all right about the manifests, and Captain Rae was told that he could tie up to pier 61, when he was ready.

"I won't be able to go into berth to-night," he replied. "There will be a high old time on board the vessel before she reaches the pier unless I am greatly mistaken."

The next morning there was quite a respectable crowd gathered on the quarterdeck of the City of Dublin.

"According to the dictates of their religion," said Captain Rae to a Times reporter, "they are about to celebrate their arrival in port by a ceremony which is probably the most remarkable you have ever heard of."

The crew assembled forward. A circle was formed, in the centre of which appeared a weird figure. He was the priest, a character whose absence has never yet been noticed from a gathering of these singular people.

"They brought him all the way over at their own expense," said Captain Rae, "and he has had an easy berth. Unless I am in error he will now play the part of a butcher."

A dramatic scene was then enacted. The bleating of a sheep was heard, and two swarthy Lascars broke into the circle, where stood the priest, dragging after them the terrified animal. At the same moment the crew broke into a curious chant or recitative, while the priest threw the struggling animal to the deck, placing his foot firmly upon his head. The next instant he had buried the knife into the heart of the unfortunate beast, and with incredible swiftness tore the organ from the body.

The crowd of devotees then prostrated themselves on the deck and were sprinkled with blood from the dripping morsels which were cut off by the priest. In conclusion he raised the heart three times above his head and hurled it into the water. The body of the sheep then followed suit.

About half an hour afterward, when the decks of the City of Dublin were cleared from all evidences of the sacrifice, the participants sat down to the first meal they had eaten since entering the capes forty-eight hours before.

The evening sunlight was streaming through a porthole when Captain Rae and a reporter entered the forecastle to observe the men at their mess. The shadow of the captain at that moment fell across the table. With a volley of Singalese oaths all that portion of food which had been touched by the shadow went flying into the sea, hurled by the indignant hands of the Malays, who saw contamination even in that contact with a Christian.

Captain Rae has no fear of his strange crew, although he is almost alone on the vessel. "I have never had any trouble with them," he said, "and regard them as good, tractable sailors. I never interfere with their religion, and they apparently respect me for it." —Philadelphia Times.

Don't Put on Airs.

Another language saver has launched his boat. "Is 'has got' good English?" he writes: "should not 'got' be omitted?" For the 33d and last time we say that "has got" is sound, correct English, good historically, good in modern use, a perfectly healthy idiom. Anybody who has scruples about the "got" can cut it out. Anybody who has a taste for prunes, potatoes, prisms, can learn to break himself of the habit of saying "has got" if he perseveres. We seek to put no constraint upon tender consciences. But abstainers from "has got" should be warned against being puffed up. Fresh English is always good, but persons who like it canned are welcome to take it that way. They mustn't put on airs, though.—New York Sun.

Hard Writing is Easy Reading.

Bryant is said to have written "Thanatopsis" in a week.

De Foe is said to have written "Robinson Crusoe" in six months.

Thompson required three years of time to write, revise and finish "The Seasons."

Mrs. Clark required sixteen years to prepare the "Concordance to Shakespeare."

Swift employed the odd hours of over two years in work upon the "Tale of a Tub."

Hawthorne spent six months to a year in the composition of each of his romances.

Byron spent the leisure hours of nearly four years in the preparation of the first two cantos of "Childe Harold."

Dickens says in the introduction to "David Copperfield" that he spent two years in the composition of that novel.

Emerson is reported often to have spent from six months to a year in the composition of one or two short stories.

Spenser, from first to last, consumed four years of tolerably steady labor in the preparation of the "Faerie Queene."

Hume spent fifteen years in collecting materials and writing his "History of England," and two more years in revising and correcting it.

Heating Houses in Corea.

Stoves are not used to any extent by the native Coreans. In building their houses they lay down a system of flues where the floor is to be. These flues begin at a fireplace, which is usually placed in an outer shed or connecting closed alleyway. From this fireplace the flues extend in a more or less curved direction, like the ribs of a round fan, to a trench at the rear of the room, which in turn opens into a chimney, which is usually placed some distance from the house. Flat flagstones are then placed carefully over these flues, and the whole is cemented over and finally covered with the thick oil paper for which the country is noted. This paper keeps smoke from entering the room, and a little straw or brushwood, used in the fireplace for cooking the rice, serves to heat the stone floor and gives an agreeable warmth which lasts till the time of the next meal. Two heatings daily serve to give the people a nice, warm floor, upon which they sit in the daytime and sleep at night. By leaving their shoes at the door, the inmates preserve the paper floor, which from constant polishing takes on a rich brown color.—Consular Report.

IVORY SOAP, PASTE.

In fifteen minutes, with only a cake of Ivory Soap and water, you can make a better cleansing paste than you can buy.

Ivory Soap Paste will take spots from clothing; and will clean carpets, rugs, kid gloves, slippers, patent, enamel, russet leather and canvas shoes, leather belts, painted wood-work and furniture. The special value of Ivory Soap in this form arises from the fact that it can be used with a damp sponge or cloth to cleanse many articles that cannot be washed because they will not stand the free application of water.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING.—To one pint of boiling water add one and one-half ounces (one-quarter of the small size cake) of Ivory Soap cut into shavings, boil five minutes after the soap is thoroughly dissolved. Remove from the fire and cool in convenient dishes (not tin). It will keep well in an air-tight glass jar.

VARICUS SPORTS.

In the published list of Y. M. C. A. indoor athletic records, there was one error. The record for the fence vault is 6 feet, 5½ inches instead of 6 feet, 3 inches, and is held by Frank Marcley instead of F. O. Bristol.

In the dual indoor games with New Brunswick, last Tuesday, two records of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. were broken. Raymond B. Carroll broke his own record of 5 feet, 2 inches, for the running high jump, clearing the bar at 5 feet, 3 inches. In the standing high jump, Carroll broke the old record of 4 feet, 2 inches, made by Ivan Hardingham, doing an inch better.

The next event of importance in athletic circles that the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. boys will take part in, is the dual gymnastic contest with the New Brunswick association. The two contests, one in athlectics and one in gymnastics, were arranged at the same time. The gymnastic contest will be held sometime during March. New Brunswick is counting on a sure victory in it as the gymnasts there are usually expert.

TROLLEY LINK FROM WESTFIELD TO RAHWAY.

CLARK TOWNSHIP GRANTS FRANCHISE

Riker's Trolley Line to Connect Westfield With Rahway and Boynton Beach.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Westfield, March 1.—The Clark Township Committee has granted a trolley franchise over private right of way to the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, of which the Hon. Chandler W. Riker, Adrain Riker and Col. E. W. Hine, of Newark, are the incorporators.

The line through Clark township will parallel Central avenue, which is the main county road between Westfield and Rahway. This franchise will connect Westfield with Rahway and Boynton Beach. The application for the Westfield part of this line is now pending before the Township Committee at this place.

The franchise granted at Clark township is part of what is known to be the cross-country trolley to connect Springfield with Rahway. It is said the trolley magnates anticipate very little opposition in securing a franchise of the City Council of Rahway, for the company only require about one thousand feet of Westfield avenue at that place to connect with the Boynton Beach line at St George's avenue. The Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company will shortly make application for a franchise through the Borough of Mountainside and then on to Springfield township, where the line will connect with the Essex county trolley lines.

G. O. P. LEADERS SAT ON A PLAINFIELD SON

Assemblyman Murray Called Down by a Party Caucus.

ADJOURNMENT IN SIGHT.

LEGISLATURE ARRANGING FOR A FINAL QUITTING TIME.

Annual Appropriation for Improved Roads Was Made $150,000—Resolution Passed Calling for Uncle Sam to Name a Battleship After New Jersey—Supervision of L. A's Decided.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, March 2.—Both Houses of the Legislature have adjourned for the week. In each House the members managed to keep pretty busy yesterday, and it is probable that they will stay right down to business from now until the end is reached. As a result of a caucus of the House Republicans, Leader McKee presented a resolution at the afternoon session, calling for sine die adjournment March 16th. Assemblyman Carroll moved to substitute March 10th as the date of final adjournment, and this was agreed to. The members, however, freely state that the resolution stands no show of being lived up to, and that it will probably be the end of the month before the session is over.

The caucus also "sat on" Roger Franklin Murray, the Plainfield Statesman, giving him to understand that he must not attempt to "buck" the Speaker on the floor of the House.

No sensational features marked the day's work. In the Senate the annual appropriation for improved roads was made. The amount is increased to $150,000 because of the large demands that are made for State aid. Senator H. W. Johnson, of Camden, made a telling speech favorable to the bill, and said that the principal objection to it was that it did not appropriate enough money. Senators Martin and Foster voted against the bill. The counties that they represent, they said, have not been able to get State aid because other counties have practically crowded them out.

Congressman Loudenslager, of the First district, is trying to get one of the new battleships named after the State of New Jersey, and Senator Stranger, of Gloucester, introduced a concurrent resolution to the effect that the New Jersey delegation in Congress be urged to use their influence to secure the designation of one of the battleships to this State. It is stated in connection with this resolution that if New Jersey is honored that the State will do something handsome for the battleship.

Bell's Building and Loan Association bill passed the House with two dissenting votes. It provides for State supervision of building and loan associations. The official examination of the books of the associations is to be made annually. Assemblyman Bruder, of Hudson county, wanted to have action on the bill postponed, but Assemblyman Wood, of Mercer county, argued its immediate passage. He stated that within a short time two associations in Trenton were wrecked and a loss of $100,000 or more fell to a class of people who could ill afford the loss. He considered that the bill was the strongest that is now pending before the Legislature.

The House adopted Mr. Abbett's resolution favoring the election of United States Senators by popular vote. Many of the Republican Assemblymen voted for the resolution.

THEY CALL IT A BOOM.

Joy in Elizabeth When a $70,000 Piece of Property Sells for $25,000.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 2.—Elizabeth real estate is on a boom. Yesterday a part of the Robert M. Moore estate, adjoining the Town and Country Club in North Broad street was sold to Henry E. Claire for $25,000, and the Pennbrooke home, at West Grand street and Dehart place was transferred to Comptroller Carolton for $25,000.

The Pennbrook was built by A. J. Pennbrook of Sweetster, Pennbrooke & Co., at a cost of $70,000, and is one of the finest residences in Union county.

Residential Changes.

LaRue & Cuming, the hustling real estate agents, have begun their spring campaign and have already located a number of families. Through them, Fred Pope, of West Fifth street, has rented L. P. Bullock's house on East Fifth street. Mrs. John Ulrich, of East Fifth street, has rented A. Male's house on College place. James Flack has rented R. Carson's house on Mountain avenue. Wm. M. Runyon's house on East Front street has been rented to Mr. Sutton.

THE NEW HOTEL OPENED.

MINE HOST STAATS MAKES HIS INITIAL BOW IN PLAINFIELD.

The Hotel Kensington Thrown Open for Business and Inspection Last Night—Its Many Advantages Admired.

The Hotel Kensington was formally opened last evening and the initial bow made by "Mine Host" John H. Staats was a success. Everything about the hotel presented a fresh and bright appearance and the crowd that called during the evening was cordially received and extended every courtesy. From 7 until 10 o'clock a repast was served to those present and the hospitality of the proprietor was evidenced on every side.

The hotel was thrown open for inspection and everyone appeared surprised at the transformation that has taken place. From the cellar to the attic there has been a complete renovation.

New and handsome carpets have been provided, attractive paper has been placed on the the walls, and every room is provided with neat and costly furniture.

The dining room is one of the features. It is a beauty and a special effort will be made to furnish a cuisine that will please the most particular. The cafe will be run on a standard of excellence. The hotel has a commodious office, well appointed, and the entrances are well arranged, especially for ladies.

During the evening music was furnished in the parlor and the decorations throughout were artistic. In the dining room there was an elaborate display of palms. Everyone present at the opening congratulated the proprietor and wished him all the success possible.

MRS. RUPPERT NON-SUITED UNION BEEF COMPANY.

TRIED AT ELIZABETH COURT.

Judge Vail Held That She Was Not Responsible for Book Account—Was for Meat Market on Stone Street.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 2.—Judge Vail gave a decision yesterday in the case of Ralph I. Tolles, trading as the Union Beef Company, against Mrs. Katherina Ruppert, which was tried during the day in the Court of Common Pleas. The case was first tried in a justice's court in Plainfield. The decision was in favor of the defendent.

The trouble was over a book account. Mr. Tolles has charge of the beef company in Plainfield that handles the Armour Company's supplies. He claimed that Mr. Ruppert came to him several years ago and wanted credit. A new butcher shop was to be started on Stone street. Mr. Tolles said he refused to give Ruppert credit but allowed it to his wife. He made no direct contract with the wife.

Judge Vail held that the wife could not be held for the debt unless she had the contract before purchase, so he gave the verdict to the defendant. Codington & Swackhamer were the lawyers for the defendant. Francis J. Blatz, of the law firm of Murphy & Blatz, represented Mr. Tolles.

SECRETARY RADEL'S VIEWS.

Says That the Plainfield Company Has Not Acted Fairly.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, March 2—In speaking of the action of the Plainfield Street Railway Company in declining to run to Dunellen, Secretary Radel, of the Brunswick Traction Company, says:

"The Brunswick Traction Company has been carrying passengers through from Dunellen to Plainfield and were getting no return for it. The Plainfield company has not acted fairly and as a result we have forced the Plainfield people to stop running their cars into Dunellen. The Brunswick Traction Company will issue transfers from the Bound Brook line to Plainfield and redeem them."

Wants to Recover a Piano.

Wesley H. Brokaw brought suit yesterday in Judge Nash's court against Nate H. Guttman in tort. The suit is to recover a piano that Brokaw alleges is his property. He claims that he rented it to Guttman, with the privilege of turning the rental toward the payment of it. If the money was not paid within a certain time Brokaw claims that the piano was to be returned to him. He is now trying to recover possession of it. The suit was brought by his attorneys, Murphy & Blatz, and the case will come to trial Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

M'ALL AUXILIARY WORK

ANNUAL REPORT PRESENTED TO THE SOCIETY YESTERDAY.

Mrs. Mead Reviews the Accomplishment of the Mission—Excellent Work Done by the Missionaries in Charge of It.

The following is the annual report of Mrs. M. L. Mead, secretary of the McAll Auxiliary, during the fiscal year just ended, and which was read at the annual meeting yesterday:

Once again we prepare for the annual meeting of our Plainfield McAll Auxiliary, and as we recall the the events of the year just closing we find that there has been much to make us very thankful in the past, and very hopeful of the future. Our home meetings have had an average attendance of twelve officers and managers and always a number of friends who are more than welcome.

If more ladies could meet with us the first Wednesday of every month the interest in our work at Linloges could but increase, for the letters are constantly bringing us new causes for thankfulness

In May we received a very entertaining report of the annual meeting of the American McAll Association from our delegate to Boston, Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, and in November we had an illustrated lecture by Mrs. Mitchell Tyng. And we trust that her interesting talk will bear fruit, and that many who heard her will wish to share our privileges.

We have had no new life members this year, but we have raised $632 22, and as the large donations have been fewer, this shows an increased number of contributors which is encouraging. Our funds have all gone toward the support of the McAll mission in Linioges, which does almost the only evangelical work done in that large manufacturing city.

There has been a letter from our Bible reader, Miss Elsie DeGaris, for every meeting but one during the year. Through these we have been kept in close touch with our "White Field in France."

The meeting in the Com Burgeaud continue to be be well attended, and the new hall, which was opened last year in the Clos Ste Maire, has fulfilled the hopes which we all had for its success. It is a section of the city that absolutely swarms with children, many of whom know nothing of their parents. They are all living in the poorest and most degraded of homes, if such hovels can be called homes. The little creatures flock to the meetings and are very regular at all the gatherings. The older girls find great comfort in the reunions for prayer that Miss DeGaris holds for them, and although they are all hard workers in factories, stores or as washwomen, they come gratefully to the Thursday evening and Sunday meetings, often bringing friends with them.

The soldiers, the Christian Endeavor and temperance meetings continue to be largely attended and are accomplishing great things for the young men and boys. One of these societies lately pledged itself to pay four or five francs a month toward the support of the mission. Miss DeGaris has discontinued giving wool and materials to the women at the mothers' meetings, as she began to feel that 'some come too much for the loaves and fishes," but she occasionally has tea and biscuits as a treat for them. The attendance at the Sunday-schools has not fallen off this year after the Christmas fetes as in some previous years.

We remember the several illnesses of Mr. Boye and Miss DeGaris during past twelve months which have laid them by for months at a time, the innumerable difficulties, which almost alone they have to surmount, we can but see the Lord's hand and blessing on their labor, and continue to support their efforts by our sincere prayes and generous contributions.

The Board of Managers of the library continue their kindness to us in allowing us to use the parlor for our meetings, and we greatly appreciate their hospitality. Also we acknowledge the courtesy of the editors of our Plainfield papers who print our notices each month free of charge and in various ways assist us in reaching the public.

M. L. Mead, Sec'y.

Realty Changes.

The following real estate transfers have been recorded from North Plainfield during the past week: Selah Schoonmaker, Sheriff, to Board of Trustees of the Seventh-day Baptist Memorial fund of Plainfield, $500; Mayor and Council of North Plainfield to Board of Trustees of the Seventh-day Baptist Memorial Fund, $28.25; Jacob W. Welsh et al to Agnes B. Fairchild, $1.

Mrs. Brose, of Grove street, is detained at her home with the grip.

JOINED IN WEDLOCK A HALF CENTURY AGO.

Golden Wedding Anniversary Celebrated Yesterday.

TOGETHER SINCE CHILDREN

MR. AND MRS. JAMES M. VOORHEES WERE THE CELEBRANTS.

They Were Married by Rev. David T. Hill, who was Pastor of the Baptist Church at New Market at That Time—Alway Lived in Plainfield With the Exception of About Nine Years.

In a quiet and unassuming manner Mr. and Mrs. James M. Voorhees, of East Seventh street, corner of Park avenue, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary yesterday. The celebrants, both being hale and hearty, were the recipients of many congratulations from friends and relatives, and they were wished many happy returns of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Voorhees are well-known residents of this city, having lived here since 1855. Mrs. Voorhees was born at New Market, while her husband is a native of Bound Brook. Living near one another they grew to know each other intimately, and thus their early friendship ripened into love which resulted in their marriage fifty years ago.

They were married by Rev. David T. Hill, who at that time was pastor of the Baptist church at New Market He later was pastor of the Second Baptist church, this city. As stated, Mr. and Mrs. Voorhees came to Plainfield in 1855 and with the exception of nine years, which they spent at Beverly, N. J., they have lived here ever since.

Mr. Voorhees is by trade a carpenter and in his younger days was considered one of the best mechanics in this vicinity. A large number of houses in this city and borough were built by him, and many young men who have since become successful business men learned their trade with him. The first house he built is now the Worth property on Grove street, and was built before the street was opened. Many other houses were erected by him and they stand today in excellent state of preservation. Mr. Voorhees is now too old to follow his trade, and both he and his wife live a life of retirement and ease.

During yesterday afternoon and evening a number of friends and relatives called at the house and joined in the quiet celebration of the bride and groom. There were also guests present from Somerville and Bound Brook. The celebrants received a number of substantial gifts as pleasant reminders of the happy event, and surrounded by loving friends they passed a day that will always be remembered for genuine pleasure.

REVERE HOUSE IMPROVEMENTS.

Important Changes for Better Accommodation of Guests

The Revere House on Park avenue, that well known hostelry, is undergoing repairs this spring which will add much to the comfort of the guests who lodge there. The work has been going on for some weeks now, but it is not likely that it will be finished until the middle of next month as nothing is being done which will interfere with the free use of the hotel by the guests.

The rooms are being papered and painted, especially the dining room and parlors, which look bright and new. New carpets will be put down in the lower halls, and six new bath rooms have been added. An Otis elevator is a much needed improvement, and this will be run for the accommodation of passengers. Outside the piazzas are being repaired and the entire house will be given a coat of paint.

LOST TO BOWERY BOYS.

LOCAL Y. M. C. A. BASKET BALL TEAM BADLY DEFEATED.

Young Men's Institute Team Won at Its Own Gymnasium by Score of 30 to 12—Plainfield Boys Not in Good Form.

The hitherto victorious career of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basket ball team ran against a snag last evening at the gymnasium of the Young Men's Institute, New York. The "Bowery Boys," as the Institute team is called, administered a stinging defeat to the local experts, winning by a score of 30 to 12.

The strange gymnasium was, in a measure, responsible for the bad defeat. In the first half the home team had everything its own way. The score stood 20 to 6 at the end of the first half. Then the visitors improved their defensive game and kept the Bowery boys down to five goals in the second half. The Plainfield boys did not come up to their usual standard of good playing, however. The goal throwing was poor and the team play lacked the excellence that has won so much commendation for the team.

Only one of the Morallers was able to be present and Carroll filled Eric Moraller's place at guard. He showed up well and scored to out of the three goals made by Plainfield in the first half.

The teams lined up as follows:

PLAINFIELD Y. M. C. A.		Y. M. I.
Moraller	right forward	Arde
Long	left forward	Sperling
Egan	centre	Grimm
Smith	right guard	[illegible]

Goals from the field—Moraller, Long, Smith (2), Carroll (2), Arde, Sperling (4), Grimm (7), Schwartz (3). Fouls Plainfield, 2; Y. M. I., 1. Referee—A. E. Lewis. Umpires—George E. Fuller and Charles Intermonte.

ARRESTED ON A COUNTERCHARGE.

Contractor Palmer Makes Complaint Against Alderman Hope.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 2—Alderman James W. Hope, chairman of the Roselle street committee, and president of the Roselle Land Improvement Company has been arrested on a charge of assault prefrerred against him by Niblo Palmer, an Italian contractor.

Palmer and Hope, as previously told in The Press, had a fight in Roselle over the payment to the contractor of a balance due him on a sewer contract, which Alderman Hope withheld on the ground that the job had not been properly finished. Palmer was indicted by the Union County Grand Jury, was found guilty and last Thursday was fined $100 and costs. He had to remain in jail until Saturday afternoon.

Now Palmer has had Alderman Hope arrested on a countercharge. Mr. Hope demanded that he should be taken before the nearest Justice, who was Frank M. Tierman, and the constable had to comply. Justice Tierman promptly opened court and accepted Mr. Hope's bail to await the Grand Jury's action.

DEFENDANT SECURED A NON-SUIT.

A New York Advertising Agent Did Not Fulfil His Contract.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, March 2—The case on contract of Charles Austin Bates, of New York, against George J. Tobin, of Plainfield, was called yesterday by Judge Vail, and the defendant secured a non-suit. The plaintiff was suing Mr. Tobin for advertising matter furnished, and Mr. Tobin claimed that the plaintiff did not fulfil his contract. The case was tried last summer and was finally taken to Elizabeth. Pope & Runyon represented the plaintiff, while W. A. Coddington represented the defendant. The latter produced a check in court certified by the plaintiff that payment in full had been received, and this resulted in the defendant securing the non suit

Lerner Seeks a Pardon.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 2.—David Lerner, convicted and sentenced Dec. 15, 1893, to fifteen years in State prison for setting a fire in Elizabeth, is seeking a pardon. In November of that year, on a cold night, a large three story tenement on Elizabeth avenue was burned. Several tenants jumped for their lives. Lerner, one of the tenants, fled when the alarm was given. His wife, who is circulating the petition for his pardon, asserts that two New York men who were visiting her husband, were the incendiaries and had insurance on his goods.

SALOON MEN WINNERS.

ANTHONY COMSTOCK'S CRUSADE IN SUMMIT COMES TO NOTHING.

The Noted Reformers' Detectives Preferred the Charges—Lawyers Marsh and Codington Were Defendants Counsel.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 2—The complaints against three Summit saloon-keepers, Joseph C. Campbell, Augustus C. Hahr and James J. Allen, accused by Anthony Comstock's detectives of selling on Sunday and selling whiksey without a license, were dismissed yesterday in the Union County Court by Judge Vail.

Lawyer Twombly appeared for Mr. Comstock, while Corporation Counsel Marsh, County Attorney Codington, of Plainfield, and former City Attorney Smith, of Elizabeth, appeared for the defendants. Mr Marsh challenged the Court's jurisdiction on the grounds that the complaints were made upon the information and belief of the complainants, and not upon their personal knowledge. Morris A. Tyng, George F. Vreeland, Dr. John Burling and Nathaniel George, all residents of Summit, were the names signed to the complaints. The men swore they obtained their information from three New York detectives hired by Anthony Comstack, and declared that they had no personal knowledge of the illeged violations.

Mr. Marsh then moved that the charges be dismissed with costs on the complainants, and quoted decisions of the court to sustain his contention. Judge Vail agreed with him and ordered the cases dismissed with costs.

Lawyer Twombly objected to this, but Judge Vail said if he wanted any different decision he would have to apply to the Legislature to have the present law changed.

BIG TROLLEY RIVALS CLASH IN ELIZABETH.

JOHN KEAN AFTER MORE FRANCHISES

Wants a Direct Route From Staten Island Sound to Plainfield—The Rikers Active, Too.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, March 2—Senator John Kean presented to the Elizabeth City Council last night an application for a franchise to build a double-track electric street railroad through Elizabeth from Staten Island Sound up East Jersey street to Broad street and through Broad, Morris avenue and Orchard street to Westfield avenue, and through Union township to the Cranford township line, where it will connect with the proposed county boulevard to Plainfield.

Senator Kean agrees to comply with all the reasonable requirements on the part of the city and to pave the streets through which the street railroad is to run. If granted he declares cars will be running over the road by June 1st. The matter was referred to the street committee.

The Consolidated Traction Company, or Riker syndicate, which is constructing a rival trolley line from Plainfield to Elizabeth, has also applied for a franchise to extend its line through West Jersey street, from the Elizabeth city line to Broad street, to connect with the North New Jersey Traction Company's line. This application was likewise referred.

Work in Fire Department.

Now that the Plainfield roads are resuming their normal condition and progression through them is not interfered with by snow and superfluous mud, orders have been issued by Chief Doane, of the fire department, that the old order of things be resumed. During the time of the blizzard and the bad weather following, teams were put to all the hose wagons, four horses were driven to the truck, while the chemical engine was not used. Now the apparatus will respond as before the storm and the horses have been returned to their old charges.

Didn't Know Where He Lived.

A family living on West Sixth street were called out of bed shortly after midnight by the loud ringing of their doorbell. When the summons was answered it was found that the caller was a young man trying to take home a friend who was helplessly drunk. The couple were directed to the right address across the street, and slumber once more prevailed.

BOROUGH POLITICAL TONGUES WAGGING.

Democratic Primary Will be Held This Evening.

MAYOR WILSON'S CHANCES.

N. B. SMALLEY MAY RUN AS REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE.

A Caucus of Republican Leaders Held Last Night and the Situation Discussed—Some Democrats are Still Holding Out Against the Renomination of Mayor Wilson Tonight—Some Other Business.

This evening in the basement of the borough public school there will no doubt be a strong fight for supremacy among the Democrats to see who shall receive the nomination for Mayor. For sometime past affairs have been in a sadly mixed state and there does not appear as though there was any change. There are some Democrats who want to defeat Mayor Wilson for renomination. Whether this is because His Honor has the sanction of a great many Republicans is not known, but seems quite likely. One prominent Democrat said this morning that while he would not oppose Mayor Wilson's nomination he was willing to bet that he would not receive two-thirds of the Democratic vote.

A strange feature regarding the political warfare is the fact that so many prominent Republicans and Democrats claim that they are going to keep their hands off and have nothing to do with the affair.

Last night a caucus of Republican leaders was held at the home of N. B. Smalley, on Somerset street. It is stated that those present secured the consent of Mr. Smalley to allow his name to be placed in nomination for the Mayoralty, and that the members to be placed in nomination for Councilmanic honors were also selected. It is also said that differences have been fixed between the G. O. P. leaders and Surrogate Spencer.

The borough report has made its appearance and is being closely studied by all. The opposition is busily engaged in tearing it to pieces and trying to show how the tax rate will be increased next year. Altogether things are in a chaotic state and when the clouds have rolled away there will no doubt be a great many surprised people.

Another prominent persons named for the Mayoralty honor on the Republican ticket is Robert M. Clark, Jr., of Jackson avenue. He is very popular and his friends are sure he would make a strong run if nominated.

YOUNG LAWYER AGAINST OLD.

Willie Nash to Combat Legal Points With J. B. Coward.

The case of Patrolman Jeremiah Cash against Michael Powers, coal dealer, will come up for trial tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock before Justice Nash. It is understood that some startling evidence will be produced. An unusual feature of the case will be the appearance of Plainfield's youngest law student representing the plaintiff, and J. B. Coward, one of Plainfield's oldest lawyers in point of service, who will apper for the defendant. The case is that of the plaintiff bringing suit against the defendant for the sum of $50 for services rendered in protecting the defendant some time ago when he was threatened by his enemies.

Lost $500 Worth of Hogs.

According to a news item in the New Brunswick Times the people of Middlesex county are alarmed over a disease that has appeared among hogs in that county. Aaron P. Brower, of Piscataway, recently lost seventy-five valuable hogs, meaning a loss of $500. Mr. Brower has been securing swill from this city for his hogs, and it looks as though the food had something to do with the disease. The trouble is to be investigated so as to prevent an outbreak of hog cholera.

Funeral of Mrs. Bolmer.

The funeral service of the late Mrs. Rachel Bolmer were held yesterday afternoon from the house on West Front street and was largely attended by relatives and friends. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, pastor of the First M. E. church. There was a beautiful display of floral tributes from friends. Interment took place in the Methodist Cemetery.

Gratitude promotes publicity.

Enthusiastic citizens are talking.

Telling neighbors, telling friends.

Removing the stumbling block of doubt.

And so the work goes on.

Thousands are learning to appreciate it.

Here is a West Front street citizen who does.

Mrs. Henry Bender of 118 West Front street, says: "My kidneys gave me more or less trouble for five years. I suffered almost constantly from a dull aching pain across the back and hips. Any hard work always increased the pain. I was also subject to severe headaches and dizziness when stooping, and though I tried different plasters and home remedies I could get no relief. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for such troubles as mine and got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store, used them according to directions and obtained a great deal of relief from them. In my estimation, and from my experience, Doan's Kidney Pills are a good reliable kidney medicine, and I have great faith in them. I advise others who suffer from kidney trouble to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

WORK IN WASHINGTON

Reed Probably Has the Nicaragua Bill Dead.

THE ARMY BILL ACCEPTED

Immediate Funds for Public Buildings—Conference Reports on Naval Personel, Omnibus Claims and Census Bills Agreed To—Plea for Hawaii.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—Speaker Reed thinks that he has killed the Nicaragua canal project by letting the House pass all the public building bills and giving this "sop" to the members to hold them against the canal rider. If a direct vote were had, however, the rider would be accepted, and therefore, to be perfectly safe, the speaker forced an agreement to let the river and harbor bill go to conference without a vote.

Here it will be held by the House conferees until the Senate representatives give up the canal rider. If they refuse to do this, the bill will be killed, canal rider and all. If the senators recede and take off the canal rider, the river and harbor bill can pass as a separate measure.

It is, therefore, a question of a river and harbor bill or no bill.

The speaker can carry out his plan, because but two days remain of this session and the conferees can easily consume that much time in wrangling. Both houses must work hard the remaining hours of the session to pass all the appropriation bills, and so Reed has no fear of a revolt on the part of the canal's friends in the House.

At present the House has the general deficiency bill to pass, while the Senate has not only this bill, but also the navy, the army and the fortification appropriation bills to act upon.

The following bills are tied up in conference: The postoffice, the District of Columbia and the agricultural.

The sundry civil and river and harbor bills were in conference yesterday.

The army reorganization bill will be adopted by the House just as it came from the Senate, so that it will only need the president's signature to make it a law.

There was considerable excitement on the floor before the assembling of the House in anticipation of a desperate fight. The purpose of the river and harbor committee had been noised about.

Mr. Hepburn of Iowa and Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio, the active champions of the Senate proposition, discussed the situation.

The decision was not to contest the motion, but to allow the bill to go to conference and postpone the fight until the conferees made their report.

In committee the action decided upon was regarded as to some extent a compromise between the friends and the opponents of the canal amendment.

There were no formal votes, but the procedure was generally accepted as best for all concerned and as the only means for saving the river and harbor bill.

Those on the committee who were friendly to the canal amendment accepted the move as a means of getting the amendment out of committee and in a condition where it could be further considered. Those unfriendly to the canal amendment accepted the plan with the expectation that the House conferees would be drawn from the river and harbor committee and would not consent to the canal amendment.

After the House had agreed to ask a conference, Messrs. Burton, Republican of Ohio, Reeves, Republican of Illinois, and Catchings, Democrat of Mississippi, were appointed conferees. Each oppose the rider.

Army Bill Accepted.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—The House military committee has agreed to accept the Senate army bill without amendment.

Later in the day, however, a strong movement developed among influential members of the House to substitute the Hull bill for the Senate compromise, thus throwing the subject into conference.

When General Grosvenor of Ohio expressed himself in favor of the plan, it gained added impetus.

Great interest was manifested in the meeting of the committee, as it was felt that a complete acceptance of the Senate bill largely, if not entirely, removed the chance of an extra session. The session of the committee was very spirited and at one point Representative Marsh of Illinois, withdrew on the ground that the course of the committee in adopting an amendment would open up the whole controversy and precipitate an extra session.

After his withdrawal the amendment was reconsidered and withdrawn, and Mr. Marsh then returned to the committee.

The final vote on agreeing to the Senate bill was 10 to 3.

Cleveland's Name Arouses Jeers.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—Immediately after the reading of the journal in the House yesterday the Senate amendments to the sundry civil bill were non-concurred in and the bill was sent to conference.

Messrs. Cannon, Republican of Illinois, Moody, Republican of Massachusetts, and Dockery, Democrat of Missouri, were appointed conferees.

Mr. Mahon, Republican of Pennsylvania, chairman of the committee on war claims, presented the conference report upon the bill to pay certain judgments of the court of claims, under the Bowman and Tucker acts. As it passed the House the bill carried $1,189,000. The Senate placed upon it what is known as the omnibus claims bill, increasing it to $9,030,000. Over $4,000,000 of the increase were Bowman and Tucker acts' claims and $482,000 were miscellaneous claims. The conference reduced the total carried by the bill to $3,100,000.

Mr. Loud, Republican of California, attacked the conference report and the claims it carried. He saw no reason why the claims of California and Oregon should have been eliminated from the bill, but even those claims, he declared, had no foundation in equity. As to the French spoliation claims, he said, if there ever existed equity in them it had disappeared. No one, he said, could read the veto message of "that great man, Mr. Cleveland," without recognizing this as a fact. The mention of Mr. Cleveland's name provoked some jeers from the Democratic side.

"Gentlemen, you may jeer," said Mr. Loud, turning upon them, "but Mr. Cleveland had the courage of his convictions, the greatest factor in making a great man."

Mr. Richardson, Democrat of Tennessee, one of the conferees, defended the conference report. The House conferees accepted the French spoliation claims and the miscellaneous claims, which had all heretofore been passed by the House, some of them as many as three times. All the state claims had been rejected and the conferees, he said, presented a clean cut bill which dealt justly with both sections.

The spoliation claims bill has been pending in Congress for the last seventy years and one million dollars of these claims, which have been passed upon by the court, will be paid.

A bill for the payment of some of these claims was heard by the Fifty-first Congress, but President Cleveland vetoed it. Now the bill, the conference report having been agreed to by the House, goes to the president and will undoubtedly be signed.

It includes the war claims adjudicated under the Bowman act, and which have been pending in Congress since the war. These claims have been added to each session, until they were all gathered together by Senator Teller during this Congress, and, with the French spoliation claims, made into a bill known as the omnibus bill.

In Favor of the Hawaiian Bill.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—In the Senate yesterday Mr. Cullom, Republican of Illinois, made some remarks on the bill to provide a government for the territory of Hawaii.

He said that he did not expect any action on the bill at this session, but he wished to explain the action of the commission sent to the islands last summer, of which he was a member.

The bill, he said, was of paramount importance. It proposed to erect the Hawaiian islands into a territory of the United States, to be styled the territory of Hawaii. That name suggested the general form of the new government and indicated the possibility of the admission of Hawaii into the Union as a state.

Speaking of the extension of the domain of the United States, he alluded to Senator Hoar as "a gentle echo of the anti-imperialist of former days."

The bill proposed to confer United States citizenship on all persons who were citizens of the republic of Hawaii immediately prior to the transfer. Of the 21,500 Chinese inhabitants about seven husdred would be admitted to citizenship under the amendment reported by the Senate committee. There would be a body of about ten thousand electors entitled to participate in the government of the islands, and the great majority of these would be Hawaiians and men of mixed bloods.

In conclusion Mr. Cullom said that possibly the American flag might be lowered in Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands, although he did not believe it would be.

Offer of the Panama Company.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—Representatives of the Panama Canal Company have presented to President McKinley the same proposition that they laid before the House river and harbor committee for the control of the Panama canal by the United States government and offering to give heavy bonds for carrying out the contract for completing the canal.

The Panama representatives have also offered the river and harbor committee a chance to inspect the work already done on the canal, proposing to transport to Panama and back the engineers they may select, and including even the members of the Nicaragua canal committee.

$20,000,000 Payment for Spain.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—Immediately after the Senate met yesterday Mr. Allison reported fro mthe committee on appropriations and the Senate passed without question the House bill appropriating twenty million dollars to carry out the obligations of the treaty between the United States and Spain.

Census Bill Passed.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—The House of Representatives yesterday afternoon accepted the conference report on the census bill, with no substantial opposition.

Mr. Hopkins, Republican of Illinois, explained the few changes which had been made in the conference, the chief of which were putting the establishment under the secretary of the interior, instead of being a separate bureau, and causing the three hundred supervisors to be appointed by the president, subject to confirmation by the Senate.

Mr. Hopkins explained that the census clerks would be appointed after a non-competitive examination prepared by the director. This produced a smile and Mr. Handy, Democrat of Delaware, suggested that the "starch" had been taken out of the civil service commission, to which Mr. Hopkins rejoined that he hoped that the "starch" was removed.

Money for Public Buildings.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—Just before the final vote on the sundry civil appropriation bill an amendment was adopted at the instance of Senator Allison, appropriating money for the work next year on all the public buildings which have been authorized by the present Congress, the appropriation for the year generally being one-half the total limit of cost. Following are some of the amounts appropriated in each case:

Indianapolis, $250,000; Fitchburg, Mass. $50,000; Lawrence, Mass., $50,000; Jamestown, N. Y., $37,500; Rome, N. Y., $25,000; Elmira, N. Y., $92,500; New Brunswick, N. J., $50,000; Elizabeth City, N. C., $25,000; Newport, Vt., $25,900; New Brighton, Pa., $37,500; Wilkesbarre, Pa., $62,500; Salt Lake, $150,000; Seattle, Wash., $150,000; Annapolis, Md., $50,000; Norwich, Conn., $50,000; Winston, N. C., $25,000; Lockport, N. Y., $25,000; Nashua, N. H., $30,000; postoffice at Brooklyn, N. Y., for purchase of property, $20,000; at Omaha, Neb., $150,000; Springfield, Mass., $20,000; at Cleveland, Ohio, $300,000; Baltimore, Md., $400,000; Hartford, Conn., $87,500.

The amendment also authorizes the secretary of the treasury to contract for the completion of the buildings within the limits provided.

SAGASTA CABINET OUT

Crises In Spanish Government Over Philippine Cession.

QUEEN IN CONSULTATION

Retirement of the Ministry Caused by Chance of Defeat for the Premier on the Questions Following the War—Sessions of Cortes Suspended—Sagasta Is Asked to Stay.

Madrid, March 2.—Senor Sagasta at noon yesterday proceeded to the palace and placed the resignations of himself and his colleagues in the ministry in the hands of the queen regent.

Her Majesty requested that the ministry remain in office pending her consultations with the leaders of the various parties looking to the formation of a new government.

The sittings of the Cortes have been suspended.

Efforts are making to induce Senor Sagasta to resume office and dissolve the Cortes.

Premier Sagasta, in presenting the resignations of the ministers, submitted to the consideration of the queen regent the matter of the conflict between parliament and the government, saying that with the present Cortes it would be impossible for the cabinet to govern.

He also advised her majesty to consult with the presidents of the Chambers and the leaders of the parties before taking action in the crisis.

Premier Sagasta, in an interview after the vote on the bill authorizing the cession of the Philippines to the United States in the Senate Tuesday, exclaimed: "I cannot govern with such a scant majority."

The scant majority of two by which the government party in the Spanish Senate passed the bill authorizing the cession of the Philippines to the United States is believed to have caused the resignation of the Sagasta ministry.

The futility of avoiding defeat in the final vote by reason of the defiant attitude of the minority parties was apparent when the Cortes opened on February 20. Sagasta then read in the Senate a bill authorizing the government to transfer Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines to the United States and asked for haste in its adoption. A stormy scene ensued, Count Almenas declaring that the Spanish generals and Admiral Cervera should be hanged by their sashes, and describing the army as "lions led by asses."

The opposition developed such a degree of strength that Sagasta was obliged before the end of the debate to withdraw his demand for urgency.

Senor Silvelas, after the ceremonial opening of the Cortes, on behalf of the minority parties, introduced a resolution accusing the government of negligence in concluding peace with the United States and in reorganizing the affairs of Spain.

By a vote of 120 to 118 the bill authorizing the cession of the Philippines was passed. The opposition combined to defeat the government on an amendment to the preamble censuring the government. General Weyler and the Cuban and Porto Rican senators did not vote.

The cabinet met after the session to consider the gravity of the situation. It was evident that while the opposition might gain in strength, the government party would be taxed to hold together its adherents. The Silvelas, Gamarists and Tetuanites are in the opposition.

Fifty Insurgents Killed.

Manila, March 2.—A battalion of the First California infantry, under command of Colonel Smith, embarked yesterday on board the transport St. Paul for Negros island.

The St. Paul also has on board the Negros commissioners, who are returning home.

Fully fifty insurgents were killed in the bombardment of Guadaloupe yesterday morning by the captured Spanish gunboat Laguna de Bay and Lieutenant Scott's battery of the Sixth artillery.

Private Harold Parks of Company K, First California infantry, was wounded in the picket firing, which continues along the line.

Advices just received from Iloilo say that Chaplain Lewis W. Leland of the First Tennessee infantry has died there of small pox.

Gen. Gomez at the Grave of His Son.

Havana, March 2.—General Maximo Gomez yesterday visited the graves of General Antonio Maceo and Lieutenant Gomez, the son of the Cuban commander, who was killed at the time that Maceo was drawn into an ambush and slain.

Governor General Brooke, accompanied b ythe members of his staff, also called upon General Gomez, but he was then absent at Punta Brava.

The Second Louisiana regiment, under Colonel E. E. Wood, started yesterday on a practice march to Bejucal, where the regiment will camp for several days.

Warships at Havana.

Havana, March 2.—The United States armored cruiser New York, flagship of the North Atlantic squadron, Admiral Sampson commanding, and the United States battleship Indiana, have arrived here.

A Suggestion to a Quay Juror.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 2.—Charles Slevin, one of the panel called for the Quay trial, said last night:

"The man who served me with the summons to stand as a juror, after he handed it to me said: 'You are now in a position to help Quay and to make a good thing for yourself.' I immediately said that I could not be bought, and that neither Quay nor President McKinley, nor any one else could influence me. I am still attending as a juror, and I will see District Attorney Rothermel and report this matter to him."

R·I·P·A·N·S

For about two years now I have been taking Ripans Tabules, which I claim have been the sole relief and cure of an awful headache which bothered me a great deal. I am twenty-four years of age and a stenographer. When operating the typewriter I would often have an awful headache, and I would wake up in the morning with a dull sensation and a thumping as if some one was hitting me on top of the head. I had no ambition, and to eat anything in the morning was a trouble. I became white looking and haggard. One day I met a friend, who asked what was the matter with me. I stated to him just how I felt. He said: "Take one of these things (a Ripans Tabule) and see how they'll knock it out of you." Well, that is just what they did. I used to feel as if there was a big ball of wind or something like a hard lump in my stomach. When I took the Ripans Tabule it seemed to act at once, and in a week or two I had an appetite and could sleep, and the pain both in my head and stomach had left. I recommend Ripans Tabules to all persons suffering from cramps brought on by drinking ice water on hot days. On Sunday, July 3d, I was out visiting the sick for the Odd Fellows, of which I am a member, and took violent pains in my stomach, which almost doubled me up, while I was on a street car. I managed to get home the best way I could, and after taking whisky, ginger, blackberry brandy, etc., which really did no good, I thought of Ripans Tabule and took one. When it had a little time it gave me relief and I then took another in the course of half an hour, and before dinner I was out on the street again visiting the sick nearer home. On the 4th of July one of my brothers was taken with cramps and I wanted him to take one of the Tabules, but he did not want to take them. When the other medicines he tried failed he wanted to try them, and was in a different state in five minutes.

A NEW YORKER.

He Will Give the Waiter a Quarter When He Gets Next Week's Wages.

"The present 'fad' of supper after the theatre," said a young salesman to me the other day, "is rather trying upon fellows who want their girls to have the best, yet possess very limited incomes.

"I asked my 'one and only' last week what play she would like to see, and she selected a theatre where the orchestra seats are two dollars each.

"Of course I got them, and we enjoyed the entertainment—at least she did.

"I was worrying as to whether I had money enough to pay for a little supper afterward.

"When we left the theatre we were fairly dazzled by the glaring electric sign of the restaurants, and were soon seated at table.

"To my relief my fair one only wanted a 'blue point raw.' So I ordered a sandwich.

"These, I calculated, would be thirty-five cents.

"But they brought me a 'club sandwich,' which was thirty cents, and one bottle of beer cost twenty cents, instead of ten.

"Then the waiter suggested celery, and I saw a gleam of pleasure in Annie's eyes.

"Celery it was, though the cost—forty cents a portion—fairly took my breath away.

"The bill was a dollar and fifteen, and a dollar and twenty-five was my limit.

"When the waiter returned with the change I hadn't the moral courage to walk out without 'tipping' him, nor was I willing to sacrifice our car fares—Annie lives in Harlem—so I did a dastardly thing.

"I had a brass key check in my pocket. I passed it into the waiter's hand, and he thanked me as he dropped it into his pocket, without looking at it.

"He helped us with our coats, wraps and hats, and rushed ahead to open the door with a most effective bow. I tell you that I felt about as mean as they make 'em.

"I walked down that night from 127th street to Fifty-third, and did considerable thinking on the way.

"I shall go in and give that man a quarter when I get my next week's wages."

Didn't Understand Business.

They are a newly married couple, but the point has been reached where the young wife thinks she would like to understand her husband's business and help him with her advice from time to time. Her husband naturally resents the idea, but in unguarded moments he drops enough information to give his wife some material to work on. The other night she decided to make a start, and began with the remark:

"John, I don't think that fellow you loaned a hundred dollars to last spring ever intends to pay you."

"I know," replied her husband, rattling his paper irritably, "but I am going to sue him.

"But that will cost you money too."

"I know, but I am going to give the case to that lawyer I lent fifty dollars to at the same time. I will let him work out his indebtedness in that way, for I don't think he intends to pay either.

"But I don't see that that will be very profitable."

"Of course you don't, but that is because you don't understand business.

Successful Women Inventors.

"Well," said the little woman, "if a woman is going to make a success in life she must do a queer lot of 'hustling.' I know that is slang, but it seems to be really the only word which fits the case. The way a woman has to keep on the go all the time to make a success of any business she undertakes puts me in mind of a little story I once heard about two frogs.

"A farmer carrying his milk to market one morning stopped at a brook to water his milk as usual. In dipping up the water he scooped up two frogs, and into the milk they went.

"One frog said to the other: 'I am going to drown. I cannot keep myself alive.' 'Well, I am not,' replied his companion. 'I am going to kick for all I am worth.'

"When the farmer reached his destination and the can was opened one poor froggie was lying dead at the bottom, but the other had kicked to such advantage that he was quietly sitting on a fair sized lump of butter. And that is what I am going to do. I am not going to give up and allow myself to drown, but I am going to kick for all I am worth."

Roberts and His Wives

I marvel, if to congress Roberts goes,
How to avoid ensuing social throes,
For Christians could not, on their hallowed lives,
"Request the pleasure of himself and wives."

Again, 'twould be provocative of strife
Should he be asked "to dine and bring his wife."
A most uncomfortable kind of hitch
Would follow if he wrote and queried
"Which?"—From Town Topics.

His Clew.

It happened at the club.—"This telepathy or thought transference or whatever it is, isn't such a wonderful thing after all," he said. "I can sit here with you fellows and still be conscious of what my wife is thinking about, and just what she is saying to herself."

"Undoubtedly," replied one of the others, "but you couldn't do it if you couldn't see the clock."—Chicago Evening Record.

POPE UNDERGOES AN OPERATION.

His Holiness's Condition Said Now to be Satisfactory.

Rome, March 2.—A cyst which had formed in the pope's thigh, causing great pain, was successfully operated upon yesterday. The condition of the patient is now satisfactory.

The pope desired that the cyst be simply lanced, instead of being removed by an operation. The doctors, however, insisted upon an operation, and the pope finally consented. He bore the operation admirably, taking no anaesthetics.

POPE LEO XIII.

Saturday his holiness partook of some eggs and biscuits and drank some Marsala wine.

Large numbers of dispatches are being received at the vatican asking for news of the pope's condition.

The pope enjoyed a refreshing sleep and passed a fairly good night, but there was fear of pneumonia supervening, when his condition would be most critical.

SOME OF THE BEEF.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—Another case of canned roast beef was placed before the army court of inquiry yesterday. Samples were brought into the court room in a box and identified by Sergeant Hatcher of the Ninth infantry, who testified that the beef had been issued to his company in Cuba, and brought back by the company to this country. It had never been opened from the time it was received by himself at Santiago.

Col. Gallagher described the methods used in unloading stores from the vessels and the difficulties encountered.

Few complaints were received about the refrigerated beef at Santiago, the witness said. Some boards of survey condemned about two thousand pounds of fresh beef, but it was replaced. Issues of canned roast beef were made in Santiago. The beef was issued to Spanish prisoners and the Santiago hospitals, from neither of which was any complaint about it received. From Santiago Colonel Gallagher went to Montauk Point.

Speaking of refrigerated beew he said he saw much of that on the Port Victor and the Michigan and considered it good beef.

"Have you any reason to believe or suspect that any of the refrigerated beef was treated with chemicals or anything to preserve it?"

"No, sir."

"Did it differ in any respect with that received by you at Montauk Point, Chickamauga or Augusta?"

"No, sir."

"There was nothing about it, the odor or the taste, to suggest to your mind that it had been treated with chemicals?"

"Nothing. I never suspected anything like that."

Replying to General Davis, the witness said that he could not recall that the meat component of the ration was short. The ration was short in other articles, but not in the meat component.

"What did the men urge against the canned roast beef?"

"That it was tasteless. That they did not like it."

Colonel Gallagher explained his opinion of the canned roast beef. He did not consider it a suitable article for continuous use by the troops, but to introduce it occasionally, he thought, would be quite proper. It would be the best obtainable substitute for fresh beef.

WELCOME TO MR. CHOATE.

Southampton, March 2.—The United States ambassador to the court of St. James, Mr. Joseph H. Choate, arrived here at four o'clock yesterday afternoon on the American line steamer St. Paul, from New York, on February 22.

She was boarded by the mayor and sheriff, who welcomed the ambassador in behalf of the corporation. Mr. Choate was met by Lieutenant J. C. Colwell, the United States naval attache, instead of by Mr. Henry White, the United States charge d'affaires, who is attending the "drawing room" at Buckingham Palace, London.

The president of the Southampton Chamber of Commerce presented the new ambassador with an address, tendering him the most cordial welcome, and saying:

"Your arrival in the magnificent St. Paul, which recently did such signal service in your navy, gives unique interest to the occasion, and forcibly reminds us of the ever increasing facilities afforded the commerce of the two countries and the cordiality and friendship whereby we recognize that your nation is akin to us in common ancestry, language and pursuits."

Mr. Choate replied in a short speech, saying he accepted the addresses, not for himself, but for the nation he represented.

"If," he said, "the men and women of your country could visit my country as freely as ours do yours, the good understanding which now exists would never fail. We are ready to meet tre mother country more than half way."

Declines Presidency of Brown.

Providence, R. I., March 2.—The Rev. James Monroe Taylor, president of Vassar College, has declined the presidency of Brown University.

VOUCHES FOR CROKER

NOT A LIE IN 25 YEARS

There Was a Hot Time in New York During the Public Hearing on the Tammany Strike Resolution Against Gould and Sage's Elevated Railroad—The Mayor Mad.

New York, March 2.—Mayor Van Wyck yesterday gave a public hearing on the resolution passed last week by the municipal assembly to compel the Manhattan Railway Company to run trains under five-minute headway at all hours of the day and night on all the elevated railroads in the borough of Manhattan.

This is the only one of the Croker-Coogan strike bills that has much prospect of becoming a law. The drip pan ordinance, which was passer last week was recalled from the mayor, amended by the council and referred to the railroad committee of the board of aldermen. This was not included in the hearing, and there is little prospect that it will be passed.

The mayor opened the hearing at 10 o'clock. Tammany, as usual, had some alleged labor men on hand to boost up its scheme.

The first speaker was Samuel Prince, who said that he represented the Central Labor Union. He declared that this organization represented ninety thousand laboring men, and that they were all in favor of compelling the elevated roads to run trains every five minutes.

Mr. Prince then proceeded to say that the elevated structure should be painted; that drip pans should be put up at once for the protection of the health and clothing of workingmen.

Mr. Prince said he spoke for humanity. The speaker said he wanted the pen with which the mayor signed the resolution to carry to the Central Labor Union next Sunday.

"You sign that, Mr. Mayor, and our union will say: 'Well and good done, thou faithful servant.'"

There were other labor men heard, but the real interesting time came when Julien T. Davies, the counsel for the railroad company, said that there were considerations and circumstances attending the introduction of the resolution that should cause the mayor to veto it without any consideration of its merits.

"Application was made to our company by the Auto- Truck Company for a privilege that would have been worth millions of dollars. That company not only wanted to hang pipes on our structure, but wanted connections and stopcocks at every pillar, where pipes could be replenished. When we refused this great and valuable privilege these concerted attacks upon us began at once."

Mr. Davies said that within a few days after refusing the request of the Auto-Truck Company 756 orders from the board of health were served on the Manhattan Company, and that it would cost hundreds of thousands of dollars to comply with them.

When he referred to the order to get out of Battery Park the mayor broke in:

Mayor Charges Fraud.

"That order is right. You ought to be put out of that park and kept out of all the parks. You got in there by fraud."

"I deny that, Mr. Mayor, and I want to say that this is the first time I have ever heard any one say that we obtained that privilege by fraud. The permission was granted by a Democratic government."

"That makes no difference. You got in there by fraud, and you ought to be kept out of all the parks. You can buy a right of way down there. You are paid to argue for the company and I am paid to serve the people of the city."

"Mr. Mayor, the fact that I am paid for my professional services has nothing to do with the merits of this case."

The mayor asked if the city would have a right to let the Metropolitan Street Railway Company build the Sixth and Seventh lines through Central Park.

"Not unless there was a public demand for it," said Mr. Davies.

"The park commissioners who let you in Battery Park betrayed their trust."

Mr. Davies said that the Manhattan Company regarded the present attacks as oppressive and unjust.

"Of course you do. You'd take the whole city if we would let you. Any railroad would," said the mayor.

When Mr. Davies referred to some of the other strike bills, the mayor remarked:

"Oh, I have hundreds of letters complaining of these things."

Mr. Davies said: "Since February 11, in addition to all the new fights against us all the old strikes here and at Albany have been renewed."

"What you call assault I dont," said the mayor.

Mr. Davies referred to Mr. Gould's statement about the Auto-Truck Company.

Croker's Quarter Century Veracity.

"That is not the question. Mr. Croker has said that Mr. Gould tells a falsehood and Mr. Croker tells the truth. He has not told a lie in twenty-five years, and he is not going to begin now. It has been charged that we were all speculating in Manhattan stock. That is not true. Twenty-two years ago I went to buy some Manhattan stock and a broker told me not to touch it, never to touch it, and I have never bought a share. Reports about our buying the stock were started by the officers of the company."

"That is not so," said Mr. Davies. "These attacks upon our company were made because we refused to grant a privilege worth millions of dollars to a company controlled by Mr. Croker."

"That is not so," said the mayor angrily. "Nobody believes that except the officers of the Manhattan Railroad Company."

"The issue before you, Mr. Mayor, is whether or not the machinery of the city government can be set in motion for the private ends of Richard Croker."

"That is not so. I'll decide this matter on its merits," shouted the mayor.

Mr. Davies said that no one had said anything reflecting upon the mayor.

"I don't want any certificate of character from you or any one else connected with the Manhattan Railway Company," said the mayor hotly.

"I am not offering one," Mr. Davies replied. "Mr. Gould has made certain statements about Mr. Croker's efforts to obtain a valuable privilege. We are prepared to prove every one of those statements by reputable witnesses."

"All lawyers say that. They say just the same thing in every case. In any question of veracity between George Gould and Mr. Croker I shall believe Mr. Croker. Anyone else want to be heard?"

The N. A. Poison Mystery.

New York, March 2.—District Attorney Gardiner yesterday put before the grand jury evidence for a bill against Roland B. Molineaux for the poisoning by cyanide of mercury, sent through the mails, of Mrs. Kate J. Adams, on December 28 last.

The poison was sent to Harry Cornish and was administered by him to Mrs. Adams.

The indictment has been prepared and contains four counts.

The first witness before the grand jury was Harry Cornish, who testified concerning the death of Mrs. Adams, the administration of the poison to her from a bottle supposed to contain bromo seltzer, and his receipt of the bottle of bromo seltzer and a bottle holder through the mails on December 24 last.

Steamship Rate War.

New York, March 2.—The American line have met the recent cut in rates of the White Star line. The latter had made a reduction from one hundred dollar minimum rate cabin passage out of New York to seventy-five dollars and sixty dollars.

The American line has cut to sixty dollars as the minimum rate after the 15th of April, of seventy-five dollars after June 1 and of one hundred dollars between the first of June and the 15th of July.

The Cunard line, it is expected, will make preparations to meet the cut very soon, and a fierce rivalry is expected.

Mr. Kipling Better.

New York, March 2.—Dr. Dunham, one of the physicians in attendance on Mr. Kipling, said at five o'clock this morning:

"I am fairly well pleased with the condition of Mr. Kipling. He is resting quietly."

At eight o'clock the following official bulletin was issued:

"Mr. Kipling had a better night and the symptoms have improved. The delirium was replaced by natural sleep. He is still seriously ill, and the fever, though less, still continues.

DEATH OF LORD HERSCHELL.

Canadian High Commissioner Expires Suddenly at Washington.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—Lord Herschell, chairman of the Canadian commission of the joint high commission, died at the Shoreham in this city at seven o'clock yesterday.

For the first time in the history of the supreme court that body adjourned out of respect to the memory of a distinguished man not a citizen of the United States.

Immediately upon convening Chief Justice Fuller announced the death of Lord Herschell in the following words:

"It becomes my painful duty to announce to the members of the bar the sudden death of Baron Herschell, former lord chancellor of England, information of which has just been received by the court with deep sensibility. Lord Herschell has been some months in this country in a public and international capacity, and but a few days has elapsed since he sat with me upon this bench, a compliment which has been extended only once previously in the instance of the then lord chief justice of England.

"In view of the friendly relations between Lord Herschell and the members of this court, his great distinction in our common profession and on the bench, and his unexpected death while with us in the discharge of high political duty, we feel called upon to take notice of this sad event, and as a mark of respect to his memory the court will adjourn until to-morrow at the usual hour."

Lord Herschell sat upon the bench of the supreme court on January 30, when he visited the Capitol and the supreme court chamber for the first time. As former lord high chancellor of England he was the second distinguished jurist of a foreign country to be so honored.

The first instance of the kind occurred on October 19, 1883, on the occasion of the visit to Washington of Lord Chief Justice Coleridge of England. Chief Justice Waite was then presiding.

Princeton Students Sent Home.

Princeton, N. J., March 2.—There was no new case of varioloid reported at the University Infirmary yesterday, and Dr. Wyckoff said that R. S. Steen, the sophomore who was taken ill with the disease on Monday, was better. His parents in Philadelphia were notified and came to Princeton Tuesday night. There are several other students ill in the infirmary, but Steen's room has been strictly quarantined, a special nurse has been given him and the physicians are confident that there will be no further spread of the disease.

The sanitary committee of the faculty, of which Professor Brackett is chairman, held a meeting and decided to take even more strict measures to avert an epidemic. A list was made out of all students who are intimate friends of young Steen, besides those who belong to the eating club of which he was a member, and yesterday morning they were notified by the university proctors that they must start for home at once.

They are about fifty in number. This was done in order that the young men may have the advantage of being treated by their family physicians in case they are infected, which is not at all probable.

Cody-Gould Blackmail.

Albany, N. Y., March 2.—The first step in the second trial of Mrs. Margaret Cody for attempting to blackmail George J. Gould and Miss Helen M. Gould was taken in the county court yesterday, when the work of securing the jury was commenced.

FOX STORY.

When the Colonel Had Finished There Was Dead Silence.

Col. Bob. Ingersoll was invited to attend the New Year's banquet of the Clover club, to which he replied:

"It is impossible for me to accept; I know your custom too well; I will be called on for a speech and will be unmercifully guyed, and I do not care to put myself in such a position. The club decided to waive its constitutional prerogative in his case, and he was informed of the fact. He then said: "I will gladly accept the invitation, and will surely be on hand," and he was.

No sooner had the gallant advocate of infidelism reached his feet than a chap down at the end of the room began to interrupt. He was the only one in the club to say a word, but he was very annoying, and Bob remarked: "I came here as a guest with the understanding that I should not be interrupted. There was an agreement to that effect." The man retorted: "I never heard of any such agreement." The breaker of images replied: "My friend, you remind me of a story. There was a day set apart by the beasts of the fields, the reptiles and birds of the air for a general peace. Animals in the habit of preying on each other agreed to meet together in one grand accord. The fox passing a chicken roost on the way to the meeting invited a hen to accompany him, and when she politely declined informed her of the peace agreement. 'Well, Mr. Fox, I will go under these conditions,' she said, and they trotted along side by side.

"Presently the baying of a pack of hounds was heard and Mr. Fox started to run. 'Why do you run, Mr. Fox?' asked Mrs. Hen. 'Remember the peace agreement.' Restraining himself, Mr. Fox trotted on, but the pack grew nearer and nearer, until he could stand it no longer. 'Mr. Fox,' urged Mrs. Hen, 'don't be afraid; remember what you told me about the peace agreement. No hound would hurt you today. Trot along with me and don't be in the least alarmed.' He could almost feel the breath of the hounds. 'Mrs. Hen,' he whispered, prepared to spring away, 'I do well remember the peace agreement, but there may be some fool of a hound in that pack that hasn't heard of it, so goodby.'"

When the Colonel had finished his story there was dead silence during the remainder of his speech.

An Elephantine Disadvantage.

Senator Mason's Reward.

This story is told of Senator Mason, of Illinois, apropos of his resolution of inquiry into Germany's discrimination against American pork. A big pork-packer from Chicago called upon him the other day and said: "I cannot express to you how deeply appreciative all of us are of your thoughtfulness in introducing this measure. I listened to the reading of it and commend it as I commend you. It is well-worded, and meets the emergency. This act of yours shall not go without proper recognition, be assured of that. Our firm"—"No, no," interposed the Senator. "I did no more than my duty to my constituents demanded. I seek no recognition." "But it shall be done; it is due you," returned the Chicagoan. "Upon my return our firm, as I was about to say, will have a ham named after you."

Getting in at Half Price.

A circus paid a flying visit to a small northern town not long ago, and the price of admission was sixpence, children under ten years of age half-price. It was Edith's tenth birthday, and her brother Tom, aged thirteen, took her in the afternoon to see the show.

Arrived at the door, he put down ninepence and asked for two front seats.

"Well," replied Master Tom, "this is her tenth birthday, but she was not born until rather late in the afternoon."

The money-taker accepted the statement and handed him the tickets. But it was a close shave.—London Weekly Telegraph.

From a Forthcoming Romance.

Hand in hand they stood at the bow of the steamer as it plowed the placid surface of the great lake.

Hand in hand they looked at the sky line formed by the towering buildings of the vast city to visit which had been the dream of their young lives.

Hand in hand they watched the shore draw nearer and with swelling heart viewed the enchanting realm where they were to spend the golden days of their honeymoon.

They had entered the Chicago River—Chicago Tribune.

COMING EVENTS.

March 2—Borough Democratic primary meeting.
March 4—Meeting of newly-appointed committees at the Y. M. C. A. at 6 p. m.
March 5—Rev. J. D. Belknap, Ph.D., will speak and sing at the Y. M. C. A. meeting at 4:15 p. m.

After Democratic Scalps.

It would be very close to the millineum if the present Legislature should pass into history without having had some wildly partisan schemes hatched out of its proceedings. And true to past performances the inevitable has come about. As might be expected it is the Democrats whose scalps are to be hung up by the G. O. P.

Senator Hutchinson has introduced a bill which provides for a brand new Board of Prison Inspectors, to consist of five members instead of six. Three of the members will be of one political party. Of course, it is just like the Republicans to name three Democrats for the majority members.

The bill requires that all subordinates in the State Prison shall resign thirty days after the act becomes effective, so that the new board will be at liberty to make its own selection of keepers and deputies.

A majority of the State Prison employes are said to be Democrats, and previous efforts on the part of the Republican leaders to have them removed since the establishment of the Republican administration have failed. In view of the fact that Governor Voorhees has declared himself in favor of non-partisan boards for State institutions, there is some doubt about the passage of the Hutchinson bill, but whether it goes through or not it will raise a breeze that is likely to swell to a gale before a harbor is reached.

That United States Senators should be elected by popular vote has come to be recognized as the only proper method for choosing the members of the highest legislative body in this country. In referring to a recent resolution anent the subject introduced in the Legislature of the State, the Newark News makes the following pointed comment:

A resolution asking the representatives of New Jersey in Congress to advocate a constitutional amendment providing for the election of United States Senators by the people has been referred to the house committee on revision of the laws, and it seems to be assumed that that will be the end of it. The proposition ought not to be disposed of this summary fashion. Public sentiment in favor of the direct election of Senators by the people is growing everywhere. The candidacy and frequently the election of men who would not have the ghost of a chance of success if they were candidates before the people, and the scandals involved in many Senatorial contests are pleading for a change in the system. It is bound to come, and New Jersey may as well be one of the leading States in the march of public opinion as to lag in the rear.

T. P. O'CONNOR, HOME RULER.

"Tay Pay" O'Connor, M. P., is one of the leading Irish Nationalists. He still believes in home rule for Ireland and has recently predicted the ultimate triumph of that cause. Mr. O'Connor is owner and editor of "M. A. P.," which interpreted means "Mainly About People," a journal which has become widely known.

Senator VanCleef has introduced a bill in the Legislature that provides for giving to Chosen Freeholders in counties of less than 60,000 inhabitants, and where the Freeholders do not receive annual salaries, the sum of 5 cents per mile for every mile traveled in going and returning from, by the nearest route, the committee meetings of the Board. The Senator announces that he introduces it "by request," which is usually a polite way of saying that that will be the last time it will be heard from when such an appelation is tagged to its debut into the wheels of legislation.

New Brunswick is in high glee. And who can blame her? The bill appropriating $100,000 for a government building in the old Dutch city has passed the House of Representatives. Well, once in a while we like to have a little fun with the odd ways of Brunswick, but the Congressional action affords us a chance to congratulate our neighboring city, and we extend best wishes for the appropriation item to continue on its way until Brunswickers can cry "Alas, we have it."

It costs money to get accurate news from Manila, but it costs nothing to invent inaccurate news, says the Philadelphia Record. The gamblers in stocks are taking advantage of the uncertainties of the Philippine situation to turn a dishonest penny by availing themselves of the difference between the time it takes to invent a canard and the time afterward needed to disprove it.

The State of Massachusetts allows its married volunteers $12 a month, and $4 additional for each child under age. The single men received $7 a month, and both single and married men get their shoes and clothing free of cost. That is much better than New Jersey does for her volunteers.

The Democratic primary in the borough will be held this evening. The interest in the outcome discloses more activity among the North Plainfield Democrats than has been the case in several years.

Contradictions in life occur with peculiar significance at times. Thus it is in the report from St. Louis that a woman died from pneumonia contracted while attending a faith-cure meeting.

According to the State law all borough reports have to be published ten days before election, and not twenty as some people understand. The twenty day plan applies to townships.

Messrs. Swacknamer, Douglass and Wheeler are mentioned as Democratic candidates for councilmanic honors at the borough election to be held March 14th.

A man who has been there says that divorce is the cold lunch that follows love's banquet.

The man that hurries through life has the hardest job in the long run.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Justice Sutphen, of Somerville, is possessor of an old flint-lock horse pistol, presented by Freeholder Logan, who found it in the garret of an old house near Chimney Rock. It was probably used by some of the officers in Washington's army when they were encamped there.

R. E. Davis, of 602 New street, has a permanent reminder of the good service he did his country as a private in Company C, Third New Jersey Volunteers. When the company was mustered out at its headquarters in Elizabeth, each member was presented with a handsome bronze medal by the citizens of Elizabeth. It is a medal of honor of the American-Spanish War and is highly prized by the fortunate owner.

Telephone monopoly is not feared where barbed-wire fencing may be used as a medium for telephonic communication. Such use of the fencing has been made in several places in the west, and a typical illustration is the "system" in use in Mason county, Ill. It started with a line a mile and a half long, instituted by an amateur electrician to connect his father's farmhouse with the postoffice, and it worked so well that seven other lines were established, twenty-one miles in length and operating thirty-eight telephones. The cost of the wire need not be considered, of course, and the telephones cost only $8 each. The use of the telephones is free to all. Their practical utility is evident, and, in addition, they are a means of social entertainment much appreciated on the farms.

A chicken hawk, measuring thirty six inches from tip to tip, was captured alive some five days ago in a peculiar manner by the son of Percy Ohl at his farm on Park avenue. The boy was on the look out for opposum, and had approached within a few yards of the hawk unobserved. Then quickly drawing a pistol he fired. At the report the hawk instantly fell to the ground, but on being picked up it made strenuous efforts to get away. The hawk made a gallant fight for its liberty, but was finally placed in a cage wherein, after several days confinement, it made itself at home, and called loudly for its meals. Several had become interested in the bird and it was to be sold yesterday afternoon, but when the hour of noon struck hawky was gone, having in some way upset its prison and found an opening leading to freedom.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

The Miles Ideal Stock Company gave another satisfactory performance to a good sized audience in Music Hall last night. The piece was "The Lights of Gotham." The specialities were frequent and seemed to be very popular. Alfred Springer, a local singer, gave several solos last night. Tonight "Our Irish American Cousin" will be presented by particular request. The matinee performance tomorrow will be "The Lights of Gotham."

In a short time Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dryden, of Hillside avenue, will take up their residence in New York.

R. H. Daily, of Manning avenue, who has been visiting out-of-town friends has returned to his home.

Mrs. Gilbert Fletcher, of Brooklyn, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Emmons, of Jackson avenue.

James Walker, of West Fourth street, who has been seriously ill, is no better and his friends are becoming anxious.

Mr and Mrs. W. C. LaRue, of Jackson avenue, will soon move to one of the flats in the Thorn building on Somerset street.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about ¼ as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, March 2.—The death of little Frank Covey, which occurred several weeks ago as the result of diphtheria, is causing something of a stir among some of the residents here, because Mrs. Warden, who took such good care of the little fellow until he died, has not been paid by the borough for her trouble and expense. When little Frank was taken ill, W. H. Cole, overseer of the poor, went to Mrs. Warden and persuaded her to take the lad and care for him, as he was homeless and sick. Mrs. Warden says that she was told Frank had a bad cold, not diphtheria, so upon that took him in and nursed him a week. The next day after he was taken there Dr. Brakeley pronounced his ailment diphtheria, but it was too late then to move him, and he stayed at the justice's house until he died. Mrs. Warden had to burn her bed clothes, etc., and as a recompense for her trouble and expense wants $25. This the overseer of the poor says is too much, and offers her $15. How the matter will end is not known.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 2—A large number of former friends and neighbors of the late Captain J. W. Samson, who died at Tappan, N. Y., Sunday, were at the depot yesterday afternoon when the remains were brought here for burial in Fairview cemetery. The friends were allowed to view the remains at the depot. The casket was draped with a large American flag and an English flag. On the top of the casket lay the Captain's hat and the remains were dressed in his naval costume. He was the Captain of the steamship Adirondack, of the Atlas Line.

The Democrats have chosen W. E. Tuttle, the coal dealer, to run against Martin Welles, the Republican candidate for township committeeman. A warm fight is expected as both men are well and favorably known and are already hustling for votes.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongued coated, pain continually in the back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts., guaranteed, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store.

AN EXPERT TASTER.

A TEMPERANCE WOMAN WHO LIVES BY WINE TRAFFIC.

Has Scruples About Drinking But Must Live—One of Four Professionals—Her Sense of Taste Perfectly Developed—Has Won for Her Fame and Distinction.

To be a professional wine taster and yet a strong advocate and follower of the strictest temperance principles, to take wine into the mouth all day long and day after day and yet never swallow it, this is the paradox which Mrs. Frona Eunice Wait of California, who last week stayed at the Auditorium Annex, has accomplished steadily for a period of ten years. That she sees nothing at all paradoxical in this unusual state of affairs furnishes a fresh element of interest in regard to her peculiar work.

Mrs. Wait, who is one of the four professional wine tasters in the world, was originally a newspaper woman, and slipped into the work of critically tasting the wine which she had always before held in abhorrence, if not contempt, quite by accident. Visiting near some vineyards, she was asked to write a book about wines and winemaking. Pleading her ignorance of the subject as a reason for the refusal which she did not wish to seem ungracious, she was surprised by an opportunity to spend six months in the vineyards studying the matter, and at terms so advantageous that she hesitated to persist in her refusal. By the time the period of study had expired and the book written she was a recognized authority upon wines and wine flavors, although previous to its commencement she had never tasted wine. The work of professional wine tasting came gradually to her after that.

At the present time Mrs. Wait, whose technical opinion is highly valued by wine students all over America, is making a tour of the country on a commission to lecture in every state, regarding the wine industry of California. The commission, which came to her unasked, from Governor James Budd of that state, was started under the auspices of the state board of agriculture of California, and Mrs. Wait was urged to undertake the work, because of her peculiar fitness for it. Regarding the growing of the vines and all the processes of winemaking she is decidedly enthusiastic, and she says there is no subject in the world more interesting, more wonderful, and more full of varied and changeful interest than that of wine. As to the effect the tasting has upon her health, she declares that it has none, for the simple reason that she never swallows the wine or so rarely as to render the use of the word quite allowable.

"My sense of taste is so fine and so perfectly developed," she recently declared, "that I can tell a Napa Valley wine from that of the Sonoma Valley instantly, although the two vineyards run side by side, perfectly parallel to each other, and I can tell a hill wine from a valley wine in the same manner, and this allowing for the two wines in both instances to be made from the same grape, the same blend, and to be of the same age. But to keep my palate in this exquisitely sensitive condition I must take the utmost care of my health, and I never do a wine the injustice of testing or tasting it when I am travel weary, nervous, exhausted or in anything but a perfectly healthy and normal condition. In the same way and for similar reasons I would not taste wine which had taken an ocean voyage, which greatly improves all wine good enough to stand the trip, and I am extremely careful not to partake of anything inimical to the wine before beginning my work."

To make the tests which have won for her fame and distinction in her unusual line of work, therefore, Mrs. Wait first assures herself that all the conditions pertaining both to herself and the wine are as good as may be. Then she tests—or "tastes"—the wine by means of the bouquet, the odor. This test satisfactorily concluded, she next tastes it in the ordinary manner. Only when she suspects a flaw of some kind, as over-age, lactic fermentation, or some other undesirable weakness, does she allow an infinitesimal portion of the liquid to pass down her throat. Good wine leaves the palate and throat cool and refreshed; wine which is spoiled by lactic fermentation renders there organs hot and uncomfortable. So as a final test when the case is one in which the decision is exceedingly hard to render or arrive at, Mrs. Wait sometimes swallows a teaspoonful or so of the wine under judgment.

"How does this peculiar business of mine affect my temperance principles?" she repeated when this question was propounded to her. "Why, not at all. I never swallow the wine, as I have said. I am so strict a believer in temperance principles that I never take even tea or coffee, and in the rare cases in which I feel in duty bound to allow a little to slip down my throat it is as a pure matter of business, just as a doctor might sample a dangerous drug merely in order to be able to make an intelligent judgment concerning it.

"Not that I regard good wine at all in the light of a dangerous drug, however," the professional wine-taster continued, smilingly. "On the contrary, in many cases and for many purposes I believe that it has a really beneficial medicinal use, and I regard the danger of drunkenness from wine-drinking as practically impossible. It is not from the judicious use of wine that drunkards are made. Personally, I never take it, although I earn my bread and butter by tasting it, but my temperance principles by no means impel me to preach against its use as a medicinal factor."

DIZZINESS.

All Sorts of Reasons for it and all Sorts of Remedies.

There is perhaps nothing, unless it be a pain in the left side—mistaken often for a sign of heart disease—which so alarms the subject of it, and so firmly convinces him that he has some serious malady as vertigo or dizziness.

We do not refer to dizziness from some evident cause, such as dancing, swinging, looking down from a height, seasickness or carsickness, but to a dizzy feeling that attacks one while walking or sitting quietly and which comes and goes without any apparent reason, or may persist indefinitely.

Of course, dizziness may be a symptom of brain disease, but so may be nausea and vomiting; yet when a person is suddenly taken with sickness of the stomach he is not ordinarily frightened to death. He usually, and most often correctly, attributes his attack to simple indigestion, and spells of dizziness are generally due to the same cause.

Dyspepsia or indigestion is a much more common complaint than most people imagine, and we cannot always be sure that digestion is perfect simply because the tongue is clean and no distress is felt in the stomach after eating.

Another cause of vertigo is a temporary increase or decrease in the amount of blood in the brain. An example of this is seen in the dizziness which constitutes one of the features of a fainting fit. This evanescent congestion of anemia of the brain may be due to any of a number of causes, but it is usually significant of nothing alarming, although in the very aged it may indicate a want of elasticity in the blood vessels.

Another very frequent cause of dizziness is ear trouble of some sort. Indeed, many physiologists believe that vertigo is always due primarily to some change occurring in the internal ear, either originating there or acting there reflexly through the agency of the auditory nerve. This ear trouble may be a slight catarrhal trouble, irritation caused by the cerumen, or ear wax, or a hair or insect resting against the drum membrane, or a peculiar nervous affection known as Meniere's disease.

Astigmatism or some other difficulty of vision may be provocative of dizziness, and this an oculist can usually relieve by proper glasses.

Finally, we may say that in the great majority of cases dizziness is not a symptom of serious import, although it is not always easy to cure it; but its occurrence is a sign that something somewhere is not as it should be, and the problem for the doctor is to discover the cause and remove it, if he can.—Youth's Companion.

A Scotch Piper.

The Orientals love the noisy music which comes from the clashing of cymbals and the beating of gongs. A Turkish ambassador who attended a London concert was asked how he liked the music. "I was pleased with the first part," he replied. He referred to the tuning of the instruments.

An Indian prince, wishing to honor the officers of several English marching regiments passing through his territory, invited them to an afternoon entertainment. The officers went, accompanied by the band and twelve pipers of a highland regiment. The prince paid little attention to the music of the band, but when the pipers struck up a Scotch reel he exclaimed "Beautiful! That is the music for me! Can I get such a band? Can I buy it?"

On being informed that he might purchase the discharge of one of the pipers and hire him to instruct his own men, he at once made arrangements to secure the services of John McK. The Highlander was appointed the prince's head musician, given a good house, several cows, and a horse and buggy, besides a liberal salary.

He was arrayed in a scarlet tunic covered with gold lace, blue cloth trousers with gold lace down the seams, a blue and gold turban, and a heavy broad sash. Fourteen men, supplied with bagpipes imported from Scotland, were placed under his instruction. The prince at first proposed to dress his pipers in full Highland costume. But the Scotchman's pride could not stand seeing a native dressed up in a kilt. So the pipers were uniformed in green cloth tunics and tartan trousers.

The prince frequently sent for his head piper to amuse him, or to soothe him to sleep by the shrill music of his own pipes. On such occasions John always received a handsome present in money.

He remained five years with the prince, and then, having saved a large sum of money, returned to Scotland and set himself up in business.

The Gift of Ambidexterity.

Apropos of Queen Victoria it is not generally known that she is able to write quite as well with her left hand as with her right. For this dexterity she is indebted to her clever but unpopular mother, the Duchess of Kent, who held unusual but eminently sensible views on the subject of education. The Queen of England and Empress of India is probably the only sovereign who may thus be said to possess the gift of ambidexterity.

German geographers are usually credited with the closest computation of the world's population. Their latest figures are 1,500,000,000, an addition of 20,000,000 in the past seven years. An increase is found in nearly every part of the world. It is most rapid in civilized countries, especially those that lead in the use of labor saving machinery. Greenland's Esquimo population is growing, but the natives of the Pacific islands are dying out.

MYSTERIES OF VENUS.

Little Known About the Beautiful Planet Which Comes Near the Earth.

The most beautiful planet, and one that comes nearest to the earth and most resembles the earth in size, is at the same time the most mysterious. Is Venus a living world or a dead one? That is to say, is it in a condition to support inhabitants, and is it probable that such inhabitants are there, or, on the other hand, is it unsuited for their presence and barren of living forms?

These questions astronomers at present are unable to answer, but their efforts to answer them and the observations that they have made of the mysterious planet possess an almost startling interest.

First let us briefly recall what Venus is. It is a globe like our earth and of very nearly the same magnitude, having a diameter of about 7,700 miles, while that of the earth is a little more than 7,900 miles. So nearly of the same size are the two planets that if we could view them from an equal distance we should be unable, without the aid of instruments of measurement, to detect any difference between them. The substance of Venus is slightly lighter, bulk for bulk, than that which composes the earth, but the difference in this respect is so little that again it would require special examination to distinguish by weight between a cubic foot of the soil of Venus and an equal amount of the soil of the earth. It follows that on Venus the force of gravitation or the weight of bodies does not greatly differ from that on the earth. If we could step upon Venus we should find that we had parted with a few pounds of weight, but the difference would not be very noticeable, except perhaps on the race track.

But this planet, so like the earth in many respects, is very different from our globe in its situation. The earth's distance from the sun is 93,000,000 miles; the distance of Venus from the sun is 67,000,000 miles. This difference becomes a matter of great importance when we consider the effects which the sun produces upon the two planets. Heat and light, as everybody knows, vary intensely as the square of the distance. When we compare the square of the earth's distance from the sun with the square of Venus' distance, we find that the former is about double the latter. This means that Venus, on the average, gets twice as much heat and light from the sun as the earth gets.

But, on the other hand, we know that all forms of life depend for their existence upon the radiant energy of the sun. On the earth, when we pass from the arctic regions toward the equator, we find the number of living forms and the variety and intensity of the manifestations of life continually increasing, until, in the equatorial zone, earth, sea and air are all crowded with animate and growing things. The touch of the sun everywhere produces life, and in the absence of sunlight is death. It is but natural to infer that Venus, having twice as much sunshine as the earth, should be proportionately more crowded with animal and vegetable inhabitants, and that the intensity of life there should be correspondingly greater. Some geologists have thought that there was a time when the climate of the earth was so hot that tropical plants and beasts lived abundantly around the poles. A similar condition of things might be supposed now to prevail upon Venus.—Harper's Round Table.

The Terrors of a Real Blizzard.

A great deal has been said and written about those blinding storms that sometimes sweep with resistless fury the western prairies, but without the experience no one, however vivid his imagination, can fully picture to himself such a storm, much less realize all that a blizzard means.

The penetrating wind, roaring and howling, shifting quickly from one point to another, whirls the sharp particles of snow into the traveler's eyes and nostrils, blinding and smothering. It often obscures in a few moments every vestige of track, rendering travel difficult and dangerous.

The wolves and foxes that roam the prairies, if far away from scrub or timber when a blizzard bursts upon them, burrow at once into the drifts and there abide till the storm is over.

The grouse, or prairie chicken, flying swiftly, presses its wings to its sides and plunges head first into the snow and there is perfectly safe.

The Indian of the plains if caught away from his tepee (tent) scrapes away the snow with his foot and wraps his blanket closely about him, creeps into the hole he has made and is quickly drifted over.

But the white man caught out on the prairie often becomes utterly bewildered, wanders around until completely exhausted, sinks down and perishes with the cold.

Cost of Discovering America.

A student of Spanish annals has added an interesting chapter to the history of prices by revealing from the archives of the Escurial what it cost to discover the new world. The stipends of the discoverers, at all events, did not amount to much. The pay of an able seaman was only, it seems, 10 francs a month, while a captain drew only 80 francs, or about 3 guineas, a month. As for Christopher Columbus himself, his earnings were at the rate of 1,600 francs, or $320 per annum. Even in Spain salaries have risen since those days.

The English Language.

There are now over 250,000 words in the English language, acknowledged by the best authorities, or about 70,000 more than in the German, French, Spanish and Italian combined.

CAREER OF POPE LEO.

INTERESTING CHARACTERISTICS OF THE HOLY FATHER.

The Present Pontiff Will Rank High In Great Deeds, Says Justin McCarthy—His Great Interest In the Working Class and the Poor.

Justin McCarthy has written the life of Pope Leo XIII. In it he says:

"I have tried to tell the story of his life as one might tell the story of the life of any other prince or statesman, surrounding it with no halo of mere hero worship or saint worship. But it is hard, indeed, not to grow enthusiastic as one studies the records of such a career. Statesmanship and philanthropy are combined in it, each at its best and highest.

"There have been political popes and theological popes, but Leo XIII is above all things a philanthropic pope. It is only just to Leo XIII to say that no cry of a wounded soul ever reached him that did not arouse his compassion and his best efforts to give relief. In one remarkable instance he was invited to express an opinion as to the claims and course of action by an association formed in the United States and Canada, which took the name of 'the Knights of Labor.'

"The pope referred the whole question finally to the sacred congregation of Rome. It is not unreasonable to suppose that Leo XIII was, for himself, much more sympathetic with the purposes of the labor organizations all over the world. Several pilgrimages of French workingmen waited on him during the time of his sacerdotal jubilee. To all of these deputations the pope spoke with sympathy, with encouragement and with affection.

"The pope is, above all things, an optimist. His whole mind seems to be filled with the just idea that the more the physical benefit of the hard workers and the poor is advanced the more will their hearts be lifted toward a better mode of life. He will understand that in the poorer regions of the crowded cities the miserable conditions of the hard struggle for daily living tend to shut out all glimpses of a higher world, just as a dull and dirty window shuts out all view of the sky.

"The years of Pope Leo are growing on apace. He has already surpassed the average age and length of the reign of the Roman pontiffs. The story goes that some fortune teller announced to him in his youth that he was destined to live to be 90, and the pope was said to have believed in the prophecy.

"It is commonly said that the pope has not changed his manner of life since he was a simple bishop. He is, indeed, a man who could not easily change either his habits or his opinions, for he is of that enduring, slow speaking, hard thinking temperament which makes hard workers.

"There has not been his equal intellectually for a long time, nor shall we presently see his match again. He was born and bred in the keen air of the Volscian hills, a southern Italian, but of the mountains, and there is still about him something of the hill people. He has the long, lean, straight, broad shouldered frame of the true mountaineer, the marvelously bright eye, the well knit growth of strength, traceable even in extreme old age.

"His bearing is erect at all times, and on days when he is well his step is quick as he moves about his private apartments. 'Il papa corre sempre' (the pope always runs) is often said by the guards and familiars of the antechamber. When the weather is fine, the pope generally walks or drives in the garden, being carried out to the gates in a sedan chair, where the carriage awaits him.

"The pope sleeps little, not more than four or five hours at night, though he rests awhile after dinner. After mass he breakfasts on coffee and goat's milk—milk supplied by goats kept in the Vatican garden. At 10 he takes a cup of broth. At 2 he dines, eating most abstemiously.

"He enjoys walking about directing the work and improvements in the gardens. He likes talking to Vespignani, the architect of the holy apostolic palaces, going over the plans of the works he has ordered. He also takes pleasure in talking about flowers and plants with the director of the gardens. In the evening he attends the recitation of the rosary and then retires to his room, where he studies, reads or writes verses, and about 10 he takes a slight supper.

"Pope Leo also loves the working people and the poor and strives unceasingly with all his power to lighten their burdens and to brighten their lives. He shows to others the best and most practical way to the accomplishment of such objects. He spreads the light of education all around him. As a great leader of men, endowed with unrivaled influence, he makes it his task to maintain peace among his neighbors. Better praise no man could earn. A better life no man could live."—Boston Herald.

Respect Another's Views.

Your religious views may be quite different from those of your friend, but if you would command respect and maintain an influence be unswerving in all that pertains to your faith. Avoid modifying statements lest you find yourself compromising with principle ere you are aware. But beyond the shadow of a doubt it is the spirit that quickeneth. We can possess no good quality unless God gives notwithstanding many fair appearances to the contrary. So let us be charitable, realizing that it is the goodness of God alone that enlightens us, strengthens us and guides us.—Catholic Universe.

To Mark the Twentieth Century.

Pope Leo, according to the Rome correspondent of the London Daily Chronicle, contemplates a universal jubilee in 1900 to mark the opening of the twentieth century.

FROM VATICAN ARCHIVES.

An Important Work of the American Catholic Historical Society.

The American Catholic Historical society is among other things accomplishing a work of considerable importance in the researches which it has instituted at Rome to obtain from original documents in the archives of the Vatican data shedding light upon the early history of the Catholic church in the new world. The society has secured the services of the Rev. Professor Umberto Benigui, a scholarly and experienced "archivist," who has collected data which include some of the first consistorial "Acta" relating to this continent. These, which are still to be of the highest interest and value, will be published in the records of the society. In addition, it is announced Professor Benigui is preparing from the Vatican archives a series of documents relating to the Franco-Hispano-English struggles from the beginning of the seventeenth century.

Among the documents resurrected by Father Benigui is an act of the consistory, held in Rome, Oct. 21, 1530, which possesses especial interest just now in view of the closer relations between the United States and Cuba as an outcome of the recent war. It records the renunciation of Bishop John de Ubita, who was a Franciscan; the election of his successor, Bishop Michael Ramirez de Salamanca, a Dominican, and the confirmation of a bequest of 2,000 "pondera" for the restoration of the cathedral church of Santiago de Cuba.—Philadelphia Ledger.

CHURCH IN NEW ZEALAND.

The Southern Messenger says: "One of the latest great conquests of the Catholic church is that of New Zealand. But 60 years ago there was no resident priest, nor a single church on that island. Missionaries from France undertook the dangerous task of evangelizing those savage heathens. The Marist fathers, the Benedictines and some secular missionary priests labored so successfully that there is now an archbishop with three suffragan bishops to govern a flourishing church. There are more than 100 priests, 500 teaching brothers, and the Catholics number no less than 100,000. From a mission in Asia the bishop writes that the number of heathen converts up to the year 1897 was over 46,000. It is very remarkable that at this time, when the Catholic church is hampered more than ever, her progress is greater than ever before. But this only proves the word of Christ, who said: "Be not afraid, my little flock. I have conquered the world!"

THE POPE'S UNTIRING LABOR

He Works From Twelve to Fourteen Hours Daily.

Dr. Lapponi, physician to the pope, said recently: "The pope's renewed and incessant activity is the one thing that disturbs me. Can you conceive a man 89 years old working assiduously from 12 to 14 hours daily? I beg him constantly to conserve his strength, but he will not listen to me, and he even gets a little angry when I dare to remind him of the strain he is enduring.

"He attempts to do everything himself. He wants no assistance, because nobody quite satisfies him in the little details of affairs. He even corrects the proofs of his encyclicals and other works. Happily all his illnesses in his advanced years have been slight and had their origin in this excess of work. Reports that his holiness is suffering from increasing deafness are untrue. For the last ten years he has heard but feebly with his left ear, but the hearing of his right is still good and unimpaired."—Philadelphia Press.

Fortune For a Nun.

It is not often, says the London Daily Chronicle, that a nun has a fortune of $450,000. Such a sum has recently come into the possession of a member of the community of Sisters of St. Vincent de Paul at Origny. In that little French town, familiar to many English visitors, a basket manufacturer of the name of Burlureaux throve so well that he opened shops for his wares in Newcastle-on-Tyne and in Leeds. By thrift he accumulated the fortune which now devolves by his death on his only daughter. In her hands it becomes at once the patrimony of the poor.

Dawson City's Catholic Church.

The Catholic church at Dawson City was destroyed by fire a short time ago, and it has recently been stated that Alexander McDonald, a Catholic miner, has donated $40,000 for the rebuilding of the church and besides this has given a large sum for the erection of a hospital.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Hath Time Grown Old?

THE QUESTION.

Why paint we Time an ancient man,
His limbs grown weak and old
And in his nerveless hold
A rusty talisman?
Hath Time grown old?

Doth not the sun his course fulfill,
The fleeting seasons follow on,
From ruddy spring to winter wan,
Unceasing, constant still?
Hath Time grown old?

One day is as another day,
One year is as another year,
Yet with the passing of his bier
A man doth fade for aye.
Hath Time grown old?

Unto all things of earthly brood
The Ruling Wisdom hath assigned
A resurrection in their kind—
Man never is renewed.

Onward the sequent ages roll
Relentless, though the hope of youth
Crumbles to age, ambition's tooth
Still gnawing at the soul.
Time grows not old!

THE ANSWER.

Peace! Man shall but begin to be
When like a crumpled scroll,
The skies to ruin roll
When dawns eternity!
When Time grows old!

CHARGED BY A COW MOOSE.

New Anderson Disbelieves Stories of the Power of the Human Eye Over Beasts.

It is the belief of George Anderson, a trapper up in Maine, that all the stories he has read about how wild beasts have been cowed by the steady, unvarying gaze of a man are nonsense. this belief is a result of an experience he had with a cow moose on the little branch of Riffle Creek.

Anderson was looking after some traps he had set for mink and marten, and his only weapon was a 22 calibre rifle. He walking along a ridge beside the stream when about fifteen yards away he saw what appeared to be a rabbit. Drawing down on it with his rifle he fired, whereupon a big, ungainly moose calf jumped up from the brush and stood still bellowing with pain and fear.

The trapper was so startled that he forgot to work the little grip that throws new shells into his rifle. Five seconds after he had shot a big cow moose came through the woods on the run and, without stopping to lick the calf, as a bear would have done to a wounded cub, she made for the man. She was too close to be escaped by climbing or running. Anderson's mind worked fast, and he decided at once that his only hope was to stampede the cow by gazing at her severely. He gazed all right, and thinks that he looked more severe than scared, but the moose kept right on coming with her eyes twinkling and looking straight at him. Anderson began to be worried by the time she was ten feet away. He realized that so far as stopping a charging cow moose is concerned the human eye isn't what it has been cracked up to be. The man turned to jump and the moose butted him on the right hip and knocked him a good three rods down the back of the ridge, landing him out of sight in the brush. Both moose went away and Anderson limped home and slept on his left side now.

THE INTUITION OF A CHILD.

How She Quieted the Rough Miners at a Time of Great Excitement.

At the time of the terrible accident a year or two ago at the coal-mines near Scranton, Pennsylvania, several men were buried for three days, and all efforts to rescue them proved unsuccessful. A spectator wrote—"The majority of the miners were Germans. They were in a state of intense excitement, caused by sympathy for the wives and children of the buried men and despair at their own baulked efforts. A great mob of ignorant men and women assembled at the mouth of the mine on the evening of the third day in a condition of high nervous tension which fitted them for any mad act. A sullen murmur arose that it was folly to dig farther, that the men were dead; and this was followed by cries of rage at the rich mine-owners, who were in no way responsible for the accident. A hasty word or gesture might have produced an outbreak of fury. Standing near was a little German girl, perhaps eleven years old. Her pale face and frightened glance from side to side showed that she fully understood the danger of the moment. Suddenly, with a great effort, she began to sing in a hoarse whisper, we could not be heard. Then she—courage, and her sweet childish voice rang out in Luther's grand old hymn, familiar to every German from the cradle—'A mighty fortress is our God.' There was a silence like death, then one voice joined the girl's, and presently another and another, until the whole great multitude were singing. A great quiet seemed to fall upon the hearts. They resumed their work with fresh zeal, and before morning the joyful cry came up from the pit that the men were found alive. Never was a word more in season that that child's hymn."

The Jury System in Justices' Courts.

There are men who are nearly always in trouble with their neighbors and to whom a lawsuit is a perpetual delight. There are likewise justices not a few, who are not above granting warrants and civil summonses in cases scarcely worthy of notice, that the accruing fees may flow into their pockets. Either plaintiff or defendant may demand a jury trial, in which case "twelve good men and true," the majority of whom have ever tried their best to avoid litigation, are summoned to leave their own interests, which may mean much to them, and spend the day in listening to a dreary action brought by one man against another, in many cases merely to satisfy a personal spite. If the case in hand be a civil suit, the juryman "drawn on" gets the magnificent compensation of 25 cents, of not drawn, he gets nothing and pays his own expenses. Should the action be brought "in behalf of the people," no compensation is allowed in either event, no matter what his time is worth were the juryman left to his own devices.

If a law could be passed making the pay of a juryman summoned to the trial before a justice at least $2, the same to be paid (in civil suits) by the litigant asking for a jury trial, there would be far less actions brought to satisfy petty spite and hatred, and peaceable law-abiding citizens would far more seldom be called from their usual avocations to participate in proceedings both injurious and distasteful.

THE HOMING PIGEONS.

Carrier pigeons must not be confused with homing pigeons, notes a writer in The Badminton Magazine. The former is a fancy pigeon, especially prized for its eye and wattles, but quite useless as a messenger. Both are cousins of the dragon, but the fancier, in the case of the carrier, has bred purely for points, color, shape etc., while the homing pigeon fancier cares nothing for these things. With him it has been "handsome as a handsome does," and stamina with intelligence has been his aim. An article in Bell's Life, of Jan. 1, 1870, speaks of the "commercial aspect" of the homing pigeon, and from it I extract the following: "Baron Rothschild, before electricity was brought into operation had an immense quantity of pigeons for express work. These birds brought the news of the state of the money markets in Paris, and frequently the baron cleared in England, almost immediately after the news arrived many thousand pounds by buying or selling stock. These birds did not come direct from the Continent, for there were relays throughout the distance, and the birds that were housed at Dover brought the news from Calais, when it was dispatched by another pigeon, whose home was at Sittingbourne, so on from there to Blackheath, and thence by another bird to the metropolis."

It has been generally stated, and so far without contradiction, that it was by means of their pigeon express the Rothschilds learned the result of the Battle of Waterloo several hours before the Government of the day, and profiting by this means, were enabled to make their first great coup on the Stock Exchange.—New York Times.

MARK TWAIN'S GIFT TO HIS WIFE.

Intended His Last Work as a Remembrance of their Wedding Anniversary

It must have been because the author of "The Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc" was on his travels in the uttermost parts of the earth when the narrative was published in book form that one of his intentions about it was not at that time carried out. It was his purpose, when he began work on the story in Florence, in 1893, that it should be a silver-wedding present to his wife. He says that she never knew of his design, and when the book was published there was nothing in it to apprise her of it. "Let us rectify," writes Mr. Clemens from London, under date of April 9; and, agreeably to his wish, a leaf will be inserted in future issues of the Recollections of Joan, bearing this inscription:

1870 TO MY WIFE 1895
OLIVIA LANGDON CLEMENS
THIS BOOK

is tendered on our wedding anniversary in grateful recognition of her twenty-five years of valued service as my literary adviser and editor.

A COLORED MAN'S SUCCESS.

He Has Proved Himself a Capable and Thrifty Farmer.

Barton F. Powell, of Albany, Ga., a negro thirty-two years old, is one of the most successful farmers in the state. Twelve years ago he had saved up $2,000, with which he bought 500 acres of land. He went to work on it and cleared $2,500 the first year. He has continued to add to his landed possessions, paying spot cash for every farm purchased, and is now the owner of 2,100 acres of land, from which he markets 400 bales of cotton annually. Besides his success on the farm he has developed the country supply-store idea, and thus rakes in thousands of dollars a year. He also owns a comfortable residence in Bainbridge. His profits last year were over $7,000. He says that the question of social recognition doesn't trouble him so long as he can get financial recognition at the bank.—New York Tribune.

Flowers as an Antiseptic.

It is said that the odors of flowers are antiseptic and that during epidemics the workmen in perfume factories are exempt from disease.

Some essences are good for the nerves. Ambergris, it is said, has the power to clear the brain and induce thought. Musk used in infinitesimal quantities acts as a tonic. Citron and aloes are soothing to the nerves. Strong perfumes, as a rule, are stimulating, while strange, subtle odors incline to drowsiness.

A chemist believes that each scent can be symbolized by a musical note, and a French romanticist says, on inhaling the fragrance of flowers on shore and the strains of music borne on the air from the deck of a vessel, "I could not tell whether I breathed music or heard flowers."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Tiger With a Glass Eye.

This isn't a stuffed tiger, but a real live one, ferocious and strong. He is at present in the menagerie at Stuttgart, and looks as fierce with his glass eye as with the real one.

A serious affection of the muscles caused the beast to lose the sight of one eye. As the public didn't appreciate a one-eyed tiger, the beast was put under cocaine and the useless optic removed. This was a ticklish operation, several strong keepers holding the beast down while the eye was taken out.

He was measured for a new eye, which had to be made with a special degree of ferocity. For the first week he tried hard to rub it out; but he now rests contented as the only wild animal with a glass eye.—New York Tribune.

THE VALUE OF MEAT.

ITS NUTRITIVE VALUE HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED.

Actual Value Canned Meats—Investigations That Have Been Made by the Government—None of the Soluble Matter Removed by Cooking Is Nutriment.

A discussion has arisen regarding meats, both canned and refrigerated, that have been furnished the United States government to supply the army and navy during the late war with Spain. The effect of this discussion might be productive of good, were conclusions teached after testimony was presented; but as loose generalities are taking the place of sworn evidence, the trade and commerce of the country are threatened and the agricultural interests, of the vast west especially, are being seriously imperiled.

Take, for instance, the important article of canned meats, and how few there are, even of those who have constantly used them, who know anything of their actual nutritive value. Most of the comment now indulged in discloses the densest ignorance as to the scientific data upon which their value is based. These data are established so thoroughly that they are now, and for a long time have been, placed beyond the realm of doubt and have reached the position outside even of discussion. Careful scientific work in this country and exhaustive expert research on the part of European governments have resulted in authoritative conclusions now known to be axiomatic and unassailable.

The United States government made a thorough investigation of the subject of foods and their nutritive values during the years 1890-1895. W. O. Atwater, professor of chemistry in the Wesleyan university, Middletown, Conn., devoted several years in this country and in Europe to this subject, and the results of his work are published by the department of agriculture at Washington, and are standard authority. With European governments the food problem has demanded the closest attention. It has been probed by them until the very bottom facts have been laid bare. As Atwater has investigated for the United States, so have Dr. Koenig, Rueber, Etzinger, Stultzer, Fassbender, and other conspicuously eminent authorities, investigated for France, Germany, Austria and other European countries. Tests innumerable have been made in provisioning vast armies, under all conditions of service—in barracks, during maneuvering in peace and actual war. Penal and eleemosynary institutions have been availed of for these tests and tabulated tests have been for years affirmed and reaffirmed until their accuracy is now known to be definitely established.

The charge of inferior nutritive value when applied to canned boiled meats, needs only investigation for its refutation. Long experience should be sufficient to establish their superiority, but reasons for this superiority may be concisely stated. Animal life requires three classes of foods—nitrogenous matter in the form of proteids, carbo-hydriates, as found in sugar, starch and allied products; phosphates and a few other salts. Meat is the chief source of nitrogenous matter as used in daily food. Its chemical analysis shows it to be composed of water, proteids and a small percentage of mineral matter. The maximum amount of matter in meat, soluble in boiling water, is four pounds in 100. The nutritive part of meat is albumen and mysoin, the basis of muscle. Neither of these is soluble in boiling water. Upon immersing meat in water at the boiling temperature, the albumen coagulates, causing contraction that squeezes out the water, producing a shrinkage of forty per cent in weight. Less than two per cent of this shrinkage is due to the extraction of matter soluble in water; thirty-eight per cent is water removed by the contraction in cooking. None of the two per cent of soluble matter removed by cooking is nutriment.

The ignorant charge, therefore, sometimes heard, that meat has had all the nutrition cooked out of it is necessarily without foundation. This charge is always maliciously or ignorantly made. The nutrients in meat are insoluble in boiling water. The value of canned boiled meat, as a nutrient, has been fully established by the most extended experiments in Europe and America; and it is beyond the possibility of dispute that ninety-eight per cent of the proteids of boiled beef, such as is put up in cans, is digestible and is assimilated by the system. So that it may be positively asserted that the nutritive value of the canned meat, known to commerce, is absolutely, at any stage of its manufacture, beyond the control of the manufacturer. Be he honest or dishonest, he can not tamper with it.

Scientific limitations protect the consumer even if unscrupulous manufacturers desired to rob him. Tests that may be counted by the hundreds prove this. They are not mere laboratory tests; they are exhaustive and practical, and are conducted by scientists with closest attention to detail. Every particle of food taken into the system and every article excreted is analyzed. These tests extend for months, under all conditions. Individuals as well as masses of people are subjected to them. The armies of Europe and the motley assembly of men in public institutions contribute to the unassailable accuracy of their results. And all of this great mass of scientific testimony proves, beyond controversy, that boiled meat, instead of being less nutritious than uncooked fresh meat, is actually more so, for it is known that sixty pounds of the former contains as much nutrition as 100 pounds of the latter.

THE GREAT INDOOR GAME

WHAT IS GOING ON IN LOCAL BASKET BALL CIRCLES.

Happenings of Interest to Plainfield Enthusiasts—What the Local Teams are Doing—Gossip Among the Players.

The game between the teams of girls from the Plainfield and Montclair High Schools has been again postponed. The date for the game was set for Friday and it was generally supposed that the long talked-of match was to take place at last. The manager of the Montclair team has written to Miss Bessie Fitz Randolph, secretary of the Girls Athletic Association of the local High School, that the Montclair team cannot play on that day. Next week Wednesday is the day now set for the match.

The next basket ball game in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium will take place Monday evening. The Summit Y. M. C. A. will then play a return game in Plainfield. A few years ago, the Plainfield and Summit teams were on even terms and the contests between the two bitterly fought. Last year Plainfield showed a superiority over the Summit boys that was too great for the latter to overcome. This year a series of games was scheduled. Plainfield's team went to Summit and found the team from that place comparatively easy. A good victory for Plainfield was the result. The Summit boys would rather defeat Plainfield than any other team in the state so there is a possibility that they will make a strong fight Monday evening to get the victory if possible. At any rate, the rivalry between the two sides is sufficient to promise a lively game.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The next event of importance in the gymnastic department of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. is the dual gymnastic contest with the New Brunswick association in the latter's gymnasium. Each association will be represented by a team of three. The team to represent Plainfield has not yet been selected, but it will in all probability include Walter L. Long and Eric Moraller. Frank Marcley is a likely candidate for the other place if he can get off that evening.

It was agreed when the dual athletic contest between the Plainfield and New Brunswick Y. M. C. A.'s was arranged that the winning side should have the selection of the banner that goes to the victories team. Now that Plainfield has won it Physical Director Heywood is looking after the banner. It will propably be blue silk with gold decorations. The names of the winning team, Raymond B. Carroll, George Proctor Smith and Frank O. Bristol, will be placed on the banner. The lettering will be in gold. The banner will be hung in a conspicuous position in the Y. M. C. A. building.

It is now practically decided that Shannon and Mack have won the first prize in the bowling tournament tnat is in progress on the alleys of the Catholic Club, and this accounts for the seeming loss of interest in finishing the three games yet to be rolled. The winners are about tie wiih two other contestants for the highest average and this will be decided when the games are completed. Shannon and Mack will receive $10 as first prize.

MAY BE SAVED TO PURCHASERS.

Important Decision in Reference to Property in Litigation.

Vice Chancellor Pitney at Jersey City has given a decision in the suit of Charles Laux against Philip E. Slatta, trustee, to foreclose a mortgage on several lots at Berkley Heights. These lots were sold to Italians on the instalment plan.

After getting nearly all the money the man who sold the lots, whose name did not appear in the proceedings, disappeared. Then the lot-owners found that the property was mortgaged to Laux for nearly its full value, and that before they could get a clear title to the land they must pay off the mortgage.

Slatta, as trustee, it was shown, had interested himself to raise money to pay off the mortgage and had paid one-half the claim, when, it is alleged, Laux went among the Italians and warned them not to pay Slatta any more money, as he was endeavoring to get control of the property.

Vice Chancellor Pitney said the evidence showed this to be true. He said that had not Slatta interfered Laux would have obtained the property long ago. He ordered the property to be sold, but declared that the sale should be taken out of the hands of the Sheriff and conducted by Senator Cross, of Union county, a Special Master in Chancery.

He also ordered that the property should be sold in lots as bought by the Italians, and that those bought by the Italians should be sold first and the money used to satisfy the mortgage and to pay Slatta for the money he had advanced in his efforts to save the property.

This would enable some of the purchasers to save their lots, he said, while it would work no hardship to those who must inevitably lose their property. It is thought that under this plan some of the property may be saved to the purchasers. The amount involved is about $15 000.

WILSON RENOMINATED AFTER LIVELY FIGHT.

Exciting Borough Democratic Primary Last Night.

WAS A BIG ATTENDANCE.

OPPONENTS OF MAYOR WILSON TRIED TO NAME H. P. REYNOLDS.

First Clash Between the Factions Occurred in the Selection of a Chairman—Wilson Supporters in Majority—W. L. Saunders Nominated the Mayor to Succeed Himself—Councilmen Named.

If there is a single Jeffersonian Democrat in the borough of North Plainfield who can remember a time when political affairs were similar to those exhibited last evening at the primary held in the basement of the Borough Public School, he must have forgotten it after attending last night's meeting. It was without a doubt one of the largest and most excited gatherings ever held under the auspices of the Democrats of the borough. Fully 150 people were present, and from the very start there were signs of "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

It could be plainly be seen, by the time that Former Mayor William L. Saunders called the meeting to order, that there was a very strong opposition crowd present who were out to defeat the nomination of Mayor Wilson for a second term. Here and there groups gathered and with a shake of the head gave voice to sentiments of "We shall see who is going to rule this borough?"

When Mr. Saunders called the meeting to order, he remarked that the presence of so many citizens reminded him of good old Democratic times, and he greeted all with cordiality. He then asked those present who they would have for chairman. Here is where the trouble started. David J. Carney named A. E. Kenney while David Bodine named James Trewin.

It was at first the intention of Mr. Saunders to take a viva voce vote, but he entertained an objection offered by Mr. Bodine, who asked that the vote by ballot. Mr. Saunders stated that the good old principle of Democracy would prevail—the majority decides. After he stated clearly that no Republican would be allowed to vote, he named E. T. Douglass and John Emmons as tellers.

The vote for chairman resulted in Mr. Kenney being chosen by a vote of 91 to 37 for Mr. Trewin. In all 121 votes were cast. The friends of Mr. Trewin were somewhat uneasy. In the meantime L. R. Bird was chosen secretary and he read the call of the meeting.

After the call was read Mr. Saunders stepped forward and placed in nomination for the Mayoralty honors Mayor John F. Wilson, in the following speech:

"A citizen of mature years, a large and perhaps the largest tax payer in the borough, a man of undoubted business ability, large experience and high character, was against his will about two years ago, urged by certain Democrats to accept the party's nomination for Mayoralty. He won at the polls and has since then conducted a vigorous, practical businesslike and honest administration of affairs. Being a man of strong convictions and character he has naturally made enemies. His course has seemed to me to be one of diligent search after error and untiring determination to uproot it when found. That he has worked hard in the interests of the borough and that he has accomplished results no one disputes.

"The office is perhaps not without some interest or attraction with him. It gives him food for thought. It occupies his mind and I am not so sure that it does not keep him awake nights. It really should afford him and it does afford me considerable amusement when the question is asked 'cui bone'? What good is all this? What does the Mayor of North Plainfield get out of this office. Is there any money in it? No. Is it a means by which directly or indirectly there is profit in it for an honest man? No. Is there any honor in it? Very little. There is certainly no honor in keeping it up—once a Mayor always an ex Mayor. Is there anything about it which is conducive to one's health happiness, enjoyment or prosperity. I think not and I speak from experience on the other side of the case, the office of Mayor even in a little borough like this carries with it its weight of responsibility and cares. The Mayor is a servant, not a master. He is attacked by day and night and from all sides and with all public matters from questions of money and tax-

HOPING THAT ROESEL MAY ESCAPE HANGING.

JURORS PETITION FOR CLEMENCY.

They Ask the Court of Pardons to Commute Court's Sentence to Life Imprisonment.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 3.—Nearly all the members of the Union County Grand Jury that indicted Louis Roesel for the murder of farmer James C. Pitts, of Summit, have signed a petition to the Court of Pardons asking that the prisoner's sentence be commuted to life imprisonment. The jurymen declare their belief that George Mashanda, Roesel's accomplice, who is now serving a twenty-year sentence in State Prison, was the man who dealt the fatal blow.

This petition, together with several others, will be presented by Frank Bergen, Roesel's counsel, to the special session of the Court of Pardons, called for next Saturday at 11 o'clock in the Chancellor's Chambers, at Jersey City. Sheriff Kirk informed a reporter yesterday that he was going right ahead with the preparations for the execution, and will have everything in readiness next week if the Court of Pardons declines to interfere.

Murderer Roesel seems to fully realize now the gravity of his situation. He sleeps little an eats less.

TROLLEY TO GO OUT ARLINGTON AVENUE.

The Necessary Consents Were Secured Yesterday.

THE COMPANY IS PLEDGED.

IT IS CALCULATED TO RUN THE EXTENSION TO GOLF LINKS.

Charles L. Moffett and Harry C Runyon Accomplished the Work of Securing the Right of Way—Street Railway Company are Obliged to Build According to Their Agreement

The last barrier that lay before the path of the trolley extension out Arlington avenue and to the Crescent Oval, Hillside cemetery and the golf links has been overcome. Yesterday afternoon Charles L. Moffett and Harry C. Runyon completed the undertaking of getting a majority of consents for a trolley line on Arlington avenue, between West Fourth street and Randolph road.

One of the concessions that the Common Council secured from the Plainfield Street Railway when the Scotch Plains extension franchise was granted, was that the corporation should run a branch line out Arlington avenue to Randolph road and then over that thoroughfare to Woodland avenue and to the places already mentioned, when the necessary consents should be secured.

The Arlington avenue extension is not considered particularly valuable by the street railway as it is not part of the main system of trolley lines that these trolley promoters have planned. They were not anxious to build it, but agreed to do so if the consents were secured, and to operate it according to the same rules as the rest of their line. This proposed extension is quite valuable to the city, however, in opening up that portion of the city and furnishing the long wish-for rapid transit to the Oval, cemetery and golf links.

Messrs. Moffett and Runyon have been working to secure the consents. They met with no organized opposition and had little difficulty in getting the required number.

The necessary consents on Randolph road were secured some time ago. It is a question, however, whether the best line for the extension would be to follow Randolph road itself or go through a private right of way parallel to that street. It has been settled that the road will follow a private right of way south from Randolph road and parallel to Woodland avenue.

The proper ordinance providing for the Arlington avenue extension will be introduced into the Common Council shortly by the street committee.

MODEL ON CAR WHEELS.

The "Star" Goes Through on a Peculiar Mission Today.

Superintendent Frech and Roadmaster Swackhamer, together with a number of the other officials of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, passed through here this morning on the director's car, known as the "Star," part of which was encased in a frame work modeled after the width and height of a new style of freight cars which are to be run over the road in the near future. The trip is made over the line to test the various sections of the road with a view of determining if there is going to be any trouble in running the new kind of cars, designed for general service and to increase the carrying tonnage of the present rolling stock used for freight purposes.

Entertained at Euchre.

The Thursday Evening Euchre Club was entertained last evening by Mr. and Mrs. William N. Tier, of Bank place. In addition to the regular play there was dancing and music, all of which were pleasant features. The club will be entertained in two weeks by Miss Charlotte Messersmith, of Washington street. The prize winners last evening were, Mrs. William N. Tier and Miss Bertha Wheeler, first and second honors for the ladies; Theodore Mantz and William N. Tier, first and second honors for the men. During the evening refreshments were served.

A Chinese Evening.

Quite elaborate preparations have been made for the "Chinese Evening" that will be held in the parlors of the Congregational church this evening, under the auspices of the missionary and social committees of the Christian Endeavor Society. There will be several of the young women of the church present in Chinese costumes. They will serve appropriate refreshments. The visitors will not, however, be compelled to eat with chopsticks.

AN ORDAINED MINISTER.

GEORGE POOLE ACCEPTED AS AN EXPOUNDER OF BAPTIST GOSPEL.

The Services Held in the Park Avenue Baptist Church Last Evening—The Storm Prevented a Large Attendance.

Yesterday George Poole, of Oak Tree, was no more in the religious world than an earnest, faithful church man; today he is a minister of the Gospel, with the power to baptize and also to perform marriages, and has been welcomed into the concourse of Baptist ministers. His ordination services were held last night in the Park Avenue Baptist church, but, owing to the storm, the attendance was discouragingly small But the service lacked none of its solemnity or interest because of the small number out to witness it, and Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D., who preached the ordination sermon, spoke with as much force and power as though there were thousands listening to every word he uttered.

Rev. J. H. Parks, D. D., of Scotch Plains, who was elected moderator of the council that sat to examine Mr. Poole, presided at the service last night, and at its close pronounced the session adjourned.

After the Scripture reading, prayer and the singing of one or two hymns, Dr. Lowry preached the ordination sermon. He took for his text these words from the Gospel according to St. Matthew: 'Go ye, therefore." The ordination prayer was to have been uttered by Rev. D. J. Yerkes, D. D., but in his absence Dr. Parks invoked the Divine blessing upon the candidate, who humbly knelt before him with the hands of four ministers resting on his bowed head.

The charge to the candidate was given by his pastor, Rev. J. W. Richardson, and Rev. Frank Fletcher, of New Market, welcomed him with a few words into the company of the Baptist preachers. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Poole.

The newly-made preacher has accepted a call as pastor of the Baptist church at Ringoes, Hunterdon county, and will go there at once to take up his labors.

Among the members of the congregation last night was Deacon Bond, of the Ringoes Baptist church, who came to Plainfield to see his new pastor ordained.

TOLD OF THE LEHIGH WRECK.

Arthur Tregembo, With Both Legs Broken, Recited His Experiences.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., met last evening and the largest attendance in the history of the Council was recorded, fully one hundred and seventy five members being present. Seventeen candidates were initiated into the order, and in the good of the order there were many excellent speeches. A feature was the address made by Arthur Tregembo, of Shenandoah Pa., one of the Lehigh Valley Railroad wreck victims. Mr. Tregembo succeeded in getting to the Council rooms with crutches and in an entertaining manner related his story about the wreck. If possible he will leave Plainfield tomorrow for his home at Shenandoah.

Funeral of an Aged Quaker.

The funeral of Phebe R Vail was held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Friends Meeting House. The services were very simple as is the Quaker custom, the only speaker being a Quaker preacher from Shrewsbury, N. J. Interment was in Hillside. The five bearers were nephews of the deceased, and were John Vail, of Newark, Henry W. Runyon, of Jersey City and Charles, David and Compton Vail, of this city.

PRACTICAL SOLUTION OF LABOR PROBLEM.

How it is Remedied at One Big Factory.

SOCIAL SERVICE WORK.

DR. W. H. TOLMAN GAVE ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON SUBJECT.

Successful Attempt by National Cash Register Company to Interest Employes in Welfare of the Concern—Prizes Offered for Best Suggestions as to Means and Methods at Factory.

What has been done along the lines pointed out by the League for Social Service was the burden of an illustrated lecture by Dr. William H Tolman, secretary of the League, given in the chapel of the Seventh Day Baptist church last evening. Incidentally, the lecture gave the Plainfielders present ideas they might utilize in their own city to beautify it and improve the condition of its inhabitants.

The lecture was largely devoted to describing and illustrating the methods used by President Patterson, of the National Cash Register Company, to improve the condition of the relations between employers and employed at their big factory at Dayton, O. The great delicacy of the machines needed the very best effort of the men and to secure this President Patterson tried various methods to secure their co-operation and interest.

Schools were established for the employes where they might study their work in a systematic manner. The factory buildings were arranged so as to be convenient for the employes at their work and various little conveniences, which cost but little, were provided. Prizes were offered for the best suggestions regarding tools, machines and methods. Literary and educational societies were encouraged and a clubhouse provided.

One way in which President Patterson had of improving particularly ugly spots in the city was to show views of them in his frequent exhibitions of stereopticon views. The owners of such places soon tired of having them pointed out and did their best to improve the appearance.

Dr. Tolman told how President Patterson declared that all these improvements in factory and home showed their results in dollars and cents, for the employes worked harder and better under the new circumstances. The management of the factory was placed in the hands of five of the most experienced men. It was, in fact, a sort of cabinet form of government and was found to be very successful.

Similar methods used in other factories were shown and the steady advance of this kind of social service pointed out.

Interesting leaflets were distributed at the close of the lecture. The lecture was illustrated with stereopticon views.

CAKEWALK FOR HELP OF HOSPITAL

The Rivalry for the Cake Made White Judges a Necessity.

Bert Harvey, John Venable, Charles Barber and Arthur Venable gave a concert, entertainment and cakewalk in Washington Hall last evening for the benefit of the hospital. The attendance was very large, including many white folks. The entertainment consisted of songs and recitations and then there was dancing until 11:30 o'clock, when the cakewalk took place. Three couples took part, and the winners were Miss Jenkins and Alfred Oby. The crowd became excited over the exhibition, and it became necessary to engage three white persons to act as judges. Music was furnished by Eugene O Reilly. At 12 o'clock the grand march took place, after which dancing continued till early this morning.

Death of Mrs. Birdsall.

The death of Mary Parker, widow of Hiram Birdsall, daughter of the late Phillip Parker, of Albany, and an aunt to E. L. Suffern, of Sycamore avenue, occurred last evening at the home of Mrs. Harned, 19 Craig place, where she has been residing for a year past. Death was due to advanced age. She was a native of New York and was well and favorably known among a large circle of acquaintances. She was an attendant at the Church of the Redeemer and the funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from that church.

BAD GOLD COINS FOUND IN BOUND BROOK HOUSE.

MEN WHO MOVED ARE ARRESTED.

Taken to the Somerset County Jail and Are Suspected of Counterfeiting Practices.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Somerville, March 3.—Two men are under arrest here and will be taken to Wilkesbarre, Pa., today. They are said to be suspected of counterfeiting. They were arrested Tuesday in Bound Brook upon request from Shamokin, Pa. Last night three United States Secret Service men came here with several residents of Shamokin, and the men under arrest were identified.

The men give their names as Christian Czechonossky and George Capartes. From what can be learned here Capartes rented a house some time ago in Shamokin. In it lived Czechonossy, his wife, two children and Capartes. The police suspected there was something wrong and watched the house. When the inmates learned of this they slipped away a carload of furniture and sent it to Bound Brook. The detectives followed. A search of the house is said to have brought the local authorities to the conclusion that counterfeit money had been made there. It is also said here that the prisoners, in their hurry to get away, left behind many counterfeit five and ten dollar gold coins.

The Secret Service men are loth to give the details, and those with them also refuse to talk. The men were traced by the railroad company's aid, owing to the carload of furniture being shipped to Bound Brook. They left Shamokin Tuesday morning and were under arrest the same evening.

IN SOMERSET COURT.

Further Litigation in Dispute Between Thorn and Miodovnik.

A. B. Thorn and David Miodovnik are in Somerville today at law over a claim and a counter-claim, the result of some work Thorn did for Miodovnik several months ago. Dave wanted a boiler placed in his barber shop and got Thorn to do the work. The boiler was not satisfactory to Miodovnik, and he refused to pay the bill. Thorn then sued him in Justice Nash's court and secured judgment. When a levy was made it was found that the property levied upon was covered by a mortgage, so Thorn had no redress.

At this time Miodovnik sued Thorn in a borough court for damages which he claimed for loss of time and money due to the poor boiler he claimed that Thorn had put in for him. Miodovnik secured judgment this time against Thorn and Thorn appealed the case. It is being tried today. W. S. Angleman represents Thorn and Wm. Newcorn is Miodovnik's lawyer.

TO OPPOSE THE SALE.

Excitement Promised in Disposition of Bard Company Property

There promises to be some excitement in connection with the sale of the property of the defunct Bard Company tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The proposed sale is to take place under the chattel mortgage for $800, held by the First National Bank, which is represented by Murphy & Blatz. It will be opposed by Lawyers Moy and Angleman who represent A. L. C. Marsh, Schoverling, Daly and Gales, and Editor Frank W. Runyon, all of whom have secured executions in Justice Nash's court against the Bard Cycle Company. The sale under the executions has been set for Monday. This conflict of authorities may produce trouble.

Fined $5.

The trial of George Potter, colored, took place in the City Court this morning. He was charged by Health Inspector Addis with carting garbage without a license and with dumping it within the city limits. He proved that he was working for a licensed garbage collector, but was found guilty of dumping garbage in Brown's dump on Watchung avenue. Judge Runyon fined him $5.

To Preach at Grace P. E. Church.

Thursdays in March at 8 p. m., special preachers have been secured to preach at Grace P. M. church, Seventh street, near Park avenue, as follows: March 9th, Rev. H. B. DIED AT HIS DESK WITH PEN IN HAND.

Sudden Passing Away of J. Parker Mason.

A PROMINENT PLAINFIELDER

AS HE STARTED TO WRITE HIS HEAD DROPPED FORWARD.

Quickly Laid on a Sofa by His Employer, But Died Before a Physician Was Secured—Engaged in Iron and Steel Business—Had Resided in This City Ten Years—Prominent in Social Life.

All Plainfield was shocked this morning to learn of the sudden death of one of its well-known residents, Joseph Parker Mason, Jr., 507 Stelle avenue. Mr. Mason died suddenly while seated at his desk in his office in New York. Death was caused by heart disease.

Last Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Mason returned from Florida where they spent four weeks with Mr. Mason's father, a retired New York lawyer, who was there for his health. Mr. and Mrs. Mason took the trip for their health, having just recovered from the grip. Mr. Mason was feeling much better on his return to this city but he did not go to New York to attend his business duties until Tuesday. He was in the iron and steel business and represented the interests of Morris, Wheeler & Company, of Philadelphia, in New York. His office was on the fourth floor of the Columbia building, 29 Broadway, New York.

Yesterday afternoon DeWitt C. Ivins, of this city, was in Mr. Mason's office on business. Mr. Mason started to leave the room and then remembered that he had a letter to write. He seated himself at his desk and was looking over some papers when his head dropped forward and he fell from his chair.

He was laid on a sofa by Mr. Ivins and the clerks and Dr. Turner, of 30 State street, was hurriedly summoned. Mr. Mason passed quietly away before the physician could arrive. Mr. Ivins notified William T. Kaufman, of this city, who was an intimate friend and the latter telephoned the sad intelligence to the family at Plainfield.

The remains were taken to an undertaker's rooms on a permit granted at the Coroner's office. Heart disease was declared the cause of the sudden death. The remains will be brought to this city for the funeral.

Mr. Mason was born at Worcester, Mass., in 1849. He was well educated at the schools there and afterwards sent to Harvard College. Soon after leaving college, he began a business career entering the iron and steel business in which he remained up to the time of his death. Twenty one years ago he was married in New York to the daughter of Howard Wright, of 326 Lexington avenue.

They moved to Plainfield in 1889 and resided on Central avenue for a time. Then Mr. Mason built a handsome residence on Stelle avenue into which he moved three years ago and has since resided. Mr. Mason was a Republican but took no active part in politics. He was appointed one of the sewer commissioners by Mayor Charles J. Fisk, two years ago. He was a member of the Union County Country Club and the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. He attended the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

Mr. Mason leaves a widow and one son, Parker Wright Mason, now a student at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H. He was well-known in this city and had a host of friends here who will mourn his loss.

Disturbance at Music Hall.

Frank Frazee was arrested by Special Officer Edward Martin at Music Hall last evening, charged with making a disturbance. He was locked up but subsequently released on parole. This morning he appeared before City Judge Runyon with Attorney William G. DeMeza as counsel. At the request of the latter the trial was adjourned until Tuesday morning.

HEART DISEASE.

Do Not Be Alarmed, But Look For The Cause.

Heart troubles, at least among the Americans, are certainly increasing and while this may be largely due to the excitement and worry of American business life it is more often the result of weak stomachs, of poor digestion.

Real organic disease is incurable; but not one case in a hundred of heart trouble is organic.

The close relation between heart trouble and poor digestion is because both organs are controlled by the same great nerves, the Sympathetic and Pneumogastric.

In another way, also the heart is effected by the form of poor digestion, which causes gas and fermentation from half digested food; there is a feeling of oppression and heaviness in the chest caused by pressure of the distended stomach on the heart and lungs interfering with their action; hence arises palpitation and short breath

Poor digestion also poisons the blood, making it thin and watery, which irritates and weakens the heart.

The most sensible treatment for heart trouble is to improve the digestion and to insure the prompt assimilation of food.

This can be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be found at most drug stores and which contain valuable, harmless digestive elements in a pleasant, convenient form.

It is safe to say that the regular persistent use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at meal-time will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.

Full sized package of these tablets sold by druggists at 50 cents. Little book on stomach troubles mailed free. Address F. A Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

GEN. MILES' WITNESSES

Private Clarence Walters Saw Worms in the Canned Beef.

OTHERS TESTIFY TO ODER

A Grocer and a Perfectly Proper Newspaper Man Give the Most Sensational Testimony So Far Elicited Before the Army Court of Inquiry—Canned Meat Was Unlicampikes Submitted.

Washington, D. C., March 3.—After an executive session, the army court of inquiry called to the stand Private Clarence Walters of the First Volunteer engineers. Mr. Walters gave his address as New York city. His regiment was ordered to Porto Rico, and on the voyage he ate some of the canned roast beef issued to the troops. The meat had a foul odor and he believed it was spoiled. When eaten it made him ill, he said. After the contents of a can had been exposed for a short time he saw worms in the meat. He declared that in one can he found the entrails of an ox. The men of his company complained of it constantly. In his opinion he never saw a can of the roast beef that he considered wholesome. By wholesome he meant fit to eat. He said that in appearance it was stringy and slimy.

"This is not like the can we had," said the witness. "The cans given us were not round. They were kind of square or keystone shape."

Looking at the contents of the can the witness pronounced it unlike that issued to the men of his company.

"Major Sewell."

"You say you opened one in the hold of the ship?" remarked General Wade.

"Yes, sir. I was quartered in the hold near the coal bunkers and under a number of mules."

The witness said that after eating the canned roast beef he became very sick and continued ill all the way to Ponce, where his regiment debarked. The attention of the surgeon on the vessel was called to the roast beef, but he pronounced it good. In Porto Rico the troops were supplied with canned roast beef, bacon and native fresh beef. The last mentioned was not satisfactory. He heard a great many complaints about it as it was cooked before the animal heat was out of it. He subsisted principally in Porto Rico on eggs and milk purchased from the natives. The witness explained that the commissary sergeant of his company had declined to receive the canned roast beef, as it was not considered good food.

Colonel Gillespie asked: "What kind of a life had you led before going into the regiment?"

"I was not a dissipated man," was the reply.

"I did not mean that. I meant what was your business."

"I was a newspaper man."

Questioned further, the witness said that he was unable to leave his hammock during the voyage to Porto Rico. On the return to New York the Red Cross supplied many articles of food. They also furnished condensed milk to the troops while on the island.

Replying to General Wade, Mr. Walters said the commissary sergeant mentioned was George Taylor, who was later made lieutenant of the company.

The next witness was former Captain Herbert O. Hicks of the Second Massachusetts regiment, who testified that on the first day out from Tampa the commissary of his company came to him and reported that the canned roast beef was not fit to eat. He examined the meat and found it very stringy. It was covered with a whitish, greasy substance.

"The men complained that they could not eat it," said the witness, and referring to the samples before the court he added:

"It was not nearly so good as that. It had no nutriment in it, and some of my men complained of being nauseated and made ill by it."

"What action did you take?"

"I went to my colonel, and he said he had done everything to get canned corned beef, but that it was impossible."

Speaking of the meat component of the ration while the regiment was in Cuba, he explained that they had very little canned roast beef. "The men did not like it, and simply threw it away. We had mostly bacon."

After the surrender refrigerated beef was issued. It was of good quality when received in time. There was much sickness among the men but the witness did not attribute it to the food supply. The regiment came to Montauk on the Mobile. Canned roast beef was furnished for a time, but it was unfit to eat and the men did not eat it.

"What did your men subsist on?"

"On soups."

"Got on the boat?"

"No. Purchased by my orders in Santiago."

"Out of the company fund?"

"No, sir; from a fund furnished me for that purpose."

"By whom?"

"I am not at liberty to state."

Lieutenant Franklin G. Taylor of the Sixth Massachusetts testified that the canned roast beef issued to the troops of his company on the Yale en route to Porto Rico was pronounced by the men too fat and tasteless. It was not satisfactory and the men subsisted mainly on bacon and canned tomatoes.

Asked as to the sickness, he said it was due more to what the men did not have to eat than what they ate. The bacon was sometimes bad and there was no facility for cooking it. The men had little food, in his opinion. Two pieces of hardtack, a slice of bacon and a cup of coffee sometimes formed one meal.

Occasionally a can of tomatoes would be divided between three men.

"Did you have any officers on board?"

"Yes, General Miles."

"Was this the state of under feeding reported to General Miles?"

"No; I did not think it could be carried over the head of our colonel."

"Was the condition of the food matter of general talk on the vessel?"

"Yes—among the men."

"Who was your colonel?"

"Colonel Woodward."

Lieutenant Taylor testified that he was a grocer by occupation, and had handled in a commercial way canned roast beef. He had sold the Armour and Swift brands, but it was a different kind of meat from that issued to the troops.

Lieutenant Taylor differed from Mr. Walters as to the shape of the cans of roast beef supplied in Porto Rico. Lieutenant Taylor was sure that all the cans he saw were round.

Replying to General Davis, he said that he had never reported to his superior officer that the men were ill from hunger. He might have reported that they needed proper food, he said.

House For Gen. Wheeler.

Washington, D. C., March 3.—The resolution to declare General Wheeler and other representatives holding army cimmissions to have vacated their seats in the House was called up yesterday by Mr. Henderson of Iowa. The question of consideration was raised by Mr. Lacey of Iowa, and by 43 to 87 the House refused to consider the matter.

Ayes and noes were then called for and resulted 77 to 164 against consideration.

President to Go South.

Washington, D. C., March 3.—The president and the vice president have given Senator Hanna more than half a promise to go with him to his winter home at Thomasville, Ga.

The senator proposes going as soon as he can et away, probably Monday or Tuesday.

The strain on the president while Congress has been in session has been about as great as it was during the war. He needs rest.

NO CANAL MESSAGE.

The Promised Scandal in Erie's Management Don't Pan Out.

Albany, N. Y., March 3.—Last month Governor Roosevelt said that he expected to send to the legislature a special message concerning the canals. Yesterday he announced that he had found that such a message would not be necessary, but that he would formulate within a few days a plan for future canal work. The governor has had several conferences lately with Colonel Partridge, superintendent of public works, at which canal matters were considered.

Superintendent Partridge has been making a careful study of the conditions of the canals and canal finances since he took office and has made a statement outlining his policy for the coming year.

He said that what was most needed just now was an economical administration of canal affairs in order to reach a business basis.

"I intend to secure the best work possible at the smallest expense," he added. "I expect only the ordinary appropriation from the legislature, and will do the best I can with that. It is my policy to devote available funds chiefly to making necessary repairs in the canals, and keeping them in good condition. No large scheme of improvements will be attempted in the near future. As to the contracts on hand, investigation has shown that some of them are graudulent, and, of course, they will not be carried out. Other contracts are of doubtful legality, and they will have to be looked into more carefully before action is taken. We are now preparing for an early opening of the Erie canal. I expect that the water will be turned in by April 15."

WRECK OF THE LABRADOR.

The Stranded Dominion Liner is a Total Loss.

London, March 3.—The Dominion line steamer Labrador, from St. Johns, N. B., and Halifax for Liverpool, which struck Mackingie Rock, four miles from Skerryvore light, Hebrides, Scotland, is a total wreck. All of her passengers and crew, except twelve, who are at the Skerryvore lighthouse, were landed ot Tobermory last evening by the steamship Viking, which hove in sight a few hours after the disaster occurred.

The Labrador, which left Halifax on February 20, had a good passage until February 26, when a heavy fog set in, making it impossible to take the ship's bearings for three days. Nearing the Hebrides islands the fog became more dense, and Skerryvore light was mistaken, it is supposed for Innistrahull. Soundings of from forty to fifty fathoms were got just before the vessel struck.

Most of the passengers were in bed or dressing when the alarm was given that the ship had run upon a rock. The vessel struck hard and fast amidships.

The passengers, particularly the women and children, were greatly excited, but the crew, following the example of Captain Erskine, showed the utmost coolness.

The boats were in excellent order, and all of them, six lifeboats and two small boats, were utilized. The passengers and crew lost all their belongings, as everything had to be sacrificed to the saving of life. The captain made strong efforts to take off the mails, but the breaking up of the ship was imminent and the attempt had to be abandoned.

Great Jupiter.

Chicago, March 3.—Professor George W. Hough, the astronomer at the Dearborn observatory in Evanston, has made public a discovery in regard to the surface rotations of the planet Jupiter, which is at variance with the existing belief.

It is generally held by astronomers and embodied in the most recent text books on the science, that the surface rotation of Jupiter is similar to that of the sun, being quickest near the equator and slowest in the higher latitudes near the poles.

Basing his conclusions upon a long record of observations, extending over twenty years, Professor Hough announces his belief that the surface of the planet Jupiter rotates upon its axis in separate envelopes or strata.

He discovered in his long series of observations that the spots shift in longitude as well as have a rotary movement, and this supports his ring or strata theory and strengthens his belief that Jupiter is in a gaseous or plastic state.

ALL QUIET AT MANILA

Rebels Preparing to Resist Attack by Gen. Otis's Forces.

EVIDENTLY EXPECT ONE

Gen. Otis Suppressed a Yellow Journal—Transport Morgan City Arrives—The Philippine Commissioners Leave Hong Kong for Manila on Board the Cruiser Baltimore

Manila, Philippine Islands, March 3.—It was unusually quiet along the entire line last night, only a few shots being fired from a rebel field gun near the cemetery.

The enemy are apparently busy preparing their defences, realizing that the Americans will attack them when the expected reinforcements arrive.

It is reported that Aguinaldo will only release the Spanish clerical prisoners on condition that all landed and other property that they own shall be transferred to the rebels; and also that the native priests shall be recognized.

Last night twelve rebels, in two canoes, were discovered paddling out from Paranaque. When the searchlight of the Buffalo was turned on them they used a calcium light signal, arranged with the picket boats. The searchlight was then taken off and the rebels attempted to cross the bay, but a patrol boat overhauled them after a chase, and took them as prisoners to Manila.

Two battalions of the Twentieth Infantry have been assigned for provost guard duty, and a third battalion will join General MacArthur's division.

Yesterday was the hottest day of the season, but all was quiet inside and outside our lines. The majority of the men were kept in the shade.

The United States transport Morgan City has arrived, but the wives of the officers and other women passengers were not allowed to land, the authorities considering the condition ashore to be too unsettled.

The Morgan City at Manila.

Manila, March 3.—The transport Morgan City has arrived here from San Francisco. General Otis refuses to allow the women on board of her most of whom are wives of officers, to land.

The Spanish newspaper Union Iberica has been suppressed for objectionable utterances, among which was the statement that the Filipinos hold over one thousand Americans as prisoners.

Washington, D. C., March 3.—General Otis, in a cable message to the war department, dated Manila, March 2, 2 a. m., reports the arrival of the transport Morgan City. This vessel sailed from San Francisco on January 26, accompanied by the transport Scandia. The Scandia carried the bulk of the Twentieth infantry, forty-one officers and 1,218 enlisted men, and the Morgan City a few officers and the rest of the regiment. The Scandia arrived at Manila on Feb. 23.

In his dispatch General Otis said that two hundred mules carried by the Morgan City arrived in good condition. Not a mule was lost on the voyage.

QUAY EXPRESSES CONFIDENCE.

Conflicting Rumors About Senatorial Fight at Harrisburg.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 3.—Yesterday's ballot of the Pennsylvania legislature in the United States senatorial contest resulted as follows:

Quay 96, Jenks 74, Dalzell 17, Irvin 4, Stewart 7, Tubbs 1, Huff 7, Stone 4, Rice 1, Grow 1, Markle 1, Smith 1, Widener 2, Riter 2; total 218. Necessary to choice 110. No election.

It was expected that there would be important developments in the senatorial deadlock, but when the joint convention assembled the leaders of the various forces engaged announced that there would be no change.

Senator Quay spent the morning at the executive department, where he met many members of the legislature whom he had not seen since the beginning of the contest. He thanked them warmly for their support.

He returned to Washington in the forenoon. He is still confident of reelection and believes that the end is not far away.

Congressman-elect Joseph C. Sibley, who came here in the interest of Senator Quay's candidacy, is seriously ill at the Bolton House, where he is threatened with pneumonia. He is much disappointed over the results of his efforts to break the deadlock and has practically abandoned the effort.

Colonel James M. Guffey, the leader of the state Democracy, is still here, and is satisfied that there will be no break in the Jenks lines. He says that they have stood the pressure and are as firm as a rock. There is considerable gossip about the compromise on Senator C. L. Magee next week.

In the event of a stampede to Quay at any time, it is reported that there will be a counter movement to Magee.

The investigation of the bribery charges began last evening, and the opponents of Senator Quay are counting on the promised disclosures to bring about the long predicted break.

Joseph C. Sibley Very Ill.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 3.—Congressman-elect Joseph C. Sibley of Franklin, who came to Harrisburg on Tuesday last to take part in the senatorial contest, is seriously ill. His physicians say that he is threatened with pneumonia.

Death of Dr. Christian Brinkerhoff.

Hackensack, March 3.—The Rev. Christian Brinkerhoff, said to have been the oldest Baptist minister in this country, died at his home in Bogota yesterday. He was ninety-two years old.

He began to preach when he was nineteen years old and continued in that service up to a few years ago. He had charges in various towns in northern New Jersey and the state of New York.

Gen. Toral in Prison.

Madrid, March 3.—General Toral who surrendered to General Shafter at Santiago, has been arrested and imprisoned, previous to being tried by court martial for that surrender.

I am 28 years old and have been employed in the actuary department of a life insurance company for years. A little more than a year ago I began to have very severe headaches, from which I was not free night or day. My doctor told me that it was from my stomach and the want of exercise; so, besides taking his medicine, I purchased a bicycle to ride for exercise. I never knew then what it was to be in any other way than constipated, my bowels not moving sometimes in three days. My weight was reduced to 117 pounds, for I was slowly starving myself rather than eat a good meal, knowing what the after-effect would be. About five or six weeks ago two friends and myself were eating dinner when my troubles came up as a subject of conversation. One of my friends took a small packet out of his pocket and handed me two Tabules, saying: "Take one after you finish eating and one before you go to bed. Then buy a box to-morrow and you'll be surprised at the results." He was right: I was surprised at the results. I purchased a package of Ripans Tabules the next day. The first package seemed to relieve me so much that I purchased the second, and have been taking them ever since. They have surely made a man of me again, and I only wish that I had a "before and after taking" picture, for it does not seem possible that such a change could have taken place in such a short time. I never tire recommending them to my friends.

BIRTHDAY OF CARL SCHURZ.

The Distinguished German-American is Seventy Years Old.

New York, March 3.—The seventieth anniversary of the birth of Carl Schurz was quietly celebrated at his home yesterday. Congratulatory letters and telegrams were received in great numbers more than three hundred telegrams having arrived at eleven o'clock.

Through the day close friends called to offer their congratulations in person. A cablegram of greeting came from Prince Herbert Bismarck, another from forty of the leading members of the German Reichstag, and similar dispatches were received from various parts of Germany and from important cities all over the United States.

At the complimentary dinner given Mr. Schurz by his friends at Delmonico's last night, Charles Francis Adams presided. Letters were read from, among others, the German ambassador, President Gilman of Johns Hopkins University, President William M. Wilson of Washington and Lee University, President Raymond of Union College, Andrew Carnegie, H. H. Kohlsaat of Chicago, Charles Dudley Warner and Grover Cleveland.

Dr. A. Jacobi responded to the toast, "Young Germany in Storm and Stress Period;" Professor William Sloan to that to "The Champion of the Slave;" General John T. Lockman, "The Soldier in the Civil War;" William H. Fleming, "The Statesman in Reconstruction;" Charles C. Beaman, "The United States Senator;" Herbert Welsh, "The Member of the Cabinet;" Charles J. Bonaparte, "The Civil Service Reformer."

"The Chamber of Commerce of the state of New York sends congratulations and cordial greetings to the Hon. Carl Schurz on this the seventieth anniversary of his natal day, and orders placed upon its records a declaration of the respect and admiration of its members for the long and honorable life he has lived among them and given in such eminent degree to the country of his adoption."

Cunard Line Lowers Rates.

New York, March 3.—The rate war among the fast trans-Atlantic lines, which was prophesied when the White Star line made its unlooked for reduction in saloon rates last Monday, is now waging fiercly.

The American line announced a cut in its first and second cabin rates yesterday, and the Cunard line has now announced a similar reduction.

With the reduction of the minimum price at which saloon tickets can be bought the Cunard line has made several changes in its running "schedule." The "winter season" will now extend from July 1 to April 1, and the "summer season" from April 1 to July 1.

Summer and winter in steamship parlance are simply conventional terms signifying the lively season and the dull season. Heretofore the minimum rate for all steamships of the Cunard line was one hundred dollars for the summer season and seventy-five dollars for the winter season.

The line now announces that hereafter the minimum rates on the Campania and Lucania will be ninety dollars for the summer season and seventy-five dollars for the winter season. For the steamships Umbria and Etruria the minimum rates will be $75 summer and $60 winter.

A New York Milk Trust.

New York, March 3.—And now efforts are making to form a great milk trust. Similar efforts failed last year, but the present promoters of the enterprise say that it is on the verge of successful consummation. The object of the new combine is practically to control the milk trade of the city of New York.

The conditions of the milk trade, the figures as to cost of carrying it on and the magnitude of the work, have all been submitted to one of the largest banking houses located on Broad street and they have under consideration a plan for financing it.

The value of the milk coming into this city last year was about $17,500,000. This represents a total of about 12,400,000 ten-gallon cans, or a daily average of over twenty-five thousand such cans.

It is said tha tthe proposed trust will be satisfied with a third of this trade to start with—that is, the trust will be declared formed when seven thousand cans per diem are controlled—and that options covering almost this omount are already secured.

Railroad Coal Thieves Caught.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 3.—The New York Central officials have been much annoyed recently by thefts of coal from trains passing through the suburbs of the city, the thieves becoming so bold as to grease the rails, compelling the trains to move slowly and at times to stop altogether.

Yesterday a trap fas set. A passenger coach with detectives followed a coal train out. As the coal train approached Broadway the engineer discovered that the rails had been greased, and as soon as he slowed up a score of youngsters flocked on the train and began to throw off coal. Several tons was thrown to the ground before the train could be hauled away.

As the train moved away a gang of men and women appeared as if by magic with bags and baskets and began to pick up the coal.

At this moment the officers jumped from the coach and made for the thieves. Ten women and seven men were captured. Two of the women had small babies with them and they were released. The remaining prisoners were sent to the station house.

Giving Up Central Vermont Tracks

New Haven, Conn., March 3.—The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company has notified the Central Vermont Railroad Company that on April 1 the New Haven Company will cease the use of the Central Vermont tracks on the west side of the Thames river; the use of the Union station at Norwich, and the use of the wharf property in New London. This is the result of the coming early completion of the Groton extension of the New Haven road.

It is also announced that a New York anl Norwich, and a New York and Worcester, Mass. express train service will probably grow out of the new plans.

The new scheme will mean a saving to the New Haven road of about $50,000 annually.

FIGHT FOR THE CANAL

A Long Joint Conference Over the Nicaragua Amendment.

THE PROMOTION OF HOBSON

Buffalo Gets Its Appropriation for Exposition and Bailey of Texas Endorses It. Senate Conferees Will, It Was Believed, Force the House to Accept a Compromise.

Washington, D. C., March 3.—The House and the Senate are making such rapid progress in the passage of bills that for the first time in a number of years Congress will not be obliged to sit all night before the final adjournment.

The members are certain that all business can be closed up early Friday evening, so that an adjournment can be had early Saturday morning without the rush usual on such occasions.

The president will not, therefore, when he comes to the Capitol on Saturday morning, be obliged to sign bills up to the last moment.

The fate of the Nicaragua canal bill is in the hands of six men representing the two branches of Cingress. For the Senate they are Messrs. Frye, Elkins and White, three enthusiastic friends of the proposition to build the canal, an amendment for the building of which the Senate added to the river and harbor appropriation bill.

The House is represented in this conference committee by Messrs. Burton, Reeves and Catchings. Had the regular course of procedure been followed Mr. Cooper of Wisconsin would have been in the place of Mr. Reeves, as he is the second member of the committee on rivers and harbors, and by precedent entitled to be named as a conferee with the chairman. He is an ardent advocate of the Hepburn proposition, now a part of the bill, but Speaker Reed apparently thought that the House was entitled to the services of three opponents of the measure, under existing conditions, to meet the Senate managers, who are a unit in its favor.

There are many items for river and harbor work proper in the bill over which the conferees will have a struggle before reaching the canal amendment, and it may be that that will not come up for serious consideration before late to-day. A compromise on the New York harbor sea channel provision is probable, but just what shape it will take cannot yet be learned.

Unless the compromise suggested is accepted by the Senate conferees, an agreement on the canal proposition is not likely to be reached. That compromise will, in effect, commit the government to the construction of the canal, but makes no appropriation until sufficient data have been secured upon which to determine the best route and the cost of the proposed water way with a provision acknowledging the canal to be a continuing work, so that no point may be made against appropriations of money in the future on that ground.

Chairman Burton of the House committee on rivers and harbors, one of the conferees, said before going into conference:

"I am unalterably opposed to the amendment, even if the entire bill is lost."

Mr. Catchings, another of the conferees, said: "I disapprove placing the canal amendment on the river and harbor bill."

The House members, it was said, had yielded generally on the important additions made to the bill in the Senate, and on adjournment the Senate conferees expressed the belief that they would also yield on a compromise proposition taking care of the Nicaragua canal.

"They imagine they are very stiff," said one of the Senate conferees, "but we see evidences of yielding. The canal bill will be cared for, or the whole bill must fail. That fact was reported to the speaker and floor leaders by the members to-day who had 'important bills' to look after."

House Has the Naval Bill.

Washington, D. C., March 3.—The House has passed the Senate bill authorizing and directing the secretary of the treasury to donate one set of life saving apparatus used by the United States service to the Imperial Japanese Society for the Preservation of Life from Shipwreck.

The naval appropriation bill as it passed the Senate was ordered to be printed and to lie on the speaker's table for the present.

Mr. Payne, Republican of New York, moved to pass, under suspension of the rules, the bill appropriating $500,000 to aid the Pan American exposition at Buffalo in 1901.

The bill was advocated by Mr. Alexander, who explained the purposes and scope of the proposed exposition. Assurances had been received, he said, from the principal countries of North, South and Central America that they would make creditable and appropriate exhibitions. The bill gave nothing to the exposition, he said. It only provided means by which the government might make an exhibition as other countries intended to do, and as it had been authorized to do at expositions in other cities.

The Buffalo exposition bill was opposed by Messrs. Maddox, Democrat of Georgia, and Sims and Cox, Democrats of Tennessee. Maddox was asked if he could conceive of anything more conducive to the industrial progress and individual prosperity of the country than these expositions in the several cities.

"I can," he answered.

Mahany—Name one.

Maddox—Reduce the tariff. (Democratic applause.)

Messrs. Sulzer, Democrat of New York, Richardson, Democrat of Texas, and Baily, Democrat of Texas, supported the bill.

The latter said that he had opposed all similar bills for the eight years he had been in the House, and succeeded in defeating none of them. The men in charge of the bill had agreed, he said, to amend it by striking out what he deemed to be a vicious principle, namely, the declaration of the power of the United States to authorize the holding of such an exposition in a sovereign state. On that being done he had promised to vote for the appropriation to permit the government to make an exhibit. The bill was passed 141 to 16.

To Promote Hobson.

Washington, D. C., March 3.—The president has nominated Assistant Naval Constructor Richmond P. Hobson to be advanced ten numbers from No. 1 of the list of assistant naval constructors to be No. 8 on list of naval constructors for extraordinary heroism.

To Stop Rate Cutting.

Washington, D. C., March 3.—The interstate commerce commission is making agreements with the trunk lines to refrain from cutting rates. It is doing the work the joint traffic association was formed to do.

It is reported, upon what seems to be excellent authority, that the presidents and managers of the roads between the sea coast and Buffalo and Pittsburg and between these points and Chicago have already signed such agreements.

THE POPE'S CONDITION.

Satisfactory Report of the Vatican Physicians.

Rome, March 3.—The pope passed a quiet night, and his fever is almost entirely gone. The doctors announce that they will be obliged to wait two days before they will be able to prophesy the patient's complete recovery.

His holiness fell asleep about midnight, after partaking of some light soup and a small quantity of brandy.

Another account of the pope's condition says that his holiness slept from ten o'clock Wednesday evening until four o'clock yesterday morning, dozing thereafter until daybreak. His feverish state has been followed by great depression, owing to his prostration. Some anxiety is caused by the rapid fall of his temperature.

The incision made by the operation is in the form of a cross, six inches each way, and is very painful. This account is obtained from an outside source.

The Messaggero says that although the pope's illness does not now present any phases of gravity, Cardinal Ledochowski, the senior cardinal priest, visited Cardinal Oreglia, the Cardinal Camerlengo and the Cardinal Mertel, the senior cardinal deacon, in conjunction with whom Cardinal Ledochowski, in accordance with the apostollic constitution, would be called upon to assume the spiritual government of the church in the event of the death of the pope.

Following is the official bulletin issued yesterday:

"The pope passed a quiet night, not experiencing any pain in consequence of the operation. He enjoyed his usual amount of sleep and has taken nutrition several times. His respiration and circulation are regular. The seat of the operation performed on Wednesday has been redressed. His temperature is 37.5 degrees, C., pulsation 72, and respiration 22.'"

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION.

Boston, Mass., March 3.—Secretary John Willis Baer of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, announces the details of the programme for this year's International Endeavor convention, to be held at Detroit July 6 to 10.

Wednesday, July 5, will be given up to business meetings and the opening session in the evening, at which the usual words of welcome will be spoken, followed by a reception.

Thursday morning President Clark's annual address, the general secretary's annual report and the sermons will be presented.

Denominational rallies, with many new features, will be held Thursday afternoon in the churches, and at night there will be two great tent gatherings. Friday morning's tent meetings will be followed by two gerat schools of methods in the tents, instead of the usual committee conference in the churches.

On Saturday afternoon a grand outing to Belle Isle has been planned, and Saturday evening will bring the old-time reunion by states.

On Sunday, sermons, "Sabbath oObservance" services, evangelistic meetings for men and women and consecration meetings will be held.

Monday evening, after meetings in tents in the morning and junior rallies in the afternoon, there will be at least two great farewell meetings.

A New Brass Combination

New Haven, Conn., March 3.—The officers of the new brass combination organized at Waterbury, Conn., with C. H. Brooker of Ansonia, a director of the New Haven Railroad Company, as president.

The combination includes already the Coe Brass Company of Torrington, the Scoville Manufacturing Company, Benedict & Burnham, Holmes, Booth & Haydens, Waterbury Brass Company, and the Matthew & Willard Company, all of Waterbury.

Besides these there are presumptively included some of the large brass and copper companies of the lower Naugatuck valley. The combination is organized under a Connecticut charter, with a capital of five hundred thousand dollars, but power to increase to twenty million dollars for the purpose of making and selling all kinds of brass and copper goods.

The charter was granted to the new combine in 1892 for four years and extended afterwards to 1899.

Senator Vanderbilt Acquitted.

Trenton, N. J., March 3.—Ex-State Senator George O. Vanderbilt of this county was acquitted in the Mercer court yesterday of the charge of perjury preferred against him in connection with the making of what, in law, is known as an affidavit of merits. The jury was out only about five minutes.

Wednesday afternoon, while the trial was pending, Cashier Terhune of the First National Bank of Long Branch admitted that the charge of perjury was made against Vanderbilt by the bank officials, with the idea of forcing a settlement of the note of Vanderbilt for $2,500, which the bank had protested.

It was in connection with proceedings for a judgment on the note that Vanderbilt made the affidavit of merit, claiming that he had a good defence to the suit.

Hot After Roger.

The newspaper correspondents in the Legislature at Trenton always select one member of the Assembly to use as a mark for their sarcasm and humor, and this year the mantle of newspaper glory has fallen upon the shoulders of Hon. Roger F. Murray, of Plainfield. Under the caption "Mr. Murray a Trifle Gay," the Trenton Times says:

The riot act has been read to little Roger Murray, the eloquent member from Union county. Mr Murray is a serious little auburn haired young man from Plainfield, where he trades lots for houses and stores for mansions. He is mentally energetic, frequently talking without thinking. At times he is so gloriously absorbed with agitations of his own voice that he disregards all the rules of the manual, is forgetful of the fact that his colleagues have selected a leader, and that the house has a speaker. In other words, Mr. Murray thinks he is the whole Legislature and the rest are only the "ensemble." The Republican caucus sat on Mr. Murray and told him he must be more respectful to the speaker and more considerate to the leader. It is stated that the speaker is greatly displeased by what is called "Roger Murray's bucking against the chair." "He is the only man," said the speaker, "that treats the chair with discourtesy." It will be remembered that Mr. Murray wanted to be speaker himself, and he has never forgiven Watkins for clinging to the gavel for the second term.

The only way that Plainfield can secure cheaper telephone charges is either through a voluntary reduction by the company now operating here or through a legislative enactment such as Assemblyman Murray has introduced in the Legislature. Reduction by competition is practically out of the question. Within a year the wires of the company now doing business here have been put in undrground conduits, which are owned and controlled by them. It is certain that they would not allow wires of a rival corporation to be put in those conduits, nor is it likely that the Common Council would grant the right to another company to tear up the streets to establish a similar service. And as for stringing wires on poles in the business section of the city again that would never be tolerated.

A female Sam Jones is stirring the people out in Missouri. In a sermon recently she said: "There is a man in this house who is untrue to his wife! I am going to throw this hymn book at him." She raised the book as if she was going to throw it, and every man in the house ducked his head but one to avoid the book. Then she blistered the dodgers and landed the one true man. It was afterward learned that he was deaf and dumb

SIR GEORGE, A CHAMPION POINTER.

One of the attractions at this year's Westminster Kennel Club show in Madison Square Garden, New York, was the fine collection of pointers. Sir George, here pictured, is a champion pointer belonging to W. Gould Brokaw, of New York. Sportsmen differ in their estimates of the relative value of setters and pointers, and it is probable the two breeds are about equal in their field work.

Though the New York Press cannot be considered unfaithful in its support of Republicans, the following from its Jersey editorial column possesses particular significance:

Fifty per cent. of the legislators will adjourn their public careers with the Legislature. The mystery has ever been apparent during the past two months het these fellows ever were chosen to make laws for the government of an intelligent people.

The Mayor of Macon, Ga., is striving to supply every family in his jurisdiction with at least one newspaper each day. He believes that this is in the interest of law and order and wisdom and sobriety in the community. If Macon takes kindly to the Mayor's idea it ought soon to rank as one of the most intelligent cities of the country.

Rochester is one of the cities that is actively engaged in discussing municipal ownership of electric lighting facilities. Plainfield does not seem to get nearer municipal ownership of anything than a big tax rate.

Statistics show that a falling off in the oyster industry in New Jersey. It is probably not well known that less than a decade ago New Jersey's oyster product exceeded in value that of its wheat.

The measure legislating against trading stamps, which has appeared in the Legislature, is doomed to defeat the same as the one last year met fate by the veto power of Governor Voorhees.

When physicians find time to fill Councilmanic positions to the exclusion of representatives of all other vocations, as is the case in Vineland, the town must be a healthy spot.

The Trenton True American seems to delight in poking fun at Assemblyman Roger F. Murray. The Plainfield statesman does not seem to deplore the fact, however.

No one but the man who has tried it could have written that the hardest thing in the world is to endeavor to be brilliant to order.

And now the borough politicians wait with breathless anxiety for the outcome of the Republican primary tomorrow night.

A Chicago man tersely observes that if you can't have what you like try to like what you have. That is good philosophy.

These are the days when the coal merchant commences to sigh and wonder if winter is really at and end.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Senator Reed took a strong stand against the establishment of a commission to revise the laws relating to cities, if the rural counties have to pay a portion of the expense. He says, truly, that the township laws were revised without any expense to the people, and now if the cities cannot get their laws revised in the same way, let them pay for it out of their own pockets. Senator Reed looks out for the pockets of his constituents.—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

"Sam" Hedden, a well-known resident of Duer street, has in his possession a curious piece of money, which was found among other things by his wife who happened to be looking over some of her husband's old clothes yesterday. The piece is evidently of rubber and was in use before the Civil War. On one side are the words "Good for 4 cents," and on the other side is to be found this, "Redeemable in Currency," also the name of "S. H. Scripture," the man who issued this style of money. The inscription on the back of the rubber is surrounded with a large letter "S." Mrs. Hedden found this money, together with some Canadian coins, in a pair of old trousers that she was about to cut up, and before cutting the cloth she decided to look through the pockets. The value of the money is not known.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

The Miles Ideal Stock Company at Music Hall have proved themselves most competent and entertaining, and certainly merit the high praise accorded their efforts. A fine audience, considering the storm, attended the performance of 'Our Irish-American Cousin" last night, in which Mr. Miles and his very efficient support appeared to splendid advantage. Tonight the company present one of their best plays, the beautiful pastoral comedy drama, entitled "The Prodigal's Return," with new features and specialties. For the special benefit of ladies and children, and by particular request, the great naval play, entitled "An American Hero," will be presented at the matinee tomorrow, and tomorrow night, the last appearance of the company, a new play full of great interest, written by Edmund B Price, the noted lawyer, of New York, entitled "New Mexico," will be given with full strength of the company and new features and specialities.

With two handsome and spacious theatres in the biggest city in the country and a prosperous playhouse in Albany, Mr. Proctor possesses peculiar facilities for the procurement of the finest talent and the biggest stars in the realm of vaudeville. His New York city theatres are admirably adapted to the requirements of the continuous performance. The location of the Twenty-third Street theatre could not be bettered for the patrons of the all day and night show. It is in the centre of the dry goods shopping district, just west of Sixth avenue, and only a stone's throw from Broadway. The Palace, at Fifty-eighth street and Third avenue, is but a crow's flight from the Grand Central depot. The programmes at both houses always include sixteen acts, headed by a famous dramatic star, and always includes acts especially engaged for the entertainment of the ladies and children.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard street, Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will everyone who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's Drug store; every bottle guaranteed.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25c.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, March 3—For some time a number of the boys in the village have been annoying Mrs. Annie Raymond and family by posting notices on the door, throwing stones at the house, etc., and last evening went so far as to throw a large stone through one of the windows, which narrowly missed striking one of the family. Constable Walpole was sent for, but as the boys had departed no arrests were made. It will be a charge of malicious mischief against them if caught.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongued coated, pain continually in the back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts., guaranteed, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store.

BRIAR ROOT PIPES.

AMERICA HAS LEARNED A THING OR TWO ABOUT MAKING THEM.

A Great Number of Them Are Imported Here From France and England But, the Greater Number Are Now Made by American Manufacturers.

Not so long ago it would have been rank heresy for the smoker of a pipe to be perfectly satisfied with anything in the shape of a "briar root" that did not come from the other side of the Atlantic, but the excellence of the American briar, as it is now made, is beyond question, and it is now holding its own against the imported product. This is greatly due to improvements in wood turning machinery, by means of which American manufacturers are now making the greater part of the pipes used, and turning them out at a price which ten years ago would have seemed impossible. The greater number of pipes imported here formerly came from France, but a good many were supplied by England. The wood from which they are manufactured here is still imported from Europe.

The best briar is French, but a good briar is produced in England and in some parts of Germany. The wood comes over in rough blocks, free of duty, packed in bags.

The bags hold from 200 to 300 blocks each, and the importation runs up to about 6,000 bags yearly. When the blocks arrive they are roughly shaped. To shape the bowl and cut away the superfluous wood they are put into the "frazing" machine. Another appliance reduces the stems and hollows out the bowl, after which it assumes some semblance of what it is intended for. It is then carefully sand papered and pumicestoned, until it is brought to the proper size. The last operation before the pipe receives its stem and trimmings is the drilling of the airhole.

The stems are made of either celluloid, bone, hard rubber or amber. Amber is costly, and is rarely attached to the cheaper grades of pipes. The demand is steadily increasing, and the American pipes are supplanting those of Europe in this market. Every smoker nowadays prefers a briar to a clay and some prefer it to the meerschaum. Much of the present activity in this demand is said to be due to the financial depression of the last few years, which drove many people who had before then smoked nothing but cigars to the much more economical pipe. Another reason given by the proprietors of cigar stores is that the national prejudice against the pipe is gradually giving way to the influence of European fashion, and many of them prophesy that before many years the sight of an Englishman walking down Broadway smoking his briar root will excite no comment, since the custom of outdoor pipe smoking is already being treated with a surprising tolerance by Americans themselves.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Chinese Notion.

The Chinese, so far as can be learned from history, are the oldest nation on the earth. They are, to us of extreme modern ideas, a strange people, and some of their ways and fancies are not to be explained. The most painstaking scholars and antiquarians appear to have failed, in many particulars, to discover the motives that actuate the individuals of this prehistoric race. Yet, doubtless, the ceremonies that we see them going through in mining camps on the Pacific coast are all to them as full of meaning as the rites of modern religion are to the believers in Christianity. The Chinese, in some respects, are not unlike the army of the orthodox in the church militant, who believe in a personal life of the present human frame in the world beyond. The Chinese custom of decapitating their enemies slain in war is explained by the statement that they believe that the appearance of a person in the spirit world without a head is prima facie evidence of having committed some crime, and punishment is awarded accordingly. Hence, the horrible mutilation which took place on the evacuation of Shanghai by the Taipings, when the imperial officers gave orders for the decapitation of every rebel body, and even the coffins containing the remains of prominent rebel leaders were broken open and dishonored to insure their punishment hereafter. Hence, also the anxiety displayed by the friends of officers who lost their heads during the rebellion to recover them and stitch them on to the bodies again, as much as one hundred and thirty-three pounds having been paid by the officers of the imperial army for the head of a friend.

Little Silk Hat Irons.

The man who has looked upon the curling iron in the hands of his fair friends with disdain will do well to try and let them forget his scorn, for there is a handy little iron now for which he will find use himself. This is a minute silk hat iron which conforms to the shape of the various parts of his latest and most fashionable tile. Like the curling iron, it, too, has a handle by which it is held over the gas jet to be heated before being passed over the silk surface of the hat. For sudden emergencies this iron, which can be used at home in a very few minutes, will be found a very handy arrangement, and save much vexation in waiting for the hat man to perform an operation which should take but a few minutes.

Justice—"Have you any children, Mrs. Murphy?"

Mrs. Murphy—"Yis, I have two livin' an' wan married."

GOT EVEN.

Didn't Like to Be Awakened from His Nap, and Showed the Trait.

A wealthy old bachelor who is too miserly to keep servants of any description was indulging in an afternoon nap a few Sundays ago, when a thundering "rat-tat" at his street door aroused him. Being the only occupant of the house, he hurried down two flights of stairs as fast as the decrepitude of age would allow and threw open the street door, only to be assailed by the cry: "Muffins! Want any muffins, sir?"

For a few moments the irascible old gentleman stood staring at his interrogator, positively too overcome with rage to speak; but on the question being repeated he found his voice.

"No, confound your impudence! I don't want muffins; and just get off my doorstep before I kick you off. Disturbing respectable citizens on a Sunday afternoon! Do you hear me? I don't want any muffins?"

The purveyor of Sabbath luxuries, after a last futile attempt to do business walked sadly away, while the other gazed after him, immersed in thought. Suddenly, when the muffin man had got some two or three hundred yards down the hilly road, a brilliant inspiration struck the old gentleman, and, with a frantic "Hi!" and a wave of the hand, he invited the man to return.

Then, as the muffin man, perspiring, but happy in the thought of disposing of some of his wares, once more smilingly stood before him, the old gentleman, tapping him solemnly on the chest, uttered the impressive words, "Nor next Sunday!" and triumphantly marched indoors.—London Weekly Telegraph.

Husbands and Other Men.

Mrs. Grout—"Husbands are so different from other men!"

Mrs. Snapper—"I know it. I said to John last evening, 'How the wind blows!' and he grunted and said, 'Did you ever know the wind to do anything else?'"

Mrs. Grout—"That's just it. Before you were married to him he probably would have had no end of nice things to say in reply."—Boston Transcript.

Back to Nature.

I would flee from the city's rule and law—from its fashions and forms cut loose—and go where the strawberry grows on its straw and the gooseberry grows on its goose; where the catnip tree is climbed by the cat and she clutches for her prey—the guileless and unsuspecting rat on the rattan bush at play; I will catch with ease the saffron cow and the cowlet in their glee, as they leap in joy from bough to bough on the top of a cowslip tree; and list while the partridge drums his drum and the woodchuck chucks his wood, and the dog devours the dogwood plum in the primitive solitude. Oh, let me drink from the moss-grown pump that was hewn from the pumpkin tree! Eat mush and milk from a rural stump, from folly and fashions free—new-gathered mush from the mushroom vine, and milk from the milk-weed sweet. And then to the white-washed dairy I'll turn, where the dairy-maid hastening hies, her ruddy and golden red butter to churn from the milk of her butterflies; and I'll rise at morn with the earliest bird, to the fragrant farmyard pass, and watch while the farmer turns his herd of grasshoppers out to grass.

Willing to Oblige.

An unkept-looking fellow stopped at a suburban residence and asked for employment. The lady of the house, who at the moment was superintending the removal of some plants, emerged from the green house and asked him if he was a gardener.

"I ain't had much experience," was the reply.

"Well, can you plant these shrubs?"

"I shouldn't like to risk spoiling them, ma'am."

"Well, what can you do?"

"Well, ma'am," he replied meditatively, "if you'll give me one of your husband's cigars I'll sit in the greenhouse and smoke out the insects that's eating up the leaves of them rose bushes."

A Wonder.

"When that man came to this town," said Rivers, "he hadn't a rag on his back. Look at him now."

Brooks walked to the window, looked in the direction indicated, and saw a swarthy son of Italy walking down the street, bending beneath the weight of a sack of rags three or four times his size, strapped to his back.

The historian regrets to have to record the fact that this led to another quarrel between the two old friends—Chicago Tribune.

Heard in the Kitchen.

The tea kettle seems to be quite a singer," said the nutmeg grater. "It beats me, my voice is rough."

"Me to," replied the rolling pin; "I can't get beyond dough."—New York Evening Sun.

SCHOOLBOYS HANDICAPED.

In These Piping Days of Peace They Have to be Up to Date.

"My boy," said Mr. Blykins severely, "I am disappointed. Very much disappointed."

His son ventured no comment, but the expression of his face denoted sympathy.

"Here you are, away along in your teens, and you haven't gotten through either the Iliad or the Aeneid. Your ignorance of the Latin and Greek classics is deplorable."

"I've studied them all I could," was the answer.

"No doubt; no doubt. But it's the way of the present generation. When I was a boy we could parse and construe Latin verse by the time we were fifteen years of age. And I was reading Euripides before I was seventeen. The people of a century ago or so were more learned. They could talk in Latin the same as we talk English, and they all had the classics at their tongue's end."

"I know it," said the boy sadly. "I've read about 'em. But you ought not to overlook the fact that those people had a great advantage over us. All they had to learn was what had happened up to their time, and then they had nothing to do except study up their Greek and Latin. They didn't have to learn the Declaration of Independence by heart and study the Constitution of the United States. They weren't obliged to find out all about George Washington and Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson and Daniel Webster and all the rest of the real people. They weren't expected to keep track of what Aguinaldo is going to do next, and whether we ought to take the Philippines and what players the baseball club has bought or sold. They had everything all laid out for them, and they didn't have to study time tables nor figure on how to get off an electric car in a hurry. I'm willing to admit that we aren't as smart as the boys were a century or two ago; but I can't help thinking there are extenuating circumstances." — Washington Star.

They All Complied

It is related that the elder Sothern, who was an intensely humorous man and especially fond of a practical joke, once at a country inn saw a notice that a convention of clergymen was to meet there the next day. Each clergyman upon arrival received a note, signed with the landlord's name, requesting him to say grace at dinner, the signal to be a bell rung in the office. Sothern had noticed that the landlord sounded a bell every day as the guests seated themselves for dinner. Everything went off to Sothern's complete satisfaction. The bell rang and up rose every clergyman and began grace, then stopped, looking askance at each other. Some began again, some sat down and got up again. The scene for some minutes was one of confused bobbing up and down, with mutterings. The landlord stared in astonishment and Sothern put on a look of polite anxiety and surprise. He afterward expressed sympathy with the landlord in his anger, but left the inn that day.

Struck it Rich.

The Macon Telegraph tells how "Sam," the colored doorkeeper at the executive chamber at Atlanta, has been "putting money in his purse." It appears that Governor Chandler had been greatly worried by the persistence of place hunters and men who wanted to see him "for a minute only." So he instructed Sam to keep a close outlook and fire from the waiting-room those he deemed undesirable visitors. But Sam, who had an eye to business, adopted another plan. From the well-dressed and imposing looking gentlemen he exacted an admission fee of fifty cents to "see" the Governor, whilst the less pretentious visitors gained an audience with his excellency for the paltry sum of twenty-five cents. The Governor is a most amiable gentleman, but he is said to have been indignant when he learned of Sam's novel method of enriching himself.

Why He Limped.

A soldier boy of the Fighting Thirteenth, on his return to Buffalo, walked with an engaging limp, which excited the curiosity and sympathy of the patriotic women who surrounded him at the railway station.

"Was it done by a dreadful Mauser bullet?" asked one.

"Will you be crippled for life?" queried another.

"I am sure he was shot while carrying a wounded comrade off the field!" gushed a third.

The crippled veteran, as modest as he was brave, was visibly embarrassed by these tributes, and as soon as he could master his emotion he remarked quite simply:

"Ah, g'wan! 'Taint nawthin' but a boil on me knee!"—Buffalo Express.

Artist—No, nothing but the horse.

Uncle Ephraim—Well, you can't sell it anywher's around here fur no hundred dollars. Everybody knows I've offered the hoss himself, time an' agin, fur $15, an' take it out in truck.—Chicago Tribune.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 5, "The Gates of Zion"—Text, Ps. lxxxvii, 1-7; c, 1-5.

Zion was the name of the citadel of Jerusalem taken by David from the Jebusites. It was a high hill originally, much like the Acropolis at Athens, the citadel at Quebec or at Edinburgh. It was made immensely strong by walls and battlements and towers. Here David brought the ark of the covenant and placed it in a tent prepared for it. Priests performed service, and it became the central sanctuary of the new national life, the former sanctuary at Shiloh being abandoned, and the brazen altar of sacrifice located at Gibeon.

When the temple was built by Solomon on Moriah, it was reckoned as belonging to Zion, and the fortifications of the two were made the common defense of the whole city. Zion was the religious name of the city as Jerusalem was its secular title. It was the special center of Jehovah worship, the distinctive and peculiar religion of Israel.

The term Zion means sunny or dry, perhaps in allusion to the natural character of the cragged height. It became the synonym of safety and happiness. As the citadel was the military defense of Israel's capital city and the abode of their great King David, so was Zion the abode of their great God and the hiding place from all evil powers. From thence God's law was given, and here He was to be praised. Because of this worship special regard for the place and for those coming there to offer worship is in the Psalms attributed to God—"He loved the gates of Zion."

The service of this sanctuary was far different from that found in the holy places of the surrounding nations. As their deities were the powers of nature or the evil forces of the world, so their worship was sensual, often vile and frequently cruel. They sought to propitiate fierce and vengeful gods or to indulge bodily appetites. The Jehovah of Zion was a God of justice, purity, holiness and mercy. Blood of beasts was offered instead of human life. The great festivals were feasting times. Songs of praise and thankfulness were part of the ritual. Cleanliness of body was everywhere to be observed, and this was to be a symbol and incentive to purity of desires and action. Goodness and kindness were to rule all actions.

The name Zion came to be applied to the people of Jerusalem and to the city as a whole. In the New Testament it is not often used, but in Revelation the term New Jerusalem is found, signifying the future abode of the people of God.

The church of Jesus Christ is often spoken of as Zion, and there is much reason for such use of the name.

Gates of Pearl.

The bronze gates of the capitol at Washington are of great value and of wonderful beauty, those of the Baptistry in Florence, Italy, are even greater works of art; but John describes the portals of the New Jerusalem as 12 in number and each door made of a single pearl. It is well to think of the gates which open on earth into the paradise of God's presence.

The gate of song is one of exquisite beauty. How many souls have passed by this door into the mystic grace of the Spirit and stood rapt in the very presence of the Master!

The gate of prayer is ever open. Night and day the redeemed of God pass in through it and find peace. Strong are the towers and firm the foundations around this entrance.

The gate of meditation is not so much used as the other two, but is full of quietness and wondrous visions of the celestial city are had by those who stand within its open doors. Vistas of unutterable glory and thrilling delight have made glad the souls of pilgrims since the days of Abel and Moses and Paul.

The gate of the scroll, where one sees God's word, the gate of the helping hand, where one learns the blessed helpfulness to others, and many another opening pierce the walls of the city of God and give entrance to its pleasures. "Enter His gates with joy."

The Unseen Hand.

In all times of prosperity the prophets of Israel declared that the blessings came from Jehovah. In times of disaster they found the cause to be the displeasure of God at the disobedience of the people. One may look at the law which governs events and close his eyes to all behind the law or one may take the Scriptural position and regard both the law and the lawgiver. In the recent events of our national history it is easy to say all has come about in a perfectly natural manner and is only what was to have been expected, but it is equally true and much wiser to discover the ruling hand of God working out the problem of human history. Why things happen is a deeper question than how they happen. Men may think they rule, but it is certain that God overrules.

Daughter of Zion.

Daughter of Zion, awake from thy sadness!
Awake, for thy foes shall oppress thee no more!
Bright o'er thy hills dawns the day star of brightness.
Arise, for the night of thy sorrow is o'er!

Strong were thy foes, but the arm that subdued them
And scattered their legions was mightier far.
They fled like the chaff from the scourge that pursued them.
Vain were their steeds and their chariots of war.

Daughter of Zion, the power that hath saved thee
Extolled with the harp and the timbrel should be!
Shout, for the foe is destroyed that enslaved thee!
The oppressor is vanquished, and Zion is free!

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 5—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The gates of Zion.—Ps. lxxxvii, 1-7; c, 1-5.

The striking characteristics of both these psalms is the absence of exclusiveness from them. The Jewish church as well as the Jewish nation was restricted and exclusive. It was not a missionary church. It did no missionary work. It looked upon the other nations of the world as enemies of God, who were to be overcome and destroyed by Jehovah. But in these psalms a different spirit prevails. There are no restrictions, no exclusiveness. In the one the nations of the world are pictured as voluntarily and submissively coming to Zion, and in the other the whole earth is called upon to glorify God and to serve God as the common creator and father of man. These psalms are Messianic, and their prophecies have been and are being fulfilled.

The gates of Zion, because of their prominence, stand for Zion itself, and Zion, the holy hill of Jerusalem, for the church of God and now the church of Christ.

1. The love of God for Christ's church is here emphasized. "The Lord loveth the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob." He loves it not only above the dwellings of the heathen nations, but the other dwellings of Israel. God's love for His church is constantly recognized in the Scriptures. The love of Christ for the church is also emphasized in His word. The regard of God and of Christ for the church needs to be made emphatic today. The world at one time deified the church. It exalted it above and beyond its true character. Today it tends to the opposite extreme. The tendency is to belittle the church. Many have the idea that God can be worshiped and Christ can be served equally well while the church is ignored. God's love for the church shows this to be impossible. We cannot ignore and neglect that which God loves without offending him. If the church is worthy of God's best love, it is worthy of our best love and service.

2. The worldwide character of the church is here maintained. Heathen nations come to Zion and find in her a new birth and a new life. Christ's church is a worldwide church. It has a place within its doors for Jew and gentile, Greek and barbarian, wise and unwise, bond and free. Its cords are to be lengthened until the whole earth is inclosed. It is our business to assist in the glorious work, and it is not to be abated until the whole earth is filled with the glory of the Lord.

3. The importance, character and cause of worshiping God in His house are suggested. We are commanded to "enter His gates with thanksgiving," to worship Him cheerfully and gladly for His goodness, His mercy and His truth. Christ's church should be the pride and joy of our lives. For Christ's sake, for the church's own sake and for our own good we should be faithful to the church and do our best to extend it throughout the world.

Bible Readings.—Ps. lxvi, 1-15; lxxxiv, 1-12; cxvi, 17-19; cxxii, 1-9; cxxxv, 1-5; cxxxvii, 1-6; Math. xiii, 16-20; Acts ii, 42-47; xx, 28; Eph. v, 25, 29; Heb. x, 23-25.

Try to Find Out.

All ought to try to find out what they were made for. Every one has a place and purpose in God's plan. That purpose should be understood and fulfilled as far as possible. Every saved man is saved for some specific service besides his own happiness. God made no man simply for His own happiness, and He saves no man that he alone may be happy in heaven. He had a nobler end in both cases than the gratification of a selfish spirit. There is some service for every one in God's vineyard. Idlers are not wanted. Let us find what God wants us to do, and do it. Let us do it in earnest, and do it well. Then God will say, "Well done, good and faithful servant." Oh, how glad that will make us.—Christian Instructor.

Meekness.

Meekness is love at school. Love at the Saviour's feet. It is a Christian lowlihood. It is the disciple learning to know himself, learning to fear and distrust and abhor himself. It is the disciple practicing the sweet but self satisfying lesson of putting all on the Lord Jesus Christ. It is the disciple learning the defects of his own character. It is the disciple praying and watching for the mellowing of his temper and the amelioration of his character. It is the living Christian at the Saviour's feet learning of Him who is meek and lowly and finding rest for his soul.—New York Observer.

The Luxury of Giving.

Oh, the luxury, the thrilling, wondrous, unspeakable luxury of giving! If the church would do that, she would have millions—millions! Who is to begin it? You! Do you say, "No, do not trouble me about fifths and tenths and twentieths." Do not run off on some arithmetical issue, but when thou givest enter thy closet, and when thou hast shut the door give to thy Saviour in secret.—Rev. Dr. Joseph Parker.

THE SUNDAY LESSON.

INTERNATIONAL SERIES, WITH COMMENTARY BY DR. STEARNS.

Golden Text—If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed.—John viii: 36. March 5.

12. "Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, I am the light of the world. He that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." By reading the first verse of this chapter with the last one of the previous chapter we see something of the homelessness of our Lord many a time. While all go to their own homes He goes to the Mount of Olives, probably to Gethsemane, for He oftentimes resorted thither with His disciples (chapter xviii, 2). Early in the morning He was again in the temple and teaching the people. Now the self righteous Pharisees bring to Him a woman, whom they say was taken while committing sin, hoping that He will condemn her or proving Him to see what He will do, but He, by writing on the ground, would tell them where their names were written because they had forsaken God (Jer. xvii, 13).

31. "Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on Him, If ye continue in My word, then are ye My disciples indeed." The evidence of true discipleship is continuance, patient continuance in well doing (Rom. ii, 7). He is able to keep us from falling and to present us faultless, and He who hath begun a good work in us will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ. No power can take us out of His hand, but if we are truly there, truly His, there will be the fruit of righteousness manifest in our lives, there will be outward evidence of the life within. The light will shine unless it is only a painted light (Jude xx, 21; Phil. i, 3; John x, 27, 28). God will work in us those things that are pleasing in His sight (Heb. xiii, 20, 21). There are those who have a name to live, but are dead (Rev. iii, 1). There may be so little life that it is scarcely manifest, but where there is abundance of life (John x, 10) it cannot be hidden any more than you can keep a bright, healthy child still.

32. "And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." Then shall we know if we follow on to know the Lord (Hos. vi, 3). By nature we are in bondage to sin, the world, the flesh and the devil, and only He who is the Truth can set us free, but He is able and as willing as He is able. He does it by His word, by which we are not only born again (Jas. i, 18; I Pet. i, 23), but by the same word we are sanctified, cleansed, built up (John xvii, 17; Eph. v, 26; Acts xx, 32). From Gen. i, 1-4, where the Spirit moved and God spake and light came, all that is accomplished is done by the Spirit of God and the Word of God. From the new birth, when we began to live until we shall be made like Him, all is wrought by the Spirit and the Word. Many a Christian is in bondage to some besetting sin or weight, and only the Word of God can set him free, even as it is written, Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? By taking heed there to according to the word (Ps. cxix, 9, 11).

33. "They answered Him, We be Abraham's seed and were never in bondage to any man. How sayest Thou ye shall be made free?" This statement will not agree with Ex. xiii, 14, where it is said that the Egyptians made their lives bitter with bondage, nor with their confession in John xix, 15, "We have no king but Caesar." After the flesh they were children of Abraham—that is, they were descended from him—but if they were true children of Abraham they would do the works of Abraham and not go about seeking to kill Christ. Their conduct made it manifest that they were of their father, the devil, who was both a liar and a murderer (verses 39, 44). Cain and Abel were brothers, both sons of Adam and Eve, but Abel was a true son of Adam saved by grace, while Cain was of the wicked one (I John iii, 12).

34. "Jesus answered them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whosever committeth sin is the servant of sin." In Rom. vi, 16, it is written, "Know ye not that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey, whether of sin unto death or of obedience unto righteousness?" The teaching of John iii, 6-10, and similar passages seems to be that the new nature in the believer, that which is born of God, cannot sin, but the old nature or carnal mind cannot but sin. If one professing to be born of God continues in sin, then it is manifest that he is not a child of God, but of the devil. A Christian may, under temptation, stumble into sin, but he will not continue in it, while a mere professor, one not born again, though he may run well for awhile, will turn again like a dog to his vomit and like a sow that was washed to her wallowing in the mire (II Pet. ii, 22). We are slaves or servants to that which controls us, whether it be sin or innocent pleasure or the life of righteousness. Our Lord did nothing for Himself. He only spoke what the Father taught Him and did only those things that pleased the Father. He was a perfect servant of God.

35. "And the servant abideth not in the house forever, but the Son abideth ever." In chapter xv, 15, He says to His disciples, Henceforth I call you not servants, but I have called you friends, for all things that I have heard of My Father I have made known unto you.

THIRTEEN LEOS.

Nine of Them Lived Before the Norman Conquest.

Thirteen in number have been the Leos that have filled the chair of Peter, and of these several have been popes of eminence. The first of the name early obtained the appellation of "Great," leaving less honored titles for those who might succeed. His pontificate in the middle of the fifth century lasted over twenty years, and a fine early printed edition of his "sermons," with a magnificent illuminated initial letter, had but a short reign; Leo III. lived toward the end of the seventh century and had but a short reign; Leo II., in his twenty years rule, had the honor of crowning the greatest of the mediaeval Caesars, Charlemagne; the fourth Leo was an exemplary pontiff, if nothing more; the fifth, sixth and seventh were but transient figures early in the tenth century, and the eighth was one of the anti-popes. Leo IX., one of the house of Hapsburg, toward the middle of the eleventh century, illuminated the world with his learning, and was canonized.

Four hundred and sixty years elapse before we come to another Leo, the tenth of the name, Giovanna de Medici, illustrious for his fostering of the renaissance and celebrated in a different manner for his inability to check the Lutheran heresies. Had he been less a patron of letters and a courtier and more of an anchorite the reformation might have been stayed if not actually effected, within the limits of the church itself. Another Medici, though not of the then reigning house of Tuscany, occupied the holy seat for a few weeks in 1605 as Leo XI. Again a gap—of more than 200 years—before we arrive to Leo XII., elected during the thirty years' peace, when Europe was slumbering between the Napoleonic wars and the days of '48. Last of all comes the benign and venerable Leo XIII., who is passing his closing years as occupant of the vatican and as mediator between the sons of men. It is curious, indeed, that nine out of the thirteen lived before the Normans conquered "this little isle set in the silver sea."

"Green Ray"

The "green ray," an optical phenomenon which has been made the foundation of a story by Jules Verne, is a flash of greenish light seen as the limb of the sun rises or sets under certain conditions of the atmosphere. The sea horizon is good for observing it, but the effect occasionally seen in the Alps or other mountains, and, according to Piot Bey, in a paper to the Academie des Sciences, Paris, it is often to be observed in Egypt, from the point of the delta to Alexandria or Suez, either at rise or set of sun. The ray is distinctly visible, and always of an emerald green, which is brighter as a rule at sunrise than sunset. At sunset, when the eye can follow the effect better, the ray sometimes appears longer and ultimately takes a blue tinge. This blue ray has also been observed preceding the green ray at sunrise, for example by Mr. William Goff, near the ruins of Memphis, not far from the stepped pyramid of Saggarah. He even thinks the ancient Egyptians were familiar with it, because in monuments of the fifth dynasty and others the sign "Kha," representing the rising sun, has the outer streak of a blue color and the two inner streaks are green. Their writings also speak of the greenness of the sun on rising, and they liken it to an emerald. It is evident from all this that the "green ray" is an objective, not a subjective, phenomenon, and that the horizon of the sea has nothing to do with it. Nevertheless, the state of the atmosphere evidently has to do with it, and that of Egypt, ordinarily pure, seems to have much, for the ray is seldom seen elsewhere on land.—New York Times.

Who Little Jack Horner Was.

A good many people can repeat a certain poem about Jack Horner, but very few can tell who he really was. Jack Horner of the Christmas pie really existed, though whether he deserved the famous title of "good boy" is exceedingly doubtful, says an exchange.

When Henry VIII. suppressed the monasteries, and drove the monks from their nests, the title deeds of the Abbey of Mells were demanded by the commissioners. The Abbot of Glastonbury determined that he would send them to London, and, as the documents were very valuable, and the road infested with thieves, it was difficult to get them to the metropolis safely.

To accomplish this end he devised a very ingenious plan. He ordered a savory pie to be made, and inside he put the documents—the finest filling a pie ever had—and intrusted this dainty to a lad named Horner to carry to London, to deliver safely into the hands for which it was intended.

But the journey was long, and the day cold, and the boy was hungry, and the pie was tempting, and the chances of detection was small. So the boy broke off a piece of the pie and beheld a parchment within. He pulled it forth, innocently enough, wondering how it could have found its way there, tied up in pastry. He arrived in town and the parcel was delivered, but the title deeds of Mells Abbey were missing. The fact was that Jack had them in his pocket. These were the juciest plums in the pie. Great was the rage of the commissioners, and heavy the vengeance they dealt out to the monks. But Master Jack Horner kept his secret, and when peaceful times were restored he claimed the estates, and received them.

Peculiar Peruvian Pottery.

A distinguishing feature of much of the Peruvian pottery is a long, slim neck, and nearly every vessel is ornamented with a figure of some sort, having holes to represent eyes and other openings. These afford a passage for the air forced out by the liquid when poured into the vessel. By an ingenious contrivance the air in escaping produces a sound similar to the cry of the creature represented. Thus a utensil decorated with two monkeys embracing each other, on having water poured into or from it, would give a sound like the screeching of those animals. One decorated with a bird would emit bird-like notes, while a mountain cat on one jar would mew, snakes coiled around another would hiss. One of the most curious of these figures was that of an aged woman. When the jar was in use her sobs became audible, and tears trickled down her cheeks. The manufacturers seem to have known all about atmospheric pressure.

Unexplainable Explanation.

A gentleman, talking with a young woman, admitted that he had failed to keep abreast of the scientific progress of the age.

"For instance," said he, "I don't understand how the incandescent light, now so extensively used, is procured."

"Oh, it is very simple," said the lady, with the air of one who knows it all. "You just turn a button over the lamp, and the lights appear at once."—Judge.

THE GREAT INDOOR GAME

WHAT IS GOING ON IN LOCAL BASKET BALL CIRCLES.

Happenings of Interest to Plainfield Enthusiasts—What the Local Teams are Doing—Gossip Among the Players.

Hereafter, Walter L. Long, who has been coaching the "varsity" team of the Girls Athletic Association of the Plainfield High School, will look after the scheduling of games as well as the coaching of the young women who compose the team. He is now corresponding with the fair manager of the girls team at the East Orange High School with a view of arranging a match between Plainfield and East Orange.

Manager George E. Fuller, of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basket ball team, has announced a match with the team from the School of Mines, Columbia College, for the near future. The game is to be played in the local gymnasium. While these embryo mining engineers have not a world wide reputation in basket ball it said that they play very well together and will give the Plainfield combination something to think about. Manager Fuller is also considering a game with the Freshman team of that college.

The basket ball team from the Summit Y. M. C. A. will play a return game in the local association gymnasium Monday evening. Plainfield found Summit an easy thing in the first game which was played there. The Summit boys promised to practice hard and give the Plainfielders a hard rub when the next match was played. It remains to be seen whether they will do it or not. The game will begin at 8:15 o'clock. The usual admission will be charged. As the seating capacity of the visitors' gallery is limited, those who want a seat are advised to go early.

The return game with the Young Men's Institute, that will be played in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium in a few weeks, is looked forward to with unusual interest. The Institute team, familiarly called the "Bowery Boys," defeated the Plainfield boys Wednesday evening by the biggest score that has yet been made against them this season. Naturally the Plainfield team is anxious to retrieve themselves and will make a particularly strong effort to win. The game thus promises to be one of the best of the season. When the Plainfield boys really have to work hard, they play a great game but it is seldom now that they are compelled to exert their full strength.

ation to those of street brawls and family quarrels, and all this without money and without price!

"Now, why should there be any question about the re-nomination and election of Mayor Wilson if he is willing to take the job at no pay. We should be glad of it. He is in harness, accustomed to the ropes, is honest, has plenty of time at his disposal and yet some one objects to his continuing to work for us for nothing. Do not let personal considerations effect your vote, for in such a case you will be confessing that your vote is cast not so much in the interest of the public as in your own private interest. If Mayor Wilson has offended you be a big enough man to say that you will vote for him, because he has been a good Mayor and in doing this you will exercise in a noble manner this high privilege given to a citizen.

"I favor and I nominate Mayor Wilson as a Democrat. He is by inheritance and by conviction a Democrat. I say this notwithstanding his independence in politics and in office. He is the same kind of a Democrat that Grover Cleveland is, and I would ask if there is any man who loves the Democratic party less because of that page in its history which records the election and administrations of President Cleveland. He and Mayor Wilson both have their faults. They are both men of strong convictions. Personally they may not perhaps belong to the type of "good fellows," but their record is clean and they are simply human as we all are. From the practical point of view it is not easy to elect a Democrat to office in this borough. In my judgment no other Democrat but one of the independent type like Mayor Wilson can win sufficient Republican votes to be elected; hence, I would ask you to bear this in mind and to ask yourself, whether you would rather have a Republican in the office, and at the same time look backward and see if you can discover any good things which the Democrats of this borough have received from the Republican party. If it is a question in your mind between two evils choose the least."

Following the remarks by Mr. Saunders there were several cheers and some hisses. Immediately afterward John Case nominated H. P. Reynolds. This name brought forth cheers, and David Bodine in answer to David Carney's remark that Mr. Reynolds would not accept the nomination, replied that he did not believe it. He had talked with Mr Reynolds and was led to believe that he would take it. He did not think that Mayor Wilson was the only man who could win, and he nominated Mr. Reynolds.

Here is where the contest became warm. Mr. Carney still urged the fact that Mr. Reynolds would not run, while there were cries of "Throw him out," "It's none of your business," and "Don't believe a d—— word of it," etc., were heard in a deafening manner.

Mr. Carney was not to be turned down thusly and he at once produced a letter from Mr. Reynolds in which the latter stated that he would not accept and that he would vote for Mayor Wilson if he was nominated. The following is a copy of Mr. Reynolds' letter:

"Washington Park, March 2, 1899.

"Dear sir:—Replying to your note just now at hand it seems unnecessary for me to 'verify' or to assert anything in regard to the nomination, except that I have from the first advocated, and that I still advocate the renomination of Mayor Wilson. That I hope and expect to vote for his reelection, and that I should regard any change at this time a misfortune for the borough. Moreover Mr. French clearly understands that these are my views.

"Respectfully yours,
"H. P. Reynolds."

This blast brought forth more exclamations such as "Freeze out," "It's a dirty Irish trick," "Don't believe that Reynolds wrote it," and many similar statements were made. While everyone was excited James Trewin asked the chair to recognize him, but he failed of his purpose and was not given the privilege of the floor.

One taxpayer exclaimed, "Why not let the respectable Democrats have their say instead of these people that hang around saloons?" Finally order was restored and the voting began for Mayor John F. Wilson, H. P. Reynolds and John Emmons. The latter was nominated by David Bodine, and while the chair did not recognize the nomination of Mr. Reynolds he received a great many votes. George Bird and Dennis Gavin were the tellers, and the result of the vote was that Mr. Wilson received 81 votes, H. P Reynolds 56 and John Emmons 5. When the vote was announced there were hisses and cries "The Park Club did it."

This matter being settled the next thing in order was the nomination of two Councilmen for two years and one for one year. S. S. Swackhamer, Walter C. Lintharger and W J. Conroy were nominated. E T. Douglass declined a nomination.

It was then the sense of the meeting that a committee fill the balance of the ticket as follows: Justice of the Peace, two years; Constable, three years; Commissioners of Appeal, two years, and two Surveyors of Highways, two years.

Chairman Kenney appointed G. W. Bird and Dennis Gavin a committee to fill the vacancies, after which the meeting adjourned.

MR. REYNOLDS EXPLAINS.

Exonerates Elston M. French From Any Political Misrepresentation.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—With reference to the action of the North Plainfield Democratic primary Thursday evening, March 2d, the following statement is made in justice to Elston M. French and seems proper in view of the apparent misconception of my own position as stated in the note read by D. J. Carney to the meeting.

In reply to a request for the use of his name as a nominee for Mayor of the borough, the writer from the first declined, and expressed his preference for the renomination of Mayor Wilson; with the qualification only that in case of a failure to agree upon such nomination and in order to provide against possible harm to public and party interests from dissension the writer might consider the nomination.

This position was known to Mr. French—and doubtless to other friends—but, in the confusion and excitement of the moment, this action and purpose was misconstrued to a degree which, taken together with my note, as read by Mr Carney, may appear to reflect upon him.

That no misrepresentation was made or intended by Mr. French in presenting his name, the writer feels entirely certain; while, speaking for himself, the final action of the meeting is entirely satisfactory.

H P. Reynolds.

WILL ADMITTED TO PROBATE.

Last Testament of A. C. Baldwin Now in Surrogate's Court.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 3.—The attempt to break the will of the late A. C. Baldwin, of Plainfield, failed. This morning Judge Vail, in the Orphan's Court, declared the will and codicil valid and ordered them admitted to probate.

The case came up this morning. Mrs. A. C. Baldwin, William M. Stillman, Col Mason W. Tyler and Mr. Wilson were present as witnesses in behalf of the will. Craig A. Marsh, lawyer for the executors, W. B. Wadsworth and Charles D. Wadsworth, called the subscribing witnesses, Judge Stillman and Mr. Wilson.

They proved the execution of the will, dated May 7, 1894, and of the codicil dated July 2, 1895. Judge Stillman, in the redirect testimony to prove that Mr. Baldwin had the mental capacity to execute the will, told of his personal acquaintance with him and how, the very day the codicil was executed, Mr. Baldwin was reappointed one of the directors of the Public Library and the appointment confirmed by the Board who elected him chairman of the art committee.

S. T. Savage, lawyer for the contesting parties, failed to shake the testimony and finally threw up the fight.

Andrew Smalley, of West Second street, is critically ill at his home and much anxiety is felt concerning his recovery.

Mrs. James Wilmont, of Kensington avenue, left yesterday for Washington, where she will remain until April 1st.

SMALLPOX SUSPECT.

He Didn't Mind Hanging 'Round Because the Office Was Comfortable.

Mr. T., a business man, rents desk room in his office to Mr. B., whence the following story:

"Is Mr. B. in?" asked a caller.

"No," replied Mr. T., thinking he recognized an unwelcome caller.

"Well, I'll wait for him," replied the caller, sitting down. At 5 o'clock he was still waiting. At 5:30 still waiting A few minutes before 6 Mr. T. closed his desk for the day, and prepared to go home. The caller ventured to ask if Mr. B. was likely to return to his office that day.

Mr. T. answered: "No, he is in Sacramento, and will be back next Tuesday morning."

The caller showed no anger. On the contrary, he smiled.

"Don't apologize," he said, "my business was not important and your office has proved a pleasant lounging place. Fact is," he blandly added, "I suppose I'm coming down with the smallpox, and the doctor told me I must stay indoors and keep warm."—San Francisco Argus.

BOROUGH COUNCIL ADJOURNS SINE DIE.

Last Night's Session Devoted to Closing Up Year's Business.

$5,000 TO BE BORROWED.

RECORDER LONG OFFERS TO SERVE NINE WEEKS FOR NOTHING.

Borough Can Secure Small Amounts of Crushed Stone Now and Then for Nothing—Question of Deducting Taxes in the Case of Dr. Cooley and Dr. Davis Caused Considerable Discussion.

The last meeting of Mayor Wilson and the Borough Council for the present borough year was held last evening and every member was in attendance. Contrary to expectations there was little business of special importance and the session was an uneventful one. Clerk Arnold's report showed that $5 had been received as subscription on the macadamizing of Summit avenue and that $8 had been received as fines from Recorder Long. The report of Collector George F. Brown showed that during the month of February $1,284 11 had been collected, that there is $1,455 28 to the credit of the borough fund and $471 21 to the Watchung avenue fund, and a total balance on March 1st of $1,926 49.

In a communication Recorder Long stated that he would serve nine weeks after the expiration of his term without expense for the reason that during his term Mayor Wilson served as Recorder for that length of time. He offered his services for the extra time and the communication was received and filed.

Mr. Woolston, of the street committee, reported that in all $181.81 had been expended during February on street work. He also made a report on the petition of W. J. Buttfield regarding certain parts of the borough being used for a dumping ground. The matter has been referred to the Board of Health. Mr. Woolston stated that in conversation with J. Y. Wilson, dealer in crushed stone, the latter informed him that whenever the borough wanted a half dozen loads of stone to repair the streets in the borough broken through travel of the stone wagons the same would be delivered free.

Mayor Wilson made a short statement on behalf of the Board of Health and said that the Board was in need of $77.27 to complete the amount due them by law, $550. This matter will be attended to.

Mr. Rogers offered a resolution confirming the election of J. Daly and F. A. Long to membership in Warren Engine Company. Mr. MacLoughlin offered a resolution authorizing the Collector to mark off his books certain amounts and mark the same "uncollectable."

Mr. Valiant offered four resolutions providing for notes due very soon. One was for $50, six months interest on the Watchung avenue improvement, another was for $2,011 67 to cover a $2,000 note, and another one provided for a $2,000 note due March 6th, and was for $2,050. In view of the fact that these notes are to be met and there is not a sufficient amount in the treasury to meet them, he offered a resolution to the effect that $5,000 be borrowed for ten monts for the borough account.

Mayor Wilson at this time introduced the old question of deduction on taxes in the case of Dr. Cooley and Dr. Davis, and wanted to know who is to pay the amount in question. The sought for information was asked of Borough Counsel Reed, who was present.

The case is this Dr. Cooley secured from the Commissioners of appeal a deduction of $5,000 on account of notes in the bank, and it is said that Dr. Davis has secured a deduction of the same amount on the same notes in Plainfield It was stated by Mr. MacLaughlin that Dr. Cooley owes Dr. Davis, and in view of this fact it was thought that Dr. Cooley is entitled to the deduction, and as regards the deduction secured by Dr. Davis it was thought the borough had nothing to do. Mr. Reed gave as his opinion that the man who owes the money is entitled to the deduction, and it was thought advisable to learn who was the maker of the note, and this is the way the matter was left.

Mayor Wilson then put a motion that was offered that the Council adjourn without date, and thus the proceedings of the present Mayor and Council came to a close. After the meeting the Borough Solons remained and had a quiet conference by themselves.

Driver Fred Breem, of the fire department, has been on the sick list, but is now on duty again.

PRAISE FOR THE MAYOR

MR. WILSON CREDITED WITH BEING AN EXCELLENT EXECUTIVE.

A. J. Leader, a Republican, Reviews the Mayor's Record and Declares All Good Citizens Should Support Him

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—

A man who has done as much for North Plainfield as have McKinley and Dewey for the nation, ought to be appreciated and kept in power. A man who has given us such good police regulations, broken up cider joints, gambling dens, houses of assignation, and driven them out of our borough over to Plainfield, where they lacked all these improvements, should be kept at the helm. Although called a Democrat, Mayor Wilson has worked harmoniously with a Republican Council without a hitch. Why is it that some persons who were so enthusiastic at his first nomination are now ringleaders among his opponents? The Mayor has evidently trodden on some men's toes, who find, to use a slang expression, they can neither "pull the wool over the eyes" of such Councilmen as MacLaughlin, Valiant and Woolston, nor "pull the old man's leg."

Voters and citizens of North Plainfield, where will you find such a man as Mayor Wilson? He has business ability and good judgment; is a man of leisure and means, and alway to be found at certain hours at the Mayor's office when needed. He is the most liberal and philanthropic Mayor we have ever had. Who ordered and paid for the flagging of two of our churches? Who provided a new flooring for a school house when the old one endangered the legs of many scholars? Who ordered a street macadamized in a poor neighborhood, when they could not raise the necessary funds? Who so liberally assisted our firemen's fair to raise funds for their new uniforms? Who has assisted the poor in our township when anything has been suggested that would benefit the borough in any way, and when appealed to he has said: "Go ahead, if you run short of funds, send the bill to me."

Gentlemen, don't forget these noble and generous deeds, and when the time to vote arrives, use your own judgment, common sense and the brains with which you are endowed. Read the facts in the Borough's annual report just issued, and don't be misled by what folks and would-be politicians may tell you. They will refer to the many thousands of dollars the borough has spent, and, as they say, wasted. They forget to tell you it has all been spent in improvements for the borough.

When I first came to Plainfield, we had no gas, water, electric lights, public schools, only one partly macadamized road, and scarcely any flagging. If you can find any man that will accomplish all these improvements without "root of all evil" why not turn out. In conclusion, I might say, our Mayor has taken just as much interest in the Borough as he has in his own property.

A. J. Leader.

PHILOSOPHY OF HISTORY.

Dr. Lewis to Talk on the Colonial Policy of This Country.

There are very few, indeed, in Plainfield who are not interested in the proposed colonial policy of the United States and the future of this country in relations with its newly acquired territory in the east and west. Tuesday evening they will have an opportunity to hear one of Plainfield's most able speakers on the subject. Rev. Dr. A. H Lewis, editor of The Sabbath Recorder, will deliver a lecture on "The Philosophy of History, Illustrated in the Spanish American War and Its Results," at the Seventh-Day Baptist church Tuesday evening.

The lecture is given under the auspices of the men's meeting at that church, but will be free to all. Those who attended the University Extension lectures on "History" and Prof. Sumner's lecture on "Imperialism" are particularly invited.

Powers Settled up.

The sensational case of Officer Jeremiah Cash against M. Powers, was settled yesterday by the payment of the full amount of the claim in court just before the hour set for the trial.

HOW THEY DO IT IN THE CELESTIAL EMPIRE

"Chinese Evening" at Congregational Church Last Night.

HEARD ABOUT FOOCHOW.

FLAGS OF BOTH NATIONS WAVED SIDE BY SIDE.

Some of the Young Women Were Gowned in Chinese Fashion—Heard From Two Girls at Foochow School Who are Supported by Christian Endeavor Society—Letters Read From Both.

The good folk of the Congregational church were entertained in the church parlors last evening with a "Chinese Evening," under the auspices of the missionary committee of the Christian Endeavor Society. The parlors were gaily bedecked with the American and Chinese flags while some of the young women wore Chinese costumes. Chinese lanterns were also used in the decorations.

It was not exactly a sociable nor yet a missionary meeting, sort of a combination of both. The Christian Endeavor Society is supporting two Chinese maidens who are being educated at the Foochow girls' boarding school. So Foochow has particular interest to the Endeavorers. The meeting part of the evening dealt mostly with Foochow and the two school girls.

A description of the school and its methods was read by Miss Mary Chase. Then a letter from one of the girl students was read by Miss Nellie Winckler. A letter from the other was read by Miss J. Louise Jenkins. A recitation was given by Miss Carrie Fuller. Then a game of questions and answers about Foochow was played, all the visitors participating. A message from Foochow was read by Rev. C. L. Goodrich. That concluded the programme.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to sociability. The committee wanted to have as appropriate refreshments as possible. As most of the visitors were not particularly fond of rice in the ordinary form, rice pudding was provided, which the vistors were allowed to eat American fashion. Tea was provided.

The affair was arranged by the missionary committee of which Miss Mary Chase is the chairman. The attendance during the evening was large and all expressed much satisfaction at the rather novel sort of an evening.

ROESEL MUST HANG.

Court of Pardons Decline to Commute His Sentence of Life Imprisonment.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, March 4—Word was received at Sheriff Kirk's office this afternoon that the Court of Pardons, sitting at Jersey City this morning, had declined to commute the sentence of Louis Roesel, the convicted murderer of James Pitts, to life imprisonment. This means that Roesel must hang next Friday in accordance with the sentence of the court.

A Surprise Party

A surprise party was given to Miss Lucetta Clark, of Grandview avenue, last evening. The affair was arranged by Miss Nettie Bruersachs, Miss Minnie Nitchwitz, Walter Hamilton and Joseph Farlee. Games, dancing, vocal and instrumental music helped to pass an evening of pleasure. Those present included the Misses Lucetta Clark, Mabel Stevens, Nettie Bauersachs, Minnie Nitschwitz, Nellie Vermeule, Kate Bodine, Grace Clark; Fred Martin, Arthur Jeffery, Joseph Farlee, Walter Hamilton, William McCullough, Ray Stevens, Harry Woodland, Robert Hand and Albert Utzinger, of this city; Walter and Harry Wallace, of Jersey City.

Unlike Beatrice.

There was much sarcasm in the speech of Beatrice when she said: "I have a good eye uncle, I can see a church by daylight." It will be grim reality to those who, through neglect of the eyes, attain to that condition where it is all they can do "to see a church by daylight." The time to avert serious trouble is at the first hint of weakening sight, when a call at Collier's will tell you the right thing to do.

Charles Ulrich Goes to Philadelphia.

Charles Ulrich, of this city, has accepted a position with the Swift Beef Company and will take up his residence in Philadelphia. Mr. Ulrich has disposed of his bowling alley business to William R Conover, who will open the place next Monday and run it in a first-class manner.

CONSTABLE MATTOX HOLDS THE FORT.

Wouldn't Let Auctioneer In Bard Company Store.

HE PREVENTED THE SALE.

FIRST SKIRMISH IN CONTEST OF DEFUNCT CONCERN'S PROPERTY.

Mattox Was Put in Charge by Lawyers for Mortgagee—Triple Role for Mattox to Play—He Represented Everybody—Refused to Turn Over Possession to Himself—The Sale Adjourned.

The war over the property of the defunct Bard Company has begun in earnest. The first skirmish took place this morning. Incidentally Constable Bob Mattox has been placed in the rather unenviable position of trying to be three persons at one and the same time. He is bailiff for the landlords, constable for the executions issued against the property and also bailiff or watchman for the chattel mortgagee.

This morning, the mortgagee, the First National Bank, which is represented in the fight by Murphy & Blatz, was going to sell the stock of cameras, phonographs and various other things that did belong to the now defunct concern. Mattox had been put in charge of the store on North avenue, where the stock remained, by Murphy & Blatz. This morning Auctioneer T. J. Carey came to sell the goods. But W. R. Mattox, constable for the executions, refused to turn over the store and contents to W. Mattox, watchman or bailiff for the holder of the chattel mortgage.

The red flag, announcing the auction, had been hanging in front of the store all the morning. At 11 o'clock Carey came as did likewise quite a crowd of spectators drawn there by the prospect of the sale and also of some excitement.

Carey walked up to the door in front of which stood Mattox.

"You can't come in," remarked the Constable. As the door was locked and the Constable's son inside the store, Auctioneer Carey announced that the sale was adjourned until Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

The sale under the executions is set for Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Murphy & Blatz, attorneys for the mortgagee, say that they will compel the Constable to adjourn the sale for ten days. They say they will also hold Mattox responsible for not permitting the sale.

So far the landlords, Woolston & Buckle, have been quiet in the matter. When the next encounter occurs, however, they may make the fight a three cornered one.

GROWTH OF RED MEN

MIANTONOMOH TRIBE HEARD ADDRESS BY PAST SACHEM LEAHY.

There are 16,600 Members in New Jersey, and the Wealth of the Tribes is $35,000—Plainfield Tribe Was Honored Also.

Miantonomoh Tribe of Red Men met last night and received one proposition for membership. Past Sachem Leahy, who attended the grand lodge meeting at Trenton Friday, February 24 h, gave a brief synopsis of the business transacted there, to the edification of all who listened.

He said that there were, at the close of the fiscal year, 16,600 members of the order in the State of New Jersey. The wealth of all the tribes was $350,000. During the past year $165,000 has been dispensed for sick benefits and the help of poor brethren. Several important changes have been made in the constitution and by laws. The insolvent debt of the defunct financial benefit association has been assumed by the great council of New Jersey. It was decided to issue bonds to the amount of $600 to liquidate 24 unpaid claims of the defunct association.

Leahy went on to say that Plainfield ought to feel honored in the selection of Grand Junior Sagamore William Newcorn as Grand Senior Sagamore, an office next to the head of the order; also in the selection of Past Sachem Westphal as chairman of the law committee of the grand council, and deputy grand sachem of district No. 31.

Leahy gave a vivid description of the installation ceremonies, the most important feature of which was the presentation of a past grand sachem's regalia by Takanassee Tribe of Long Branch to outgoing Grand Sachem Wm. Smythe; a past great sachem's jewel by brethren from South Jersey; and a solid gold ring engraved with the token and emblems of the order by brethren from Paterson.

MUCH COUNTERFEIT COIN IS DISCOVERED.

WHOLE PLOT IS LAID BARE.

TRUNKS CARRYING COUNTERFEITERS' PARAPHERNALIA SECURED.

Secret Service Officers Have Been Working Hard on the Case and Think They Have Succeeded in Capturing an Important Gang—Were Operating in Shamokin Previously.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, March 4—Detective Geo. Totten and the Secret Service officers who have been working on the case of George Krepit and Christopher Ckokonosky, arrested here for counterfeiting, obtained some strong evidence against the prisoners yesterday. They have been looking for a shipment of 4,000 pounds of freight, which was on its way from Shamokin, Pa., over the Central Railroad.

The freight arrived packed in several boxes, and the officers immediately seized it and made a search. They found a quantity of unfinished coin, including a large number of nickels and some silver. These were packed very carefully with furniture and other household goods. About $500 of counterfeit money has now been seized here and at Bound Brook, where five trunks arrived Thursday. The crucibles and other tools used in making the money have not yet arrived.

The officers say there is no doubt that the two men were going to set up a plant for the manufacture of counterfeit money in the Hungarian quarter at Bound Brook. The Secret Service officers are awaiting the arrival of requisition papers from Trenton, and if they arrive this afternoon they will start at once with the two counterfeiters for Wilkesbarre, Pa., where they will be given a hearing before a United States Commissioner.

Agent Barker arrived here from Shamokin, accompanied by Constable Walter Doubert and Charles Clifford, of that place, who were brought here to identify the men under arrest. Clifford identified Cerpatis as a man who rented a house adjoining his home and set up a watchmaker's repair shop four months ago. Clifford said that Cerpatis did little at his business during the day, but at night there was a noise in his cellar similar to the pounding of an anvil with a hammer. Clifford says he also saw strange men go to and from the place.

When Cerpatis moved out of the house last week Clifford, whose suspicious had been aroused, made a visit of investigation. Secreted in one of the rooms upstairs he found a counterfeiter's die and under the cellar floor he found about $600 in gold and silver counterfeit coin. He told Constable Daubert of his find, who immediately notified the Secret Service officials at Washington.

Daubert learned that Cerpatis had shipped goods that weighed 4,000 pounds to Somerville by freight, and telegraphed Chief of Police Shurts to apprehend him. Cerpatis and his pal, Ckokonosky, under whose name the goods were shipped, appeared here a few days ago and ordered the goods on their arrival to be reshipped to Bound Brook. Their arrest followed Secret Service Agent Brown, of New York, who has been working on the case for the past two days, discovered that five trunks had been shipped to Cerpatis at Bound Brook. In this baggage were found yesterday six stone bottles containing a gold solution, some crucibles and a part of a counterfeiter's outfit.

RESERVED DECISION.

Judge Bartine Asks for Briefs in Case of Miodovnik Against Thorn.

Judge Bartine, of Somerville, reserved his decision in the David Modovnik against A. B. Thorn case yesterday, and has requested the lawyers to submit briefs. Only the plaintiff's side of the case was heard yesterday, as there were some points about a contract that were not explained sufficiently. Miodovnik sued Thorn for $200 damages in Justice Smalley's court last fall, and secured a judgment against him for $102. Thorn appealed. William Newcorn represented Miodovnik, and W. S. Angleman, Thorn.

New Fields for Endeavor Work

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, editor of the Sabbath Recorder, will make an address tomorrow evening in the Second Reformed church at Raritan, when the Christian Endeavor Society of that city will celebrate its anniversary. His subject will be "Some New Fields for Christian Endeavor Work."

CARLYLE AND HIS WIFE.

AN INTERESTING TOPIC DISCUSSED BY LEON VINCENT.

The Lecture Was Wittily Delivered by Mr Vincent, Who Put Carlyle Down as One of the Leading Literary Lights.

Leon Vincent, in Vincent chapel yesterday afternoon, delivered the first of a series of three lectures under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, the subject being "Carlyle and His Wife." The lecture is one that Mr. Vincent has often delivered, and is always listend to with attention as it abounds in humor, pathos and eloquence.

"It used to be," said Mr. Vincent, referring to the lecture, "all about Thomas Carlyle; now it is half about Carlyle and half about his wife; and in a short time I expect it will be all about Carlyle's wife."

Mr. Vincent began his lecture with the burial of the great writer, who is destined to live for many years in the hearts of his readers. The simple funeral services, simple at his own request, were spoken of as in startling contrast to the pageant accorded Fred Archer, a noted horse jockey, who died about the same time, and whose interment was made the occasion of all that was beautiful and sublime.

Mr. Vincent admitted that he was partial to the Scotch writer, and looked upon him as a literary hero. He described his work over the first volume of the "French Revolution" which he loaned John Stuart Mills, a friend, to examine. Mills, without asking the author's permission, gave the precious manuscript, the work of months, to a lady whose servant, seeing the loose leaves lying around, kindled a fire with them.

At this time Carlyle's fame had not come, and he was even in financial difficulties Nevertheless he went to work again with marvelous pluck, and re wrote the entire volume, and produced a work of more worth than the original. The first volume was received more readily on this side of the Atlantic than in England, and the first financial returns were made to the author from his American publishers. It was not until he was twelve years of age that Carlyle was recognized as the genius he was, and after that until his death he was given the place in literature which he deserved.

His wife was a Jane Welsh. She was a remarkable girl and developed into a remarkable woman. Intellectual in a high degree, she was her husband's help meet in every respect, and he loved her with a love so genuine as to be almost phenominal. Miss Welsh, when young, was something of a flirt. She had many admirers among her male friends, and was in love with a clergyman before she met Carlyle. She was as capricious as any woman could be, and three weeks before she accepted Carlyle as her affianced husband, emphatically refused him, and declared that under no considerations would she marry him. She died suddenly one afternoon while out driving in her carriage.

THE END IS NEAR.

Subscription Contest of The Daily Press Will End Monday

Monday will see the end of The Daily Press subscription contest which was begun eight weeks ago. When the idea of such a contest was first discussed, it was expected that it would result in the addition of new names to The Daily Press subscription list. It has done so but the number has far exceeded all expectations.

This last week of the contest will break all records for the number of new subscribers added to the list in an equal length of time. Twice during the contest has the record been broken but the young people who are in it are putting forth their strongest efforts at the wind-up and will carry the record way above its old point If there is such a pouring in of names of new subscribers tonight as there was two weeks ago, the week's record will be hard indeed to beat.

The contest is still undecided. There are several of the contestants who stand very close together and a few more for any of them may change the order at the last moment. Monday still remains for all names must be turned in to Manager of Circulation Stout by six o'clock. The last day will see some big hustling by every contestant and the results of that day's work may change the outcome.

Death of an Infant.

The death of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barton's infant child occurred yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock from the parents' residence on West Fourth street, and Rev. W. C. O'Donnell will officiate. Interment will take place at Coontown.

N. B. SMALLEY SLATED TO OPPOSE WILSON.

G. O P. Leaders Do Not Want to Endorse the Mayor.

NAMES FOR COUNCILMEN.

PROSPECT OF EXCITING TIME AT THE PRIMARY TONIGHT.

Conference Held Last Night and the Situation Discussed With a View to Naming a Strong Ticket—Some Think That N. B. Smalley's Name is Used for a Blind to Hide Real Intention.

There was a conference last evening in the borough of some of the Republican leaders. The attendance was good and the discussion of political affairs in the borough was quite general. It was decided to make a strong fight against having the G. O P. endorse the nomination of Mayor Wilson, and unless the slate is cracked before the Republican caucus comes off this evening Newton B. Smalley will be placed in nomination for the Mayoralty honors. There are many, however, who put little faith in this and say that the talk of nominating N. B. Smalley is a "blind" and that there is a dark horse in the field who will be trotted out at the last minute. At all events it is understood that Mr. Smalley will only accept the nomination providing no strong candidate can be secured to run against Mayor Wilson.

That there will be a strong effort made at the caucus to endorse the nomination of Mayor Wilson is not doubted, for the Mayor has quite a following that is apparently increasing in numbers.

Among those who may be nominated this evening for councilmanic honors is Robert Clark, Jr., of Jackson avenue, father of Lawyer Robert M. Clark.

It must be borne in mind, however, that Councilmen Woolston, Ball and MacLoughlin are in line for a renomination, and it is not at all unlikely that they will receive the honors.

Among many Republicans there seems to be no good reason why Mayor Wilson should be endorsed so long as there is a person who will accept the nomination on the Republican ticket. To do this they say would be impolitic in a community where the majority is Republican. There is, therefore, every indication that the Republicans will make a ticket themselves.

MUST PAY THE DOCTOR.

Middlesex County Court Decides in Favor of Plainfield Physician.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, March 4—A case in which Ellis W. Hedges, M. D., of Plainfield, and Peter W. Garretson, of this city, were parties, was tried before Judge Strong, of the Common Pleas Thursday, and a judgment for $7 above the amount given in the lower court, decided in favor of the plaintiff.

The case was first tried before Justice Storms, of New Market, and then appealed. Suit was brought for about $90 for professional service rendered to the wife of the defendant. Judgment was given the Doctor in the lower court, but Garretson appealed. His defense was that he thought the bill paid, as he had given his wife various sums of money at different times to pay it with. Mr. Garretson was treated by Dr. Hedges for consumption, and nine months afterwards died. Justice Storms rendered a judgment for $93 but in the Common Pleas it was increased to $100, owing to accumulated interest. William Newcorn represented Dr. Hedges.

HOMŒOPATHISTS AT THE HOSPITAL

New School of Physicians Will Demand Equal Rights for All.

In view of the largely increased facilities of Muhlenberg Hospital in prospect, the physicians of the homœopathic school are beginning to agitate the matter of their being allowed to pracice in the institution.

Under the present rules of the hospital none but alopathic physicians are permitted to treat patients at the institution and this has caused much unfavorable comment among the clients of the new school of medicinal practitioners.

The homœopathists intend to demand that when the improvements at the hospital are consummated that one portion of the buildings be set apart for the admission of homœopathic patients who may be treated as the like.

COMPROMISE ACCEPTED

President Authorized to Have All Nicaragua Routes Examined.

DEWEY NOW AN ADMIRAL

Schley Promoted to a Higher Rank Than Sampson—Leader Bailey Says He is Out—President's Nomination of Barrows for Librarian Reported Adversely by the Senate Committee.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The conferees on the river and harbor bill have reached an agreement.

The Nicaragua canal paragrapht has been greatly modified. It now appropriates a million dollars for an examination of all routes under direction of the president. The report of the commission making the examination will be sent to Congress, and no provision is made for beginning work. Senator Morgan consented to the compromise.

Senator Frye made the following statement: "In the matter of the Nicaragua canal the conferees provided a substitute for the Senate amendment giving full authority to the president to investigate all Isthmian canal routes, especially the Nicaraguan and Panama routes. He is to have all the engineer and other employes he may need for this purpose, and is allowed to appoint the engineers either from the army or civil life. He is then to report his conclusions to the next Congress. For this purpose we appropriate $1,000,000.

"The items concerning New York harbor, Baltimore, Philadelphia, the Southwest Pass and the Mississippi river, Hudson river and nearly all the important national projects as distinguished from those of a purely local character were agreed to particularly as inserted in the Senate.

"In the matter of the Miami project, which has attracted considerable attention, the House conferees refused to agree to the Senate propositions. In this matter the best we could do was to secure a provision for the appointment of a board of engineers which is instructed to make an estimate and report. The House conferees also refused to accept the Senate's action placing the improvements of St. John's river, Florida, under a continuing contract, but in this matter we increased the appropriation over the House figures to the extent of about one hundred thousand dollars, making the appropriation two hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

"The continuing contract provision for Sandy Bay Harbor of Refuge, Massachusetts, was eliminated, but the immediate appropriation of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars was provided for, and authority was given to appoint a board of engineers to make a survey and estimate.

"We were also compelled to modify the Senate provision concerning the proposed channel to Houston, Tex. In this matter we increased the immediate appropriation to the extent of one hundred thousand dollars, making it three hundred thousand dollars, which is sufficient to insure twelve feet of water in the channel to the sea.

"The House conferees accepted our provision appropriating one hundred thousand dollars for the improvement of Pearl harbor, Hawaii, and also to the provision for the removal of the rocks in East river, New York. They refused to accept our amendment for the improvement of Anacostia river, District of Columbia."

Senator Frye expressed the opinion that the action of the conference on the Nicaragua canal matter would prove satisfactory to the country. The Senate provision was, he said, necessarily crude, owing to the haste which attended its consideration, and Congress would be much better prepared to deal with the question after getting the reports provided for by the conference agreement.

Schley Ahead of Sampson.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The navy department has given up its opposition to Admiral Schley, and when the list of nominations for rear admirals, under the new navy personnel bill goes to the Senate, Admiral Schley will be on the list above Admiral Sampson, in his old rank and place before the war.

The naval board having charge of the appointments under the new law has completed the list of all the higher ranks, and it was sent to the White House yesterday, so the president may forward it to the Senate to be confirmed.

The list places Admiral Schley as the third ranking rear admiral and Sampson as the fourth. The following is the list:

Admiral George Dewey, Rear Admirals McNair, Howell, Schley, Sampson, Howison, Kauntz, all rear admirals; Remey, Farquhar, Watson, Philip, Casey, Cromwell, Higginson, Picking, Rodgers, all commodores; Kempf, Sumner and Day, captains. The list of captains numbers 72.

The reason the navy department gave up the fight against Rear Admiral Schley is because the nominations before the Senate with Sampson above Schley cannot be confirmed, and an insistance on them might endanger the promotion and rearrangement of all the line nominations.

Cabinet Discusses the Census.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The time of the cabinet meeting yesterday was mostly occupied with the discussion of matters pertaining to legislation during the last days of the session of Congress.

There was a long consultation in regard to the carrying out of the provision of the recent enactment providing for the census of 1900. Great pains will be taken to organize the census force in such a way as to insure the greatest efficiency, and this will apply particularly to the enumerators.

The employes of this class will receive from $3 to $6 per day under the provisions of the law. It has often been found that inefficient employes have been the result of the low wages offered.

The president now expects to appoint the superintendent of the census at an early date, but it cannot be learned that a man has yet been selected for the place.

Opposed to Barrows.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The nomination of Samuel J. Barrows to be librarian of Congress has been reported unfavorably by the Senate committee on library.

No More Volunteers.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The most important development in regard to the new army is the indication that the president may not deem it necessary to enlist any of the new volunteer or provisional regiments authorized by the bill.

It gives him authority to do so if he thinks it necessary, and the feeling is that the president, after he has raised the regular army to the maximum limit of sixty-two thousand men, will not require volunteers at present.

There are enough regular army officers in the service for all the regiments under this increase, and no new appointments will be needed.

DEWEY IS AN ADMIRAL

President Sends His Nomination to the Senate and It is Promptly Confirmed.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—President McKinley yesterday sent to the Senate the nomination of Rear Admiral George Dewey to be admiral in the navy.

The nomination was made in accordance with the provisions of the bill creating the grade of admiral, which was signed on Thursday evening by the president.

The nomination was confirmed later by the Senate.

Secretary Long sent the following dispatch to Admiral Dewey yesterday:

"Heartiest congratulations upon your deserved appointment as admiral.
"LONG."

The president will also send a message of congratulation.

Besides George Dewey only two officers of the United States navy have ever held the rank of admiral. They were David Glascoe Farragut and David Dixon Porter. The grade was created for Farragut by an act of Congress of July 25, 1866. He was at that time a vice admiral, that grade as well having been created for him—on December 21, 1864.

When Vice Admiral Farragut became admiral, Rear Admiral Porter succeeded to the title of vice admiral, and upon his superior's death in 1870 Porter became admiral.

When Admiral Porter died in 1891 the grade ceased to exist, in accordance with an act of Congress.

Dewey's reward, measured by those bestowed on previous commanders, is the greatest ever given by the American people. He has been promoted from commodore to rear admiral, and then to admiral—and all within ten months.

Even Farragut was not made admiral till he had been vice admiral, and before that he had served as rear admiral for two years and a half.

Dewey was ranking officer of the United States navy before his promotion to admiral, having been already advanced to the head of the rear admirals' list; but he now has the added and profound distinction as admiral of being outranked by no naval commander in the world.

An example of the honors that may be paid to Admiral Dewey is shown by the experience of Admiral Farragut in 1867. He was then in command of the European squadron, and was received with the highest honors in the cities he visited. If Admiral Dewey comes home by the Suez and Mediterranean route, as no doubt he will eventually, his reception along the way will be much greater than if he were merely a rear admiral, and as such outranked by three or four officers in every European navy.

The pay of Dewey as admiral will be $13,000. As rear admiral he received $6,000.

Dewey would have reached the age limit of service in December next, but by the terms of the bill creating the grade of admiral, ten years more of active service is allowed to the hero of Manila.

Bailey Will Not Lead.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—"I am not saying this in a fit of bad temper or in pique, for the reason that I think my opponents could defeat me, but after due deliberation I have made up my mind not to be a candidate again for the leadership of my party in Congress, either when it is in the minority or majority."

This was the calm and dispassionate statement made by Representative Joe Bailey of Texas.

Continuing, he said: "I would not again take the empty position I now hold, or accept the leadership of my party when forty odd of its members decline to uphold the constitution, as they have sworn to do. It is the first time the Democrats have voted in such a way. I know that it will be said that my refusal to aspire again to lead my party in the lower House of Congress can be attributed to a fit of temper. I have had twenty-four hours to think over it, and my mind is made up, irrevocably made up."

Promotion for Gen. Otis.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The president has nominated Brigadier General Elwell S. Otis, United States army, to be major general by brevet, to rank from February 4, 1899, for military skill and most distinguished service in the Philippines. The Senate confirmed the nomination.

Will Hamper Navy.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The naval appropriation bill was discussed by the cabinet yesterday. The members think that the limitation on the price for armor plate will result in a complete stoppage of work on new ships, and that the reduction from 18,000 to 15,000 in the number of sailors will force several ships out of commission.

New $30,000,000 Corporation.

Trentonu, N. J., March 4.—The United States Cast Iron Pipe Company, with a capital of thirty million dollars, was incorporated here yesterday. The objects of the concern are to manufacture cast iron from the raw material and to make and sell all appliances made from cast iron.

Of the capital stock, fifteen million dollars' worth of shares are preferred, bearing a non-cumulative yearly dividend of seven per cent.

The principal office in this state is to be at Burlington. The names of the real incorporators are not given.

NO AMERICANS PRISONERS

Manila, March 4.—The gunboat Concord has returned from Darupan, the northern terminus of the railroad, where she burned an insurgent schooner loaded with provisions. The Yorktown is now patrolling there.

There has been some desultory picket firing on the front of the First Montana infantry.

Guadaloupe has again been bombarded by the gunboat Laguna de Bay and a battery of the Sixth artillery, the enemy having constructed new trenches there.

Major General Otis has issued an order establishing a Visayan military district, comprising Panay, Cebu, Negros and other islands hereafter to be occupied, under the supervision of Brigadier General Miller.

Colonel James F. Smith of the First California infantry, commanding the sub-district of the Negros, has been ordered to organize an armed native civil police of two hundred men and put them under military discipline.

Otis Nails a Filipino Lie.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—In answer to the telegram sent to General Otis asking as to the truth of the report circulated by the Hong Kong junta of the Filipinos that six hundred Americans were prisoners in the hands of the insurgents, Secretary Alger received the following dispatch yesterday:

"Insurgents have not taken, nor do they hold a single prisoner of war. They have three soldiers in Malolos, picked up in January, who, without permission, went among them near Cavite and Caloocan. Am looking after them, providing money. Have captured over fifteen hundred insurgent soldiers since February 4; hold majority as prisoners of war. Detrimental reports which reached United States manufactured mostly in Hong Kong; troops here in splendid condition."

A SPANIARD CHIEF OF POLICE.

Spanish Detective Martinez Will Come Into Power as Chief.

Havana, March 4.—The resignation of Gustavo Menocal as chief of detectives on the Havana police force has been accepted and he will be replaced by Domingo Martinez, the Spaniard, and one of the famous Martinez brothers, who were so active under Weyler and other Spanish governors in sending Cubans to execution.

General Ludlow has sanctioned the change, and the Cubans are wildly indignant. Mario Menocal, the present chief of the department, and brother of Gustavo, threatens to resign, also.

General Ludlow says that no offense to the natives was intended, but that the action was for the good of the service.

The Martinezes are regarded by everybody, except the Cubans, as remarkable detectives, the peers even of Holmes and Vidocq. American and French detectives who have made a study of their system of chief catching and criminal records say they are simply wonderful.

The Martinez brothers are Spaniards, however, and sent thousands of Cubans to capital punishment and prison while employed under Spanish rule, and if there be any persons more generally disliked to-day by Cubans than the two Spanish detectives the American people are entitled to the honor.

No Censor in Havana.

Havana, Cuba, March 4.—El Criterio Libre, an anti-American, pro-Spanish paper of this city, is out with a villainous attack upon the members of the Eighth and Tenth regulars.

It demands of Governor Brooke and General Ludlow that these two regiments be removed from their quarters along the Prado at once, giving as a reason that the behavior of the men is such that residents along that thoroughfare are unable to open their windows or even to permit their families to go upon the streets.

There is not the slightest iota of truth in the statement. On the contrary, the soldiers are unusually considerate of everybody, and frequently suffer great inconvenience in performing the daily routine.

On another page of this "yellow" journal of Cuba is a violent denunciation of and gross libel on the American people in general. A number of American residents took a copy of the paper to General Ludlow and begged him to close the office.

He has given no decision as yet. In the mean time there are some of the Americans here who promise to make it hot for the editor of the objectionable paper if it be their pleasure to run afoul of him.

The Baking Powder Combination.

New York, March 4.—Subscriptions to the preferred stock of the new Royal Baking Powder Company were in demand among banking houses yesterday, and the bids jumped rapidly from 82 to 87.

At the offices of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, and Blair & Co., it was said that the issue was more than three times over-subscribed, and the allotments to original subscribers would have to be cut down proportionately.

The capital of the new combination is twenty million dollars, but none of the ten million dollars of common stock is for sale.

The reorganization will result in the choice of Mr. Rose, of the Price Baking Powder Company, as president of the new company.

Mr. William Ziegler, whose genius brought about the formation of the new combination, will not figure officially in the organization.

Will Present His Credentials on Monday.

London, March 4.—Mr. Choate will present his credentials to the queen at Windsor on Monday. Until then he will not really be an ambassador.

A ROW IN HARRISBURG.

Senator Quay Lost Three Votes and a Fight is On.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 4.—There was an excitement among the members of the House as they assembled yesterday, the sensational meeting of the bribery investigation committee having whetted interest in the proceedings.

It was reported to be the plan of the anti-Quay men to enlarge the investigating committee by the addition of four members, in sympathy with General Koontz, who defied the majority of the committee, and when the house was called to order the preliminaries had little interest for the average legislator.

All waited impatiently for the beginning of the fight. It came on a jump. When a motion was made to dispense with the reading of the journal—a customary routine motion—Mr. Slater of Philadelphia, a Quay man, objected, and the journal clerk was compelled to continue the reading.

It meant that the supporters of the majority of the investigating committee would kill time by filibustering in order that the resolution to increase the committee might not be presented. At 11 o'clock Mr. Marshall of Allegheny called for the order of the day, which was adjournment.

Mr. Bliss, an anti-Quay member, made the point of order that there was no hour fixed for adjournment at the Friday session. Speaker Farr consulted with the clerks and then decided the point of order not well taken, and immediately adjourned the House. Instantly there was a wild scene of disorder, the anti-Quay men jeering the decision.

The hubbub increased as Speaker Farr left the chair, some members shouting after him:

"Run away! Run away!"

The clerks also disappeared.

Mr. McElhany of Alleghany moved that Mr. Bliss be called to the chair, and the motion was carried.

Taking the chair, Mr. Bliss called for the reading of the vote of members to ascertain whether a quorum of members was present.

Messrs. Ford of Alleghany and Moore of Butler acted as clerks.

Pending the recapitulation of the roll call, the chairman, Mr. Bliss, made a statement that the course of the speaker was arbitrary and revolutionary and that the House was now in session to protest against his action. He did not believe that any legislation should be attempted at this time. The roll call showed two less than a quorum present.

General Koontz wanted to know whether the speaker could arbitrarily adjourn the House by deserting his post, and the chair ruled that he could not.

After some further discussion of the situation, Mr. Clarency moved that a committee of five be appointed to consider the revolutionary conduct of Speaker Farr and make report to the House next Tuesday.

Chairman Bliss appointed Messrs. Clarency of Philadelphia, Young of Tioga, Dixon of Elk, Woodruff of Philadelphia and Palm of Crawford. The House then took a recess until 11.55 o'clock, to join the Senate in the session for a ballot for United States senator.

There is talk among the Democrats and "insurgent" Republicans of deposing Speaker Farr. In the course of the debate Mr. Stewart of Philadelphia said that the real purpose of the speaker's revolutionary course was to prevent the House from righting the wrong that was perpetrated when power was given him to appoint the investigation committee.

The excitement had not abated when the Senate and House went into joint session.

The joint ballot resulted: Quay 64, Jenks 55, Dalzell 13, Irvin 2, Stewart 7, Tubbs 2, Huff 8, Stone 4, Rice 2, Grow 1, Widener 2, Riter 2, Markle 1. Total, 163. Necessary to election, 82. No election.

In the course of the ballot Hersch and Yates of Philadelphia and Mackey of Lackanna changed from Quay to Huff, Widener and Rice, respectively.

Trains Crash on a Trestle.

New York, March 4.—A New York Susquehanna and Western passenger train, carrying four hundred and fifty passengers, a fourth of whom were women on their way from suburban towns in New Jersey to this city, crashed through a train of empty Pullman sleepers on the Pennsylvania Railroad trestle between Monmouth and Brunswick streets, Jersey City, just after 8 o'clock. Three of the Pullman cars were smashed into splinters, the wreckage was set on fire, and a wild panic was caused among the passengers on the Susquehanna train.

No one was hurt, but the engineers and firemen of the two trains had to jump for their lives.

The whole neighborhood was thrown into a state of wild excitement; seven police captains, with the reserve forces of two police stations, were sent to the scene, as were three fire engines from Jersey City and the entire fire extinguishing apparatus of the eastern terminal of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The loss in dollars will be considerable, because five sleeping cars were destroyed and the locomotive and first coach of the passenger train were badly damaged.

It is said that the accident was due to a confusion of signals.

Yale's Share in a Railroad.

New Haven, Conn., March 4.—Word has been received at Yale that the Indiana and Lake Michigan Railroad which is largely owned by the Yale corporation and Connecticut capitalists, has been purchased by their representative, ex-Governor Morgan G. Bulkley.

The road is forty miles long and runs from South Bend, Ind., to St. Joe, Mich., and is valued at one million dollars.

It has been operated by the Vanderbilt system, which pays seven per cent interest on its bonds.

The Pope Still Improving.

Rome, March 4.—The doctors announced that the pope's temperature was 37 degrees C., his pulsation 70 and his respiration 22.

The improvement in the pope's condition continues, though his weakness imposes the utmost precautions in his treatment. During the night he took some broth and a few spoonfuls of old wine.

DIFFERENCES OF BEEF

Army Officers Disagree As to Its Quality as a Ration.

REFRIGERATED MEAT GOOD

The Evidence Before the Army Board of Inquiry Continues in the Main to Condemn Canned Roast Beef Canned Corned Beef However Was Good, and Refrigerated Beef Was Not Embolmed.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The first witness before the army court of inquiry yesterday was Captain John C. Groome of the Philadelphia City Troop of Cavalry, which went to Porto Rico from Newport News. He knew of canned corned beef being used on the voyage and canned roast beef on the island. The men always cooked the tinned roast beef before eating it and made no complaints about it.

"I often ate it and tasted it," said Captain Groome. "It was good. I did not find anything the matter with it."

Speaking of the refrigerated beef, he said there was no complaint about it among the enlisted men or the officers. He had never had any reason to suspect that the refrigerated beef had been treated with chemicals.

Captain Groome said that the command on the return voyage from Porto Rico had refrigerated beef on the Mississippi, which was got from the Manitoba.

"How was it?"

"It was very good."

Captain Groome declared that the men of his troop ate the regular army ration while in Porto Rico and their health was not impaired. He brought ninety-three men back to the United States, and they were in good physical condition, being ready for duty the day after their debarkation from the Mississippi.

Jacob A. Case, late colonel of the Fourth Pennsylvania volunteers, was the next witness. After occupying different camps in the United States his command went to Porto Rico with General Brooke's expedition. While at Chickamauga the regiment was supplied with refrigerated beef of good quality, there being only a few complaints about its spoiling.

"Did you have any reason to believe it had been treated with chemicals?" asked Colonel Davis.

"Not the slightest. I never had any hint of anything of the kind. While in Porto Rico the regiment had canned roast beef and fresh native beef. I heard no complaints of the canned roast beef. I made a constant inspection of the food supply of my men and found cans of spoiled roast beef. Its spoiling was largely due to the ignorance of the men. I found that a can would be opened and after a part of its contents would be eaten the rest would be set aside, and in this way would spoil. In some cases I found meat spoiled from defects in the can. The greatest complaint we heard was in regard to the native beef. It was tough and not satisfactory. We were very glad to get the refrigerated beef. The regiment never had short rations."

"What was the health of your men during the service in Porto Rico?"

"I think it was fairly good, sir."

Colonel Case was unable to give the court a positive description of the cans of roast beef. He was not certain that the cans were exactly round and did not know if they were blue or red.

He said that he never had any reason to suppose that refrigerated beef had been treated with chemicals.

Alexander Gray, former captain in the Sixth Massachusetts volunteers, testified that there was general complaint in his regiment about the insufficiency of the rations on the voyage to Porto Rico. The men were put on short rations by orders, because it was not believed that the rations would last until the command reached its destination. This was on the transport Yale, on which General Miles had his headquarters.

In Porto Rico the men complained of the canned roast beef, saying it was not good. He examined several cans of a certain issue and found the meat tasteless. It was not inviting in appearance and had a bad odor. He reported the circumstances to his superior officers. Two-thirds of the issue was spoiled, the cans being swollen at the ends.

"What was the odor?"

"It was sickening."

What was the appearance?"

"Fatty, whitish and mucky."

"What was the taste?"

"The men said it had a bad taste. I called it tasteless."

The witness could not remember that the surgeon of his regiment ascribed illness in the command to either the insufficiency of the ration or the poor quality of the food.

Alfred F. Foote, late sergeant of Company D, Second Massachusetts, was the next witness.

"What complaints were made of the canned roast beef?" was asked.

"There was no official complaint, but the men did not like it," the witness replied. "It tasted bleached, like all the substance was out of it. It was stringy and covered with a whitish fat."

Speaking of the refrigerated beef, he said some of the issues were fairly good. Other issues got no further than regimental headquarters, where the condition of the meat resulted in its condemnation.

"What satisfaction did that beef give to the men?"

"Not very good satisfaction."

"When you acted as commissary sergeant what proportion of the beef did you have to reject?"

"About one-half."

"Was there complaint against it?"

"Yes. The men said it had a peculiar taste. We attributed the taste to the effect of the hot climate."

"In view of the condition of the men did they ever want for food after the refrigerated beef began to be supplied?"

"Well, only at times. Once we were without hardtack. Before the surrender, though, we subsisted for seventeen days on twelve days' rations, from June 7 to June 22. Later in July about sixty men had to subsist one day on one-half pound of bacon per man and fifty-three hard tack to be divided among the 60 men."

Pressed for a more definite statement the witness said he supposed it was due to lack of transportation.

DUN'S WEEKLY REVIEW.

Last February Was the Greatest of All Since Commercial Reports Began.

New York, March 4.—The business for the past month was far the greatest ever known in February. Clearing house exchanges were about $7,000,000,000, against $5,567,5[illegible],844 last year, and 54.2 larger than in 1892. In all the years of weekly commercial reporting there has been no other week in which the reports from all parts of the country have been on the whole so good as they are this week.

Moreover, during the past week there has been a general advance in wages, immediate or prospective. Iron works at Pittsburg and in the valleys set the pace which the Pennsylvania Steel Company, with six thousand hands, and the Sparrow's Point Works, with two thousand, and the great tin plate combination with many establishments have followed. The Fall River cotton mills agreed on Monday to an advance of eleven per cent., to take effect on April 1, and New Bedford and Taunton mills have followed, with the Amoskeag of Manchester, N. H., having ten thousand hands, and the Pacific of Lawrence, Mass., having five thousand, and many other textile works. Coal operators in West Virginia and some other states have taken the same course, and in Arkansas and Indian Territory about ten thousand miners are demanding a similar advance.

At most points the advance of ten per cent. or more was entirely voluntary. It has averaged five to ten per cent. in tin plate works, and about ten per cent. in other cases, and as it affects much over one hundred thousand hands, it will add greatly to the purchasing power of the wage earners.

The return of failures in February, while showing larger liabilities than in January, are highly encouraging. A rather unusual number of large failures in scattered branches of manufacture has swelled the aggregate, including one concern for $1,000,000 in electrical apparatus, but in nearly all branches the statement indicates a remarkably healthy condition in spite of these failures, while in trading the defaulted liabilities are smaller than in January or any previous winter month for six years.

In prices the striking feature has been the rapid advance in iron and steel products, resulting from a demand greater than the works in the country can supply. All works of importance have been crowded with orders running to July 1 or later.

The stock market ends for the week $1.45 per share lower for the average of railroads, with 35 cents higher for trusts. Nobody can guess what the many new combinations may possibly be worth. The earnings of railroads have been in three weeks of February 3.8 per cent. higher than last year, and 1.4 per cent. larger than in 1892, owing to extraordinary storms, which mean for them retention rather than stoppage of business.

Failures for the week have been in the United States 186, against 251 last year, and 47 in Canada against 32 last year.

CODY-GOULD TRIAL.

She Identifies Letters Written to Her by Mrs. Magaret Cody.

Albany, N. Y., March 4.—The testimony in the second trial of Mrs. Margaret E. Cody, charged with having attempted to blackmail the children and heirs of the late Jay Gould by threatening the publication of aspersions on the name of the dead millionaire, began here yesterday before Judge Gregory and a jury.

When Peter A. Delaney, the assistant district attorney of Albany county, opened the case yesterday morning by addressing the jurors upon their responsibilities in the trial of this case, Miss Helen Gould sat within the court circle, accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Munn. On her right sat one of the Gould's attorneys, De Lancey Nicoll, and immediately behind her John D. Lindsay and D. D. Duncan, also of counsel.

The defendant, Mrs. Cody, sat directly facing the jury, accompanied by Attorney B. C. Dugan of Albany, who is in charge of her defence.

The crowded court room, in which there was a fair sprinkling of interested women, showed that the intimation of the prosecution's counsel that new and startling testimony would be brought out yesterday, had gained general belief.

Miss Gould listened attentively to the opening of the case by Mr. Delaney. She wore a black tailor made gown and a small black toque, trimmed with ostrich feathers. A boa of mink encircled her neck and she carried a muff of the same fur.

When Mr. Delaney recited the death of the Gould parents and the shame which Mrs. Cody's allegations, if substantiated, would bring on the family, Miss Gould nervously fanned herself with a slender black lace fan, not a word of Mr. Delaney's remarks escaping her attention.

Mr. Delaney told the jury that the defendant's only possible purpose in making charges against the dead millionaire was to blackmail his family. The honor of the Gould family was at stake, to be sure, but, apart from that, the people of the state of New York owed all the people a duty to run down and punish all attempts at blackmail, whether committed by a poor widow upon the family of the rich or by the rich upon the defenceless poor.

Miss Gould was the first witness sworn. She was perfectly composed as she took the witness chair, and answered the questions of District Attorney Z. B. Dyer without the slightest intimation of embarrassment. The letters in the case, which were written to Miss Gould by Mrs. Cody in March and July, 1896, were shown to Miss Gould and were identified by her.

Miss Gould promptly denied, upon being questioned, that she had ever replied to either of these communications or to a further one bearing upon the same subject, dated at Denver October 26, 1896, and signed by a Mrs. Fitzpatrick.

To Avoid an Election in Spain.

Madrid, March 4.—The queen regent wishes to avoid a general election in the present unsettled condition of the country, and will consult with Senor Montero Rios, president of the Senate, and the Marquis Vega de Armijo, president of the Chamber of Deputies, prior to dissolving the Cortes, which Premier Sagasta recommends.

COMING EVENTS.

March 4—Meeting of newly-appointed committees at the Y. M. C. A. at 6 p. m.

March 4—Borough Republican primary meeting.

March 5—Rev. J. D. Belknap, Ph D., will speak and sing at the Y. M. C. A. meeting at 4:15 p. m.

The extension of the street railway system out Arlington avenue, as is now assured in the acquiring of a majority of the consents from the abutting property owners, will open a section of the city for residential purposes that has been put little developed in comparison to the growth of other parts of the town in the past few years. It is to be presumed that the necessary franchise will be obtained by the Street Railway Company under the same excellent terms that the recent privileges were granted to them by the Common Council.

The neighboring States that intend to become rivals of New Jersey in the incorporation of trusts had better do something more than talk about it, else there will be nothing left to incorporate. At any rate, if other States should extend the glad hand to the trusts it is not beyond reason that they may reject it with comment, "Thank you, we are doing quite well enough," and then continue to hie themselves to Jersey.

Election officers in Plainfield and other cities of less than 20,000 population need have no fear in the future that they will not receive just compensation for conducting the legal machinery designed for voters to use election day. Gov. Voorhees has signed the measure introduced by Assemblyman Murray, which provides that they shall receive a uniform rate of $5 for registration days and $10 for election day.

Robert Clark, Jr., of Jackson avenue, who was waited upon by a committee of prominent and influential Republicans in North Plainfield and urged to accept the Mayoralty nomination in opposition to Mayor Wilson, has positively declined to accept the honor. Mr. Clark's time is too much taken up with private interests to allow him to devote the time necessary to the office if he should be elected.

With the adjournment of Congress Senator that has been Smith will have plenty of time to devote to the enterprise of providing rapid transit to the people of Havana, Cuba, and Senator-that-is-to-be John Kean will have just the same amount of time less to spend propagating his numerous enterprises.

The Philadelphia Inquirer celebrated its tenth anniversary Thursday under the present managemnt. The Inquirer has been a notable success in one cent journalism, and today is recognized as one of the most enterprising and valuable newspaper properties in the world.

The letter of A. J. Leader, published in another part of today's Press, is a fair example of the feeling which many influential Republicans of the borough hold towards Col. Wilson. The fact that Mr. Leader leaves politicial "policy" out of the question and openly voices his sentiments so that all may understand his position, reflects to his credit.

Congressman Bailey announces his retirement from the canvass for election as leader of the Democratic minority in the House of Representatives next session. We suppose that part of Bailey's time in the future will be devoted to trying to get use to a dress suit.

Sheriff Kirk is ready to do his duty, but no doubt if the Court of Pardons decides to commute Roesel's punishment to life imprisonment the former will be glad of it. It is not a pleasant duty to kill a man—even if it is according to law.

With a flour, baking powder and milk trust, all of which New Jersey is now harboring, there seems to be no question but that we take the bun for making things pleasant for the capitalists who want an easy time of it.

The State Board of Taxation has taken an important stand in reference to taxing realty investments of charity associations, by deciding that municipalities have a legal right to levy taxes on such property.

Tonight the Republicans have their pow-wow in North Plainfield. It will have to be a hummer to beat the Democratic primary Thursday night.

The Cracker Barrel Club will die of exhaustion if there is not some letup in the political excitement across the brook in the near future.

Congress has made Dewey a full-fledged Admiral, but that does not prevent his most glorious work being in the Rear.

It is handshaking time in North Plainfield.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

"Hello, Mr. Thomas, how do you like Elizabeth?" was the familiar way in which Former Councilman Spangenberg saluted Rev. A. E. Main at the station yesterday morning. Mr. Spangenberg, like many others, was for a moment deceived by the close resemblance the Seventh-Day Baptist minister has to Reporter H. S. Thomas, formerly of the News staff, but now sporting editor of the Elizabeth Journal.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Next Tuesday evening the Sons of Veterans will hold a meeting of importance to every member.

—Samuel Dreier, of West Front street, is improving the looks of his property by setting out five fine shade trees.

W. E. Lowe and family, of Park avenue, have taken up their residence in the Hotel Savoy, New York, for a month.

—In a short time arrangements will be in course of preparation for the proper observance of Memorial Day. It is said that the celebration this year will be a grand one.

—The Easter celebration this year at the Catholic churches will exceed that of any previous year. Special preparations are being made to present a programme of rare excellence.

—The annual meeting of the teachers and officers of the First Baptist Sunday-school, which was to have been held Thursday, was postponed for one week as a quorum was not present.

—The work of placing the new offices for the local telephone company in shape is progressing rapidly and before long the exchange will be moved from North avenue to Park avenue.

—H. Werner, 206 West Front street, will sell the balance of his heavy-weight goods, consisting of overcoats and suits, at one-half the former prices, in order to make room for spring goods which are arriving daily.

Objects to Waiting.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I am a borough citizen who belongs to that class who have been waiting for twenty years or more for the opening of Duer street to Front street. Nearly three years ago an application was made to the Borough Council to that effect. The application was promptly laid on the table to wait, and whenever the matter is mentioned we are asked to wait. We have waited for the opening of Watchung avenue and many other improvements in all parts of the borough for which we are expected to help pay. Now we want to know how long this waiting process is to be kept up. We want to know when the nominations are made, and when the election takes place whether something is to be done or whether we are voting for waiters.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Those who have not witnessed the performances of the Miles Ideal Stock Company at Music Hall this week, should avail themselves of the opportunity tonight, which will be the last of their engagement. They have given good performances, established themselves as standard favorites and entitled to all praise. Tonight they appear in a great play of interest, entitled "New Mexico," with a lot of new specialties, and our own "Jack" Moran, the best amateur singer in the city, will surely appear and sing two new ballads.

In 1893, at the Bijou Theatre in New York, the eccentric Irish comedian Barney Ferguson appeared in his own play of "McCarthy's Mishaps," and the peculiar fun and quaint dialogue hit the popular taste so hard that the engagement originally intended for one month was extended into over five and success continued unabated. Both star and play have been seen in every city of the country and both are kept up to date by the adoption of all that is new and the creation of much that becomes at once popular. Manager Edwards announces this company for Tuesday night and a festival of pure fun is promised all who are at Music Hall that evening. The company is a large one and besides the three acts of laughter in the play a round dozen of clean, bright specialties are introduced by vaudeville artists of recognized merit. Regular prices will prevail and seats are now on sale at the box office.

Washburn's Big Double Minstrel Company—the best of all companies that have appeared here the past few years—will make their last appearance this season at Music Hall next Friday night.

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it, because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee 15 and 25c.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, March 4—The members of William G. Holton Council, No. 53, Jr. O. U. A. M., gave a dance in Apgar's Hall Thursday night. The hall was decorated with American flags and bunting and wore a patriotic appearance. There were sixty couples on the floor, and music for dancing was furnished by Guttman. Superintendent Adelman, of the Plainfield Street Railway, won the gratitude of every one from Plainfield who attended the dance by keeping a trolley car waiting until after 3 o'clock, and they were conveyed home without any trouble.

John Runyon, of Washington avenue, has an old paper in his possession which he prizes very much. It a receipt given to Mr. Runyon's father and dated February 10th, 1810. It is for the purchase of a coffin, for which the purchaser paid $1 50. Mr. Runyon and his father before him, were undertakers, and in those old days a funeral never cost over $10 or $15. People then were not buried in $100 caskets.

Dr. Brakeley's horse has been through the equine barber's hands, and looks sleek and handsome after being clipped.

Rev. C. M. Anderson, of the Westfield Methodist church, will address the Methodist Sunday-school tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. Jennie Smalley, of Plainfield, has been spending a few days with William Randolph, of Piscataway.

Rev. John Edgecombe, of Trinity church, Cranford, preached in Holy Innocents' church last night.

The Holy Communion will be celebrated in Holy Innocents' church tomorrow morning.

Mrs. William Schymer, of Westfield, spent yesterday visiting friends in the borough.

Mrs. Josephine Dunham has returned from a visit among friends in Jersey City.

Mrs. Cyrus Boice, of Plainfield, spent yesterday visiting friends in the borough.

Mrs. Daniel Randolph, of New Durham, is visiting friends in the borough today.

The last meeting of the present borough council will be held Monday night.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongued coated, pain continually in the back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts., guaranteed, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 4—A warm time is expected at the annual school meeting in the Westfield Club hall Monday evening when the Board of Education asks for an appropriation of $45,000, with which to build a new primary school. The women will take a prominent part in the meeting, for they have the right to vote for everything but trustees, and the men say that they will be on hand to defeat the plan to build a school on a piece of property on Elm street, which they claim is not the place for a school. The public opinion seems to be that the township should build two schools, one on each side of the track and that both of them should be built at a cost of about $25,000.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

Hints for Home Nursing.

Every housewife should have pasted on the door of her medicine chest, a list of rules for times of sickness, and for sudden emergencies. The medicine case, by the way, should be kept locked in order that juvenile fingers may not tamper with poison bottles.

In case of an unexpected chill from any cause, the never-failing hot water bottle (one of India rubber is best) should be used in combination with hot lemonade or coffee, and unless the difficulty is beyond home remedies, relief is sure to follow.

Hot black coffee is always excellent when an immediate stimulant is required as after a faiting fit or cramp, brought on by sea bathing.

After over exertion, a ten minutes' rub of alcohol and salt, followed by a complete rest and nourishing food, is frequently all the remedy required.

When a member of the family is taken seriously ill, and weeks of nursing are likely to follow, put the room in order quietly and dexterously, so that the patient may not be annoyed by any confusion.

If the room is hot and stuffy, close the blinds, and sprinkle them well with water, or if there are no blinds, hang up green cambric and keep it wet; the hot air passing through the wet curtain will be quickly cooled.

Clear out all unnecessary furniture, draw the bed out into the room, and keep the patient as quiet as possible.

Never put down pillows on an invalid's bed. Take off the heavy spread, should there be one, and keep the under sheet drawn tight, so that there will be no wrinkles.

Ice is a luxury not easily obtainable in all places, and is one of the hardest things to do without. Where ice is needed for external use and cannot be obtained, a cloth wrung out of cold water and waved in the air a moment can be used. Alcohol in the water, or poured on the cloth after it is wrung out, will tend to cool it. Sometimes bathing the face and hands with hot water—not warm—will prove more cooling than ice itself. Ice keeps well wrapped in newspaper, and little bits can be chipped off as needed.—New York Journal.

Cultivate Not Saying Don't.

"What is your name?" asked some one of a small boy who was always being nagged. "Charley Don't," he answered, having in his cheerful imperturbability mistaken the invariable accompaniment to his Christian name.

But few of us have the imperturbility of this child under the dont's of our families or our friends. Some of us have our spontaneity crushed. Some of us grow rebellious and indignant, and are in this way forced into opposite extremes, getting off our balance on the other side. And most of us grow self-conscious, and have periods in which we question every one of our best impulses, weighing them against our motives.

The development of many a young person sensitive to impressions is retarded for years by the thoughtless don't of an elder whose opinions they have been taught to respect. For many of the dont's are thoughtless springing from habit, and not from serious consideration. I know a wise old lady who said don't so many times one morning to a grown-up daughter that she detected herself in it at last and laughed. "Don't pay any attention to me," she said at last. "I only say it because I always have said it."—Harper's Bazar.

Good Taste in Stationery.

Emily Huntington Miller felicitously treats of "The Friendly Letter" in the Chautauquan, and lays down the following canons of good taste:

"Whims and fads in letter paper rise and fall with other fancies, and there is occasionally a brief reign of scarlet or lavender in fantastic shapes, but it is only in a certain grade of novels that the impasioned lover presses to his lips the rose-tinted, perfumed letter of his lady and wears it next his heart. To a healthily educated person a perfumed letter is an abomination, and a good quality of unruled, cream-white paper of such size as to fold once in the envelope is the only style that is sure of remaining always in good form. A violet sachet, with the faintest possible breath, laid in your writing desk, to obviate any possible odor from the sizing of paper, may be allowable. The monogram or other heading is a matter of individual taste, but must not be conspicuous, and once adopted should never be changed. A seal well formed is an elegant attachment, but it requires skill, and a shapeless blot of smoky wax can not be considered decorative."

A Dangerous Cleanser.

It is surprising, says a physician how many people persist in cleaning bottles with shot after the frequent cautions that have been given. Nothing cleans bottles so easily as a handful of shot, which can be shaken into every corner until the glass fairly shines with cleanliness, but the danger of lead poisoning is great, even when the bottle is rinsed out with clean water, and it is doubly dangerous when there is no rinsing out at all, as is usually the case. Clean sand is a convenient and thorough bottle cleanser especially as the particles of sand which adhere must be afterward washed out, to complete the process. When time is not an object, a bottle can be well cleansed by the aid of potato parings.

WHEN.

When cherries grow
on apple trees,
And kittens wear
lace caps;
And boys their sisters
never tease,
And bears wear

When all the nursery dolls and toys
Begin to dance and play,
Then little boys and little girls
May lie in bed all day.

When donkeys learn to sing and dance,
When pigs talk politics;
When London is a town in France,
When two and two make six;
When drops of rain are real pearls,
When coal is clear and white,
Then little boys and little girls
May sit up late at night.

G. Clifton Bingham.

The Snake's Tail.

The Japanese children play some good games that might help American youngsters through a wintry afternoon. The girls, big girls, too, have a very pretty ball game that they call "yemari," which means hand ball, but it is not at all the same thing as the hand ball we know. A number of them stand in a circle, one of them takes the ball—they use one about two inches in diameter—and throws it perpendicularly on the ground. As it rebounds she strikes it back with her open hand. This she does as often as she can do so without moving from her place in the circle, but when it rebounds nearer to some other girl—as it will be sure to do soon—it is the part of that girl to strike it down. So the games goes on till some girl fails to hit when she should, or to make it rebound, and then she is cast out of the circle. The game goes on till only one girl is left, and then she has the honors of the game, "kachi," or victory, as the girls call it.

There is another merry game called "catching the snake's tail." One player is selected to be the catcher, and the rest range themselves in a row, one behind the other, each child putting his or her hands on the shoulders of the child in front of him.

The catcher stands in front of the row some feet away, and when the row is ready the game commences, and it consists of the catcher's efforts to catch the last child in the row, while the row refends its tail, the snake's tail. This is usually the smallest child playing, for the row is graduated by size; the catcher must not push any one in the row, and the chain of the row must not be broken; either action constiutes a "foul;" when the "tail" is caught that child becomes catcher, and the catcher becomes the tail.

A variation on this game is for the catcher to cry out that he will catch a child. "Which child do you want?" asks the head of the row, and then the catcher says third, or fifth, or whatever he will, and then the row tries to defend that child under the same conditions as before.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Monkeys as Miners.

A traveler arriving from the Transvaal tells of an inhabitant of Pretoria, a gold miner, who owned two little monkeys—intelligent animals that were accustomed to follow him into the galleries. They saw the workmen engaged in picking up the mineral, and, in virtue of their gift of imitation, they did the same.

Distinguishing easily the traces of the precious metal they soon became expert collaborateurs and the proprietor thought he saw a career plainly indicated for otner monkeys.

He procured a force of twenty-four of them, which, initiated by the two first, soon became so expert as to replace five or six workmen and to pick up the ore nicely in little heaps.

These monkeys, it appears, were very honest, not having been perverted by the human miners. They did not think of stealing or hiding the nuggets, they did not drink; they were not difficult in the matter of wages, they did not dream of organizing a syndicate. In short, they are model workmen.

Kitty a Good Electrician.

An ingenious Augusta boy has found a new way of putting in electric wires that deserves to be patented. His mother had given him permission to have an electric light in his room if he would put in his own wiring. In order to do this it was necessary to carry the wires from one room to another. How to do this in a neat and workmanlike manner was a perplexing problem, but the young man was equal to it. He bethought himself of a pet cat which was greatly devoted to him and would answer readily to his call. A good stout string was attached to Kitty's tail, and she was put under the flooring and called through from one room to the other. With the aid of this string the wires were soon in place, and in a manner, too, that would have done credit to the best workman in the city.—Bangor, Me., Commercial.

"So your new star made an instantaneous success?" said the manager's friend.

"Yes," was the reply. "That comes pretty near expressing it. She made a good impression when she did come on the stage; but it was all over in a moment."—Washington Evening Star.

BLAINE'S GRAVE.

A Plain Monument Erected Over His Last Resting Place.

The shattered oak which for about six years marked the grave of James G. Blaine in Oak Hill cemetery, has been replaced by a simply inscribed headstone, a duplicate of one which was placed over the grave of Walker Blaine, the great statesman's favorite son.

In 1890, after the sad death of Walker Blaine, and while the body was still lying in the historic old mansion in Madison place, Mr. Blaine, accompanied by a friend, went to Oak Hill cemetery to select a lot. The sad duty intensified the grief which the death of his son had caused, and he talked in a melancholy strain of the tricks which had checked his ambition and deprived him of the hope of perpetuating his name.

In the eastern part of the cemetery, half way down the terrace on the western bank of Rock creek, was a lot, with a picturesque view to the northeast, and, in the centre, a gnarled and twisted oak tree, blasted and dead. Mr. Blaine pointed out the tree with its lifeless branches, and remarked than it aptly represented his own blasted hopes. He took the lot and asked that nothing but the solitary tree should mark his own grave.

The remains of Walter Blaine were buried in the lot, and later it received the body of Mrs. Coppinger, wife of General Coppinger, and daughter of Mr. Blaine. Simple headstones marked their graves, and the space by the tree was reserved for the body of the Maine statesman.

During his illness, which began in November, 1892, Mr. Blaine, anticipating the end, again made the request that his body be laid beside the tree, with no other mark to indicate his last resting-place. His wish was faithfully observed, and after his death, in January, 1893, his remains were quietly conveyed to the cemetery and privately interred, with the stricken tree for a gloomy sentinel.

The old tree stood until last winter, when, during a heavy storm, it was so badly shattered as to deprive it of its melancholy beauty. The friends of Mr. Blaine were anxious that some suitable memorial be placed at the head of the grave, and, after carefully considering the matter, Mrs. Blaine decided about six months ago to have a duplicate made of the headstone which marked the grave of Walker Blaine.

With great care a suitable block of Vermont marble was selected and the monument completed. It is eight feet high and of the simplest design. It is devoid of any ornamentation and bears the simple inscription:

JAMES GILLESPIE BLAINE.
Born Jan. 31, 1830.
Died Jan. 27, 1893.

Half a dozen workmen took the stone out to Oak Hill and in a driving snowstorm placed it at the head of the great statesman's last resting-place. There were no ceremonies.

The Mouth.

The mouth is the frankest part of the face. It can the least conceal the feelings. We can neither hide ill-temper with it nor good. We may affect what we please, but affectations will not help us. In a wrong cause it will only make our observers resent the endeavor to impose upon them. A mouth should be of good natural dimensions, as well as plump in the lips. When the ancients, among their beauties, made mention of small mouths and lips, they meant small only as opposed to an excess the other way, a fault very common in the South. The sayings in favor of small mouths, which have been the ruin of so many pretty looks, are very absurd. If there must be an excess either way, it had better be the liberal one. A pretty, pursed-up mouth is fit for nothing but to be left to its complacency. Large mouths are oftener found in union with generous dispositions than very small ones. Beauty should have neither, but a reasonable look of openness and delicacy. It has an elegance in lips, when, instead of making sharp angles at the corner of the mouth, they retain a certain breadth to the very verge, and show the red. The corner then looks painted, with a free and liberal pencil.

A Long Service.

A description of the old New England Sabbath is calculated to make restless children of the present day and possibly some of their elders thankful they were not born two centuries ago.

The Sabbath began Saturday afternoon with the going down of the sun.

Sunday morning a horn was loudly blown to announce the hour of worship. Service began at 9 o'clock and lasted for eight hours, with an intermission of one hour for dinner and conversation. In the earliest days the congregation sat on rude benches, their seats being assigned them at town meeting. The service consisted of several parts, which are chronicled in an ancient diary as follows:

"Preliminary prayer or invocation; chapter of Bible read and expounded; psalm in meter, read out line by line by Deacon S.; long prayer on various matters, one hour and a half; sermon of 100 to 250 pages; at close of service, baptism; sinners put on trial, confessed before congregation. Minister C. bowed right and left, no person stirring till he had passsed down and out of the meeting house."—Youth's Companion.

Professor Smith—"No one can conceive of the slow and awful lapse of geological time."

Brown—"I don't know. I've had a plumber working for me by the day."

Sachsen.

Dresden. Das sächsische Ministerium des Innern hat verordnet, daß die ausdrückliche Genehmigung der nächsten Verwandten zur Sektion auch bei solchen Todten erforderlich ist, die bei Lebzeiten in öffentlichen Heilanstalten eine Freistelle inne hatten.—Das hiesige Schwurgericht verurtheilte eif Brauarbeiter, die gewaltthätig bei Kameraden die Innehaltung des Zehnstundentages erzwingen wollten, wegen Landfriedensbruches zu Strafen von vier Jahren Gefängniß bis zu zehn Jahren Zuchthaus.

Leipzig. Polnische Arbeiter sind hier wegen ihres rohen und herausfordernden Wesens wenig gern gesehene Gäste. Wiederholt schon haben solche sich schwerer Thätlichkeiten gegen deutsche Arbeiter schuldig gemacht und dieser Tage überfielen ihrer drei einen Schutzmann, der sie wegen ruhestörenden Lärmens verwiesen hatte, packten ihn und schlugen auf ihn ein, so daß er gezwungen war, von dem Seitengewehr Gebrauch zu machen. Erst mit Hilfe mehrerer Vorübergehenden gelang es, die Angreifer festzunehmen.—Aehnlich wie eine Reihe anderer, turnerischer Vereinigungen hat auch die Gauturnerschaft des Leipziger Schlachtfeldgaues, der über 8000 Turner zählt, beschlossen, die Betheiligung an den geplanten deutschen Nationalfesten abzulehnen, da diese nicht der erzieherischen Gesammtausbildung des Körpers, sondern mehr dem Sport dienten.

Thüringische Staaten.

Eisenach. Das hiesige „Lutherhaus," in dem Luther als Schüler bei Frau Cotta gewohnt hat, ist in ein Restaurant umgewandelt worden. Oelgemälde von Professor Weiß (Nürnberg): „Luther als Kurrendeschüler singend vor Frau Cotta" und „Luthers Einzug in die Wartburg nach dem Reichstag von Worms."

Oldisleben. Hier wurden von Einbrechern das Oekonomen-Ehepaar Mueller und dessen zwei Kinder ermordet.

Freie Städte.

Hamburg. Zwei Direktoren des Vulkan in Stettin waren kürzlich hier, um über die Anlage von Werften und Docks in Curhaven zu verhandeln.—In Folge Selbstentzündung von Schafwolle brach an Bord des Bremer Hansa-Dampfers „Marienburg" Großfeuer aus, das nach vier Stunden gelöscht wurde. Die Ladung ist größtentheils vernichtet, das Schiff beschädigt.—Der Senat hat beschlossen, an der verlängerten Martinistraße eine Anstalt für Augenkranke mit einem Kostenaufwand von 350,000 Mark erbauen zu lassen.

Bremen. Unter der Anklage des Straßenraubes standen vor dem Schwurgericht der Hausknecht Franz Anton Neumeister aus Osternburg, 28 Jahre alt, sechs Mal bestraft, und der Arbeiter Gottlieb Friedrich Kreib, 48 Jahre alt, bereits 76 Mal bestraft. Sie hatten im November v. J. den 60 Jahre alten Schmied Ernst Apitz überfallen und ihm seiner Baarschaft von circa 17 Mark beraubt. Das Gericht erkannte gegen Neumeister auf 2½ Jahre Gefängniß, gegen Kreib auf 5 Jahre Zuchthaus.—Kapitän Hollmann von dem hiesigen Dampfer „Hermann" ist auf der Reise von New Orleans nach Dünkirchen durch eine Sturzsee über Bord geschwemmt worden und ertrunken.

Lübeck. Vor dem Burgthore in der Nähe des Brückenbaues beim Elbe-Trave-Kanal wurden durch das Einstürzen einer sieben Meter hohen Erdschicht zwei Arbeiter verschüttet. Während der eine, Namens Grothusen, mit geringen Hautabschürfungen davongekommen ist, konnte der andere, Namens Gaebel, nur als Leiche wieder hervorgezogen werden. Der Verunglückte hinterläßt Frau und Kind.

HORSELESS AGE.

Then We Shall Indeed Have Clean Streets in Our Cities.

A contemporary newspaper writer has made a column of pleasant reading by forecasting the great increase in the pleasure of living in New York that will follow the disuse of the horse as a motive power for vehicles. He points out that although the use of cables and electricity for hauling street cars has turned a great number of horses out of town, and the increasing prevalence of electric cabs and delivery wagons implies the departure of many more, horses are still used for the trucking and heavy work, and the spread of asphalt is limited by the necessity of leaving in many streets and avenues the stone pavement which is required for work too heavy for asphalt. But when the autotrucks prevail and do the heavy work of the town, and contrivances of compressed air or electricity have superseded the horses for that, as they promise to for most other uses, then stone pavements may be abolished altogether. The smooth pavements which succeed them may be kept much cleaner than it is possible to keep block pavements. The dirt which now comes with traffic will be largely done away with, and the horses themselves will have ceased, in great measure, to augment the labor of the street cleaners. There will be no dust then, or at least not much. Lines of horseless stages will supplement the street cars, and the clamor of trucks wheels over stones will have departed. A clean city will influence the people who live in it to an increased cleanliness.

It is delightful to think how clean the cities will be when the changes already fast progressing are complete, and the horseless wagon has driven out the horse. Nice people must remember, however, that cities have other means of defilement besides the horse, and that the great work of dismissing filth from the sidewalks will still be of the dogless dog. The natural dog, designed by the Creator, is, like the natural horse, a delightful creature in the country, and fit to be the friend of rural man; but for street use in town the dogless dog is one of the most vociferous wants of the time. No doubt we shall have him presently, but meanwhile, if we get rid of the horse, we must walk circumspectly when we walk abroad.—E. S. Martin, in Harper's Weekly.

Engines Exchange Compliments.

The Railroad Gazette record of train accidents for January was not so long as it might have been, for two engines which tried to touch noses out in Iowa failed to carry out their evil purposes. For the particulars we are indebted to an eloquent contemporary. It was near Sioux City, the trains being a passenger and a freight of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha. A special freight train bound south ought to have waited at Leeds, a few miles north of Sioux City, for the northbound passenger train, but the conductor and the engineman of the freight train had forgotten about the passenger and "they were steaming ahead at a furious rate, without a thought of danger." The conductor and engineman of the passenger train, having the right of the road, were likewise steaming ahead, with a similar absence of thought; but danger was right there, and ever since that hour the conductors and enginemen have very frequently shuddered.

"If the morning had been foggy, instead of bright and clear," says The Sioux City Times, "or if either of the enginemen had not been on the alert as they were, it seems certain the monster locomotive, with its load of fat stock hurrying toward the market, and the panther-like passenger engine, long and slim, with its burden of humanity, would have rushed together in deadly embrace. The two engines caught sight of each other at the same instant. Then there was quick work in the cabs, and in thirty seconds the two stopped on the curve near the residence of Alderman Tredway, with a distance of about two blocks between them

"The engineman of the passenger train, pale with excitement, leaned out of his window and asked John B. Cosgrove, section foreman for the Illinois Central, 'What in Sam Hill is that up the track?' 'Second section of 15,' answered the track boss, who had seen the danger the trains were in and who is said to have signaled the passenger train. He also was doing some nervous shaking. 'Toot, toot!' shrieked the passenger engine. 'Toot, toot, toot-e!' sullenly responded the big mogul, which began to move its train backward."—Railroad Gazette.

Bird Migration.

Recent estimates of the speed of migration flights have been curiously inflated by an idea of one of the most conscientious of observers, the late Dr. Gatke, and the wide popularity of his fifty years' record of bird migration watched from Heligoland gave wide currency to his views. They assigned a rate of speed to birds when migrating which on any ground but that of actual observation was quite incredible. The two test cases were that of the gray crow, which he estimated at 108 geographical miles an hour, and that of the small blue-throated warbler, to which he gave an even higher rate of progression.

Some birds cannot fly slowly. These include nearly all the ducks, Widgeon, teal, mallard, pochards, scaups, and long-tailed ducks always fly "full bat." But then they, when crossing the sea, can always pitch on the water when tired out. There is another class of birds which usually fly at a great pace, though they can and do "ease off" when they like. These are all those speedy, sickle-winged birds like golden plover, stints, knots, godwits and other shore fowl.

PORTCHESTER'S OLD MILL.

It Was Operated by Tide Power Two Centuries Ago.

The old Graves grist mill at Portchester, N. Y., is being torn down, and the people living thereabouts regret its disappearance because it had been a landmark so long. What remains of the old mill stands on the west bank of the Byram River, the boundary line of Portchester, between New York and Connecticut. The building was build of wood, one story and an attic high, the rough board siding covered with clayboards and the roof covered with shingles. The timbers were hewn from white oak logs mortised together and fastened with large wooden pins. As supports to the timbers, hewn crotches of trees were used. What nails were used in the construction were hand-made of wrought iron.

The durability of the work of early carpenters and joiners is shown as the old mill is pulled apart. The timbers, nearly as sound as the day they were put in, were so firmly put in place that those who are razing the building experienced great difficulty in dislodging them from their original position. The clapboards are of cedar, and although they have been exposed to the weather for two centuries, most of them are as sound today as when they were put in. No one knows just when the old mill was built. There is an authentic record that the mill was standing as early as 1687, and the probability is that it was built somewhat earlier.

The mill was operated by the tide power, and could be run only during the time the tide was going out, a little more than six hours in the twenty-four. The overshot wheel would turn only when the millpond was full or approximately full. It was therefore desirable that the miller should lose no time in getting at work as soon as the incoming tide made the water in the millpond high enough to operate. In order that he might be on hand at the very moment the tide began to fall, the miller used to sleep in the mill. In the early times there was not any such thing as an alarm clock, and, to make certain that he would not oversleep himself, the miller arranged an alarm of his own contrivance. He placed a large bell in such a position that when the tide began to come in and the mill wheel began to turn a stick attached to the wheel would hit the bell at regular intervals.

The old mill was the place to which the New York, Long Island, and Connecticut farmers for miles around used to bring their grain to be ground. And not only grain, but they brought bone, logwood, lime, ginger, spices, rock salt, and other articles which need to be ground before they are used. These products were brought to the mill in ships, up the Sound from Long Island and across the Bryam from Connecticut.

THE SLIME OF FISHES.

Common to All Species and Essential to Their Existence.

A fish just taken from the water, if handled, is found to be slippery and coated with slime. All fishes, the meanest and noblest, killifish and shark, shad, salmon, and trout, wear this slime. They could not exist without it.

The slime is secreted usually in a continuous series of ducts with numerous openings, arranged in a line extending along the side of the fish. Some fishes have one line on a side, some have five or six. The lines may be plainly visible, and in some cases appear to be a marking on the fish. More often they are not observable at all. Some fishes store this secretion in pores distributed over the whole surface of the body, the larger number, however, in pores, in lateral lines. There are also pores for the secretion of mucus, or slime, in the fish's head.

The slime is exuded through the divisions between the scales to the outer part of the body, over which it spreads, covering, transparent, and having elasticity and tenacity, and often considerable body. It would not be remarkable for a fair sized fish, say a fish of two pounds weight, to have a coating of slime a thirty-second of an inch in thickness. Fishes vary greatly in the amount of slime which they secrete; the eel will suggest itself as one that is very slimy.

The fish's slimy coating reduces its friction when in motion and helps to increase its speed. It aids in protecting the scales from injury, being of sufficient substance to serve in some measure as a cushion. Slimy covering makes the fish hard to hold, and so enables it the more readily to escape from its enemies. It is sometimes repugnant to other fishes, which are repelled by its odor. It is the slime from the fishes handled that makes the angler "smell fishy," as the expresion goes.

A most important function of the fish's slimy coating is to protect it from the atacks of fungus, a form of plant life found in all waters, salt and fresh, including the purest. The slime covers the entire exterior surface of the fish, including the fins. Fungus does not attach to the slime; but if the fish were to be injured so that there was upon it some minute fragment of fungus, so small as to be scarcely more than visible, would be likely to lodge. Once lodged, the fungus is reproduced very fast.

Fish sometimes recover from attacks of fungus, but much more often they do not. The fungus displaces the skin, inflammation is set up, and the place attacked becomes practically a sore. With its continued growth the fungus may cover the side of the fish and extend over the gills and finally kill it.

MISS ADDAMS TALKS.

SHE POINTS OUT DEFECTS IN THE MODERN CHURCH.

Invited by the Ministers of Chicago She Gives Her Views—No Sympathy With Those Who Denounce the Theatre—Must Teach Morals and Ethics.

A short time since the Methodist ministers of Chicago invited Miss Jane Addams of Hull house, the well-known social settlement of that city, to address them. Miss Addams is one of the broadest minded women on the continent. The ministers asked her to point what in her opinion were the defects in the working machinery of the modern church. She confined her attention to the Protestant church and to its lack of success in reaching the masses. Miss Addams spoke with great directness and what she said must have made many of the ministers stare. But all admitted that her views, though radical, were in the main correct. She told the ministers in the first place that the church did not adapt its methods to the special needs of the city. The methods wherewith the church has achieved great success in reaching the people in rural communities are entirely inadequate in a large city. In the country town the church is invariably the social center. Whatever of interest takes place in the town is usually held in the church. It is the common center where everyone meets, not alone for spiritual guidance, but for social diversion as well.

People who do not care for religion in the abstract, says Miss Addams, are attracted to the country church. In the city, however, the situation is different. The city houses people of all degrees and life is more complex. The church is compelled to compete with theatres, music halls and social organizations of every kind. The church simply cannot compete if it restricts itself to the usual Sunday services and the weekly prayer meetings. It must give to the great masses of the people that social recreation which they find in the theatre and in the dance hall.

Equally courageous was miss Addams attitude upon the theatre. She has no sympathy with those who denounce the theatre as wholly bad. Indeed she defends in a measure the cheap theatres which are located in the vicinity of Hull house and makes the wide distinction that they are unmoral rather than immoral. They are melodramatic in the extreme. They arrive at their climaxes by blowing up a locomotive or by rescuing a shrieking girl from the sixth story of a burning building. The plays are sensational, the situations are impossible, but Miss Addams points to the fact that they are not nearly so deleterious as the fashionable play which has for its motive some unclean story of domestic life. Indeed, in a way they carry their lesson. Villainy is always hissed and the good is always applauded.

"I would not," says Miss Addams, "make the church a theatre, but you have got to teach morals and ethics along more attractive lines. I believe if Christ came to earth again and he found the church steeple or the long sermon or the music and singing needed changing he would not hesitate to change it if by so doing he could reach men. The saloons are doubtless an evil and I am no friend of them, yet they do supply a great deal of unimposed and unstilted good fellowship. The young men and women who work in our churches so often make their friendship unnatural and give it a professional air. The people detect this readily and resent it."

Miss Addams again told the ministers that they did not sufficiently try to understand the point of view of the workingman. From the point of view of the church they have souls to be saved. That is true, but the pressing problem of millions of working men is not how they may save their souls, but how may they get a little more physical and mental comfort out of the present life.

Doubtless, says Miss Addams, if they would go to church they would learn much that would help them, but they feel that the church is not organized to reach them or to supply their needs and they do not go to it. It behooves the church to go to them and to show them sympathetically and patiently how it may help them.

It is a radical statement for a Methodist minister to make, but one present did make it and he voiced the sentiments of the majority of the ministers at the meeting when he said:

"I believe all Miss Addams said to us is true and more. I know the church is not reaching the masses. Only last week I stood watching a crowd of men building a sewer near my church. I wanted to reach them and say something to them, but I couldn't. It seemed as if a great wall was built between myself and the men in the ditch. We as a church are not reaching the people. There is more brotherhood in the saloon and the theatre and the mutual benefit society, and I mean to try to have a brotherhood spirit in my church."

Would be Popular Here.

In the island of New Britain a man must not speak to his mother-in-law. Not only is speech forbidden to his relative, but she must be avoided, and if by chance the lady is met the son-in-law must hide himself or cover his face.

Besides a soap trust and many other trusts recently formed we are now to have a brick trust. Of the poet who wrote "Man wants but little here below," were alive in these trust-ful days he'd have to modify his words a little, or else go out of the business entirely.

FARE ONE DOLLAR.

He Was a Quiet-looking Man, but He Knew How to Shoot.

The ticket agent at Big Bend was not the man for the place, and he realized it as well as many others. He was a nice man, too, and knew his business, but he lacked sand. The fare from Big Bend to Black Hill was a dollar, but when any of the crowd wanted to go down they handed in two or three quarters, as the case might be, poked five or six inches of a revolver through the window, and called out:

"Ticket for Black Hill, and don't waste too much time over it!"

The agent always handed out a ticket, and pretended that things were all right, and the boys played it on him till he had to throw up his job. One day the old man left, and the new one took his place, and four or five of the gang went to the depot to size the latter up. When they returned to camp there was a majority and a minority report. Bill Thompson was spokesman for the majority, and he said:

"He's the softest thing in these yere parts. I'm not going to buy any more tickets, but I'll scare 'em outer him. The sight of a gun will make his h'ar curl."

Bob Williams was spokesman for the minority, and was also the minority as well. He looked very serious as he said:

"He's a pale-faced, humble-lookin' critter, but don't make no mistake on him. He carries his forefinger kinder curled up, as if pullin' trigger, and the first man who shoves a gun in on him is goin' to get hot lead in return."

The camp was divided on the question, and after much talk Bill Thompson offered to make the test and settle the problem. In a day or two a score of us went down to witness the performance. We were hanging about the waiting room when in walked Bill with a whoop, and advancing to the ticket window, he gruffly inquired the fare to Black Hill.

"One dollar," was the reply.

"A dollar fur me—Bill Thompson?"

"Yes, sir, for you or anybody else."

"And you won't take a half?"

"No, sir."

"You won't take it with this thing behind it?" continued Bill, as he shoved the coin along with the muzzle of his gun.

"No, sir, and—!" There was a pop! pop! pop! and six bullets were chasing each other into William's anatomy. He lost a finger, had an ear split, an eyebrow shot off, got a rake across the chin and another across the scalp, and he didn't have time to fall until all was over. Then the agent opened the door of his office, and looked us over and said:

"I didn't shoot to kill, and he isn't hurt much. The fare to Black Hill is one dollar—exactly one dollar. Any one else want to get to Black Hill for a quarter?"

Without a word in reply we picked Bill up and lugged him off. He was also a very silent man. We had got him all bandaged up and put to bed before he was ready to talk, and then he simply inquired:

"Boys, who did all that shootin'?"

"Why, the feller you said you could bluff," answered one of the boys.

"——! but I thought I did!" he growled as he turned his face to the wall and shed tears.—Washington Star.

Beyond Doubt.

Among the many good things told some years ago of Colonel Utley, well known as a Wisconsin editor, and also as the hero of more than one military story, is a little incident which illustrates his ability to make a good-natured joke.

During the war, while Colonel Utley was in command of a Wisconsin regiment stationed in Kentucky, he attained some notoriety by allowing his men to harbor and protect a poor negro boy who had escaped from his master. The boy came north and the master brought suit for his value against Colonel Utley.

One day the colonel went from his home to Milwaukee, and while there he met a friend who asked him how his case was progressing.

"Very well," replied the Colonel. "I think I shall win it, although I have the smartest lawyer at the Milwaukee bar against me."

"Why, he isn't our smartest lawyer by any means," said the friend, with evident surprise.

"Oh, certainly he is," responded the colonel, with conviction.

"How do you know?" persisted his friend.

"Know! Why, man alive, he acknowledged it himself!"

How Cloth is Made Waterproof.

The process now in use among the Yorkshire cloth-makers for waterproofing cloth is one that may be undertaken by private persons in their own homes and is as follows: Dissolve one ounce of isinglass in one pound of water and a quarter of an ounce of soap in one pound of water, all separately. Strain the solutions, mix them and let them simmer for some time. Brush the preparation while hot over the cloth, and when dry brush it well and lay on another coat, all on the wrong side. The cloth will be fit for use in two or three days.

The Wife's Retort.

The infant of the house was in its cradle. The head of the house was at home, peevish and fault-finding. At length he became unendurable, as he growled out;

"You have done nothing tonight but make mistakes."

"Yes," she answered meekly. "I began by putting the wrong baby to bed."

CEMETERY FOR DOGS.

Decent Burial for Pets in Graves Sold or Leased.

A society has just been founded in Paris whose object is the creation of a cemetery for dogs. M. Harmois, the editor of a popular magazine, is the originator of the project. The almost total absence in Paris of the back garden makes it a difficult matter to carry out a canine funeral with anything approaching decency. The more devoted owners of dogs convey the carcasses of their pets to the open spaces in the surrounding suburbs, with the result that every now and then the papers contain accounts of some dereaved person being arrested by a local policeman on the charge of clandestinely burying a baby, whereas all he had done was to consign his pug or his spaniel to its last resting place.

As a rule, of course, no such trouble is taken, and the dog's hearse is the dust cart. A strong contingent of the departed find their way to the Seine, out of which river in the course of its passage through Paris some 20,000 carcasses are fished out annually, the majority of them those of dogs. The watery burial is bad for the nectar we are usually asked to drink for a week or two in the height of summer, and is an ignominious end for the animals who suffer it. Considerations of this kind have induced M. Harmois to start his scheme. He applied for help to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, but that body decided at its last general meeting that its responsibility ended with the decease of its clients. In reality the society's policy is one of masterly inactivity throughout, and it is held in such slight esteem that one of its most distinguished members has publicly asserted that on the only occasion on which he ventured to intervene in its name he was taken into custody for creating a disturbance and stopping traffic.

However, M. Harmois has succeeded in obtaining sufficient support to start his enterprise. The site of his cemetery has already been selected on some waste ground near the old fortifications, and early in the coming year candidates for admission will be able to find accommodation. The graves may be leased for as many years or few years as the dog owner considers to be the measure of his solicitude, and naturally the erection of simple gravestones or elaborate monuments will be allowed. Finally, for the benefit of pet owners in general, portions of the cemetery will be set aside for all the varieties of man's animal friends and companions, from parrots to marmosets, from canaries to cats.

"Shylock."

For the name of Shylock which has never been derivitely or historically interpreted to our knowledge, Prof. Paulus Cassel, the German theologian and historian, of Berlin, gives the following satisfactory explanation in his interesting book entitled, "Literature and Symbolics," a recent publication of this voluminous writer on culture and archaeology. Ock, he says, is a word termination found in many ancient Irish names, which somehow corresponds to the Latin ending "us." Shyl is the Hebrew name of Shaul. Saul, in Latin Saulus. "The poet," observes Prof. Cassel, "represents in Shylock the Old Testament zealot and persecutor, who wields the sword of the letter, and who, changed into St. Paul, proclaims the truth that the letter killeth, the spirit giveth life, and love is the fulfillment of the law."

An Audacious Thief.

A country gentleman of Cheshire was once sent galloping 20 miles to fetch the police to catch the thief who had stolen a check from inside an envelope which was inside his own letter box, in his own hall gate—all through a tomtit. The envelope and the covering letter were there, but the whereabouts of the check might have remained as great a mystery as any Thames embankment robbery in open daylight, but that when the gentleman and the police arrived and proceeded solemnly to inspect the letter box two tomtits were discovered inside. This led to a search, and 20 yards off, lying on the ground, with beak marks upon it, was the check. Whether the tomtits had returned to find out in whose name they should forge the endorsement to the check is not clear, but this new development of the criminal tendancy, which has always been latent in the whole race of tits, cannot be too strongly reprobated.

Even the jackdaw of Rheims, the "horrid example" of larcenous birddom, would never have stolen a check. When he purloined the cardinal's signet ring, and suffered terribly from the pip when excommunicated for his crime, he had sufficient good feeling to repent heartily and bring back the stolen jewel. Its glitter had appealed, too, more to his sense of beauty than to any sordid love of filthy lucre. He stole the ring to be a thing of beauty and a sparkling joy in his dark niche under the belfry, rather than with a view of pawning or selling it and spending the proceeds in riotous living.—Longman's Magazine.

The Oath Act.

Baron Lionel Nathan de Rothschild, the uncle and father-in-law of the late Baron Ferdinand de Rothschild, was a member of parliament of the House of Commons in several parliaments before he was permitted to vote or even take his seat. He refused to take the oath of office on anything but the Old Testament. A special act was passed in 1858, which omitted for Jewish members the concluding words of the oath, "On the true faith of a Christian."

THE GREAT INDOOR GAME

WHAT IS GOING ON IN LOCAL BASKET BALL CIRCLES.

Happenings of Interest to Plainfield Enthusiasts—What the Local Teams are Doing—Gossip Among the Players.

Manager George E. Fuller, of the Plainfield Y. M. C A. basket ball team has announced that the game with Summit Y. M. C. A., that was to be played here Monday evening, has been postponed a week.

The girls basket ball team of the Plainfield High School is preparing for several games this spring. It was expected that the team would go to Montclair to play the High School girls of that place Wednesday afternoon. There seems to be some misunderstanding between the two teams about a return game to be played in this city and so the game in Montclair may be postponed again. The Tompkinsville Acacemy, the East Orange High School and the Teachers College of the University of New York are all anxious to meet the young women who represent the Plainfield High School.

About La Vida Corsets.

A Few Words That We Believe Will Interest Every Woman Reader.

These Corsets are made for us by one of the greatest manufacturers in this country (not France, where most gored corsets come from.) The materials are bought in France, but they're too far behind the age in the manufacture of corsets to suit us.

The Imported Corset of today, in nine cases out of ten, has to be altered, and once altered the lines of the entire corset become changed, throwing the figure out of proportion in one way or another.

La Vida Corsets are constructed on French Ideas but to fit American Figures (the best in the world). They are full French Gored, Handmade, with transverse seams filled with the best quality of whalebone, and are the perfection of shape and workmanship, and then, besides,

THEY'RE FIFTY PER CENT. CHEAPER THAN ANY OTHER GORED CORSET SOLD IN NEW YORK TODAY.

Ask to see them the next time you're in the store. You'll find them on the second floor. (Take elevator.) An expert demonstrator in attendance.

N. B. SMALLEY WILL LEAD G. O. P. BATTLE.

Nominated for Mayor by North Plainfield Republicans.

PRIMARY WAS A SURPRISE.

PRESENT COUNCILMEN ALL "TURNED DOWN" FOR RENOMINATION.

The Mayoralty Nomination Made Without Opposition—A Lively Fight for Councilmanic Honors, But Mayor Wilson's Supporters Were Defeated by a Large Majority—There Was a Big Attendance.

The Republicans of North Plainfield Borough met last Saturday evening to place in nomination a ticket to be voted for at the borough election to be held one week from tomorrow. It was by far the most largely attended primary ever held in the borough, there being fully four hundred citizens present, and of that number there was about one hundred Democrats who dropped in to see the fun.

There was two decided and surprising features about the primary. In the first place, Newton B. Smalley was nominated for Mayor without the slightest opposition, the secretary being authorized to cast the ballot. There was no lengthy speech made in placing his name before the meeting, and little interest was evidenced in this part of the proceedings. If there had been an attempt made to endorse Mayor Wilson there would have been no doubt some fun, but all excitement along this line was absent. The second feature of the primary was the "turning down" of Councilmen MacLoughlin, Ball and Woolston for a renomination. This was one of the greatest surprises. All three Councilmen were, according to old-time principles, entitled to a renomination, but the presence of another ticket, Messrs. Robert Clark, Jr., Thomas Dowd and Harrison Coddington, completely snowed under the present officials. Messrs. MacLoughlin, Ball and Woolston each received 82 votes, while Robert Clark, Jr., received 168, Thomas Dowd 163 and Harrison Coddington 165. That there was a strong effort made to elect the last three named men was clear from the fact that as the tickets were counted these names appeared frequently, showing that they were not voted in bunches.

Former Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., chairman of the Republican Executive Committee, called the meeting to order promptly at 8 o'clock, and without any frills asked those present who they would have for chairman. Former Mayor Charles Place was named and selected for the position. S. B. Joseph was made secretary, while Freeholder Andrew Lutkins and former Councilman Schutt were appointed tellers.

The first business was that of nominating a man for Mayor. Newton B. Smalley was the only nominee and there was no opposition. Then came the nomination of men for Councilmen. The nominees were John G. MacLoughlin, F. H. Ball, Robert Clark, Jr., Thomas Doud, Harrison Coddington and L. B. Woolston. The result in the contest is given above.

J. Q. Miles was nominated for Justice of the Peace for two years, in place of H. S. Thomas, who has moved away. Dr. Cooley was nominated as a commissioner of appeal, while James Lunger and John Worth were renominated as surveyors of highways for one year. The nomination for constable was left for the committee on vacancies to fill. The Board of Health was voted $550, the same amount as usual.

Senator Reed moved that a committee on vacancies be appointed and Chairman Place named C. A. Reed, W. F. Williams and B. A. Hegeman, Jr., as the committee.

After a collection was taken up for the janitor of the school where the primary was held, the meeting adjourned.

It must be said that the men named for councilmanic honors are strong candidates and will put up a good fight to win. The nominee for Mayor is well known by all and has always had a strong following. There is no doubt but what his friends will rally to his support and do all they can to elect him as well as the whole ticket. The large number of friends of the present Mayor who were at the meeting took the nomination for Mayor in a philosophical manner and had nothing to say pro or con, and it remains now to be seen how the votes will be cast on election day.

To Attend Grand Council.

The grand council of the A.O.U.W. will be held at Trenton Thursday. C. T. Rogers, James R. Dunham and W. C. Mague will represent Central Lodge. G. T. Dunham and Henry Nitchwitz are delegates from Columbia Lodge.

ACTED LIKE ONE MAD.

STRANGE CONDUCT OF A MILBURN MAN SUBJECT TO FITS.

Arrested Last Night and Released This Morning—Ran Down Somerset Street in a Violent Manner—Locked Up Again.

The residents along Somerset street were startled this morning by seeing a strange man rushing madly through the street toward the city. When in front of the Thorn building he stumbled and fell and had a fit resembling that of epilepsy. At once a large crowd gathered, and to prevent the man from doing any damage several persons took hold of him and pinioned him tightly. In the meantime, Dr. Buchanan was called from the office of Collector Brown. He administered the proper treatment after the man was removed to a vacant store in the Thorn building. In a short time the stranger came out of the fit, and Chief Wilson escorted him to the lockup, where he is now being held until he recovers.

The man is Fred DeHart and he gives his residence as Milburn. How he reached Plainfield he does not know. Last evening he was arrested on Somerset street by Marshal Schenck who found DeHart begging and acting strangely. After he was locked up he had the fits. Dr. Carman, borough physician, was called and he gave the proper treatment. From appearances DeHart had been drinking and his actions were similar to the delirium tremens.

Early this morning the man was arraigned before Recorder Long, and the latter released him. Just afterward the man had another fit and Recorder Long called Dr. Buchanan from a nearby barber shop. The man was released afterward and he had been gone but a short time when he rushed down Somerset street as stated above.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF LATE J. PARKER MASON.

MANY BEAUTIFUL FLORAL TRIBUTES.

Rev. Calvin Stebbins, of Worcester, Mass., Officiated—Remains Interred in Woodlawn Cemetery.

The funeral services of the late J. Parker Mason were held yesterday morning at 10 o'clock from the home on Stelle avenue. The attendance of both relatives and friends was large. The services were conducted by Rev. Calvin Stebbins, pastor of a Unitarian church at Worcester, Mass., where the father of the deceased was an attendant. The divine held a personal acquaintance with the late Mr. Mason and he spoke at length regarding his early life in Worcester. He spoke of Mr. Mason as a man of high character and ability, and to the bereaved ones he had comforting words to say.

The floral display at the service was beautiful, yet very simple. After the service the remains were taken to Woodlawn Cemetery, New York, for interment. The funeral party left this city on the noon train and occupied the club car "Evona" to Jersey City. Those who served as bearers were E. C. Perkins, F. O. Herring, D. C. Ivins, Irving Brown, W. T. Kaufman, C. E. Brooks, E. H. Booth, H. M. Stockton, of this city, and Mr. Kinnicut, of Worcester.

SUING THE TRACTION COMPANY.

Clark T. Rogers Wants $1,000 for Being Run Into by a Trolley Car.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, March 6—Issue has been joined between Clark T. Rogers and the Brunswick Traction Company in $1,000 damage suit which Mr. Rogers is bringing against the company, and the case will come up for trial during the April term of court.

Mr. Rogers was driving along the Bound Brook road towards Dunellen one rainy night last November, when his team collided with a trolley car. One of the horses was killed, the other injured and the wagon badly wrecked. Mr. Rogers himself sustained personal injuries, and claims $1,000 from the company as damages. William Newcorn, of Plainfield, represents Mr. Rogers. The suit has been brought in the Middlesex County Supreme Court.

POLICEMEN RAIDED BUT ALL WAS IN VAIN

Judge Runyon Dismissed all the Prisoners in Court.

AN ALLEGED POKER GAME.

TOTTEN AND SAFFRON CLAIM THAT THEY SAW GAME IN PROGRESS.

The Six Prisoners Swore Otherwise—Some Trouble Among Prisoners About Names—Several Had Two—Said all They Were Doing Was Telling Stories and Eating Peanuts—Officers Saw Cards and Money.

Two members of the police force, Potrolman Totten and Saffron, raided the house of Stephen Kennett, 433 West Fourth street yesterday morning shortly after 1 o'clock. They arrested Kennett, his son and four visitors, on the charge of gambling. This morning they appeared in the City Court and told their story.

It was the largest trial that has occurred during Judge Runyon's term of office. For a year it has been reported to the police that there has been gambling going on at Kennett's house. The men who are alleged to have frequented the place are principally employes of the Pond Tool Works. When the news of the arrest became public there were a host of friends of the six prisoners who went to Judge Runyon to intercede for them. Among them were Andrew McArdel and several other politicians.

According to the brief synopsis of the case posted on the stationhouse blotter, Patolmen Totten and Saffron raided the house of Kennett at 1 o'clock Sunday morning and arrested Stephen and William Kennett, John Scott, Patrick MacNamara, Charles Walsh and a young man named Dunn, all of whom were charged with playing poker for money.

The story of the two policemen were practically the same. Totten had heard the sound of voices and had peeped through a slit in the curtain and seen them gathered about the kitchen table playing poker for money. He went for Saffron and the latter heard the rattle of the cash and saw the playing as well. They had tried to gain an entrance by the rear door but it was locked. Kennett told them to go to the front and when Totten entered he says he saw no signs of playing except that part of a pack of cards lay on the mantelpiece. Both officers heard a great scuffling going on within, just before the door was opened

Some of the prisoners had a little difficulty over their names. John Scott, who said his name was sometimes Douglass, told how he had been invited to a party at Kennett's. He found great trouble in remembering what Kennett's name was although he had known him for years. He told how the only occupation of the party during the evening was eating peanuts and telling stories.

Councilman Walter L Hetfield, who conducted the prosecution in the absence of Corporation Counsel C. A Marsh, drew out the information that there was only one bag of peanuts which arrived at 11 o'clock. Now according to the testimony of the various witnesses the eating of peanuts went on until after 1 o'clock and there were still some left that Patrolman Totten ate when he raided the place.

Some of the prisoners were very positive that no money had changed hands. McNamara was not sure of it. William G. DeMeza conducted the case for the defendants.

Kennett told that a blanket had been hung before the window so that no one could possibly see inside the room. None of the other witnesses mentioned about the blanket. The burden of the testimony was that they had happened in to Kennett's, one to call, one to attend a party, and the rest because they frequently went there to see him. They said that the evening was spent in eating peanuts and telling stories and that no cards were played.

DeMeza pointed out these facts in summing up and asked the Judge to dismiss the prisoners for lack of evidence. Councilman Hetfield declared the evidence of the two policemen, who had no possible reason for making the charge if it were not true, was only met with the evidence of the prisoners who were naturally anxious to free themselves. In his mind it was more than sufficient to hold the prisoners.

The Judge evidently thought otherwise. He was rather nervous when he announced his decision and hesitated and stumbled over his words as he announced that the prisoners were dismissed.

As is well known The Press is a fair paper and has thus acquired a large circulation among the residents of North Plainfield. I therefore desire through its columns to correct some statements and inferences in the communication of A. J. Leader published in your Saturday's edition. Those of us who know Mr. Leader, know that he would not make any statement he did not believe to be strictly true. He says: "When I first come to Plainfield, we had no gas, water, electric lights and public schools, only a partly macadamized road, and scarcely any flagging. If you can find any man that will accomplish all these improvements without 'root of all evil,' why not turn out."

I must confess I cannot understand this language. It seems to infer that the present Borough Mayor has accomplished all these; has put in gas, water, electric lights, macadam, flagging, and even caused the public schools to be built, over which no borough officer has not now or ever did have the least control. The present Mayor having accomplished all this forsooth do not turn him out.

Now let us see about these improvements. Public schools are no new thing. Gas was put in North Plainfield as far back as 1871; water and electric lights were put in during my administration as Mayor in 1890 and 91. Stone sidewalks were being laid in 1871, and as the town grows are extended each year. When ex-Mayor Hegeman was in the Council, and head of the street committee, the largest amount of macadam ever put in was then done. He at the head of the street committee aided largely in locating the hydrants. He worked day and night, as I know, to accomplish all this. Few have been put in since, as the fire limits have been extended. Up to 1895 most of the improvements which Mr. Leader desires to have the people believe were put in during the past two years, had been accomplished before the present Mayor was elected. He probably did not know these facts when he wrote his communication. Let me say the people many years ago did "turn out" and ordered these improvements. Long before the present borough administration was thought of and years before some of the present Councilmen became residents with us our streets were well lighted, macadamized, sidewalks well laid, fire facilities in excellent shape and the police regulations as good if not better than now.

Suppose Mr. Leader studies the past history of the borough? He is one of our highly respected citizens and should know its condition and its history better than he does for his own good.

FOX RAN FOR FIVE MILES

GIVEN FIVE MINUTES START, BUT SIR REYNARD WAS CAUGHT.

Hounds Took the Scent and Chased the Fox Through the Woods Till They Caught Him—Another Run to be Held.

In spite of the rain Saturday the fox hunt took place at Ellis Campbell's club house according to the programme. There were several men with good dogs there, who were anxious to take part in the hunt, so after a consultation Sir Reynard was turned loose, given five minutes start, and then pursued by dogs and men.

The fox was a magnificent gray fellow, and was caught in Ringoes, N. J. When he was let go he started for the woods, and cleared five miles before he was caught. The hounds took the scent and with loud baying followed the fox through open fields and woods until they cornered him back of the J. Wesley Johnson farm, near Metuchen. One of the men fought the dogs off, and seizing the fox wrapped him up in a coat and carried him back to the hotel. In two weeks the fox will be loosed again.

After the crowd had returned there was a drag race. A bag of anaise seed was drawn around the country, ending at Campbell's. The dogs were put on the scent, and "Hunter," Edward Campbell's hound, came in first.

Remembered That He Didn't Remember.

Patrolman Myers found Jacob Goodwin wandering about the city streets drunk Saturday night. He locked him up. Goodwin swore. This morning when haled before City Judge Runyon Goodwin could only remember that he could remember nothing that happened. "Three dollars," said the Judge.

GAVE A BLACK EYE; HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Borough Men Engaged in Encounter Saturday Night.

DAN. O'CONNOR ARRESTED.

HE DID NOT WANT J. F. PEARSON ON HIS PROPERTY.

But the Latter Did Not Move Soon Enough and an Argument Ensued and Finally Blows Were Struck, O'Connor Being the Aggressor—He Was Arrested and Held for Grand Jury.

Last Satudaay evening on Walnut street, Prideville, there was a fight between Daniel O'Connor and John F. Pearson. As a result O'Connor is now held for the Grand Jury under $100 bail, furnished by Street Commissioner George Conover.

The scene of the original trouble was at the home of Mr. and Mrs Thomas Ailing, on Walnut street, the property being owned by O'Connor. Mr. Pearson was at the house and this fact did not suit the owner of the house. He ordered Pearson from the premises, but the latter was in no particular hurry to move. Finally the two men left the house and came toward town. When they reached Mayor Wilson's property they engaged in a fistic encounter, and Pearson had one eye closed, besides receiving a badly cut face.

In the meantime Chief Wilson heard of the trouble and hastened to the scene of the fight and made the arrest of O'Conner. The latter was arrested on the complaint of Mr. Pearson on a State warrant issued by Justice Crossley, and the hearing was set down for 9 o'clock this morning.

The hearing took place on time. Lawyer Frank Blatz, of the firm of Murphy & Blatz, represented the defendant, who waived examination and was placed under $100 bonds to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Thomas Ailing, in whose home the fight was started, made a complaint against O'Connor charging him with being disorderly. This case was tried before Recorder Long, but owing to lack of evidence it was dismissed.

MUST TRY RIGHT OF PROPERTY.

More Litigation to Grow Out of the Bard Company's Failure.

The constable's sale of the property of the Bard Company, which was to have been held this morning to satisfy a judgment obtained by Attorney G. W. V. Mov for Augustus Marsh, was called off, as the Bard Company claims the goods. This means that before anything else can be done, and within ten days, the right of property will have to be tried.

The distress warrant for rent comes in ahead of everything else, and before Mr. Moy could have begun to satisfy his judgment, Woolston & Buckle would have to be paid. As the matter stands now, the affairs of the company and its creditors are in a mixed up mess, to say the least.

DREW HIS GUN.

Trouble Over a Woman Brings Two Men Into Court.

Clarence Whelpley claims that yesterday morning Ellsworth Johnson, his former employer, drew a revolver and threatened his life. The trouble was over a remark Whelpley is alleged to have made about Johnson's wife. Johnson demanded that he should substantiate the remark. Whelpley started to depart, but Johnson demanded that he stand still, and admits that he drew a revolver.

This morning both men were arraigned before City Judge Runyon. Johnson pleaded guilty and Whelpley not guilty. The trial was set down for Saturday morning. F. J. Blatz, of Murphy & Blatz, represented Johnson.

DINED THE COMMITTEES.

FORTY Y. M. C. A. WORKERS ENJOYED A PLEASANT EVENING.

The Dinner was Served by Ten Ladies—After the Meal Remarks on Association Work Were Made by Various Diners.

The annual dinner to the newly appointed members of the committees of the Y. M. C. A. was given Saturday evening. There were about forty men present, and these represented the working force of the association. The dinner was for two purposes; to gather the different committees together for a social hour, and also to talk over among themselves the best plans along their own particular lines, by which the good of the association can be increased.

The dinner was given in the small hall. There was four tables, one in each of the four corners of the room, and arranged as they were with lamps, flowers and glittering glass and silver ware, made a pretty appearance. It was a regular turkey dinner, with all the accompaniments, and needless to say was enjoyed by all. Ten ladies attended upon the tables. They were Mrs. J. W. Gavett, Mrs. Roger F. Murray, Mrs. Leroy H. Gates, Mrs. C. E. A. Heywood, Mrs. Frank T. Clawson, Mrs. S. R. Struthers, Miss Adele Kirby, Miss Clara Long, Miss Carrie Dewey and Mrs. J. M. Manning.

The dinner was served soon after 6 o'clock, and it was after 9 o'clock before all had left the hall. President Stephen Cahoone presided, and during the evening remarks were made by the following: George W. Rittenhouse, of the religious work committee: J. A. Robinson, of the education committee; O. S. Rogers, boys' work committee.

After the remarks questions were asked upon the various points brought out, and an informal discussion followed.

CLOSE OF METHODIST REVIVAL MEETINGS.

DR. BELKNAP FINISHES HIS WORK.

Last Night the Church Was Filled and a Number Professed to be Christians.

The revival meetings at the First M. E. church, which have been conducted there for the last two weeks by Rev. Dr. J. D. Belknap, of Syracuse, were concluded last evening. Although the weather has been unpropitious for the time, the attendance has been very good considering. Last night the church was filled. A number have professed a desire to lead a new life and become Chrstians.

The farewell service last evening was in charge of Dr. Belknap, Dr. Snodgrass making a few remarks on the success of the meetings and how popular Dr. Belknap had become. Dr. Belknap's address was on the text, "Almost thou persuadest me to become a Christian." He told how it was necessary to become more than almost and illustrated it with several pathetic stories. He concluded by giving the principal reasons why everyone should become a Christian. The service closed with the usual appel to the congregation to begin life anew on Christian principles.

USED FISTIC ARGUMENTS.

Excited Borough Politicians Indulged in a Lively Fight.

After the Republican primary in the borough last Saturday evening several small-fry politicians became engaged in a fight, wherein one fellow had his face punched by a leader of the party. Bitter words were exchanged about some of the candidates, and friends of each side defended their name. In doing so it became necessary to use force.

One fellow was picked up bodily and thrown out of a rendevous while, as stated, another fellow received a blow in the face. Some of the participants were trying to arrange to engage an official of the borough in a fight, but the latter was in no mood to enter the contest. In the course of time the fighters were quieted and finally went home.

In Dr. Richards' Pulpit.

Rev. Dr. A. F. Schauffler, a prominent New York divine, filled the pulpit in the Crescent Avenue church yesterday morning and evening. He was listened to by large congregations. In the morning he told of how great opportunities come when one was about his daily toil. In the evening he spoke on "The Child and the Book," telling of how the Bible can be made very interesting to the child if explained in the right way.

Louis Roesel Doesn't Relish Ceremonies of Hanging.

PREPARING FOR HIS FATE.

SHERIFF KIRK PERFORMED A DISAGREEABLE DUTY YESTERDAY.

Notified the Convicted Murderer That All Hope of Saving His Life is Passed and That He Must Be Ready to Go to the Gallows Next Friday—Roesel is Being Closely Watched.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, March 6—Sheriff Kirk, of Union county, yesterday informed Louis Roesel, who is sentenced to be hanged next Friday morning, that all efforts to save his life had failed and that he would have to suffer for his crime. The sheriff was accompanied to the jail by Frank Bergen, Roesel's counsel, and Rev. Mr. Phillips, of St. John's Episcopal church.

Roesel say that he was satisfied and that he hoped that the affair would pass off quetly and without fuss, and that if he had his way he would not allow anybody present but those who were to do the job.

Roesel said tnat he was with Manshanda when they went to Pitts's house, but that he did not strike the blow. Roesel is thin and haggard and it is feared that he will not be able to stand the strain. Sheriff Kirk thinks that he will hold his nerve until the last. VanHise, the hangman, has the scaffold ready, and says there will be no hitch in the proceedings as far as he is concerned.

Sheriff Kirk has had so many applications to see the hanging that he has refused to grant any more permits. Roesel is closely watched to prevent him from taking his life. Three months ago he attempted to commit suicide by inhaling gas in the toilet room of the witness room, where he was confined before he was convicted. He was discovered and resuscitated just in time to save his life. Roesel has a father and a brother living in Elizaseth, neither of whom have called on him since his confinement in jail.

SHARP POLITICS IN WESTFIELD.

Irving I. Ross Gets Nomination for Township Clerk Without Trouble.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 6—The first gun of the coming spring election fight was fired Saturday evening when the Democratic primary was held in the township rooms. The supporters of Charles Clark were out in force to nominate their man for the clerkship, but Irving I. Ross and some of the party leaders sprung a surprise on them and nominated Mr. Ross. John B. Green was the chairman of the meeting and called for nominations for clerk. The Clarkites thought the Township Committeeman would be named first, but C. W. Harden, the Democratic member of the present Committee, presented the name of Mr. Ross. Then, before the Clark men had caught on to the trick, the nominations were closed, shutting him out.

Mr. Ross felt so elated at the way things had gone that when the chairman called for names for Committeeman he named Gharles Clark, and most of the Clark men present thought they were voting for Mr. Clark for clerk. He was nominated. He will probably decline to stand on the ticket and the Republicans think they will now elect any ticket that they may put in the field Tuesday evening, as the Clark men have said that they will not snpport Mr. Ross for the clerkship.

URGENT CITY WORK.

Getting Things in Readiness to Build Richmond Street Sewer.

Although the bids for the work on the Richmond street sewer will not be received by the Common Council until next Monday night, arrangements are being made as fast as possible to secure materials to begin the work as soon as the contract is awarded. Generally this work is left to the contractor, who does not begin it until he receives the contract, but the urgency of this case is so apparent to every one that matters are being pushed as rapidly as possible.

The last rain has raised the water six inches higher, and it is now within six inches of the highest point recorded.

Consumption Was Fatal.

Samuel Green, of East Third street, died yesterday after an illness lasting about one year. Death was due to consumption. A wife and one daughter, who lives in Washington, survive him. The funeral services will be held from Bethel chapel next Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be in Hillside Cemetery.

IS IT A TRIFLE?

THAT COMMON TROUBLE, ACID DYSPEPSIA OR SOUR STOMACH.

Now Recognized as a Cause of Serious Disease.

Acid dyspepsia, commonly called heartburn or sour stomach, is a form of indigestion resulting from fermentation of the food. The stomach being too weak to digest it, the food remains until fermentation begins, filling the stomach with gas, and a bitter, sour, burning taste in the mouth is often present. This condition soon becomes chronic and being an every day occurence is given but little attention. Because dyspepsia is not immediately fatal, many people do nothing for the trouble.

Within a recent period a remedy has been discovered prepared solely to cure dyspepsia and stomach troubles. It is known as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and is becoming rapidly used and prescribed as a radical cure for every form of Dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been placed before the public and are sold by all druggists for 50 cents per package. It is prepared by the F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., and while it promptly and effectually restores a vigorous digestion, at the same time is perfectly harmless and will not injure the most delicate stomach, but on the contrary by giving perfect digestion strengthens the stomach, improves the appetite and makes life worth living

TRUST OFFERED BRIBE

Attorney General of Ohio Says Standard Wanted a Let-Up.

$400,000 CONSIDERATION.

The Official Has Been Relentless in Following the Standard Oil Company Under the Anti-Trust Laws of Ohio—Says a Friend Made the Offer Before Some Witnesses.

Columbus, Ohio, March 6.—Attorney General Monnett, when asked for a statement concerning the declaration of George Rice at Marietta that he had been offered four hundred thousand dollars to drop the prosecution of the Standard Oil Company, hesitated, but finally said:

"It is true that such an offer was made to me, and it was made in my office in the presence of Smith W. Bennett, my brother-in-law and assistant counsel in this case. It was made soon after I returned from Washington early in February, after making arguments in the State Bank taxation case.

"The offer was made through a man who is a friend of mine and I should be sorry to see him involved in the case. I do not think he appreciated the wrong he was doing.

"When I told him that nothing would induce me to desist in my efforts to enforce the law and the orders of the court he complimented me upon my position. I will not tell you the name of the man. He does not live here. He is a Cleveland man. That will probably set a good many others at rest who have no doubt been made very uneasy by the publication of Mr. Rice's story."

Mr. Monnett said that the statement printed in Toledo stating that he was seen by a reporter as he passed through that city on his way home and denied the bribery story was untrue.

"I saw no newspaper men in Toledo," said Mr. Monnett, "and certainly did not deny the story."

It is intimated by a person who is in a position to know that the briber in the case is a business man of Cleveland, prominent in business there, but not known in politics.

HOUSE SINGS THE DOXOLOGY.

Speaker Reed Refuses to Recognize Gen. Wheeler.

Washington, D. C., March 6.—The long hours of the early morning were busy ones for the leaders of both parties in both Senate and House of Representatives, for at midnight there were still several important appropriation bills pending in conference committees.

The assistant doorkeeper of the House, armed with a long pole, set back the hands of the clock ten minutes at a quarter before twelve o'clock. General Wheeler of Alabama, who had carefully refrained from exercising his privileges as a member of the House pending the determination of the question as to his right to a seat, arose from his old seat down near the front, on the Democratic side, and loudly asked for recognition.

Speaker Reed's face was flushed slightly, but he looked straight ahead as if he did not hear.

"I ask unanimous consent to speak five minutes," shouted General Wheeler, but the speaker disregarded him.

Everyone was watching the old veteran of two wars. The situation was intensely dramatic, but Mr. Payne, the floor leader of the majority, hurried to the rescue by moving a recess of ten minutes.

"Pending that I ask unanimous consent to speak for three minutes!" exclaimed General Wheeler.

Speaker Reed turned toward him for the first time, and, looking straight into his gray eyes, ignored his request completely, putting the motion of Mr. Payne and declaring it carried.

Later, General Wheeler said that if he had obtained recognition in the House he had intended to say that he had found that during the present Congress thirty-three of its members had been appointed to offices and none of them had resigned.

"I examined the decisions and precedents on the subject," he continued, "and found that during the one hundred and ten years of the existence of our government hundreds and possibly thousands of members of Congress had accepted offices during their terms and that none of them holding a temporary office like mine had ever been unseated. I found that the decision of the courts, even including four decisions quoted by General Henderson in his report, took the ground that inhibitions found in constitutions with regard to offices referred to offices of a permanent character, and not of a temporary character. I was anxious for the matter to be brought up in the House and fully discussed so that the decision would be in harmony with the spirit of the constitution."

Mr. Dockery, Democrat of Missouri, was then called to the chair.

Bailey Eulogizes Reed.

Mr. Bailey, Democrat of Texas, was recognized, and said:

"Mr. Speaker, it is an admirable trait of the American character, and it is one which will contribute much toward the permanence of our institutions, that no matter how much we may contend against each other over our differences of opinion, each is always ready to accord to the other whatever praise may be deserved. This commendable spirit has led some shallow men to criticise us, because they could not comprehend how we could so strenuously combat the principle of our adversaries and still respect those adversaries themselves. These men do not know that a large majority of the men in every party of this country believe that a large majority of the men in every other party are sincerely anxious to promote our country's welfare. (Applause.) And out of this broader spirit has grown a custom which is as old as the House itself, that in the closing hours of every session there shall be offered a resolution like that which I now send to the clerk's desk."

Resolved, That the thanks of this House are tendered to the Hon. Thomas B. Reed for the able, impartial and dignified manner in which he has presided over its deliberations and performed the arduous and important duties of the chair.

"Mr. Speaker, we have not always agreed with the distinguished occupant of the chair, and we have taken more than one occasion to emphasize our dissent; but remembering the momentous questions which have confronted us, and remembering, too, the intense excitement which they have aroused throughout the country, as well as in this hall, the wonder is that those occurrences were so few; and in this hour of impartial retrospect I do not hesitate to say that he has been as fair to us and to our side as any one of us, were our positions reversed, would have been to him and his side. (Loud applause.) I move the adoption of the resolution which has just been read."

The resolution was unanimously agreed to by a rising vote.

The chairman pro tem. appointed Messrs. Bailey, Hull of Colorado and Payne a committee to escort the speaker to the chair. As he took his place at the foot of the stairs, Mr. Dockery said:

"Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasant duty to announce that the House has by a unanimous vote tendered to you its thanks for the able, impartial and dignified manner in which you have discharged the duties of the chair."

Accompanied by another volley of applause, Speaker Reed ascended the rostrum and addressed the House as follows:

"In laying down for the third time the insignia of an office which has but one superior and no peer, I might perhaps fairly congratulate myself upon having had a great opportunity to administer a great office in the fashion indicated by the noble words known to our law, 'without fear, favor or hope of reward.' Where I have succeeded I am sure to have your approval, where I have failed I am sure that you have given me credit for honorable intention.

"Notwithstanding any differences of opinion or of party you have given me your confidence in all which pertained to my duties here in a manner so full and ample that my memory of it will never pass away. When I compare the opportunity you have given me with what it has been possible to be I see how much I need your kind indorsement of to-day, for which I return you thanks and gratitude. With pleasant memories for our past, which I shall always cherish, and best wishes for your future, which I shall always entertain, I now declare this House adjourned without day."

Half a dozen times the speaker was obliged to pause owing to the spontaneous applause, and when he concluded with the announcement that the House stood adjourned sine die the applause and cheers were deafening.

Suddenly members down near the rostrum began singing, and above the din rose the strains of "My Country, 'tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty." The air was taken up, the galleries caught the inspiration, and as one man everybody rose and joined in the singing until in one grand chorus thousands were voicing the beautiful words of the National anthem.

Three Cheers for Dewey.

When the anthem was concluded General Henderson started "Auld Lang Syne," and it also was sung with a will.

Suddenly John Murray Mitchell waved aloft a small American flag, and members and galleries went wild joining in singing the "Red, White and Blue."

While the singing was in progress Mr. Hull, of Hull bill fame, jumped upon a desk with a large red, white and blue streamer, streaming it to the rhythm of the air and redoubling the tumultuous demonstration.

A voice in the gallery shouted "Three cheers for Dewey!" and they were given with volcanic and explosive vigor. Then came cheers for the army and navy, and finally for "Joe" Wheeler. This wonderful demonstration concluded with the singing of the "Doxology."

CUBAN INDEPENDENCE.

Terms to Include Payment of Ten Million More.

Havana, March 6.—In a conversation a member of the Cuban assembly, who is a general in the army and a close confidant of General Gomez, made the following extraordinary statement, which has weight because of the standing and position of the man making it:

First—The United States, through the Cortes, promised General Gomez that if the offer of $3,000,000 should be accepted and confirmed by the assembly the further sum of $10,000,000 would be advanced to discharge the claims of Cuban soldiers.

Second—A pledge would be given to General Gomez that as soon as the Cuban army was disbanded and the machinery for taking a vote of the people was put in operation the United States would retire from the island, turning it over to an independent government.

Third—That until then the American troops would be reduced to the lowest number consistent with the preservation of order in the island.

Fourth—That General Gomez affirmed his ambition to become the first president of Cuba, and was promised that he would receive every assistance in accomplishing this object from the American administration.

Several members of the Cuban assembly have been taken into Gomez's confidence in the matter and they will strongly urge confirmation by that body of the arrangement to accept the $3,000,000.

General Julio Sanguilly also is working with General Gomez and will accompany him to Washington.

Senator and Mrs. Wolcott Separate.

Washington, D. C., March 6.—Mrs. Edward O. Wolcott, wife of the United States senator from Colorado, has begun proceedings for a divorce from her husband on the ground of incompatibility of temper.

Senator Wolcott has become widely known since entering Congress. He is regarded as one of the most eloquent men in the Senate, and because of this fact was chosen to nominate James G. Blaine for the presidency at the Minneapolis convention in 1892. He went abroad early in 1897 as President McKinley's special representative, to investigate the monetary situation in Europe. Upon his return from this mission, in the spring of 1897, President McKinley appointed him, with Charles J. Paine of Massachusetts, and former Vice President Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, as a commission to visit European countries to bring about the remonetization of silver by international agreement. This mission appears to have been without result.

TRIALS BY JURYMEN.

Chapter of Amusing Stories of the "Good Men and True."

Although juries in their collective capacity seem to be the embodiment of common sense, taken individually they frequently behave in the strangest manner. The writer remembers a case in which the judge when he came to sum up noticed that one of the jurymen was missing.

Just as a search was being instituted for the delinquent a juror arose and said: "My lord, the gentleman has a sick daughter whose case is to be diagnosed at 3 o'clock to-day by a celebrated specialist. Fearing that you would not give him permission, he left the box soon after the court resumed, leaving his verdict with me."

The judge fell back on hearing this, and it was quite a minute before he recovered his speech. The counsel of course waxed very merry; they had no reason for anger, as the adjournment of the case meant more fees. The judge next morning fined the absentee $100, which he could very well afford to pay, as he was living in a house rated at $1,000 a year.

Special juries, because they live in houses rated at not less than $250 a year in Middlesex, raised to $500 for towns containing less than 20,000 inhabitants, are supposed to possess special qualifications for trying cases involving technical and intricate issues.

It may be so, although personally most people would fail to see why the tenant of a house rated at $150 a year should not be equally as intelligent as the gentleman who happens to live in a $250 dwelling. One thing, however, is clear: Common jurymen, although they are not without weaknesses, are seldom guilty of what might be called "downright foolishness."

Not long ago a special juryman, toward the conclusion of a long trial, was taken so ill that, after adjourning the case for a day, the judge directed a fresh juror to be sworn. It will scarcely be believed that this juryman a few minutes after he had entered the box, prompted by his colleagues, rose and said:

"My lord, as I have been in court all through the trial"—which was not true—"and listened attentively to all the evidence, is it necessary that we should have it all over again?"

"Yes," replied the judge, "but you were not on oath 'to well and truly try' when the evidence was first given."

On one of these occasions a juryman so lost his temper as to audibly swear. The writer will never forget the delicious way in which Lord Coleridge, who was the judge, and who always rose to the level of such occasions, said: "The tropical fervor of such language is so calculated to impair that cool judicial atmosphere so necessary for the proper administration of the law that, as a punishment for tampering with the legal temperature, I must fine you $25."

In an instant the hand of every other juryman was in his pocket, and while his lordship (who was too good natured to notice) beat over his notes and smiled, the money was subscribed and the fine paid.

If the retrial of a case, through the indisposition of a juror, annoys the "twelve good men" it absolutely terrifies the witnesses. They are afraid lest the second edition of their evidence should not correspond with their first. The awe-stricken manner in which they creep into the witness box, evidently under the impression that any trifling discrepancy will be magnified into an absolute contradiction, is ludicrous in the extreme.

It is on these occasions that the workingman juror shines. While a special jury would probably take no pains to conceal their indifference, regarding the whole affair as an "awful bore," "the twelve thirty-pounders," to use the words of the late Sir Frank Lockwood, "are all the time on the bounce."

The writer calls to mind an instance in which such copious tears were shed by the plaintiff who was in weeds, whenever the name of her late husband was mentioned, that at last the judge testily inquired: "How long has your husband been dead?"

"Twelve months," was the faltering reply.

"That's not true, my lord," said a voice in court. "He's been dead seven years."

The bereaved lady little thought that her failure to contradict this assertion was probably one of the reasons why she lost the case.

Sir Edward Clarke once told the writer that a juror at the conclusion of a case went to him and said, "I should have liked to have given you a verdict, Sir Edward, but the facts were too strong."

A jury box seems also to be a rare place for forming friendships. The writer has frequently seen jurymen who at the opening of the case were all perfect strangers to each other go off arm in arm at its conclusion to dine together.—London Mail.

Floors and Stories.

Now Aristophanes, also, had the curious notion that just because he had written successful comedies he could be funny. "You write in the attic," he mused, palpably struggling to remain calm. "Why not on the ground floor?" "That," replied Demosthenes, whose great phrophetic soul enabled him aptly to quote words as yet unspoken, "is another story?" The discussion of Greek architecture and dialect thus opened up will, however, be deferred.—Detroit Journal.

Why He Laughed.

The editor laughed heartily.

"That must be funny," began the humorist, sudden hope rising in his breast.

"It is. The idea of your coming here and palming the likes of this off on me as a joke!"—Syracuse Herald.

The woodworker's life is hard at its best. Standing day after day alongside a workbench causes many of the delicate organs of digestion to get out of working order. Worry in the workshop six days in the week is very apt to carry over on Sunday also. Headache does not stop when the day's work is done, but spoils the pleasure of the leisure hours as well. A workman in the Burlington Venetian Blind Co.'s employ says: "Ripans Tabules first came to my notice when the engineer sent for me one day and asked me if I had ever used them. He recommended them so highly because they had cured him of dyspepsia and other troubles, that I began to use the Tabules. I found them so good that I recommended them to others. I have had headache but once since I began to take them. Everything I eat acts well now and even a crust of bread tastes good."

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

THE WORK OF CONGRESS

A Love Feast of All Parties Precedes the Closing Hour.

REED SNUBS GEN. WHEELER

The Fifty-fifth Congress Declared War and Ratified Peace, but Failed to Support the Administration's Army Policy; Provide for the Building of Warships or Authorize the Nicaragua Canal.

Washington, D. C., March 6.—At noon Saturday Vice President Hobart, in the Senate, and Speaker Reed in the House, formally declared the Fifty-fifth Congress adjourned sine die.

Called in extra session immediately after President McKinley was inaugurated, Congress overthrew the Wilson law and caused the re-enactment of the spirit of the McKinley law in the Dingley tariff law. This was the one important act of the extra session. The Senate was still in the hands of the free silver men and it was impossible to carry through any monetary reform law.

In the extra session, as indeed throughout the Fifty-first Congress, the Cuban question was constantly pressed on the attention of Congress until the destruction of the Maine in the harbor of Havana. From that moment war was inevitable.

President McKinley called upon Congress for an appropriation for the national defence. With a blaze of patriotic glory in the House, and even with more impressive silence in the Senate, a bill was unanimously passed placing in the hands of the president, without any reservation, $50,000,000, to be expended in appropriations for the national defence. Resolutions recognizing Cuban independence were passed, hostilities began and on April 25 Congress formally declared that war had existed between the United States and Spain since the 21st of that month. With war formally declared Congress supported the administration in every way. Authority was given to expand the regular army and to enlist volunteers, and every request of the president met with a speedy response.

To meet the increased charges on the treasury the ordinary receipts of the government were far from adequate, and, after a struggle, the war revenue act was passed, imposing internal taxes and authorizing the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds and certificates of indebtedness.

Hawaii, which had been far half a century asking for admission to the United States, was brought in by a joint resolution after Dewey had fought the battle of Manila bay and had made a landing place for troops and a base of naval supplies on the way to the Philippines a military necessity.

When Congress reassembled for the last session, which has just ended, the peace negotiations in Paris were about concluding, and the treaty of peace which was brought home by the American commissioners and sent to the Senate was the most important matter that either house of Congress had to deal with during the session. Men who had been eager to hasten the United States into war with Spain were not willing that the country should assume the responsibilities which the war had thrust upon them. The contest for the ratification of the treaty was long, but in the end the requisite two-thirds of the Senate voted for it, and Congress had confirmed the act of Dewey which made the United States a world power and placed the flag of the country over the most important group of islands, with the exception of Japan, in Asiatic waters.

With peace restored, Congress at once returned to the old system of refusing proper provision for the army and navy. The fortification appropriation bill was cut down far below the needs of the service, and although twelve ships are nominally authorized for the navy, conditions are imposed that will delay the construction of six of them for at least one year. The navy personnel bill that was demanded by practically every officer of that service which has added to its already splendid reputation by its achievements in the war was passed. The army did not fare so well. Any increase to the peace strength of the regulars, except fourteen batteries of artillery, was denied, and a provisional force was provided for immediate needs.

The attention of Congress and of the country was directed to the military necessity of an Isthmian canal by the splendid run of the Oregon from the Pacific coast to the West Indies, and it was believed that at least Congress would take up this project and push it through in some way, so as to provide for the speedy construction of a canal. Nothing was done beyond the authorization of further examinations as to routes and further surveys.

In the same way the new conditions brought about by the annexation of Hawaii and the conquest of the Philippines emphasized the military necessity of a cable to the Hawaiian islands. A provision for the construction of such a cable by the government was defeated in the last hours of Congress.

Provision was made for taking the twelfth census. Bills providing a legal code for Alaska and establishing a territorial government for Hawaii failed.

The House of Representatives of the present Congress passed 1,635 bills and resolutions, against 1,200 by the Fifty-fourth, 951 by the Fifty-third and 899 by the Fifty-second Congresses, respectively. The work of the House for its three sessions appears as a new and valuable feature of the House calendar. This covers a recapitulation of the entire work and an appendix of fifty pages, giving the status of every bill that has been reported to the House during the last two years. Under the title "Army", forty-two distinct measures are given. It presents at a glance full information on all the House has done on any subject.

It is a two-billion Congress that is left behind, but made so by reason of momentous historic events in it but for the valor of American arms and the wisdom of American statesmanship might have made it a ten-million Congress and without the glory that shines over this one.

Under ordinary circumstances the Fifty-sixth Congress will not meet until the first Monday in December next, and it probably will not be convened before that time unless events in the Philippines take a turn that cannot now be foreseen. All needful legislation that it was possible to provide for in advance was passed. What plans, if any, the president may have in mind that might call for the action of Congress before December remain a secret with him.

The Senate More Sedate.

In the Senate there was no singing of songs, but the vice president made a graceful little speech of farewell, as Speaker Reed did in the House, and then, as Mr. Hobart stood shaking hands with the senators, a man came quietly in and unscrewed from the desks of those whose official life ended with the stroke of 12, the light metal name plates. The "ex's" will keep them as souvenirs, and at the next session new plates, with different names, will take their places.

Each house carried out its programme to the letter, and when the end came every bill was passed that was intended to be passed, although some of them were altered beyond recognition. The bugaboo of an extra session was once more brought into service to frighten the new members who had never seen it before into acquiescing in the views of the leaders.

For two hours before adjournment President McKinley sat in the president's room, and, as one of the senators expressed it, "he signed everything set before him." This is literally true, for no bill was vetoed and none died because of the president's failure to sign.

Vice President Hobart in adjourning the Senate, said:

"Senators: In a few moments the Fifty-fifth Congress will pass into history. It has been a Congress distinguished beyond most other congresses for remarkable achievements. During its life, unlike any other session in the history of our country, this Congress has witnessed the inception, prosecution and conclusion of a war with a foreign power, undertaken in the history of humanity and conspicuous for the brilliant deeds of the army and the navy, by whose valor an imperial domain has been added to our possessions and millions of people to our population. But not only has the Congress been a war Congress; it will always be memorable as a Congress of peace, and in securing it this body has exercised its constitutional function as a part of the treaty and peace making power in a way to command the approval of the country.

"These facts alone would have made this Congress eminent in the long line of our national legislatures, but for other acts and results, not to be enumerated at this time, the Fifty-fifth Congress has likewise been notable, and now, its constitutional life ended, it becomes a part of our national history and leaves to its successors for settlement many problems that will be perplexing, important and of the very highest concern to our people. We feel assured, however, and the American people may feel assured, that future Congresses will meet these grave questions with wisdom and patriotism and solve them soundly and righteously. To doubt it is to doubt the true American spirit and to lack confidence in the strength of our political institutions. I have faith in both.

"The hour of adjournment is now at hand. For the unfailing courtesy and unvarying cordiality which have characterized the attitude of the Senate toward me as its presiding officer I am profoundly grateful, and I cannot let this opportunity pass without this public expression of my deep appreciation of kindness received at the hands of each member of the body, and particularly I cannot close the Senate without recognition of the efficient services of officers and reporters of this body, whose efforts have been so faithful and whose duties have been so courteously and diligently performed. To the senators who remain, and to the senators who retire from this body, I desire to convey my thanks for the kindly sentiments so often expressed, and it only remains for me now, in the exercise of the duty devolving upon me, to declare that the senate stands adjourned without day."

The vice president, on closing his remarks, stepped down to the floor and remained there for some time, exchanging farewells with senators, who did the same with each other, and with the clerks and officials of the body. The galleries were gradually emptied, and the chamber was left to the care of the assistant doorkeepers, who soon had laborers and messengers at work putting it in order.

Census Director Appointed

Washington, D. C., March 6.—William R. Merriam, of Minnesota, between whose family and that of Senator Cushman K. Davis there long existed a political and social rivalry, was on Saturday nominated by the president to be director of the census. His nomination was confirmed without opposition.

Mr. Merriam was born at Wadhams Mills, N. Y., in 1849, but when he was twelve years old his father moved to Minnesota, settling in the city of St. Paul. He was graduated from Racine College in 1841, at the head of his class. He began his business career as a clerk in the First National Bank of St. Paul at a salary of fifty dollars per month. His advancement was rapid. In 1873 he was made cashier of the Merchants' National Bank of St. Paul. Seven years later he was chosen vice president, and in 1882 became its president.

In the following year he entered politics, winning a seat in the legislature in a district which previously had been heavily Democratic. He was re-elected in 1886 and was made speaker of the House. In that year he met his first defeat. He was nominated for the mayoralty of St. Paul, but was defeated by three thousand votes. He was amply consoled by his election to the governorship in 1888. He was re-elected in 1890. Since the expiration of his second term, on January 1, 1893, he has held no public office, but has taken an active part in the political fight in his state, his opponents paying tribute to his ability by dubbing him "boss of the Minnesota Republican machine."

Quartermaster of Massachusetts Finishes Cross-Examination.

COURT IS TO LEAVE FOR CHICAGO

In the Trial of Commissary Officer [illegible] Was Good and the [illegible] It Was Bad—Inspector General [illegible] the Result of His Inspection at Jacksonville.

Washington, D. C., March 6.—Colonel Gallagher of the commissary department, at his own request, appeared on the stand before the army court of inquiry to explain a statement made by him in his testimony given several days ago.

Colonel Gallagher had said that he supplied travel rations to all the commands of the Cuban expedition. He qualified it to mean that he had supplied all commands that had made application.

Major Lee—Was the canned roast beef issued to the Cubans because the troops did not want it?

To this the recorder objected, waving his hand to Colonel Gallagher to silence the answer, and saying:

"If it please the court, that question seems leading."

Major Lee said that he was not aware that strict legal rules of evidence prevailed. He had not objected to leading questions from the recorder. He question, and in doing so secured the reply that the canned roast beef was issued to the Cubans because there was a surplus of that owing to the preference of the American troops for bacon.

Colonel Gallagher said that the American soldiers did not like the canned roast beef.

Former Lieutenant Lewis G. Hunton, Sixth Massachusetts volunteers, next testified. He described the food supply of the troops in the Yale on the voyage to Porto Rico, saying:

"We had no canned roast beef on the voyage, but we had canned boiled beef procured at Siboney while we were off the coast of Cuba. The men liked the taste of it, but it gave us diarrhoea within twenty-four hours after eating it. In Porto Rico the men had canned roast beef, bacon, canned bacon and native beef on the hoof."

He had one official complaint about the canned roast beef. The charge was that it made the men sick. He reported the matter to the captain of the company and a large quantity of the beef was condemned.

A can of corned beef was opened before the court and placed on exhibition. Many cans have been opened heretofore, but the contents of none have presented as repulsive an appearance as did this sample.

The witness said it looked like that seen by him in Porto Rico, but the fat was not melted as much.

Speaking of his personal experience with canned roast beef, Lieutenant Hunton said: "It laid me up for three-quarters of a day, gave me diarrhoea and made me sick at the stomach. It was some time before I tried it again, but when I did it made me sick again."

Major George W. Ruthers of the subsistence department, who was depot commissary of the Seventh Corps at Jacksonville, testified that when assigned to that corps he issued a circular to the effect that no supplies not of a first-class condition were to be accepted. Refrigerated beef was furnished the troops and he heard no complaint against it. Armour & Co. of Chicago had the contract for this beef. He never had a suspicion that chemicals had been used in its preparation. He had issued canned roast beef to the troops at Jacksonville that were ordered to Savannah and never heard any complaint about it. He had heard of the rejection of eight hundred pounds of refrigerated beef that was afterward sold in the open market in Jacksonville. He never knew of the use of canned roast beef in the army before the war with Spain.

Lieutenant Colonel Curtis Guild, Jr., inspector general of the Seventh army corps, was the next witness. As inspector general he made frequent inspection of the food supply of the corps and inspected the storehouse and company kitchens.

Q.—What sort of fresh beef was issued to the Seventh corps?

A.—In Jacksonville and Savannah we had refrigerated beef. In Havana we had beef on the hoof killed at the camps.

Q.—What complaints have you received?

A.—No material complaints have been received of the refrigerated beef. I inspected the beef in the cars and sometimes found bad quarters. To the best of my recollection it was generally in very good condition on reaching the companies if the proper precaution was taken to protect it from the sun.

Respecting the canned roast beef, Colonel Guild said that while at Jacksonville he had turned back 42,000 lbs. of canned roast beef as unfit for use. It had been shipped from the commissary department at New Orleans. He had inspected the cases of canned beef and laid aside approximately 42,000 pounds. While at work on this inspection the agent of Armour & Co. appeared and protested. Meanwhile, Colonel Guild said, he consulted with the health officer of Jacksonville and had the roast beef pronounced a public nuisance, thus giving him the privilege of having it cremated in the public crematory. Finally Armour & Co.'s agent agreed to take back the entire cargo and replace it with another cargo.

Q.—You have no knowledge if any part of that 42,000 pounds was again furnished the government?

A.—No sir.

Q.—Do you know who had inspected this beef before acceptance?

A.—I do not. I looked for the stamp of the army officer, as required by law, and found none. There was no stamp of an officer's inspection except the mark of the bureau of animal industry.

Q.—Then there was no way to trace back the responsibility of its acceptance?

A.—I tried to trace it, and the only officer's name was West's, the commissary officer at New Orleans.

Replying to General Davis, Colonel Guild said the beef on the hoof was Texas cattle, shipped to Cuba and turned loose on the hills. He had made a comparative examination between the fresh slaughtered beef and refrigerated beef, and believed that the best way to furnish fresh beef to troops in the tropics would be to have the cattle slaughtered in the vicinity of the troops and issued after being kept for a while in a cold storage house. Refrigerated beef lost its value as an article of food when transferred from one refrigerator to another, being submitted to relicing processes. If it could be issued to the troops directly from the first refrigerator the refrigerated beef might be preferable. Where refrigerated beef had to be hauled in army wagons behind a moving body of troops it would be preferable to supply beef on the hoof.

Quartermaster Sergeant E. F. O'Sullivan of the Ninth Massachusetts testified that the canned roast beef was a very inferior article and had no more nutriment than boiled rope. The refrigerated beef, he said, "had a deathly odor."

Colonel Davis endeavored to get an expression from the witness as to what he meant by "deathly odor." He insisted that it was not the odor of putrefaction but a sickly odor. He was certain that the odor was not due to decomposition. It came from a carcass that did not appear to him to be desirable food. The beef did not resemble that issued at Camp Alger. It did not smell as well, did not look as well, did not taste as well.

The court will probably leave Washington to-morrow and go direct to Chicago, where a large number of witnesses will be examined and the packing houses will be inspected. From there the court will visit the packing houses at Kansas City and Omaha, and in each place employes of the packing companies will be placed on the stand to tell about the processes used in the preparation of the canned and refrigerated beef.

During the examination of witnesses a private soldier appeared in the anteroom of the court and volunteered to go on the stand and tell what he knew of the beef supply of the army.

Colonel Davis did not favorably regard his application, and later, when Major Lee, representing General Miles, suggested that the soldier be called, Colonel Davis informed the court that he would not object to the soldier's testimony if the man should properly identify himself. This statement was made in the presence of Major Lee, who allowed the matter to rest there.

DEWEY RAISES THE ADMIRAL'S FLAG

War Ships and Forts at Manila Fire Salutes in Honor of the Hero's Promotion

Manila, Philippine Islands, March 6. Admiral Dewey hoisted his admiral's flag on the flagship Saturday morning, and it was at once saluted by all the warships in the harbor and the guns of the forts.

In an engagement with the insurgents at Guadaloupe Private Tozie of the Third artillery was killed, and Privates Wheeler of Company C, and Burieau of Company L, California regiment, were wounded. The rebel loss was heavy.

Washington, D. C., March 6.—Secretary Long of the navy department says that he has absolutely no knowledge of when Admiral Dewey may be expected to return to the United States. By his promotion to admiral Dewey can remain in the Philippines indefinitely. It was the intention of the officials of the department to order him home before he reached the retiring age, but the new bill provides that he shall remain in active service during his life, or until he requests to be retired.

When he returns there will be no official reception given him by the navy department, it being contrary to the customs and precedents of the service. He will receive the customary admiral's salute of seventeen guns upon his return from all vessels in the harbor when his flagship comes in. The forts on shore may also salute.

Admiral Dewey has made no request to be relieved of the command of the Asiatic station. He has expressed a willingness to remain in the Far East as long as he can be of service to his country. Owing to his intimate knowledge of conditions existing, it is improbable that he will be relieved in the near future. His promotion to admiral makes him the highest ranking naval officer of the various squadrons in the East and will be of assistance in his work there.

QUEEN REGENT CAN RATIFY.

Spain's New Cabinet With Silvela as Premier.

Madrid, March 6.—Senor Silvela, the new premier, holds that the queen regent can ratify the treaty of peace with the United States without a vote of the chambers, and that therefore their dissolution need not deter the ratification.

The new cabinet is as follows: Senor Silvela, premier and minister of foreign affairs; Senor Dato, minister of the interior; Marquis Villa Verde, minister of finance; Senor Duran, minister of justice; General Polavieja, minister of war; Marquis Pidal, minister of public works and of the colonies; Admiral Camara, minister of marine.

It is expected that General Martinez de Campos will become president of the Senate.

The brother of Marquis Pidal, it is thought, will be chosen as president of the Chamber of Deputies.

Those who are in the immediate surrounding of Senor Silvela say his sole idea is to regenerate the country.

There was some excitement in the cafes when the formation of the Silvela cabinet was announced. The "Marseillaise" was sung and there were cheers for liberty.

Jones of Toledo Beaten.

Toledo, Ohio, March 6.—Mayor Samuel M. Jones was defeated for renomination in the Republican city convention. Charles Russell, a Hanna man, was nominated on the third ballot. One hundred and thirty-seven votes were necessary for a choice and on the first and second ballots Jones was within two and three respectively of securing the nomination. The central committee was comprised of Hanna men exclusively. The session opened at ten in the morning and was in continuous session until 4, when the nomination was made.

Mayor Jones announced that he would not abide by the will of the "manipulators," and said he would submit his cause to the people as an independent candidate. The mayor's friends charge that boodle was used.

The Fire Department.

The proposed changes in the Plainfield Fire Department will not be acted upon by the City Fathers at their meeting tonight. All the Council, the fire committee included, realize that it is necessary to make some change as soon as possible, but that, first of all, it is necessary to well consider the plans before acting upon them.

The fire committee is strongly in favor of the "call system," and has carefully looked into the matter. It is of the belief that the city has outgrown the old plan of a volunteer fire department and that this semi-regularly organized force will be far superior and as economical in the end. An ordinance will be necessary to do away with the volunteer system and adopt the proposed plan. One was drafted by the committee and the Board of Engineers that seemed to suit the requirements of the situation. It provides for eight "call" men in each company. This ordinance is now complete, but it still has to go through the hands of the Corporation Counsel. Otherwise it would be presented at the meeting this evening.

As soon as the Corporation Counsel approves of the draft and makes what changes he deems necessary, if there are any to be made, the ordinance will then be ready to go before the Council. An adjourned meeting of the Council will probably be held during the middle of the month when the ordinance will be introduced and pushed to a passage as soon as possible. It is not likely that the ordinance will encounter any serious opposition in the Council, as it is supported by the fire committee.

The Warship New Jersey.

The various municipalities in New Jersey have taken Congressman Loudenslager's cue and joined in a movement to petition the Navy Department to name one of the new battleships the New Jersey. The Elizabeth Common Council has adopted resolutions to this effect, and when the Jersey City Board of Aldermen holds its next meeting similar resolutions will be adopted. The officials of Plainfield, Newark, Paterson, Camden and Trenton are expected to follow suit.

"What we ought to do," says Congressman Loudenslager, "is to have the Navy Department fairly deluged with petitions. I am confident that New Jersey will at last get a place in the list of names for war vessels."

S. R. Krom, of this city, informs us that he is the author of the measure introduced by Assemblyman Murray providing for the killing of certain birds for scientific purposes, against the passage of which we entered a protest a few days ago. Mr. Krom says that the proposed law is a part of a statute which prevails in New York, and is intended only as an aid to bona fide ornithogolists who are engaged in scientific research. In his recitation of its provisions it appears that none but qualified ornithologists will be able to secure protection under its provisions, and then only in the pursuance of action of a strictly scientific character. Deviation from what is right and proper in the spirit of the proposed law is punishable in a severe manner.

M. EMILE LOUBET, FRANCE'S NEW PRESIDENT.

M. Emile Loubet, the new president of France, is a man of equable temperament (for a Frenchman) and sterling honesty. It is claimed that he is neither pro-Dreyfus nor anti-Dreyfus, but that he believes in absolute justice in disposing of the case. M. Loubet is 60 years of age and has been prominent in French politics for many years.

New Brunswick is so pleased over the success of Congressman Howell in securing an appropriation of $100,000 for a public building for the old Dutch city that its citizens are contemplating tendering the Congressman a complimentary dinner in honor of the fact. The occasion will be a great chance for the local orators to spread themselves, and incidentally for Mr. Howell to contemplate the glorious success of being able to indulge in the "you tickle me and I'll tickle you" policy which prevails in Congress in respect to appropriations for public buildings.

It will be remembered that a year ago at the urgent agitation and work of Senator Reed the Legislature passed a bill authorizing a State appropriation for the encouragement of the beet sugar industry, but Governor Voorhees determined the act a species of bad legislation and vetoed the measure. It is evident, however, that Governor Roosevelt, of New York, disagrees with the eminent executive of New Jersey, for he has signed a bill appropriating $30,000 for a similar purpose. The soil of New York State is well adapted to beet culture.

A few weeks ago the editor of the News lambasted Assemblyman Murray in a terrific manner for the audacity which he evidenced in deviating from party customs in the Legislature; lately he has been lauding the Plainfield statesman to the skies for still more radical conduct of the same kind. If any person is capable of describing the state of mind which controls the columns of the News he may be even greater than a Mahatama.

The Newark Advertiser thinks that the suggestion is well made that while the State appropriates large sums toward the building of new improved roads no State provision is made for the care and maintenance of these roads when built. That is left to the localities, and experience proves that the average township in the State cannot be trusted to take decent care of its roads.

A large number of city politicians attended the Republican primary in the borough Saturday evening. Before crossing into the local Canada they thought they had seen hot politics, but on the return trip the unanimous opinion was that Plainfield politicians were veritable icebergs in the business.

Whoever may claim the distinction of being the advance agent of prosperity, there can be no doubt but that Richard Croker has the ability to furnish advance information concerning the action of New York authorities.

The records show that February was the greatest month in the history of New Jersey for the incorporation of trusts. The sum of $71,631.96 was received in fees from this source.

Camden is still taking mud with its drinking water, and the worst of it is, there seems no immediate prospect of relief after all the thousands spent to secure decent water.

Congress adjourned leaving Speaker Reed none the worse for wear.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Mr. Murray's bill providing that when a municipality orders sidewalks put down they must give public notice so that property owners can show cause why such walks should not be built. There seems some justice in this matter and it ought to become a law. If the objectors to proposed sidewalk improvements are able to show good cause against such improvements then the law will not retard public progress and gives property owners and opportunity to protect their rights in the courts.—Hackensack Record.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

Manager Edwards promises the patrons of Music Hall a good three hours of hearty laughter and real good fun tomorrow night, when the prince of Irish fun makers, Barney Ferguson, and his merry company of twenty picked stars of the dramatic and vaudeville stages, will present the greatest of all farce comedies, "McCarthy's Mishaps." There is nothing slow, nothing vulgar about the "Mishaps." It is a clean comedy, presented in a refined way, and will be sure to win the public of Plainfield as it does of every other city in the country.

Leon W. Washburn's big double minstrel enterprise, composed of fifty white and colored comedians, will make their second and last appearance here this season at Music Hall Friday night. For years past this troupe of burnt cork entertainers has been steadily winning its way to the front ranks of minstrelsy, until now it stands second to none of its kind. Everywhere it has appeared this season it has met with the biggest kind of success, and in many cities hundreds have been turned away unable to gain admission to the performances. The appearance of the company last December was attended by one of the largest audiences ever assembled within the walls of Music Hall. The company is said to be greatly improved since then, so look out for a great surprise, secure your seats early and watch the parade.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Rev. Frank B. Hoagland, secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association, of Paterson, was inexpressibly shocked because a number of Highlanders wore kilts at a Scottish entertainment held in Association Hall last year, and has consequently refused to let the hall for a similar exhibition this season. He says that the Highland costume is "indecent," and has on this account got himself in hot water with all the Scots in and around Paterson.

Every Sunday afternoon Mrs. Lawrence Myers teaches a class of Chinese in the Y. M. C. A. That is, Mrs. Myers teaches one pupil; she has to have an assistant for every other one, for the Chinamen, unlike any other race, are never willing to learn or to be taught together in a class, but each one must have his individual teacher, or he won't study. It is extremely slow work teaching these people, but the class, although small, is making good progress.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, March 6—Mayor Brakeley and President Gaskill say that their trip to New Brunswick Saturday was not in connection with the change in the manner of running cars through the borough, although their business was with the Brunswick Traction Company. The railroad still owed the borough some money for their franchise, and this the Mayor and his companion went to collect. Dr. Brakeley says, however, that he is in receipt of a communication from President Radel, who says that the Plainfield company is at fault in this disagreement, and that they have refused to come to any reasonable settlement in regard to it. Popular feeling here in the borough seems to be against the Plainfield company, although they, on their part, say that the New Brunswick company demand an exorbitant sum from them for the privilege of using their tracks. At any rate there is talk of boycotting the Plainfield company, and the number of passengers have fallen off greatly during the past few days. One lady Saturday, rather than walk to Jefferson avenue, took a trolley to New Brunswick and did her shopping there, instead of going to Plainfield.

There is talk of not putting a straight Democratic or Republican ticket in the field this spring, as many good Republicans want to endorse a couple of strong Democrats for their ticket and the latter vice versa. Instead of making them the Democratic and Republican tickets they may be "People's" and "Citizens'" tickets.

The constable sale of Drummond Williams' horses, carriages, etc., which was to have been held Saturday, was adjourned again until March 18th.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, March 6.—There is no truth in the several articles appearing in the News regarding sewer beds for Scotch Plains. There has not been talk or intention of having sewer beds, neither has any committee been appointed to inspect the Plainfield beds. Should the town ever reach such a size as to require these beds The Press will inform its readers.

Rev. Mr. Shott preached his first sermon as the regular pastor of the Baptist church Sunday morning. Mr. Shott in a few words said he would preach the gospel from the pulpit and hoped the members would encourage him by their attendance.

One of the largest union services, of the Baptist and Methodist churches, was held in the Baptist church last evening. Rev. Mr. Woodruff of the Methodist church preached a strong sermon, taking for his text, "The Greatest Things in Life."

George R. Nichol wishes his friends to understand that he is not a candidate for the office of Township Clerk on the Democratic ticket and never was, notwithstanding reports to the contrary.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

Perfect Lips for All.

Lips of a clear, deep red, satin-soft, and with handsome curves are desired by all women, both young and old.

The first thing to be considered is the rigidity or laxity in the appearance and action of the lips. If they tend to stiffness or sternness of expression, one should begin to make them supple by gentle but constant massage treatment, supplemented by the cultivation of an intelligent smile. Not a perpetual grin, be it understood, for that deepens the lines around the mouth, and gives the face a haggard, pained expression anything but becoming. The smile to be cultivated is more a brightening of the whole face with a sensitive parting and curving of the lips. It is not necessary to stretch them.

Then instead of firmly closing the lips, as so many women have a habit of doing, which gives heaviness to the jaw and hardness to the mouth, they should learn to bring the lips together very lightly, allowing that always agreeable dimpled effect in the corners.

But where the mouth is inclined to stand open, with loose, undefined lines, the vigor of the massage should be redoubled, using the treatment as a tonic to tone up flaccid nerves and muscles. With such a mouth the object must be to learn to hold the lips with firmness tempered by grace.

Besides a thorough massage once a day, ten minutes should be spent, morning and evening, standing before a mirror and with thumb and forefinger pinch the curves of the mouth, accentuating their delicacy and clearness. Until this method has been given a fair trial, say one month, it is impossible to judge of the happy result.

The next point to be looked to is the attaining of that exquisite polish and satiny texture of skin, without which no mouth may be accounted perfect. To this end the lips should be bathed twice a day in water as hot as can be borne. Strictly avoid ammonia, so often and so foolishly recommended, because hartshorn parches and cracks the skin. A good white soap is all that is necessary for cleansing the skin, and it should be freely used once a day—at night just before retiring. After thoroughly drying the lips, gently rub on white perfumed vaseline or cold cream. It is well to anoint both the lips and the surrounding parts of the flesh before beginning the massage or moulding treatment.

The lips should be rarely moistened with the tongue, and never bitten or drawn between the teeth. Such treatment not only tends to chap them, but also perceptibly increases their thickness and coarsens their texture. For dry lips nothing is better than keeping them constantly greased with some colorless perfumed cream. This done persistently, the dry feeling will soon be overcome and the texture of the skin much improved.

The massage movements for the lips are always upward and circular. They are so simple that after a few treatments by a professional any one can learn to do her own work. Of course health, exercise, and amiability are the most potent factors after all in rounding, tinting, and shaping a sweet mouth.—New York Sun.

A Pleasure Book.

"What is the secret of my happiness?" said the contented woman to one of a different order. "My dear, I keep a Pleasure Book. Long ago I learned that there was no day so dark and gloomy that it did not contain some ray of pleasure, and I have made it the business of my life to write down the little things which mean so much to a woman. I have a book for every year since I left school, and a place for every day. It is but a little thing; the new gown, the chat with a friend, the thoughtfulness of the husband, a flower, a book, a walk in the field, a letter, a concert or a drive; but it all goes into my Pleasure Book, and when I am inclined to fret I have only to read a few pages to see what a happy, blessed woman I am. Try my plan; it will lift you above little worries and vexations, and give you something pleasant to think of every day in the year."

Stones for Each Month.

The month stones and the virtue of wearing "for luck" the gem bestowed on the month in which one was born, emanates from the Poles, who continue to maintain that each month of the year is influenced by a special precious stone that affects the destiny of all persons born therein. The dedications and the meanings attached to them are as follows: January, garnet, emblematic of constancy and fidelity; February, amethyst, sincerity; March, bloodstone, courage and presence of mind; April, diamond, innocence; May, emerald, success in love; June, agate, health and long life; July, cornelian, contented mind; August, sardonyx, conjugal fidelity; September, chrysolite, antidote against madness; October, opal, hope; November, topaz, fidelity; December, turquois, sincerity.

Nature's Wisdom.

The fish's belly is white and his back green, because in swimming about in the water the white belly is the color of the light shining through the water, hence protects him from his enemy below. His back being green makes him, on the other hand, appear from above as part of the green water, and is his safeguard from hawks and other enemies.

OUR YOUTHS DEPARTMENT

A BOY'S KING.

My papa he's the bestest man
What ever lived, I bet,
And I ain't never seen no one
As smart as he is yet.

Why, he knows everything almost,
But mamma says that he
Ain't never been the President,
And that surprises me.

And often papa talks about
How he must work away—
He's got to toil for other folks,
And do what others say;
And that's a thing that bothers me—
When he's so good and great,
He ought, I think, at least to be
The gov'nor of the state!

He knows the names of lots of stars,
And he knows all the trees,
And he can tell the different kinds
Of all the birds he sees,
And he can multiply and add
And figure in his head—
They might have been some smarter men,
But I bet you they are dead.

Once when he thought I wasn't near
He talked to mamma then,
And told her how he hates to be
The slave of other men,
And how he wished that he was rich
For her and me—and I
Don't know what made me do it, but
I had to go and cry!

And so when I sat on his knee
I asked him: "Is it true,
That you're a slave and have to toil
When others tell you to?
You are so big and good and wise,
You surely ought to be
The President, instead of just
A slave, it seems to me."

And then the tears came in his eyes,
And he hugged me tight and said:
"Why, no, my dear, I'm not a slave—
What put that in your head?
I am a king—the happiest king
That ever yet held sway,
And only God can take my throne
And my little realm away!"

—S. E. Kiser in Cleveland Leader.

Care of a Locomotive Before a Run.

"Running the Fast Express" is the title of an article by George Ethelbert Walsh in St. Nicholas. Mr. Walsh says:

The engineer comes down to his post of duty nearly an hour before his train is scheduled to leave. All night long in the round-house the engine has been carefully watched; a wiper has spent the whole night rubbing down the panting, snorting iron horse until every rod and cylinder shines like gold or silver; the banked fire has been kept going so that a little steam has been always in the boxes; and before he left at night the fireman put everything in perfect order inside the cab. The fireman appears first in the morning, and inspects the work of the round-house men; and if any part is not satisfactory, he makes it so. The engineer makes his inspection after the fireman, and thoroughly and carefully examines every part. All the bearings are then oiled, and the oil-cups are filled with oil. Next, the engine is run out of the round-house and tested. Fifteen minutes before the time to start, the engine is coupled to the train, and the steam and air-brakes are tested.

No race-horse was ever brought to his post better fitted for running the course than is the locomotive of the fast express. In addition to the tests already made, a mechanic goes from wheel to wheel, and upon every one strikes a sharp, resounding blow to ascertain if the wheel and axle are sound. Nuts and bolts are examined. The engineer and fireman are held responsible for the perfect condition of the engine and cars before the start is made.

Curious Facts About the Toad.

The toad lives ten to forty years, does not begin to produce young until the fourth year, but then lays over 1,000 eggs a year. It has lived two years without food, but cannot live long under water. It never takes dead or motionless food. It takes its food by means of its tongue alone, and it operates this so rapidly that the eye cannot follow its motions. It captures and devours bees, wasps, yellow jackets, ants, beetles, worms, spiders, snails, bugs, grasshoppers, crickets, weevils, caterpillars, moths, &c. The stomach that doesn't flinch at yellow jackets, wasps, blister beetles, and click-beetles or pinch bugs would seem to be prepared for anything in the insect line, and it doubtless is. In twenty-four hours the toad consumes enough food to fill his stomach four times. A single toad will in three months devour over 10,000 insects. If every ten of these would have done one cent damage the toad has saved $10. Evidently the toad is a valuable friend to the farmer, gardener, and fruit grower, and can be made especially useful in the greenhouse, garden, and berry patch.—Galveston News.

Innocent Child.

"Papa," said Teddie, "little children ain't responsible for what they do, are they?"

"No, Teddie," said the sweet child's father, "their parents are responsible."

"And do little children's parents have to be punished for their sins?"

"Yes, dera."

"Then, why didn't you go out and kick yourself instead of jumpin' onto me when you heard me swearin' yesterday."—Cleveland Leader.

PORTCHESTER'S OLD MILL.

It Was Operated by Tide Power Two Centuries Ago.

The old Graves grist mill at Portchester, N. Y., is being torn down, and the people living thereabouts regret its disappearance because it had been a landmark so long. What remains of the old mill stands on the west bank of the Byram River, the boundary line of Portchester, between New York and Connecticut. The building was build of wood, one story and an attic high, the rough board siding covered with clayboards and the roof covered with shingles. The timbers were hewn from white oak logs mortised together and fastened with large wooden pins. As supports to the timbers, hewn crotches of trees were used. What nails were used in the construction were hand-made of wrought iron.

The durability of the work of early carpenters and joiners is shown as the old mill is pulled apart. The timbers, nearly as sound as the day they were put in, were so firmly put in place that those who are razing the building experienced great difficulty in dislodging them from their original position. The clapboards are of cedar, and although they have been exposed to the weather for two centuries, most of them are as sound today as when they were put in. No one knows just when the old mill was built. There is an authentic record that the mill was standing as early as 1687, and the probability is that it was built somewhat earlier.

The mill was operated by the tide power, and could be run only during the time the tide was going out, a little more than six hours in the twenty-four. The overshot wheel would turn only when the millpond was full or approximately full. It was therefore desirable that the miller should lose no time in getting at work as soon as the incoming tide made the water in the millpond high enough to operate. In order that he might be on hand at the very moment the tide began to fall, the miller used to sleep in the mill. In the early times there was not any such thing as an alarm clock, and, to make certain that he would not oversleep himself, the miller arranged an alarm of his own contrivance. He placed a large bell in such a position that when the tide began to come in and the mill wheel began to turn a stick attached to the wheel would hit the bell at regular intervals.

The old mill was the place to which the New York, Long Island, and Connecticut farmers for miles around used to bring their grain to be ground. And not only grain, but they brought bone, logwood, lime, ginger, spices, rock salt, and other articles which need to be ground before they are used. These products were brought to the mill in ships, up the Sound from Long Island and across the Bryam from Connecticut.

THE SLIME OF FISHES.

Common to All Species and Essential to Their Existence.

A fish just taken from the water, if handled, is found to be slippery and coated with slime. All fishes, the meanest and noblest, killifish and shark, shad, salmon, and trout, wear this slime. They could not exist without it.

The slime is secreted usually in a continuous series of ducts with numerous openings, arranged in a line extending along the side of the fish. Some fishes have one line on a side, some have five or six. The lines may be plainly visible, and in some cases appear to be a marking on the fish. More often they are not observable at at all. Some fishes store this secretion in pores distributed over the whole surface of the body, the larger number, however, in pores in lateral lines. There are also pores for the secretion of mucus, or slime, in the fish's head.

The slime is exuded through the divisions between the scales to the outer part of the body, over which it spreads, covering, transparent, and having elasticity and tenacity, and often considerable body. It would not be remarkable for a fair sized fish, say a fish of two pounds weight, to have a coating of slime a thirty-second of an inch in thickness. Fishes vary greatly in the amount of slime which they secrete; the eel will suggest itself as one that is very slimy.

The fish's slimy coating reduces its friction when in motion and helps to increase its speed. It aids in protecting the scales from injury, being of sufficient substance to serve in some measure as a cushion. Slimy covering makes the fish hard to hold, and so enables it the more readily to escape from its enemies. It is sometimes repugnant to other fishes, which are repelled by its odor. It is the slime from the fishes handled that makes the angler "smell fishy," as the expression goes.

A most important function of the fish's slimy coating is to protect it from the attacks of fungus, a form of plant life found in all waters, salt and fresh, including the purest. The slime covers the entire exterior surface of the fish, including the fins. Fungus does not attach to the slime; but if the fish were to be injured so that there was upon it some minute fragment of fungus, so small as to be scarcely more than visible, would be likely to lodge. Once lodged, the fungus is reproduced very fast.

Fish sometimes recover from attacks of fungus, but much more often they do not. The fungus displaces the skin, inflammation is set up, and the place attacked becomes practically a sore. With its continued growth the fungus may cover the side of the fish and extend over the gills and finally kill it.

München. Auf Stationen der bayerischen Staatsbahnen, in welchen Gas oder elektrisches Licht nicht zur Verfügung steht, wurden in letzter Zeit Versuche mit Spirituslühlampen gemacht. Diese Versuche sind so günstig ausgefallen, daß nun beschlossen wurde, das Spirituslühlicht auf weiteren Stationen einzuführen. Es soll zur Beleuchtung von Vorhallen, Perrons, Ladehöfen, Geleisen, Straßen, Plätzen u. s. w. verwendet werden, während die Verwendung in Wartesälen, Bureaus, Zimmern und Güterhallen, dann in der Nähe feuergefährlicher Objekte vorläufig nicht stattfinden darf. Die Kosten einer solchen Spirituslampe beziffern sich auf 55 Mark. Im laufenden Jahre werden 150 Stück dieser Lampen beschafft.

COST OF AN ELEPHANT.

Much Used in the Siamese Malay States as Beasts of Burden.

It is somewhat interesting to compare the weights carried by elephants in the tin-producing districts of the Malay peninsula with those used in the long journeys and mountainous country of the Lao states. In the peninsula the distances are seldom more than at most three or four days' march and the elephant is expected to carry as much as 900 or 1,000 pounds, besides his mahout and howda. The latter is often a mere brace of panniers, slung together so as to rest one on each side of the backbone, and covered sometimes with a light barrel roof of bark. A good tusker which will carry 950 pounds will fetch about 56 pounds, and a female which can carry about 800 pounds is worth about 45 pounds. In the Lao states, where journeys of ten days or three weeks are frequent, the average weight hardly exceeds 300 pounds, or one-third of what is usual in the peninsula. The prices in various parts of the country very considerably. When we were on the Me Kawng and in Muang Nan in 1893, a good tusker could be had for 32 pounds, and a female for 24 pounds; at Chieng Mai, where good teak-hauling elephants are in great demand, a tusker may fetch 150 pounds, and a female anything from 50 to 100 pounds, according to her strength and ability.

In the Siamese Malay states there are probably about 1,000 domesticated elephants, all told, and in the Lao country probably over 2,500 animals are working at the present moment. That these animals breed in captivity in Siam is due to the fact that a large number of them spend the greater part of their time holiday making in the jungle. When there is no work for his beast, the mahout takes him out to a nice, cool, green bit of forest and leaves him there to enjoy himself. There is no expense connected with his upkeep, for he looks after himself. He has a hobble of rattan round his feet to dissuade him from wandering too far, and a wooden bell round his neck, by the tone of which the mahout or his little boy can always find him, when they go out once a month to look him up and give him some bananas.

This Island is a Magnet.

In the Baltic the Danish island Bornholm, which is situated about 24 miles east by south, from the nearest point of Sweden, may be regarded as a huge magnet. Although the power of this magnetic island is not so great that it can draw the nails out of ships, as was told of the legendary magnetic hills, the magnetism of the rocks on the island of Bornholm can and does cause a good deal of trouble to ships in quite another way, for the island exerts such an influence on the magnetic needle that it causes a vessel to turn perceptibly aside from its course The effect of the island magnetism is felt at a distance of about nine and a half miles. On the island of Canna (one of the Argylishire Hebrides), situated about three miles northwest of Rum, there is a hill which has magnetic power sufficiently strong to affect the compasses of vessels passing near it. The island is a mile in breadth by four and a half miles in length.—Boston Traveler.

What Two Bullets Did.

On the cot beside that of Edwards lay a rough rider, Walter S. Beebe, another fever victim, and twice wounded, a cut through the arm on July 1 and a revolver bullet in the left leg on July 2.

"Its only a couple of weeks," said Beebe, "since they got that bullet out of me. They located it at last wih the X-rays. Here it is. See! Its my opinion that bullet came from one of our own six-shooters. It was all foolishness the reckless way the boys shot off their revolvers in the charge.

"To show you the queer things some of these bullets did I'll tell you a thing I saw in the Las Guasimas fight. There was a man near me as we went along who stopped to break off a stick in the shrub. I guess he wanted to make a ramrod of it. If he hadn't stopped he might never have been killed, but just as he had broken the stick and was twisting the last fibres apart a Mauser bullet went straight through his head, and he dropped to his knees. His hands still clutched the branch he was breaking and, as he knelt there, another bullet came and cut through the broken wood, so that he held his ramrod free. He had got what he stopped for."—Leslie's Weekly.

Emperor William.

The emperor of Germany has a little post office of his own, with officials detailed especially, to handle the voluminous mail matter that comes every day addressed to him.

All letters are classified under the three heads, "private," "official" and "immediate." Private letters are handed over to the emperor unopened, while those marked "official" land in the civil cabinet of the Kaiser if they contain petitions by civilians, while those of a military character go to the military cabinet. Chiefs of these two departments make all necessary inquiries regarding the communications, and then prepare the answers in accordance with the regulations for official letters. These answers are taken to the emperor, who expresses his approval by affixing his signature. Answers are then despatched by special messengers to their destination. The messengers used in this service are the most trustworthy men who can be found.

TRANSFORMED HER.

Came Back to Town with Many of Her Winning Ways Left on the Stage.

Last year one of the photographic studios of this town employed a quiet, demure nice-looking young thing as a reception room girl. After spending her days staving off bad-tempered people who wanted to see the proofs of their negatives ten minutes after sitting for them, "spotting" prints with a fine camel's hair brush, and such, for five-a-week, this demure, shy young thing attended a vocal conservatory, where she was having her small, but pure and sweet, young soprano cultivated. Also, she put in much of her spare time at church sewing circles, choir rehearsals, and so on. She always dressed in black, and when spoken to she had a very fetching way of casting her eyes upon the ground—that is, figuratively speaking. She surely was an extremely retiring little person.

Well, early last autumn she suddenly packed up her things, went to New York and joined a famous comic opera outfit as a chorus girl. Of course, she received the usual and customary knocking at the hands of her associates in this town for her act, but she was a couple of hundred miles away and, of course, didn't mind that.

"Anyhow, she'll come back to us the same little, sinking Agnes that she always was," said the more charitably inclined of her friends.

She came back to Washington a few weeks ago with the comic opera outfit to which she was attached, still in the capacity of a second-row chorus lady. A nice little matron, who had known the demure, shrinking young woman for a long time, met her on the street one afternoon. The retiring young thing had on a cream-colored Alpine hat, with a feather jauntily stuck to the left side of it, her hair was done up in a vaudeville roll at the back of her head, and she wore a long Newmarket ulster of black and white and red checks—very large, insistent checks—down to the heels of her boots. The nice little matron greeted the shrinking young thing cordially, and was given one gloved finger to shake.

"We have so missed you at our little church affairs," said the nice little matron. "You used to be so active in our——"

The ex-retiring young thing smiled blandly—as one smiles reminiscently over the remembered idiocies of childhood—and made a queer little snappy gesture with her horizontally-held right hand.

"Aw, fergit it!" she said. "Fergit it! Cut it out!"

Proof of His Love.

She—I can scarcely believe that you love me as much as you say.

He—Well, I'll bring my check-book with me to-morrow night and show you the stubs.

Paying Old Scores.

"I don't know who proposed the thing," said the young man who was telling the story "but that doesn't matter. There was six of us together one night recently, and when some one suggested that we go and call upon a certain young lady the idea took.

"We elaborated the plan somewhat on our way there. We agreed to go in one by one, and while there to look upon one another not only as strangers, but interlopers as well. It was a villainous thing to do, but the girl is somewhat of a joker herself, and we all had an old score to pay off.

"We carried out the idea to perfection. I was the first to call, and the girl said she was glad to see me. Before she had time to say anything else another young man was ushered in. She was glad to see him, too. But when the third young man arrived she was somewhat confused and stammered a little over her welcome.

"The bell rang at intervals, and each time a young man was ushered in by the grinning maid.

"To cap the climax, a strange young man, who knew nothing of the plot, chanced to call.

"Then the fun began. We sat around the room and glared at one another as much as to say: 'What the dickens are you doing here?'

"The strange young man stood it exactly ten minutes. Then he fled, with the excuse that he had suddenly remembered an important engagement.

"The conversation was short and disjointed. We addressed all our remarks to the young lady, who got red and white by turns, as she endeavored to keep six conversations going on at one time, for not by a word or sign did any one let on that he was aware that any one was in the room but the young lady and himself.

"When we had stood it as long as we could without laughing we solemnly took our leave one by one, with a parting glare at those remaining.

"Since then the young lady has been doing a good deal of thinking. But I understand that she is unable to make up her mind whether it was a joke or only a strange coincidence.

"But the strange young man, who has failed to call again, is no joke.—Detroit Free Press.

THE "DOT" IN RUSSIA.

Money is Considered the Necessary Charm for a Marriage.

No amount of personal charms of which the English girl may boast will, in Russia's opinion, make up for her lack of fortune. The system of the dot is universal in Russia, and the old family pride that dreads alliances with foreigners is only to be lulled to rest by the almighty dollar. Perhaps the girl meets her future husband at some Continental watering place, or possibly she is the governess or companion to a Russian family, in which case the lamentations of his people will be great, though to do him justice the handsomest young Russ with his courtly manners, rarely makes a mesalliance. However, marriages for love happen all the world over, and even occasionally among the Russian nobility.

The first sight of Peter the Great's city, with its magnificent buildings and granite quays, commands admiration. All those who are not rich enough to afford palaces live in flats in huge buildings of brick and stucco. The young bride has scarcely settled into her comfortable apartments, with its reception rooms connected by draped archways, when her husband's friends and relatives arrive to call on her. Then she realizes the fact that Russian women are among the cleverest of their sex, the most tactful and brilliant conversationalists. They are essentially up-to-date, and do not bore their listener with domestic details, and the English girl begins to feel that she must exert her faculties to the utmost to keep up to their level. They understand the art of dress to perfection, and a large proportion of their income goes in clothes. Perhaps in no country in Europe is woman's influence and power more fully realized.

No people are more addicted to pleasure than the Russians. Dinners, operas and balls are the favorite forms of amusement, and Russian women are devoted to dancing. The ballroom etiquette will seem curious to the English girl's idea at first, for it is not considered good form to dance a whole waltz or polka with one partner; three or four men dance a round or two with the lady, always returning her to her original partner at the end of the dance. Balls always end with the mazurka, which is totally unlike ours, being a sort of follow-my-leader affair, and containing many figures of the cotillion.

For English women the life in Russia is pleasant enough were it not for one thing, the continual supervision—direct and indirect—of the police, who exercise an autocratic control over everything received from home.—Woman.

For His Weary Head.

Perhaps there is no pillow that will be more appreciated than the one designed for the bicyclist. The foundation is white linen duck, having a huge bicycle wheel in the center, embroidered in Delft colors throughout the tire, while the spokes are wrought in washable gold thread or cord. Suspended by narrow blue ribbon from the spokes at intervals are cards with the autographs of different cycling friends done in outline. One of the most effective pillows is designed in poppies, the extract of which flower is conducive to sleep. Green art ticking is used, and it has an artistic spray of poppies and leaves worked in brilliant reds and fresh-looking greens. Beneath the flowers is embroidered in poppy reds the gentle command, "Dormez Bien." The edges are finished quite plainly.

Jesters' Column

A company of fishermen were seated in a Cardiff hostlery. They were telling fish stories.

"The most exciting day's sport I ever had," said one of the company, an American, "was when I was off Labrador. I was with two others; each had two rods, and we were simply pulling out fish as fast as ever we could put in our lines. I forgot," he added, in a thoughtful tone, "what those fish were."

"Whales?" suggested an English man, with an attempt to be sarcastic.

"Whales!" said the Yankee, with a deprecatory wave of his hand; "why, man, we were hauling with whales!"—Answers.

Maud—Charley stole a kiss from me last evening.

Aunt Kate—The villian! What did you do?

Maud—I was awfully angry with him at first; but when he said he stole it only that he might give it to a poor girl who never had any kisses, then I couldn't help seeing what a noble man he was. So I told him if he thought that poor girl was really destitute, he might as well take another one for her.—Boston Transcript.

First Prisoper—What! Tears? Why so glum, old man?

HIS HARD LUCK.

How He Won Money on a Mystical Quarter.

"Talk about hard luck stories," said a reformed western gambler, "I think I can discount anything you ever heard in that line. It was in the early days of Leadville, just about this time of the year, and I tell you it does get cold up in the hills along about now.

"Well, I was broke, didn't have a copper, and had strolled into a gambling house to get a warm-up. There were several games going on, and when I had thawed out a little I walked over to the faro layout where I went broke the night before. As I said, it was a very cold night, and feeling a great draught at my feet, I happened to glance down at the floor to see where it came from, and there by the side of my right foot was lying what I thought to be a quarter.

"I had been watching the game closely, making imaginary plays, 'I'll play 25 cents open on the ace,' I said to the dealer, and in a moment more it won.

"The dealer handed me two white chips. I played again and again won, and before the end of the deal I had a nice stack of chips. It seemed to me I couldn't lose a deal, and in half an hour I had a couple of hundred dollars' worth of chips before me.

"I concluded to cash in, and stacked my chips, pushing them toward the dealer. He counted them, and looking up at me, said: 'Where's that quarter you made your first bet on?' I had forgotten all about it. I looked on the floor; the quarter was gone. Then I lit a match and saw that what I had supposed to be a quarter was simply a wet spot. It was originally a bit of ice, but the heat from my boot melted it. Of course the dealer promptly refused to cash the chips."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

COUNT YOUR CHANGE.

How Careless People Leave Money Where Tickets are Sold.

Certain windows where tickets are sold here in town bear above them the sign, "Count your change before you leave the window." Of course, it's good advice, not for you, understand but for the next man.

A theatrical manager was once employed in the box office of a Boston theatre during an eleven weeks' run of "Black Crook," in those long ago days of our theatrical innocence, when "Black Crook" was counted wicked and drew as things considered wicked—and "Black Crook" is a kindergarten pastime compared to them—draw nowadays. At the reckoning at the end of the engagement the box office coffers contained $1,200 that they were not entitled to—$1,200 of money that people who didn't count their change before they left the window lost.

Of course, the ticket seller didn't give short change intentionally, but accidents will happen, and they are just as likely to happen here as in Boston, so just tell the man next you to count his change before he leaves the window.—Washington Post.

A New Shaped Anchor.

For hundreds, perhaps thousands of years, the general shape of the anchor has remained unchanged. The one found in the woods of a West India island and supposed to have been brought over from Spain by Christopher Columbus, differs little from those in use at the present day, though somewhat longer in the shank.

Last fall, however, an anchor was patented that has no stock and can be stowed by hauling in the cable until the shank is drawn up into the hawser pipe, leaving only the head and flukes projecting, and these lying flat against the side of the vessel. The head and flukes are cast in one solid piece and attached to the shank by a ball and socket joint which permits them to rotate freely for a certain distance in any direction. Thus when the anchor is dropped to the bottom it lies flat upon the ground and there are no projecting parts for the cable to catch upon. As soon as the strain comes the flukes turn downward till they form an angle of about forty-five degrees, with the shank, and strike into the ground just as the blade of a hoe will strike into soft sand when drawn forward by the handle. In the old anchor only one fluke took hold at a time, but in the new one both work together, giving much greater holding power.

A fisherman who has made a practical test states that a twelve-pound anchor of the new type will hold an eighteen-ton boat in tidewater and that it is entirely too heavy for small boats.—Chicago Record.

Club Secretary—What have you against Mr. Snobson, Jenkins—has he been abusing you?

Club Waiter—It ain't so much 'is abuse, sir; it's the hungramatic way in w'ich 'e done it.—Harper's Bazar.

"Winter is full of sad memories to me."

"Why so?"

"I once fed a girl on expensive ice cream all ummer, and she broke out engagement just as the chafing-dish season set in."—Brooklyn Life.

"Do you know," said the old colored man, "dat curses, like chickens, come home to roos'?"

"I's hyahd it," replied Mr. Erastus Pinkley, "an' I 'specks it's so. But tell de troof, I allus thought chickens wus takin' big risks 'bout getting home in dis neighborhood."—Washington Star.

NEW TO HOTEL WAYS.

It Was Apparent From the Way She Lingered Behind the Traveling Man.

Some one had told her that you always have to register, but she wasn't used to hotels; that was apparent from the way she lingered behind the old-time travelling man who stood by the clerk's desk. She wanted to see how it was done. The old fellow had had the same room in the house for nine years. It was always kept for him; 63, on the second floor. He had wired three days before that he was coming, so it was all ready for him. He dipped the pen in the inkwell, and with an extra flourish or two scratched down the name, "James Edward Clifford."

"The same old thing?" he asked of the clerk.

"Yeup," was the answer.

Whereupon Mr. Clifford wrote down opposite his name, "63."

Then the bell-boy grabbed his traveling case and conducted him to the elevator.

The clerk dipped the pen in the ink and handed it to the demure maiden who had stood behind the old traveler. She glanced at the last name on the page; then turned for a parting look at the form just passing into the elevator car. She laid her handkerchief and pocketbook on the desk and wrote, "Faith Merreweather."

Then she shot the clerk a modest little glance and finished out the line by placing "24" after the signature. She looked up blushing.

The clerk smiled, and when he had whispered a room number to the porter and the girl had passed behind the screen, he said to himself, "By jove, she doesn't look it!"—Detroit Free Press.

A Funny Finn.

Young Mrs. McBride had had so much trouble with impudent servents that she was on the verge of nervous prostration, and she would certainly have gone over the verge had the McBride income been large enough. She finally became desperate.

"John," she said, one day, "I have hired a new servant. She isn't particularly competent, but of one thing I am certain—she will not be impudent."

"She won't!" cried her astonished husband. "How do you know she won't?"

"I'm sure she won't," replied Mrs. McBride; "and even if she is, I shall not know it. She's a Finn, just over, and she doesn't speak but four words of English."

All the next day Mrs. McBride struggled with the Finn. She talked herself hoarse. She would fairly shout her directions, but shouts and whispers were alike to the Finn. She simply could not understand. When Mr. McBride came home at night his wife was again on the verge.

"Why do you shout so when you talk to her?" he asked, laughing heartily.

"Why? Why, I simply can't make her hear!" cried his wife. "I am so hoarse I can hardly speak aloud, and I am completely worn out. What shall I do, dear?"

"Let me discharge her, of course."

"Discharge her!" echoed his wife. "That's just about as sensible as the average man's suggestion. Discharge her! Discharge that Finn, who knows four words of English!" she sobbed. "What good would that do? Why, John, I have discharged her seventeen times already, and she thinks I've been telling her to get dinner!"—Harper's Bazar.

Couldn't Use It.

Reuben—"Did ye find that ready letter-writer that ye bought ter write to yer gal with was any help to ye?"

Jason—"No b'gosh! All the letters in that dinged book wuz addressed to 'Dearest Amelias and 'Dearest Gladys' and 'Dearest Penelopes,' and my gal's name is Mary Jane Hepsibah!"—Puck.

An Iconoclast.

Miss Tommey—"Mr. Bunting is a singular man."

Miss Filkins—"How so?"

Miss Tommey—"He says he doesn't like golf."

Miss Filkins—"But lots of men don't like golf."

Miss Tommey—"Yes, but Mr. Bunting says he doesn't care who knows it."—Judge.

The Class in Civics.

"Now, Tommie," said the teacher in civics, "what are the duties of a police commissioner?"

"Why," said Tommie, who has studied politics under a Tammany administration, "a police commissioner's chief duty to collect commissions from the police."—Harper's Bazar.

Senator Hoar's Wonder.

Senator Hoar wanders up and down the Atlantic coast quite freely and fearlessly, but he is said to have looked up often at the blue Alleghanies and to have remarked wistfully, "I wonder what is beyond those purple peaks?"—Minneapolis Journal.

The Skeleton.

"Can we afford," he faltered, sadly, "to have a skeleton in our closet?"

As for the woman, she wept, for they were indeed wretchedly poor; but she was not therefore, altogether unresourceful.

"We might keep it in the hall and use it for a hat rack!" she exclaimed, for her mind was giving away under the constant effort to practice economy.—Detroit Journal.

"Mary, how do you like the Ivory Soap?"

"Best we have ever had, ma'am. The starched clothes are whiter and the flannels are softer than when washed with common soaps. It saves my hands; they used to be very sore after a wash."

"Well, Mary, I am told that it saves the clothes, too, and you shall have only Ivory Soap after this."

Those who have tried both common soap and Ivory Soap, say that it takes only two-thirds as much of the Ivory for a wash.

FAST TRAIN KILLED BOY.

DRIVER WAS PICKED UP DEAD, BUT THE HORSE WAS UNINJURED.

New Brunswick Boy, who Delivered Bread Between That City and Plainfield, Run Down by a Train on Stelton Crossing.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Stelton, March 6—Isaac Fleischman, sixteen years old, was killed at Stelton crossing early yesterday morning by the fast westbound mail and paper train. The boy covered a daily route between Plainfield and New Brunswick for his brother, who keeps a bakery in Burnet street, New Brunswick.

Young Fleischman had to get up about midnight to attend to the morning baking, and it is supposed that he was asleep and failed to hear the train. The wagon was struck squarely. The train was going at such a speed that it ran nearly to New Brunswick, two miles away, before it could be brought to a stop. The wreckage of the wagon was still fast to the pilot. The train backed up to the scene of the accident and picked up the body of the boy, who had been instantly killed. It was taken to New Brunswick.

The horse was cut lose from the wagon and was uninjured. He kept on his regular route, covering it fully, and then started back for home. He was caught at Stelton, which he reached at 8 o'clock, his usual time.

About three years ago a carryall containing four young people returning from a church sociable was struck at the same crossing, and two young women were killed.

Eight New Church Members

Eight persons united with Trinity Reformed church at the communion services yesterday morning, four by letter and four on confession. Two of the latter were members of the Sunday-school and also of the Junior Endeavor Society.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement, that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store. Only 50 cents and $1.00, every bottle guaranteed.

Bob Wyckoff All Right.

Mrs. Peter Wyckoff, of 402 East Sixth street, desires The Daily Press to deny the item appearing several times in the News to the effect that R. G. Wyckoff is dead. Homœopathists at the Hospital.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Your informant who told you Saturday that "none but allopathic physicians are permitted to treat patients at the hospital" was mistaken. Homœopathic physicians and their patients have precisely the same opportunity to use the hospital, in the wards and in the private rooms, that any physicians, not members of the medical staff of the hospital, and their patients have. Any legally-qualified physician, not a member of the medical staff, may send patients to the hospital to be there treated by such physician privately. Such patients are known as special patients. The operating room, the nurses and all the machinery of the hospital are as absolutely at the service of special patients and their attending physicians, as if the physicians were members of the medical staff. Misunderstanding is a very fruitful source of jealousy, complaint and dissension, and for that reason it seems worth while to set this matter straight. X.

EDUCATORS DISCUSS MODERN SCHOOL WAYS

Giving Smart Pupils a Class Separate From Duller Ones.

CHOOSING ONE'S STUDIES.

FREE VACINATION OF PUPILS TO COMMENCE NEXT THURSDAY.

During January 169 Pupils Underwent Medical Examinations and in February 86 Examinations Were Made—$360 Received in Tuition Fees—Proposition to Postpone Vacation so as to Include Easter

The Plainfield Board of Education spent a good part of their time last night discussing several suggestions brought up by Superintendent H. M. Maxson from the National superintendents' association at Columbus, which he attended. Among the suggestions made was one that promotions should be five months apart instead of ten as is now the case. Mr. Maxson said he was working along these lines and also gradually preparing classes of particularly bright, smart pupils who could be formed into classes by themselves and thus be allowed to outstrip their fellow students.

Another point brought up at the association and which Mr. Maxson introduced for discussion, was that the pupils entering the High School should feel free to choose any courses of study from among those prescribed, and drop such as they had no aptitude for. Mr Maxson remarked that the Plainfield High School is particularly liberal in this, but always has insisted upon the pupils taking algebra, whatever else he or she omits.

Mr. Abbott was quite in favor of extending this privilege of choosing one's courses even to the exclusion of algebra, if necessary, while Mr. Lounsbury spoke on the opposite. As these were merely suggestions, thrown out for discussion, no formal action was taken upon them.

The meeting was attended by President Probasco and Messrs. Abbott and Lounsbury. A batch of bills for January and February had to be acted upon. Collector Martin reported the sum of $2,793,03 in taxes collected and deposited for January, and $1,148 20 for February. The sum of $1,628.36 of the State money, he reported, was also deposited in the bank.

The medical directors reported that 169 pupils had been examined during January and 86 during February. On March 9th they will commence the free vaccination of the pupils, as ordered by the board. Professor Maxson reported that $360 had been received for tuition from out-of-town pupils for '98 and '99. Mr. Maxson also reported that the pupils of the Bryant, Irving and Washington schools had raised $10 each for library books.

He also submitted a proposition to postpone the Easter vacation one week, so as to allow the vacation to include Easter. Mr. Maxson has given permission to three young ladies from the State Normal School, who graduate this June, to come here and observe and help in the schools, as was done last November. A request from the Cadet boys that they be allowed to drill in the Whittier Hall, has been granted.

Mr. Maxson also suggested that the pupils finishing the course of study mapped out for them in the grammar classes be given some sort of a certificate or diploma, and exhibited one which seemed fitting. It was the unanimous opinion of the Board that the suggestion be adopted, and the clerk was authorized to procure a supply.

Dr. Probasco said that he had secured Rev. Charles Cuthbert Hall, president of the Union Theological Seminary, to speak at the commencement exercises June 22d. The Board then went into executive session.

WOMEN THERE TO VOTE.

LIVELY SCHOOL MEETING IN WESTFIELD LAST NIGHT.

Proposition for Putting Up a New School Building at a Cost of $40,000 Was Overwhelmingly Defeated.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Westfield, March 7.—The annual school meeting was held last evening at the Westfield Club Hall, at which New York bankers and brokers in kid gloves and silk hats rubbed against farmers with cowhide boots, and with the women of the town voted down the proposition of the Board of Education to build a new primary school building at the corner of Elm and Orchard streets.

There were fully six hundred people present when President John B Green, of the Board of Education, called the meeting to order. Mr. Green explained that the present school quarters on Prospect street were unfit for school use, being to small and unsanitary, and he asked that the people vote to appropriate $40,000 for the purpose of building a new school in the town and one small one at Mountainside.

This called for a decided opposition on the part of a large number of the property owners and parents of school children living on the south side of the track. Most of them expressed themselves as being heartly in favor of more school room, but they thought the township should build two schools, one on the south side of the town and the other on the north side of the track.

After a large amount of talk on the part of both sides it was left to a vote of the people present, which resulted in a crushing defeat for the members of the Board of Education. Those in favor of it numbered 82, and those against it 242.

HIS SPECIALTY IS TO THROW FITS ANYTIME.

DEHART TURNED UP AT WESTFIELD.

He Was the Man That Caused Excitement on Somerset Street Yesterday Morning.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 7—A man who was thought to be drunk was picked up by the police on Ross place yesterday afternoon and placed in the "cooler," but he acted in such a strange manner that it was thought that he was ill and a doctor was sent for who said the man had a fit.

When he had been doctored up a little he said that he lived at Milburn and that his name was Fred DeHart. He proved to be the same man, who, as told in The Press yesterday, had a fit on Somerset street, Plainfield.

He said that when he left Plainfield he started for home, but got off the road and at a place called Graceland he had been given whiskey which made him sick. After he had sobered up a little he was taken up Mountain avenue by the police and told to make tracks for Milburn or they would send him to the county jail. He lost no time in getting out of sight.

STATEMENTS DO NOT AGREE.

Brunswick Traction Company Say the Plainfield Company Did Not Act Fairly.

Referring to Superintendent Adelmann's statement that the Brunswick Traction Company demanded fifty per cent of the proceeds of the traffic of the Plainfield Street Railway Company in Dunellen, the New Brunswick Times stated yesterday:

"Fred Weigel, one of the counsel for the local company, when seen this morning denied that such a demand had been made. Since the opening of the line from Dunellen to Plainfield, the local company, he said, had been carrying passengers free of charge both ways. The Plainfield Company had been asked to pay them one and one-half cents for every passenger carried over this line from whom they received five cents but they would not consent to such an agreement. The Plainfield Company refused to act fairly in the matter and so they were stopped from coming into Dunellen."

Appropriations Not Made.

The annual appropriations were not made at the Common Council meeting last evening owing to the failure of the several committees to make up their budget for the year. Councilman VanHerwerden again asked the committees to let the finance committee have the statements prior to the next meeting.

To Drill in the Rink.

The Plainfield High School Cadets have made arrangements for the Crescent Rink, where they expect to drill until the weather will permit outdoor drilling. They now drill every Thursday evening.

Mayor was on Watch.

Mayor Rockfellow attended the regular meeting of the Common Council last evening and took a lively interest in the proceedings.

MAKING LIFE BRIGHT FOR EAST SIDE GIRLS

A Large Audience Hears of College Settlement Work.

THE CHRISTODORA HOUSE.

EDITOR OF HARPER'S BAZAR ONE OF THE PRINCIPAL SPEAKERS.

The Settlement was Started by Two Young Women With Little Money but Much Faith, and Now Occupies a Fine Building of Its Own and Does a Great Work Among Poor Girls.

The college settlement work has a warm place in the hearts of Plainfield people, and the Congregational church was crowded last night with an audience eager to hear of the work of Christodora House, of New York, a new college settlement, and one conducted on different principles from the earlier settlement houses.

Rev. Charles Lyman Goodrich, pastor of the church, presided. It was scarcely necessary to introduce the first speaker, Mrs. Margaret E. Sangster, the editor of Harper's Bazar and the author of so many words which have gone straight to the hearts of hundreds of readers. Simply and graphically Mrs Sangster told the history of the settlement, from its beginning in the efforts of two consecrated young women, with little money but much faith, whose longing to brighten life socially, intellectually and spiritually for the girls of the East Side was too strong to be resisted. From its first home in a small flat, with an audience room in a dark cellar, the settlement has moved into its own fine building at 147 Avenue B, and has added to its work one feature after another until it now has a strong educational department, a number of social clubs, and many aids to the religious life; for the point in which Christodora House differs from other settlements is in its distinctly religious atmosphere.

Mrs. Sangster's address was followed by another by Miss C. I. MacColl, the head resident worker at the settlement. Miss MacColl who is in fullest sympathy with the spirit of the work, told enthusiastically of the life at Christodora house, describing the interesting meetings of the girls' clubs, the young women's eagerness to gain knowledge, and their rapid advance in spiritual life. Both speakers dwelt especially on the tremendous change made in these tenement house girls, by a few months in the new atmosphere of culture, refinement and Christianity. They are eager for social privileges as their more fortunate sisters, and the change from life in a crowded tenament or the degrading influences of the saloon to the pleasant home life of the settlement house has a marvellous transforming effect. The girls who fought in the street and threw chairs at one another in the cellar audience-room now conduct themselves like the young women in any home of refinement. Many amusing or touching anecdotes were told by the two speakers, making the picture of life at the settlement a very real one to the audience. A warm invitation was given to all women interested in the work to visit Christodora House.

CLEMENCY AT $5 A DOSE.

Rude Conduct in Music Hall Not Passed Over Lightly by Judge Runyon.

The trouble between Special Officer Edward Martin and Frank Frazee at Music Hall one night last week, came up in the City Court this morning before City Judge Runyon. Martin and his witnesses said that Frazee was drunk and raised a disturbance and that Martin then came in and led him away, Frazee resisting. Frazee was represented by William G. DeMeza.

Frazee's plea was changed from not guilty to guilty and his lawyer asked the clemency of the court on the ground of the previous good character of the prisoner. The Judge fined him $5.

At the Hospital.

John Cahill, of West Second street, who has been at the hospital for a month under treatment, was discharged yesterday morning, cured. Oscar Olson, of 111 Somerset street, who has been under treatment at the same place since Jan. 23d, was also discharged.

Supper in New Parsonage.

A supper will be given in the new parsonage of Grace M. E. church on Thursday and Friday, March 23d and 24th, under the auspices of the Epworth League of the church. The profits will be devoted to furnishing the parsonage.

—Greenboook Council, No. 1725, Royal Arcanum, will hold an important meeting next Wednesday night.

THE COMMON COUNCIL.

NO IMPORTANT BUSINESS BEFORE THE SOLONS LAST NIGHT.

Mayor Makes Two Appointments—Park Avenue Storm Sewer Ordinance Passed—An Earlier Collection of Taxes.

The regular March meeting of the Common Council was held last evening and all were present except Councilman Hetfield. The actual amount of important business considered was small and there was evident desire of the members not to remain in session any longer than absolutely necessary.

A communication was received from J. Ackerman Coles and others complaining of the poor condition of West Sixth street. They asked that the street be macadamized and that a crosswalk be laid at the corner of New and West Sixth streets. Frank W. Bushnell, a member of the committee on assessment and taxation, tendered his resignation and it was accepted. Mayor Rockfellow filled the vacancy by appointing Townsend Rushmore to the position.

The Mayor also appointed Thomas O'Gorman as a special patrolman, and the appointment was confirmed, as was also the appointment of Mr. Bushnell.

Building Inspector Doane reported that during the month of February seven permits were granted for buildings.

Regarding the complaint of Mrs Beard, of Hillside avenue, Mr. Barrows stated that the assessemt on her property for the sewer would have to stand, as it was found that the private sewer laid on Webster place was not adequate for the demand. It will be remembered that Mrs. Beard complained of paying two assessments, one for Hillside avenue and another for the sewer on Webster place. It was found, however, that all the people on Hillside avenue could not sewer in the Webster place sewer, hence the installing of the sewer on Hillside avenue. Mr. Barrows therefore moved that Mrs. Beard be notified that the matter is out of the Council's hands and that the assessment will have to stand.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Barrows authorizing the committee on streets and sewers to receive bids for furnishing crushed stone for street work. Mr. Barrows also called up the ordinance providing for a storm sewer in Park avenue, and it was adopted as was also the ordinance called up by Mr. VanHerwerden which provides for a change in the time of year for the collection of taxes.

Mr. Tolles asked the Council for $100 for the lights and trees committee to maintain the city park and keep it in good condition. After Mr. Barrows moved that when Council adjourn it be to meet on Monday evening, March 13th, the meeting adjourned.

QUIETLY MARRIED.

Miss Mabelle Force and Ernest A. Millard Joined in Matrimony

Last evening at 7:30 o'clock occurred the marriage of Miss Mabelle Force, daughter of Mrs. Julia Force, of Watchung avenue, and Ernest A. Millard, of North avenue. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the bride, at his home on Watchung avenue. The bride and groom were unattended and the wedding was a simple and quiet one. Both the bride and groom are well-known in this city, where they have a host of friends who will extend their heartiest congratulations for success and happiness.

Mr. Millard holds a Government position at the postoffice, where he is an efficient clerk. Both he and his wife are popular in a large circle of friends. They will reside with the groom's parents for the present.

Mr. Finger has been a resident of Washingtonville about six years, having moved there from Cranford, where he kept a hotel. He also at one time kept a hotel at Springfield. He was a well-known hotel man and was generally known throughout New Jersey. During his residence at Washingtonville he conducted the hotel formerly owned by Mr. Demler. He leaves a wife. The funeral services will be held at his late residence Thurday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

288 NEW SUBSCRIBERS FOR THE DAILY PRESS

The Subscription Contest Closed Last Night.

CONSIDERED A SUCCESS.

THE WINNERS WILL NOT BE KNOWN FOR A MONTH YET.

The Three Leaders are Fred Martin, Charles Dean and P. J. Galbraith, and All Were Close Together at the End—Results are Very Satisfactory to the Circulation Department of the Daily Press.

It was just 6 o'clock last evening when Circulation Manager Stout received the last bunch of subscription blanks for The Daily Press subscription contest. At that hour the contest ended and the circulation of The Daily Press has been advanced by 288 new bona fide subscribers as a result of the energies of the young people who have been striving so hard for the last eight weeks.

The efforts, which have thus been devoted toward forwarding the circulation of The Daily Press, are to be rewarded. A complete commercial course in the Plainfield Business College will prepare the winner for a business life with the best possible methods. The second on the list will receive a full course at the Gregg School of Shorthand and will be able, on graduation, to enter at once on the duties of stenographer and typewriter. The third prize is a Webster's International Dictionary.

The three leaders in the contest were so close that the order was not known up to the very last moment. During the last few weeks they had gradually drawn away from the rest. It is still not settled as to the order they will receive the prizes. One of the rules of the contest was that every subscriber, to count, must continue on the books of the Press for at least four weeks. As some of the new subscribers were turned in only yesterday afternoon, it will therefore be necessary to wait until four weeks from yesterday to make the final award. During that time, it is possible that a few of the subscribers may be dropped and the order of the three leaders changed.

The result of the contest is very encouraging to the circulation department for it has been even more successful than was expected. Now there are plans in view that promise a new contest in the near future.

The contestants and their work in the contest is as follows:

IN HIS NINETY-THIRD YEAR.

Death of Oliver Burr Tweedy After a Short Illness.

After an illness that extended only from last Saturday, Oliver Burr Tweedy, one of Plainfield's oldest and most respected citizens, died last night at his late home on Crescent avenue. Until Saturday Mr. Tweedy was in his usual good health, and then he was taken with a cold wich resulted fatally.

Oliver Burr Tweedy was born at Danbury, Conn., August 10th, 1806. He engaged in business in New York city in 1822, and in 1871 he removed to Plainfield, where he continued to reside until the time of his death.

Mr. Tweedy has lived to see nearly all the old merchants of his generation pass away, hardly one of whom now survive him.

Resolutions on Death of Late Judge.

A very handsome set of resolutions, framed, have been prepared under the direction of a committee from Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., to be presented to Mrs. DeMeza, of West Second street, in memory of her son the late City Judge George DeMeza. The committee will wait on Mrs. DeMeza and present her with the loving token of esteem.

The Borough Nominees.

W. J. Conroy, of the borough, is the nominee on the Democratic ticket for Council for one year, instead of two, as stated last evening. It is D.W. Baird who was nominated for a surveyor of highways.

INSPECTED SIR KNIGHTS.

BIG KNIGHTS TEMPLAR OFFICIALS WERE PRESENT.

The Commandery in Full Templar Form According to Silent Tactics—Inspection is Followed By a Banquet.

Grand Captain General Eminent Sir Josiah Davidson, of Washington, was present in this city last night, and inspected Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar. The inspecting officer was well supported by the associate grand officers. The commandery opened in full Templar form, according to the silent tactics, in a most creditable manner, reflecting great credit upon the officers and those who took part.

This is an annual affair, and was followed last night by a banquet. Representatives from all over the State were present, particularly from Damascus Commandery, of Newark, who sent a large representation. Eminent Sirs Gidney and Fox, of New York Commandery, No. 55, of New York city, were there. Also Right Eminent Sir John E. Rowe, past grand commander. All of these named stand high in the order.

Eminent Sir Nelson Y. Dungan, Commander, had charge. The grand officers and their associates, in full uniform and regalia, made a martial appearance. There was a large attendance at the inspection, which ended in a social way. Commander Dungan read short despatches supposed to have come from prominent people the world over in answer to invitations extended them to attend the inspection. They were all written by some wag (a member of the Asbestos Club, it is said) but were so pertinent to the present situation of things that they added greatly to the fun.

There was one from Admiral George Dewey, "Teddy" Roosevelt, Rear Admiral Sampson, Nelson A. Miles, the Prince of Wales, Dick Croker, Rear Admiral Schley, and last but not least, William McKinley.

WAR STILL CONTINUES OVER BARD CO. PROPERTY.

THE BANK WILL REPLEVIN GOODS.

Members of Bard Company Will Fight Holders of Executions on Name—No Sale This Morning.

The war between the various disputants over the goods of the defunct Bard Company is still waged. The Constable for the executions still has possession, but both the mortgagee the First National Bank, and the members of the Bard Company have called upon the law to turn them out.

Constable Will Mottox has been in quiet possession of the store on North avenue since yesterday morning when the sale under the executions was adjourned. This morning, Counsellor C. L. Murphy went to the store accompanied by Former Judge W. M. Stillman, regular attorney for the Bank, and Auctioneer Carey. As it was so stormy, Constable Mattox allowed them to come inside after they agreed not to take any advantage of it. Mattox then announced that he would not permit the sale. The demand was formally made by Judge Stillman and refused. Then notice was served on the Constable to turn the goods over to the mortgagee. The Bank will now start a replevin suit and bring the case to trial in the county circuit court.

Murphy & Blatz are now representing the members of the Bard Company and will fight the holders of the executions which are made in the name of the Bard Cycle Company. The case will come in a suit to try the right of property.

ALARMS TO COME IN SLOWER.

Gamewell System Tested Yesterday to Remedy Defects.

Yesterday afternoon Chief Fairchild, of the Borough Fire Derpartment, assisted by Electrician Stahl and an expert from the Gamewell Company, of New York, made a test of the fire alarm system in the borough. Heretofore the system has been working too rapidly, and often numbers would be skipped when an alarm came in. The object of the test yesterday was to remedy the trouble so that the alarms would come in slower, and this was done. A general test of the whole system will probably be made in a few days.

Mr. Love Won't Run.

Andrew Love, Sr., of the borough, desires the The Daily Press to say that he will not accept the Democratic nomination for Justice of the Peace, and he therefore declines to allow his name to be placed on the ticket.

BICYCLING ONE DAY; BLIZZARD THE NEXT.

Big Snow Storm Has Swept Over Jersey.

SNOW IS STILL FALLING.

IF PRESENT CONDITIONS CONTINUE, A BLILZZARD WILL RESULT.

Looked Like Spring Yesterday, But a Storm Rolled Up in the Night—Five Inches of Snow Has Already Fallen—Traffic on Railroad and Trolley Lines But Slightly Interrupted.

Yesterday the bicycle dealers began to feel the first excitement of the spring trade. Today there is a brisk sale of sleighbells and showshovels with the prospect of another blizzard at hand. There isn't any counting on this Jersey weather and this is only another example of its fickleness.

There were all sorts of talk yesterday regarding the coming of spring. It was a bright warm day and there was every promise of another like it today. There was a storm coming, the weather bureau men said, but it was a day or two off yet. During the afternoon and evening, the storm gathered new force, waked up to the situation and swept down in New Jersey, burying all that talk of spring under four or five inches of snow.

The storm began this morning and the snow came down tumbling all over itself in its anxiety to get here. Great big flakes of damp snow came first. Since then, it has grown colder and the snow is fine and sandy.

Traffic has been but slightly interrupted as yet. The trains on the Jersey Central Railroad are a little late while the schedule of the local trolley system is running behind. The snow has reached the depth of between four and five inches. The wind is blowing out of the northeast in lively shape and has alaeady begun to drift the the snow. With the high wind and a falling temperature, the present conditions are likely to produce another blizzard unless there is a cessation of the snowfall soon.

WEST END HOSE COMPANY.

Nominations for Officers to Be Elected—To Secure Uniforms.

The members of West End Hose Company met last evening and transacted considerable business. Nominations for officers to be elected at the regular May meeting were made as follows: Foreman, John Higgins, Gus Feiring; first assistant, Frank Perry, Gus Feiring; second assistant, Wm. Paasch, George Giddis; corresponding secretary, Frank Perry; financial secretary, George Giddis; treasurer, H. Hansen.

A committee was appointed consisting of Gus Feiring, John Higgins, Frank Perry, J. Bremmer and Charles Keller to make arrangements to secure uniforms for the members. There is now $100 in the treasury for a uniform fund, and at the meeting last evening each member put his hand in his pocket and added something to that amount. Louis Bimble, Jr., was elected a member at the meeting, and this makes the membership twenty, being the number allowed the company by the Borough Council. The company is now in excellent condition and well equipped for duty.

BOROUGH BOARD OF HEALTH.

Andrew Love, Sr., Elected President for Ensuing Year.

The annual meeting of the Borough Board of Health was held last evening at which time the officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Andrew Love, Sr; secretary and treasurer, Rev. W. E. Honeyman; counsel, Charles A. Reed.

The business of the Board was mostly of a routine nature. It was stated that at present there is not a contagious disease in the borough and the health in general is first class. Mr. Love introduced the matter of using certain parts for a dumping ground, as complained of by W. J. Buttfield to the Borough Council, and it was learned that the matter had not been reported to the Board of Health. When this is done the Board will take some action.

Assessor Hubbard Recovering.

Assessor J. A. Hubbard, of West Fifth street, was out yesterday for the first time after his long illness. He was just able to walk about in the fresh air for a few moments and then return to the house.

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. YES OR NO.

Plainfield People Are Respectfully Asked To Answer These Questions.

Is there anything in the evidence of one's senses?

Can the reader dispute and then disprove local evidence?

Can reliance be placed upon statements from people we know?

Are the opinions of residents of Plainfield of any greater moment than opinions held by residents of Maine or Michigan?

Would you sooner believe people living in those states than those in your own city?

Answer these questions honestly after you have quietly read the following:

Mr. F. O. Smith of 686 West Front street, contractor for painting, etc., says: "For some time I had symptoms of kidney trouble, and despite all my endeavors to get rid of it I never was successful until I obtained a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at L. W. Randolph's drug store. There was a distressing pain across the small of my back which clung to me all the time. When I got seated at times if I moved a sharp pain struck me in the back and loins and almost made me exclaim. Any change in the weather if I caught the least cold always aggravated the trouble and caused me to suffer severely. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommened to me by one of my employes who had been cured of a long standing case of kidney complaint by their use. I commenced the treatment and derived benefit from it immediately, and before I had finished the first box I was cured.

GEN. OTIS TO ATTACK

Aggressive Measures to be Taken When Reinforcements Arrive.

SKIRMISH WITH FILIPINOS

Our Soldiers Eager for Action—It is Proposed to Strike a Blow Which Will Incapacitate the Filipinos for Any Offensive Move at Least—Quiet at Manila Now.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—There is reason to expect important news from Manila within the next fortnight. It has developed that General Otis has practically completed his plans for a grand onslaught on the insurgents, which is expected to deprive them of offensive power at least.

It is probable that he will form a large part of his force into columns, as soon as his reinforcements are all at hand, and will push these in parallel lines straight through the jungles, clearing out the insurgents in every direction as the troops go forward.

The American troops are getting restless and nervous under the petty but annoying sharpshooting of the Filipinos, and are so anxious to put a stop to this that General Otis has yielded to their desire.

Skirmish With Filipinos.

Manila, March 7.—There was considerable outpost skirmishing last night at San Tolan, in which the Colorado and Nebraska infantry, with two guns of the Utah battery, took part.

General Hale's brigade yesterday located two hundred and fifty insurgents with two guns, near San Pedro. The guns were so placed as to be capable of enfilading General Wheaton's brigade.

Advices from Negros island say that commerce there is improving. The steamship El Cano, from Iloilo, reports that business there is at a standstill. There is occasional skirmishing beyond the city, but thus far there has been no casualty.

Our Forces in the Philipines.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—Forty-one thousand officers and men of the combined army and navy forces comprise the approximate total American strength now at, en route and under orders for service in the Philippines. No further reinforcements are now in contemplation.

The forces already stationed in and about the archipelago consist of twenty regiments of infantry, one engineer battalion, seven troops of cavalry and eleven batteries of men.

Nineteen vessels, with an aggregate of 297 officers, 2,990 men and 253 marines make up the naval contingent. This is exclusive of the transport Solace, with 162 officers and men all told, which is constantly passing back and forth from Manila.

There are about 4,800 army reinforcements on the way to Manila, making as rapid progress as possible, and there are, roughly, 7,500 men under orders to proceed to the Philippine islands.

The following vessels are now at Manila and Hong Kong, under the command of Admiral Dewey:

Baltimore, Bennington, Boston, Buffalo, Callao, Charleston, Concord, Culgoa, Don Juan de Austria, Helena, Isla de Luzon, Isla de Cuba, Manila, Monadnock, Monterey, Monocacy, Olympia, Petrel and Yorktown.

These vessels carry 297 officers and 2,990 sailors and 253 marines.

The Castine and Princeton are now on their way through the Red Sea to join Admiral Dewey, and the Oregon has left the Hawaiian islands for the same destination.

TAMMANY OFFICIALS NOT PLEASED.

Think They Have Been Made Guys by Croker in Fight Against L. Roads.

New York, March 7.—Ex-Judge John F. Dillon, counsel for the Manhattan Railway Company, has issued the following statement, saying that the jurisdiction over the elevated road does not rest with the city board of health.

"The elevated railways being steam railways and built under express statute authority, and not tramways, the jurisdiction over them, including the safety of the structures and their operation, is in the state board of railroad commissioners. Over the operation of these railways and over their presence in the streets the city authorities have no jurisdiction conferred upon them by the charter or any other act.

"If the railroads were in fact in such a condition as to endanger life or the public health, the health board could take appropriate legal steps to remedy such danger; but their decision, if they should make one, that such a condition existed would not establish the fact, and would not conclude the railway company. In a word the jurisdictiin of the health board over the elevated railways is at the most no greater than it is over any private property, and moreover is limited by the express jurisdiction which the law has conferred upon the state board of railroad commissioners."

Judge Dillon added that the Manhattan had made no overtures to the Auto-Truck Company.

"The municipal assembly has no power to enforce its ordinances against the Manhattan Railway Company," sadly admitted President Coogan of Manhattan borough yesterday. "Eminent lawyers have said so, and I guess we'll have to accept their dictum. But we are going to force the Manhattan to make improvements all the same. The health board 'll do it."

The railroad committee of the board of aldermen decided to report favorably the ordinance requiring the Manhattan Company to stop standing its cars on the third track of the L roads.

Not all the Tammany members of the assembly are pleased with this turn about of Mr. Croker. They believe that they have been placed in a false and ridiculous light by the boss, in being ordered to pass a law which their chief has recently declared in public they had no right to pass. They believe that Mr. Croker should have carefully looked up this point in advance, but it is not likely that their disappointment will publicly display itself.

BEEF INQUIRY GOES TO CHICAGO.

Last Testimony Taken Monday Indicates That Canned Goods Made Men Sick.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—The war department court of inquiry held a brief session yesterday, the last before their start for the West to inspect the packing plants of Chicago, Omaha and Kansas City.

The only witness examined was Lieutenant Frederick L. Munson of the Ninth infantry. He said that during his service in Cuba, up to the surrender of Santiago, his command had as a ration bacon and canned roast beef in the proportion of about ten days of the former to fifteen days of the latter.

Until the surreader he heard no complaints of the canned roast beef, but after the surrender his commissary sergeant reported to him that something was making the men very sick. They did not know what it was, but thought it was something they had eaten. After eliminating every other factor that they could think of, they concluded it must be the canned beef.

He ordered the cooks to try fixing up the meat in stews with hard tack and tomatoes, but it seemed to make no difference. The men continued sick. They then discontinued the use of the beef.

On the voyage home they still had canned roast beef, but the men did not eat it. He tried to turn it over to the commissary at Montauk Point, but the commissary would not receive it.

"Did you make any report on this?" asked Colonel Davis.

"No sir."

"Did it occur to you that it was your duty to your command to report this state of things?" continued Colonel Davis, rather severely.

"As it appears to me," said the witness, "it may have been negligent, but at the time the company was so general, and there being absolutely no chance of bettering the situation, I did not make any formal report on it."

Of the refrigerated beef, witness said the principal objection to it was that it spoiled before the men received it. He was obliged to condemn his whole consignment three times. His command was the headquarters provost guard, made up of old and picked men. They were not the sort to complain of anything till they had reached the very limit of endurance. Their sickness was almost entirely bowel and stomach trouble.

This wound up the taking of testimony in Washington, and the court adjourned to meet in Chicago Thursday.

General Eagan visited the court after the executive session was under way and had a talk with the recorder.

For Currency Reform

Washington, D. C., March 7.—The caucus committee of Republican congressmen appointed to consider financial legislation by the Fifty-sixth Congress, met yesterday morning at the Capitol.

There is an impression among Republicans that the only financial legislation that seems certain of enactment is a provision that greenbacks which have been redeemed in gold once shall not again be issued, except in exchange for gold, and that national banks may issue currency up to the par value of the bonds upon which their circulation is based.

It is also believed that circumstances may compel the meeting of Congress some time before the regular session, and it is, therefore, felt to be important that all preliminary work should be done as speedily as possible. It is said that the president has no definite plan for the calling of an extra session, but that he, like a good many representatives, recognizes the possibility of developments which will render an early meeting of Congress desirable.

Italy's Demand on China.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—The United States has remained absolutely passive throughout the execution of the Italian project to secure an "open door" on the Chinese coast through the acquisition of San Mun bay and outlying islands.

Some days ago Minister Conger, at Pekin, informed the state department that Italy had demanded a lease of the spot selected, but has made no report since.

A high authority said: "The government of the United States will not take any steps in regard to the Italian demand for the cession of Chinese territory."

The Chinese minister called at the state department yesterday and had a conference with Secretary of State Hay.

Not to Guarantee Their Bonds.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—Under no conditions will the government of the United States consent to recognize in any manner any financial obligations issued by the so-called assembly of the Cuban army, now in session near Havana.

Should this body see fit to authorize the issue of bonds for any purpose the government of the United States will not be led into guaranteeing them, and they must stand on their resources in that matter.

Assistant Census Superintendent.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—The president has appointed Frank H. Wines of Springfield, Ill., to be assistant superintendent of the census of 1900.

Mr. Wines was employed during the last census in collecting statistics of criminals and paupers, his long connection with organized charities fitting him for that work.

Stagnation at Dawson City.

San Francisco, Cal., March 7.—A letter from Dawson City contains the following:

"The first instalment of reindeer belonging to the United States relief expedition arrived here on January 6, in charge of the Lapland herders. The last day's run was sixty miles.

"Large numbers of the reindeer are said to have been slaughtered by the Indians, who mistook them for wild game. The remnant will be driven to Circle City.

"The business outlook for Dawson during the year is most unpromising. Hundreds of people are migrating to more congenial climes, and the retail traders complain that they have more outfits offered for sale than purchasers sought.

"Even the saloons and gambling houses are reported to be making no profits. No new gold discoveries of importance are reported."

THE COST OF THE WAR

This Government Paid $482,562,083,47 to Free Cuba.

AND THE END IS NOT YET

Mr. Cannon of the Committee on Appropriations Prints Some Interesting Statistics The Total Amount Voted at the Sessions Reached $1,566,890,016,28—Contracts Ordered That Aggregated $70,000,900.

Washington, March 7.—Under the "leave to print" granted to members of the House committee on appropriations in the last hours of Congress, the Record contains the following statement from Hon. J. G. Cannon of Illinois, chairman of the committee. It is the first complete and authentic showing of the appropriations made by the Fifty-fifth Congress, and reveals the fact that the total is not so great as has been reported in previous partial statements made on the floor of the House and in the public press. Mr. Cannon says:

"The appropriations made at the session of Congress just closed amount approximately to $573,658,400, and show an apparent reduction of $219,573,000 under the appropriations made at the preceding session. This is attributable to the large expenses occasioned by the war with Spain that were provided for during the preceding session.

"The entire appropriations made by the Fifty-fifth Congress aggregate $1,566,890,016.28. Of this sum $482,562,083.47 is directly chargeable to our late war with Spain, or incident thereto. Deducting the charges from the whole amount of the appropriations, the remainder, $1,084,327,632.81, represents the ordinary or normal appropriations made by the Fifty-fifth Congress.

"The appropriations made by the preceding Congress, the Fifty-fourth, amounted to $1,044,580,273.87. A comparison shows an increase in ordinary appropriations made by this Congress over those made by that Congress, the Fifty-fourth, of $39,747,000, but this apparent increase is more than accounted for by increases under eight items alone, namely, for pensions, $4,000,000; for the postal service, $16,000,000; for rivers and harbors, including work under contracts previously authorized, $3,600,000; for new ships for the navy, $6,000,000; for beginning the work of the twelfth census $1,000,000; for the Paris exposition, $1,200,000; for new public buildings, including the building for the department of justice and for site and partial construction of the new government printing office, about $5,000,000, and for payment of judgment rendered against the government on account of French spoliations and under the Bowman act, $3,100,000.

"These very natural and necessary increases in public expenditures, on account of the pension list, the growth of the postal service in response to the demands of commerce, the improvement of the great water ways of the country and for increase of the navy, the construction of needed buildings to accommodate the government service in the cities of the country, the taking of the census, the participation of the nation in the great exposition to be held at Paris next year, and the payment of the French spoliation judgments and Bowman act cases, so long considered by and pressed upon Congress, aggregate $39,900,000, more than dissipating the entire apparent increase in the ordinary appropriations by this Congress over those made by the Fifty-fourth Congress.

More Ships Ordered.

"In addition to the direct appropriations made at this session, contracts were authorized, subject to future appropriations to be made by Congress, amounting to about $70,000,000. Of this amount $44,000,000 is for additional ships for the navy, $22,500,000 is for work on rivers and harbors, and something over $3,000,000 is for public buildings. The contract system is of necessity applied to the construction of new warships, which require periods of years for their construction. In the case of river and harbor improvements and the construction of public buildings, experience has shown that the authorization of contracts tends materially to expedite and cheapen the same."

MANY WHITE HOUSE VISITORS.

Appointments Under the New Army Law in Great Demand.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—Almost every senator and representative in the city visited the White House before departing from the city. Many brought with them friends whom they wanted appointed in the army, but they had very little chance to present their claims to the president, and others only came to bid good bye, and these were quickly disposed of.

There was a goodly sprinkling of ex-senators and ex-members, whose terms expired last Saturday, and these came out of force of habit to see if they could not secure something before they left the Capitol.

The president's office looked as it did just after inauguration, for it was crowded all day long. The president had hoped to have a little time to straighten up some matters and announce several appointments he expected to make, and which failed of confirmation by the Senate, but he found this impossible, and so gave himself up to his callers.

Failing to get any word of encouragement in regard to appointments, almost every senator and member who called at the White House, after leaving that place went directly to the war department and Secretary Alger and Adjutant General Corbin had almost as big receptions as the president.

It was noticed that among the callers who were most persistent in their requests for army appointments were senators and members who had most bitterly fought the reorganization bill. The secretary of war informed all his visitors that he had been unable to study the new law, and it was impossible for him to say what appointments there were under it.

Mr. McKinley expects to get away for a short visit to Senator Hanna before the end of this week. The latter will go to Thomasville in a day or two and prepare for the arrival of his distinguished guest.

The president is in need of a vacation and he expects to make this trip one of absolute rest.

He was the manager of the ice cream department of a great dairy company in St. Louis; and this is what he says of Ripans Tabules: "This business of mine gets me up so early in the morning and causes me to get my meals at such irregular times that not long ago I was much bothered by indigestion, but Ripans Tabules fixed me all right and now I always keep them by me. Whenever I begin to feel a little 'under the weather' from my stomach I take one and after that I am all right."

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

STORM AND FLOOD.

Great Damages from Rising Rivers in All Parts of the Country.

Louisville, Ky., March 7.—Damage amounting to five million dollars was done by the storm that passed over the south last night. Crops of all sorts were destroyed and considerable other damage done.

Many lives are reported lost. Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee were the worst sufferers. Athens, Tenn., was wrecked. Four persons were killed in Decatur. Boats on the lowwer Ohio and Mississippi were lost, and until the weather clears no idea of the damage to shipping interests can be obtainable.

In some places in upper Tennessee hail stones as large as eggs fell, and cattle were killed by them.

Telegrams from the cotton belt say that cotton in three states is almost a total failure.

Flood in the Ohio.

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 7.—As a result of the fall of .68 of an inch of rain here on Friday and Saturday and a phenomenal rain fall of three and four inches in the same time in the region of streams in Kentucky and Tennessee, tributary to the Ohio, that river is at high flood and is rising four inches per hour. The so-called danger line is fifty feet at this point, and this has been passed, the stage at 11 o'clock yesterday being 51.5.

The Mohawk Overflows.

Amsterdam, N. Y., March 7.—The ice in the Mohawk river broke up and this morning the water overflowed its banks in many places. Some of the knitting mills located along the stream have been obliged to shut down in consequence of the high water. Dwellings and business places on Erie street are surrounded by ice and water.

Flood at Norwich, Conn.

Norwich, March 7.—The heavy rains of Saturday and Sunday have swollen the Shetucket, Quinnebaug and aYntic rivers to such an extent that a great flood is threatened. All of the rivers and their tributaries have overflowed their banks and the melting of the great quantity of snow in the woods is adding to their volume. They all unite just above this city, and the stream below their junction is filled with floating debris and ice. The river is rising rapidly and all low lands are submerged.

Rivers at Pittsburg Not Dangerously High

Pittsburg, Pa., March 7.—The Allegheny and the Monongahela rivers will not increase the flood in the lower Ohio to any alarming extent. At ten o'clock yesterday morning the Monongahela's height was 21 feet 3 inches. Not much damage will be done here unless a 25-foot stage comes, and that is not feared now.

Jersey's Big Electric Concern.

Trenton, N. J., March 7.—The United Electric Company of New Jersey, which has been talked of for some time, has been incorporated here with a capital stock of twenty million dollars.

The company, it is understood, will control all the electric light, heat and power business in Essex, Hudson, Passaic, Bergen, Morris, Union and Middlesex counties in this state.

The principal office will be at 83 Montgomery street, Jersey City.

The incorporators of the new concern are as follows: Frank M. Stillman of Rahway, Thomas J. George of Newark, and William J. Davis of Harrison.

Choate Sees the Queen.

London, March 7.—United States Ambassador Mr. Joseph H. Choate and Mrs. Choate proceeded yesterday afternoon to Windsor, where they dined and slept at the Castle.

A royal carriage conveyed Mr. and Mrs. Choate from Claridge's Hotel to the Paddington Railroad station, and her majesty's master of ceremonies, Colonel the Hon. Sir William James Colville conducted them to Windsor and presented Mr. Choate to Queen Victoria before dinner.

The Marchioness of Salisbury presented Mrs. Choate.

Mr. Henry White, secretary of the United States embassy, and Mrs. White were also invited to Windsor.

Spain's Cabinet Well Received.

Madrid, March 7.—The new cabinet has been well received by the Conservatives and business world, but the Democrats and Republicans denounce it as representing the most ultramontane section of the Conservatives.

The Weylerites are violently opposed to the cabinet and stormy times are predicted. The elections to the Cortes will take place in April.

A number of repatriated soldiers made a demonstration at Valencia last evening. They marched through the streets, headed by a banner inscribed "Long live the army!" and "We are hungry!"

They were dispersed by the police without serious disorder.

Yale Students Pay Fines.

New Haven, Conn., March 7.—Fines were imposed on five prominent Yale men in the city court yesterday morning for participating in the disturbance at the Grand Opera House on Saturday night.

They were Keyes Winter of Indianapolis, Coler Campbell of Evanston, Ill., Courtland F. Luce of New Brighton, N. Y., William Cutcheon of Plainfield, N. J., and James T. Walker of St. Louis, Mo.

They did not appear in court in person, but each paid a three dollar fine. Charges of obstructing the sidewalk were preferred against them.

The Amphitrite Takes on Shells.

Norfolk, Va., March 7.—The monitor Amphitrite, which arrived in Hampton Roads several days ago, would, it was understood, go out of commission. She subsequently came into the inner harbor and took on a great quantity of loaded shells.

She is coaling with all possible dispatch. It is reported that she has been ordered to proceed to Port Royal. Appearances indicate that there is some work cut out for the monitor.

The Pope Improving.

Rome, March 7.—Another satisfactory bulletin, regarding the health of the pope, was issued this morning. No other bulletin will be issued until this evening.

QUAY MEN ARE FURIOUS

The Legislative Record Recognizes the Rump House.

THE STENOGRAPHER FLEES

Speaker Farr is Fearful of His Power, Now that the House Has Formally Divided—The Insurgents Are Hopeful of Securing Additions to Their Ranks Which Meet To-day.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 7.—The Quay leaders in the House are in a state of mind over the publication in the Legislative Record, the official organ of the legislature, of all that took place in the House on Friday after Speaker Farr vacated the chair.

The Record is published under contract, and the Quay men in the Senate may attempt to expunge the record and these proceedings, but the majority in the House will not permit this to be done.

The House stenographer fled from the city when he heard of the wrath of the Quay men.

Speaker Farr knows that the slightest appearance of partiality on his part will provoke the wrath of the anti-Quay forces and the avalanche will follow.

Farr's grip on his office is not strong and he is likely to be deposed at any moment.

The Koontz resolution to enlarge the bribery investigation committee by the addition of four anti-Quay members was offered last night. The Democrats may offer a resolution requesting Farr to resign.

The steering committees of the insurgents and Democrats met yesterday and formulated plans. Dixon, of Elk, a Democratic leader, will probably be chosen speaker pro tem. The insurgent House has been called to meet this evening.

Another break from Quay is scheduled for to-day. Harrold of Beaver, Towler of Forest, Bare of Huntington, Scott and Stulb of Philadelphia are mentioned as among those who will desert Quay this week.

The week promises important developments in the struggle over the senatorship.

The joint ballot yesterday resulted as follows: Quay 11, Jenks 8, Tubbs 1. No quorum and no election.

Passenger Train Wrecked.

Dunkirk, N. Y., March 7.—Train No. 10, on the Lake Shore Railroad, due here at 12.10 o'clock yesterday morning, ran into a switching engine at Westfield. Both engines were totally wrecked.

One mail car was overturned but the clerks escaped serious wounds. Other coaches of the train remained on the track, but the passengers were badly shaken up.

After a delay of four hours the train proceeded east.

Following is a list of the injured: Gilbert Thompson of Buffalo, engineer light engine; Harry Turner of Erie, passenger engineer; James Kirkland, Collingwood, Ohio, fireman of the light engine; H. S. Hubbard, Toledo, baggageman; John Titterington Cleveland, clerk in charge of the postal car; L. L. Griffin of Cleveland, postal clerk; Asa Perrin, Clyde, Ohio, postal clerk; T. H. Mitchell, Walworth, N. Y., postal clerk; R. S. Wilder, Erie, postal clerk; Henry K. Howey, New York, passenger; Frank M. Jobson of Philadelphia, passenger; E. A. Foster, of Dunkirk, passenger.

Collins, the fireman of the express, was also injured, and died while being taken to Cleveland for treatment.

Henry Turner, the engineer, also died from his injuries a short time after noon.

Kipling's Daughter Dead.

New York, March 7.—Rudyard Kipling's daughter Josephine, six years old, died of pneumonia at 6.20 o'clock yesterday morning at the home of Mrs. De Forest, 121 East Thirty-fifth street. The child was seized with the disease on the day after her father was taken ill. She was then removed to the house of Miss De Forest.

Since then Mrs. Kipling has divided her time between the bedside of her husband and that of her two children.

Josephine was Mr. Kipling's eldest child.

The youngest daughter, Elsie, also has pneumonia, which developed from a case of bronchitis she contracted last Tuesday.

The younger daughter's condition at no time gave the physicians any great alarm, but Josephine's case aroused grave fears from the beginning of her illness.

Mr. Kipling is getting steadily better, but he will not be able to take any solid food for at least a week. At present Mr. Kipling lives on beef tea and eggnog.

Quick Work of Baking Powder.

New York, March 7.—No industrial combination has ever begun active operations so soon after the formal signing of papers as the Royal Baking Powder Company. The enterprise was a matter of negotiation only a week ago yesterday, and yet, by last Saturday morning the twenty million dollars capital had been subscribed and paid in, the previous owners of the five concerns had received full payment for their properties, and a newly organized board of directors had taken complete possession of the various plants.

Every detail of the negotiations and transfer worked out as planned, and three years of quiet and persistent work was thus climaxed in a few days. It is said that when the directors met and Mr. J. C. Hoagland of the old Royal Company realized that he was about to part with his life work, a very affecting scene took place.

Croker Jr. Branching Out.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 7.—Richard Croker, Jr., of New York city was here yesterday to look at the big quarry on the mountain near here owned by Joseph Hendler of this city, with a view of purchasing it.

He was accompanied by an engineer of the syndicate of which he is at the head, and by John Rogers, Edward Miller and M. A. Miller.

The stone is to be used in the construction of the Hudson river bridge. The price to be paid is said to be $300,000.

THE BLACKMAIL AGAINST GOULDS.

Letters Mrs. Cody Wrote in Her Effort to Get Money Out of George Gould.

Albany, N. Y., March 7.—The testimony in the trial of Margaret E. Cody for alleged blackmail upon the children and heirs of the late Jay Gould was renewed in the county court here yesterday.

Mrs. Sarah Ann Angell, whom Mrs. Cody tried to prove was the first wife of Jay Gould, and who could not be produced at the last trial, was brought into court from Schifferdecker. He had her in his custody under an order of attachment from her home in Rouse's Point.

Mrs. Angell, who protested strongly against coming to Albany, was accompanied by her husband.

Mrs. [illegible] of Rouse's Point, who has acted as a private secretary for Mrs. Cody on different times, was the first witness sworn.

She identified letters written for Mrs. Cody in 1895 as having been written by her at Mrs. Cody's dictation to Mrs. Ella Beebe at Denver.

Mrs. Beebe is the woman who, it is alleged, furnished the funds with which Mrs. Cody prosecuted the blackmail. A letter written to Amasa J. Parker, Jr., of Albany, who in 1895 was of Mrs. Cody's counsel, was also identified by Mrs. Seguin as having been written by her at Mrs. Cody's request. The letter to Mrs. Beebe, under date of July 16, 1895, imparted this significant information:

"Mrs. B——, have sad news for you. I had everything arranged with my lawyers. They gave me $100 for my expenses. Now comes Mrs. Pierce's attorney with the deposition that Mrs. Angell never married Jay Gould. My lawyers are coming from Albany to see what can be done about it. We will be all right if I can get that old woman to sign a certificate that she was married to Jay Gould, and also that she had a child as a result of this marriage. We seemed to have had everything our way and now comes this old villain, Mrs. Pierce. I am heartsick."

Nicholas J. Dach was next sworn. He is a clerk in an Albany grocery store, and often wrote letters for Mrs. Cody to various persons. He identified one as having been written by him at Mrs. Cody's dictation in February, 1896, to George J. Gould.

The purport of this was that the entire case of Mrs. Pierce, the pretended daughter of Jay Gould, had been placed in her hands, and that a family scandal could be prevented perhaps if Mrs. Cody could have a personal interview with him in New York.

In this letter Mrs. Cody attributed to her blackmailing scheme a worthy motive—that of building a home for friendless old ladies if she realized anything.

The star witness for the prosecution was next produced. This was a witness not heretofore sworn on the trial, Mrs. Millie G. Hoyle of Rouse's Point.

"Tell what you remember about a certain visit made to you in December, 1895," said the district attorney, after having laid the legal basis for such testimony.

"Well," said Mrs. Hoyle, a motherly looking old lady of 76 years of age, "Mrs. Cody came to me and told me that as I was a pioneer of northern New York I undoubtedly remembered when Jayson Gould came through Clinton county as an engineer in laying out the Ogdensburg and Champlain Railroad. I told her I did not, but that I knew the engineer who did lay out the road and that he was not Jay Gould. She insisted that I did know Jay Gould and that I knew of his marriage with Sarah Ann Brown. I said I did not know any such thing. That Sarah Ann Brown was a servant in my family and that she went West after leaving me, and that I had proof that she was dead. Mrs. Cody told me that I was in error, and that it would be for my interest to remember things differently, as she had documentary evidence of the marriage of Sarah Ann with Jay Gould. I told her it was to my interest to remember the truth only, and that I never knew of a marriage of Sarah Ann Brown with Jay Gould, but knew to the contrary that Sarah Ann Brown was dead and that the woman in the case, who is trying to be shown to be Sarah Ann Brown, is a niece of Sarah Ann—Melissa Brown—with dark hair and eyes, while Sarah Ann was a blonde, with light hair and blue eyes."

"That's right," chimed in Mrs. Angell from her seat within the court circle, in a voice audible above the hum of the court room.

Her husband, John Angell, nodded assent, and said: "Yes. There's an honest woman."

"Melissa, the present Mrs. Angell," the witness went on, "did have a baby in 1853 or thereabouts, as I remember, by a Frenchman of the name of De Russeou, who was an old man with gray hair, about seventy years of age, while Melissa was only about 16. The child was bound out to somebody in Canada."

While this testimony was being given all eyes in the court room were turned upon Mrs. Angell—the Melissa referred to in Mrs. Hoyle's testimony—who continued to look and indicate assent to the evidence presented.

When Mrs. Hoyle withdrew from the witness stand, clearly much fatigued from the strain she had undergone, she was, at Miss Gould's request, seated next to her on the front row of the court circle.

Convict Jumped To Death.

Albany, N. Y., March 7.—A convict jumped from the New York Central and Hudson River railroad train just north of Hudson, this state, yesterday morning, while the train was running at the rate of forty miles an hour.

He was in charge of a deputy sheriff from Poughkeepsie, who had allowed him to go to the toilet room just before.

The passengers felt a sudden jar as if the cars had run over something on the track. A few moments later the officer looked in the toilet room and saw the window open and the man gone. The mark of his boots could be seen on the window ledge.

His body was found by the track later.

The Dreyfus Revision.

Paris, March 7.—The united courts of cassation met yesterday under the presidency of M. Mazeau, and appointed M. Ballot de Beaupre, who succeeded M. Quesnay de Beaurepaire as president of the civil division of the court of cassation, to report upon the application for a revision of the Dreyfus trial.

ECONOMY THAT PROVED COSTLY.

How Mr. Brown Saved Half a Dollar and Ruined His Trousers.

In a moment of economy Mr. Brown went out in the kitchen to press his trousers, and Mrs. Brown followed to witness the performance and to laugh at the figure he cut prancing around in his pajamas.

"It makes me think, to watch you," chirruped Mrs. Brown, sitting on the table and swinging her heels, "of something that happened one day last summer when I was typewriting."

"Before you met me?"

"Just so. Well, Arthur Jones came down to the office, in a cool suit of duck, but someway he looked awfully funny. One of the men said, 'Hullo Jones; what have you been doing to your trousers?" and Arthur replied that he didn't want any chaffing, that he had had trouble enough all day, running sideways because some Chinese galoot had wheels. Arthur was awfully slangy."

"He had the creases running up the sides, did he?" said Mr. Brown. "That makes me think of once when we fellows on the old Post had a flat. There was a coon used to take care of the joint for us. Joint? That's a name for any old place you like pretty well. Well, the coon hadn't much to do but smoke our tobacco and drink our beer when we weren't about, so I thought I'd utilize him for a valet and gave him two pairs of pants to press."

"Why, Charlie," interpolated Mrs. Brown, "did you wear pants in those days?"

"Excuse me, my dear, trousers, but they were pants when he got through with them," said Mr. Brown solemnly, wetting his finger and sizzling the iron. "He'd thought he'd be very careful, you know, and when a coon does such a rash thing as to think, it's all up with you. Billy didn't want to spoil the cloth by putting the iron on it, so he turned the garments inside out. You may imagine the result. I put them on without noticing them, being in a hurry, and I had to go about all day with a Watteau pleat down the front of each leg and likewise down the back."

"For goodness, gracious sake," gurgled Mrs. Brown, "did folks think you wore a tea gown?"

"I didn't go around taking an inventory of opinion."

Mr. Brown set the iron down and burst into a roar, while he leaned up against the sink and mopped the perspiration from his brow. Mrs. Brown laughed, and swung her heels. Just then a smell of burning cloth pervaded the kitchen, and Mr. Brown snatched up the iron and the cloth and gazed ruefully at a big round spot on the leg of his trousers.

"Say Madge, what do you think of that? I've saved a half dollar and ruined my best business suit listening to your gabble."

Ghosts at Sea.

Said the old sea captain:

"I never believed much in ghosts, although I knew many a sailor to swear to a good ghost story; but on one occasion I did see a real ghost myself, and a good stout wooden one he was. I lived at Newcastle-on-Tyne then, and the ship I was master of sailed from there. On one voyage, when we were only a few days out, the ship's cook died. We had no man on board who was much of a cook, and perhaps it was the bad messes we had to eat that gave some of the men the dyspepsia, and made 'em see crooked. However, that may be, it was the night after we buried poor Dick that the mate came running to me in a great fright, with the news that the ship's cook was walking on the water astern of the ship, and that all the crew were on deck looking at him. I was mad enough to hear such nonsense, and I told him, sharp, that we had better put the ship about and race the ghost back to Newcastle.

"But when I went on deck—bless me, I thought for several minutes it really was the old man, just as we knew him. The clothes, cap, figure, were so like, even the way it had of bobbing up and down was Dick to a T. The men were all scared to death, and stood stiff. But I had just sense enough left to have the ship put about. And when we came near the ghost of poor Dick, it turned out to be a broken mast of some wreck, which was floating along, straight end up!

"But if I hadn't chased and caught up with that ghost," said the captain, "every man of 'em would believe today that Dick was after us to take his old place in the galley again!"

Heard With His Elbows.

The following accounts of an actual occurence illustrate how a simple statement may be distorted by a youthful messenger. Mrs. Warren, who boarded at Mrs. Smith's, started out to spend the day with a friend living at the end of the village. Before going half the distance she remembered that she had left a window open in her room, and seeing a small boy, she called to him:

"Ned, will you please go to Mrs. Smith's and tell her that I left my window up and would like to have it closed?"

The boy went off whistling, and soon another boy caught up with him. This boy was going directly to Mrs. Smith's house. So boy number one gave the message about the window to boy number two to deliver. Arrived at Mrs. Smith's, boy number two delivered his errand thus: "Mrs. Warren wants her winter clothes."

Anent Church-going.

About every so often some minister attempts to tell why it is that more people do not go to church on Sundays, and every such sermon is couched in words that attract attention if they do not correct. The latest pulpit talk on this subject comes from Hackensack, where Rev. Herman Vanderwart delivered a sermon on "Why Are so Many Pews Empty in Our Churches?"

Among some of the things, the preacher blamed the bicycle and the Sunday newspapers for keeping many persons away from church. These were the entering wedges of the evil, and nothing was done to restrain them. But where he attracted the most attention was when he turned his words to hypocritical church members. A prayer defaulter, a long-faced and solemn-voiced defrauder of widows and orphans, or a covetous, grasping, non charaitable man who prayed long and loud, he said, did more harm to the church and the cause of Christianity than the most vulgar saloon talker or the most eloquent and persuasive infidel lecturer.

Rev. Mr. Vanderwart said that the members of the churches—and he did not except his own—were indifferent in a way that was hurtful to the Christian cause. When a stranger came to church he did not get the welcome and attention needed to cause him to come again. Instead he was stared at as a stranger and let severely alone. The result was that he was chilled and remained away afterward instead of coming again.

Ministers, too, were largely responsible, he said. There were too many ministers who were good pastors, but poor preachers. They could not hold the interest of their listeners while in the pulpits, but were good at making pastoral calls and were popular. They did not, however, bring new faces into the church.

Good Legislation.

Assemblyman Benny, of Bayonne, has introduced three bills, intended to establish municipal ownership of street railways, gas and electric light companies. One of the measures allows the cities to construct gas and electric light plants, another empowers the cities to construct street railways, a third empowers municipalites to purchase or condemn gas and electric light plants already existing and purchase or condemn street railways already existing.

In each case bonds may be issued for the payment of properties purchased or acquired. There is little likelihood of any action on these bills at this session, if for no other reason because of lack of time. Yet they are suitable subjects for legislative action, and the time of the Legislature could not be better employed than in their consideration.

Speaking of excellent terms secured in connection with granting public franchises, here is one that needs no commendation other than a plain rehearsal of its terms. A thirty-four-years' extension of the street railroad franchise in Indianapolis has been granted by the Indiana Legislature, in return for which the company agrees to pay to the city $750,000 in instalments, or at the rate of about $44,000 a year, pave between its tracks, spend $1,000,000 in betterments to its plant, give the city the best service, sell six tickets for 25 cents and twenty-five for $1, practically give the city 200 acres of land for a park (the rental being $1 per year), and permit the city to buy the plant at the end of the term of the franchise.

United States Senator Kean made his official debut before an expectant constituency yesterday by writing a letter to Secretary of the Treasury Gage, urging him to make a more favorable ruling in regard to the tariff on raw skins used in the manufacture of leather. Under a rather indefinite ruling of the Government officials leather manufacturers have been put to a disadvantage in their business, and a few Jerseymen engaged in the leather business have appealed to the new Senator to do what he can for them.

The Sun tells a story of a Jersey farmer who owned a twenty-three year-old horse and gave a liveryman $2 to dispose of it to suit himself. The liveryman dyed the horse's hair, slicked him up, gave him stimulants and sold him back to the farmer for a fresh one. As the liveryman also lived in Jersey there is no reason for Jerseymen to feel that the item is a reflection upon the smartness of the people of the State.

A Chicago man stole a rabbit's foot for luck and was arrested and find $5 and costs. The rabbit was still attached to the foot, which only goes to show what luck there was in the rabbit's foot—for the rightful owner.

W. J. Bryan Shinnifield, triplet son of Douglas Shinnifield, of Pana, Ill., chewed up a gold standard newspaper the other day and died from the effects. How contradictory fate works in some instances is shown in the above.

A Mount Holly woman has applied for a divorce for the reason that her husband refused to carry enough coal from the cellar to keep the fires going. That is one of the disadvantages of living in a climate such as this.

A Philadelphia mother who sold her hair to provide food for her children during the recent cold snap learned the absolute truth of escaping by the hair's length if not by the width.

ROBERT GILLESPIE REID.

"Czar Reid" they call him, because he owns practically the whole of the land on the island of Newfoundland. His holdings amount to 5,000,000 acres of the hitherto unproductive lands of the "tenth island" of the world. He is worth millions and is the heaviest landowner in the world.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Assemblyman Squire, of Union, has a bill before the Legislature which ought to pass. It is intended to prevent the commitment of children to almshouses. A non-salaried commission, consisting of five men and two women, is to have supervision over indigent children, with power to place them in homes with families of the same religious faith as their parents. Boards of Freeholders are to pay the board, $1.50 per week, to be expended for the care of each child committed in this way. The Board is authorized to return the children to parents or relatives if it thinks wise. This is a good bill. A child reared in a poorhouse misses many of the advantages which will make him a useful citizen. He does not have the chances of a street arab. The local authorities have wisely recognized this, and have through the newspapers found homes for scores of children who otherwise would bear the stigma of pauperism all their lives.—Passaic News.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Tonight Barney Ferguson, the eccentric Irish comedian, and a specially selected company of twenty farce comedy actors and vaudeville artists, will present the three-act musical comedy, "McCarthy's Mishaps," at Music Hall. It was in this play that Ferguson first won the praise of the New York critics and established himself as an artist of original methods and creative abilities. The play is one continuous laugh, and the specialties introduced are numerous and all new, bright and clean. No "Bred in Old Kentucky" or other "chestnuts" allowed, but every line, song and situation is new and original. The house should be a big one.

"Bigger and better than ever" is the assurance under which Leon W. Washburn's double minstrel enterprise comes to Music Hall Friday night—their last appearance this season. With this great array of minstrel talent are fifty people, among whom are some of the best known black-face comedians in the minstrel world. This gorgeous production is handsomely staged and a perfect avalanche of the great artistic novelties are promised. Everywhere it has appeared it has met with tremendous success and pleased everybody. It is certain to do so here. Besides the grand first part, there is an olio of the most pleasing specialties. One of the interesting features is the wonderful wargraph, a moving picture machine, which presents an excellent lot of timely and entertaining views.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Metuchen is quite proud of the fact that one of its most beautiful young women, Miss Pauline Chadwick, posed for the picture entitled "A Bowl of Yellow Roses," by Herman. This picture, which took first prize, is now on exhibition at the Academy of Design in New York, where it attracts much attention. Miss Chadwick is herself an artist, in embryo, as she has been studying for the past two years.

That non-church going people have no desire to regularly attend church was evidenced recently in one of the Plainfield churches when two strangers by mere accident happened to be seated in a pew that was regularly rented. The owners of the pew were much discomfited over the fact that someone had got into the pew, but managed to put up with it during the service. But during the following week the owners of the pew had a small sign printed and placed in the pew. The sign read: "This pew is rented." It is safe to say that these people did not cause any further trouble to the worshippers at that church.

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is health'ul, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about ¼ as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

TRAGEDY OF A FENCE

A MISSOURI FEUD IN WHICH A FAMILY WAS BADLY WORSTED.

Old Johnny Past Eighty, Had Been in Many a Standup Fight—Volunteers Start to Raze the Fence—The Nerve of a Woman.

Bloody feuds from rail fences grow, or from some other insignificant cause, and there is no place on earth where family quarrels are more lasting or more sanguinary than in the Southern and Southwestern States. When, in Christian County, in the Ozark region of Missouri, the Meadowses declared war upon the Bilyeus because the latter family resented the announcement of the former that a fence owned in common should be removed, the hostilities resulted in the death of three of the defendants and the wounding of one of the aggressors.

The two families are so united by inter-marriages that it is hard to pick out a certain member of either and say with any degree of exactness just what he or she is.

After it is all over, old Johnny Bilyeu declares, notwithstanding that he lost a son and two grandsons, it "was a bully goood scrap," and he wouldn't have missed it for any number of sons and grandsons. The Meadowses and one of the surviving Bilyeus are under arrest, and will be tried for murder, but old Johnny Bilyeu says "it's a shame to hang a feller for licking his man n a fight, even if he is a Medder, durn him, and has been killin' Bilyeus."

For old Johnny is past eighty years old, and has been in many a standup fight. He shoved ammunition to his son, Steve, and his two grandsons, Jimmie and Pete, and cheered them on with cries of "Give 'em hell!" But, as it turned out, it was a game of take as well as give, and nobly did the Bilyeus take it.

About the middle of November Bud Meadows got his volunteers together and started out to raze that fence which divided the two farms. He had leveled only a little gap when Steve Bilyeu and his son Pete came running out from their house with guns in their hands. There was a cessation of the leveling just then, and the work was postponed till the week after Thanksgiving. Then once more Bud got his cohorts together and sallied forth. This time his men were armed, and they confronted armed men. The procession moved in the following order: From the Meadows house came Bud Meadows, Jake Bilyeu, Steve's brother, Hosea Bilyeu, Steve's cousin, and the husband of Steve's sister, Frank Tabor, who had married Steve's daughter; Martin Bilyeu Steve's brother's boy, and Mrs. Bud Meadows and Mrs. Bob Meadows, daughters of Steve's brother. Notwithstanding their contrary names and relationships, they all were Meadowses.

The enemy advanced to the scrap in this order: Steve Bilyeu, with his sons Jimmie and Pete; Mrs. Steve Bilyeu, with a big pruning knife, and in the rear, hurrying along as well as his aged legs would carry him, was the redoubtable patriarch, old Johnny Bilyeu, who carried his eighty years and his gun with equal ease.

Some one fired a shot—who no one knows nor cares. But it was the signal for the opening of the battle. It was hardly an equal contest, as the Meadowses outnumbered the Bilyeus, but the latter kept up their end pretty well. Frank Tabor was hit and an instant latter Steve Bilyeu fell. Mrs. Bilyeu skipped over the fence and with her knife pruned off a piece of Bud Meadows's arm. While she was thus engaged, Jimmie and Pete, her sons, fell beside their father, and the greater part of the Bilyeus being hors de combat, the Meadowses withdrew.

Mrs. Steve leaped across the offending fence and knelt beside the warm bodies of her husband and sons. There was little that she said—she never wasties words or tears on those who fall in a glorious fight. Going home for help, she had the bodies removed to the house, and the funeral was attended by all the good people in the neighborhood except the Meadowses.

Arrests folllowed, and this feature of the affair grieved old Johnny greatly, for, as he said, "it's a shame to hang a feller fer licking his man in a good fight, even if he is a Medder, durn him an' has been killin' Bilyeus."

Origin of Finger Rings.

The first authentic reference to finger rings ccurs in the Old Testament, where Judah's signet ring is mentioned. It is also evident they were in use among the Egyptians at that time, for Pharaoh is said to have taken the ring from his own finger and put it on Joseph's hand when he made him ruler over Egypt. In those days rings seem to have been worn not so much for ornaments as for practical purposes. They were used for sealing. The Romans used to wear signet rings of iron, and every free man had a right to wear one. Ambasssadors, in the early days, used to wear gold rings as a part of their official dress. This privilege of their official dress. This privilege of wearing rings afterward extended to chief magistrates and senators. The emperors used to confer this right upon those whom they wished to favor. Now-a-days the wearing of rings has no particular significance except the wedding ring and the engagement ring. Anybody who wants to, and who can afford to purchase one, can wear a signet ring. The custom of wearing rings is a very popular one, and the manufacture of them forms one of the most important branches of the jeweler's industry.

REWARDED A GOOD BUSINESS.

The debt of the struggling little church in the suburbs had all been paid off but $600 says the Chicago Tribune.

A clergyman noted for his skill and success in raising church debts had been sent for, and was conducting the morning service. The sermon was over, and the work of stirring up the audience had begun. Subscriptions rose rapidly to $300, then $400, and after considerable effort to $500, where they stuck. In vain the visiting brother exhorted and pleaded. The limit of the cash resources of the congregation appeared to have been reached, and at last he sat down, discouraged.

Then Brother Plantus, a highly-respected undertaker, who had made a liberal subscription already, rose and said:

"Brethren, this thing shan't fall through after it has got as far along as $500. I believe in a man giving as the Lord has prospered him, and, although I have given a pretty good-sized donation, I am ready to do more. I'll pay that last hundred dollars myself. Here's my check for the amount."

"I don't know your name, brother," shouted the visiting preacher, jumping to his feet with enthusiasm, "but I hope your business will double during the coming year, and I believe it will!"

NOW KISS ME.

Title of a Sensational Song Causes Consternation.

A funny incident occurred in a neighboring city, says an exchange, and one too good to be lost. One of our celebrated composers has written a pretty song entitled, "Kiss Me." A very pretty, blushing maid, having heard of the song, and thinking she would get it, with some others, stepped into a music store to make a purchase. One of the clerks, a modest young man, stepped up to wait on her. The young lady threw back her veil, saying:

"I want 'Rock Me to Sleep.'"

The clerk got the song and put it before her.

"Now," said the young lady, "I want 'The Wandering Refugee.'"

"Yes, ma'am," said the clerk, bowing, and in a few minutes he produced the "Refugee."

"Now, 'Kiss Me,'" said the young lady, of course meaning the song above mentioned.

The poor clerk's eyes popped fire almost as he looked at the young lady in utter astonishment, for he was not aware that a song by that name had been published.

"Wh—what did you say, Miss?"

"'Kiss Me,'" said she.

"I can't do it; I never kissed a young lady in my life," said the clerk.

And about that time a veil dropped a young lady left in a hurry, clerk fell sick, and dealer lost the sale of his music.—Mail and Express.

A Letter from Ole Bull.

The other day Mr. S. F. Newhall, of this city, who was going through a collection of old family letters, came across one from Ole Bull, the famous violinist, which was written to his mother, Mrs. Emma Newhall, says the Chicago News.

Mrs. Newhall had written a critique of Bull's playing for the New York Tribune, this being the honor referred to in the letter, and had also been especially kind to a young protege of hers, who chanced to be compatriot of Bull. This is the violinist's letter:

"My Lady: Deeply impressed with the honor you have conferred upon me and penetrated with joy and gratitude for your interest and sympathy in behalf of a countrywoman of mine, Miss ——, I solicit from your generosity the acceptance of my invitation to my concerts here, and, in my name, if it please you, to your protege also; and for your kind forbearance with my humble efforts to attach heaven to earth in music, I do most heartily thank you. Altho' it humbles me to be so far beneath your own standard; but I hope for better things. I trust you will allow me to present my deep respects in person. I am; my lady, yours very humbly, OLE BULL."

Not Always on Safe Ground.

Canon Tristram begs the clergy to beware of wrong or unfortunate illustrations. "When a dockyard chaplain, I once," he says, "secured the aid of an eloquent American bishop, whose sermon certainly rivited me. The next day, meeting the boatswain of the yard, who was a great critic, I remarked to him, 'That was a grand sermon, Mr. S., that we heard yesterday.' 'Well, I don't know, sir,' he replied. 'I only hope he knows his own business better than he knows mine.' 'Why, what was the matter?' exclaimed I. 'Why, didn't you hear? He talked about sails hanging idly from the mast; as if any landlubber ever saw a sail hanging from anything but a yard yet!'"

A New Opening for Women.

A new occupation for women is that of house agent. One young woman has made quite a success of it. She gets two commissions, one from the real estate agent for getting him a tenant and the other from the tenant himself, who is glad to pay her a small amount for relieving him of the annoyance of going over the house and approving or disapproving its condition.

So She Chose.

Fred: "Yes—I like him well enough, Minnie; but how did you ever happen to marry a man a head shorter than you are?"

Minnie: "I had to choose, Fred, between a little man with a big salary and a big man with a little salary."

POMP ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN.

Prince Nikita Sustains His Reputation Regardless of Expense.

Like several other princely spendthrifts in Europe, Nikita of Montenegro is as generous in times of scarcity as in times of plenty. His civil list of $40,000 a year is to his creditors something like the great prize in a lottery; the lucky one gets it and the rest get nothing. In Montenegro this kind of princely bankruptcy encounters few obstacles, for Nikita rules with the aid of dungeons and swords for the rebellious creditor, and is totally callous to the appeals and remonstrances of the unpaid.

The one trip which did not lead him to his Russian source of supplies was that to Italy to attend the wedding of his daughter and the Italian Crown Prince. As father-in-law of the future King of Italy, Nikita doubtless felt it incumbent upon him to do the grand thing, so he scattered costly decorations—stars, crosses, &c.—hither and thither among the Italian courtiers. He let no available man escape, and consequently had an order for any quantity of Montenegrin decorative jewelry to be made by the Rome goldsmiths. To one firm he gave an order for $20,000 worth of decorations, and to another one for $15,000 worth. A third received instructions to make up $8,000 worth. This third firm was in luck, for, having the smallest bill, it was able to collect the money at once upon delivering the stars and crosses.

The other two firms could not collect their bills, and therefore refused to deliver the goods. Hence great indignation on the part of his Montenegrin Highness and embarrassment on the part of King Humbert and his court. Appeals to the two suspicious firms were in vain; they had heard of Nikita's ways, and were not to be humbugged. So eventually the Italian court marshal in chief felt obliged to interfere to save the dignity of the allied house of Montenegro, and after Nikita had paid $5,000 to one firm and $2,500 to the other, guaranteed the payment of the balance on the installment plan. The stars and garters were then delivered, the Italian court was decorated plentifully according to programme, and his Highness of the Balkans went home in the happy consciousness that when he should default on his future installments, the Italian court would accept its burdens and pay the bill.—New York Sun.

A HOUSE BUILT UNDER WATER.

A Novel Way to be Amused and Also to Keep Cool in Hot Weather.

A glass-house under water is the latest luxury. A rich man, who has a large lake upon his estate, recently caused it to be drained, and in the deepest part he has had a house built which contains three rooms—a smoking-room, a dining-room, and a servants' waiting-room. The framework of the house is of iron, and the floor is stone, resting upon a foundation of concrete. The sides and roof, however, are entirely composed of very thick plate-glass. There is a passage under the water from the boat-house to the glass-house, and air is obtained through large clumps of artificial water-lilies which rest upon the surface of the lake. It is indescribably pleasant to sit in one of the rooms upon a warm day; the air is very cool, there is no sound to be heard, and it is especially interesting to watch the fish swimming around, attracted by the glare of the electric lights. This is decidedly a new luxury. The house and the passage, moreover, cost comparatively little to build.—Tid-Bits.

A Curious Find.

Some years ago the late Precenter Venables was visiting at Crewe Hall, and found in his bed-room an odd picture handsomely framed, but having for its subject nothing more than a tripod pure and simple. What was its history? On inquiry, it appeared that Sir Joshua Reynolds had painted a family picture of the Grevilles, and, as his manner was, had exercised his fancy with some of the members of it, painting young Henry Greville as Cupid and his sister as Hebe. Years passed; the boy and his father quarreled, and the angry father had Cupid cut out and a tripod substituted for it, at which Hebe might be supposed to be ministering. After another interval of time, some one told the late Lord Crewe, the possessor of the picture, not only the story of the tripod, but also the fact that a Cupid—certainly by Reynolds—was at a certain place. It was, in fact, the identical portrait. The portrait was then carefully restored, and the tripod was also framed as a memorial of the loss and recovery.

Filled the Dog's Tooth.

A dog doctor was called upon to perform a strange operation. A well-known society lady visited the hospital with her pet King Charles spaniel, who was suffering with the toothache. The doctor wanted to extract the tooth, but the lady protested that the loss of one of its front teeth would spoil the beauty of her pet, and asked that the tooth be filled. The doctor sent for a dentist, put the dog on the operating table, and soon had the tooth filled with gold, returned the spaniel to its mistress and received a large fee for his work.

An Accomplishment of the Duke of York.

The only member of the Royal Family who can dance a genuine sailor's hornpipe is the Duke of York, who learned that accomplishment while a young cadet, and it is told that often he and his brother, the late Duke of Clarence, would get into a cabin together, and while the latter whistled, Prince George would go through the steps with untiring energy and enthusiasm.

FROM PALESTINE.

STEADY PRAYERS TOWARD A JEWISH NATION.

There are Forty Thousand Hebrews There—Half of Them Are in Jerusalem—A Very Large Proportion Are Immigrants—The Hope of Israel.

In the last twenty years the number of Jews in the "Promised Land" has increased nearly threefold. There are in Palestine now 40,000, as against 14,000 in 1878. Over half of the present population, or 22,000, are in Jerusalem. Of these half have emigrated from Europe and America, and are called Aschkenazim, to distinguish them from the Oriental Israelites, or Sephardists. Twenty-two Jewish colonies in Palestine have been founded and subsidized by Europeans, ten by Baron Edmond de Rothschild, representing the Alliance Israelite Universelle, and the other twelve by the Jewish Colonization Association and by the Odessa Company. These colonies have a population of 960 families, or 5,000 people. It has been only since the eighties that the immigration of Jews to Palestine has amounted to anything, though the idea of gathering in this land homeless Jews from all over the world was championed in the forties by Moses Montefiore.

Of the twenty-two present colonies the "Jacob Memorial" is the largest, supporting more than 1,000. It has a graded school with five teachers, a synagogue and 4,000 acres of land under cultivation, on which are raised fruit, chiefly grapes, honey and mulberry leaves, the rearing of silkworms being a leading industry.

The "First to Zion" is another important colony, owning 2,000 acres and forty two-storied stone dwelling houses, also a school house with a Hebrew library, a synagogue and a hospital. One million five hundred thousand vines and 25,000 olive, almond orange and mulberry trees belong to this colony, which also possesses famous wine cellars.

The "Hope of Israel," a mile beyond Yafa, in the plains of Sharon, is perhaps best known for its agricultural school, in which 100 or more pupils are taught gardening. Recently a high school for Jewish girls was established in Yafa.

The "Head Corner Stone," amid the hills beyond Tiberias, with snow-capped Hermon in the background, is another prosperous Jewish colony in Palestine. Being near the source of the Jordan, water is plentiful and its situation, high up above the level of Lake Gennesareth, insures fair climatic conditions.

In the "Door of Hope" dairy farming is followed profitably and experiments made in tea planting. This colony is said to have 1,000,000 vines.

The Zionists may or may not succeed in making a nation out of the Jewish people, with a Parliament in Jerusalem and representation in foreign capitals, but, at any rate, Palestine, which responds generously to modern influences, will be developed. The Sultan seems disposed to grant railway, harbor and other franchises, and it is possible that the new Jewish Colonial Bank, the organization of which was decided upon in Basel, will be permitted, under certain guarantees, to play an important part in the industrial advancement and growth of Palestine. The movement furthermore, is bringing out new qualities in the Jews in Palestine. They are no longer content with studying the Halmud and living on charity, but are waking to the fact, as the Hebrew would put it, that to till the ground is worship of God.

Still, a Jewish colony, not far from El Mzerib, on the caravan route from Damascus to Mekka, was attacked recently by predatory Bedouins. The settlers were driven away and their gardens and crops destroyed. Even a road built by the Jews to connect their frontier colonies with older ones in Galilee, west of the river, was partly obliterated. Taxes are more oppressive than ever, officials are corrupt, and prohibitive measures regarding immigration are still in force, although inadequate.

Four or five weeks ago an English company announced its determination to build a broad-guage railway from the sea at Haifa through the heart of Samaria and Galilee to Damascus and on to Bagdad, and active operations have already begun.

Monkeys' Voices.

All monkeys have voices, and many of them have very strong ones. Excepting the solitary and tacitturn ourang-outang, the species which live in troops are chatterers, and keep up a great hubbub. The principal tones of their noisy and rapid language, with the frequent repetition of the same sounds, may also be found in the languages of the most savage peoples. They are for the most part complex, guttural, and harsh articulations, with few variations. But the alphabets of some of the African and Melanesian nations are not much richer.

Laughter is not wholly peculiar to men, for some monkeys have a noisy and explosive laugh analogous to ours. Monkeys are also capable of showing sorrow and weeping, and it is possible to follow on their faces the equivalents of the physiognomical changes which in man answer to the expression of his various emotions. Among these are the drawing back of the corner of the mouth, and the contraction of the lower eyelid, which constitute the monkey's smile, and the depression of the eyebrow and forehead in anger.

If people are ruled by fear they are sure to be untruthful, and if they are not allowed to think and act for themselves they lose conscience—it dies.

SPANISH GUNNERY.

It Did Impress the Commander of the German Cruiser Geier as Wonderful.

Captain Jacobsen, commander of the German cruiser Geier, has published in the Marine Review, of Berlin, two articles about his personal experiences during the Spanish-American Campaign in Santiago. In speaking of Spanish gunnery he says:—

"I have heard only of one instance where a Spanish shell found an American war ship. This was sent into the Texas while that battle ship was bombarding the Socopa batteries.

"One night while the American battle ships kept up a continuous bombarding one of the attacking vessels was found by the search lights on the battery. The Spaniards opened fire on it, but instead of hitting the vessel the Iowa, which lay under cover of the darkness, was struck by the shell from the Spanish howitzer.

"Great must have been the fright of the American officers when on taking charge of Morro they found that the cannon operated against them by the Spanish bore the dates of 1608 and 1718, part of these howitzers were found loaded as the Americans took charge. The officer found to his great surprise that the longest distance one of these shots could traverse was 800 yards.

"With due apologies to the brethren of Yankeeland, dis the thrifty Americans really allow themselves to be frightened at this Spanish 'bluff?' In the beginning, perhaps yes, I must confess, and so do my officers, that while watching the proceedings from our cruiser we had not the faintest idea that the Spanish batteries had such antique material to defend their glorious honor with."

A continued story is rendered the more readable by "leaving off in an interesting place," but this very common literary procedure may be overdone. An installment of a story recently published in a French newspaper, for instance, ended in the following startling way:

"Upon hearing this the young girl rendered hopeless and indifferent to the world, allowed herself to fall negligently from the fifth story window.

"(To be continued next week.)"

This situation was evidently borrowed from a continued story once written by Artemus Ward, entitled "The Fair Inez." In it the heroine was left, at the end of one installment of the story, falling from the top of a tall tower to the earth. She had dropped about one-half of the distance when the story was interrupted, "To be continued in our next."

In the next number a farmer very opportunely passed beneath the tower with a load of hay, upon which the fair Inez fell without injury.

Still another way of continuing a story is to break it off just where it happens to suit, without reference to what the situation may be. This method has been satirized by another humorist, who asserts that a story in a German periodical was broken off in the middle of one of the long German verbs. Not all the verb could be got into the first number. The interest of the foreign reader, at any rate, was heightened by his desire to know in what combination of letters the word could possibly bring up.—Tit-Bits.

The Minnow Trap.

The minnow trap used for catching minnows for bait is of glass, shaped like a jar or a bottle without a neck and a capacity of six or eight quarts. The bottom of the trap rises in a cone like the bottom of a champagne bottle, but instead of being solid the top of the cone is cut off, making an opening in the trap. The top of the trap has over it a metal cap on a hinge. The cap is perforated with a number of holes to permit of the circulation of water through the trap.

The minnow trap is slung horizontally in a wire holder, which has a handle on top, to which a rope is made fast. Suitable bait to attract minnows is placed in the trap, which is then lowered into the water. The cone with the opening at the inner end in the bottom is in effect like the opening into an eel or fish trap. It is easy for the minnows to get through it into the trap in search of the bait, but hard for them to get out. When the trap has been raised, the captured minnows are got out by opening the cap at the other end of the trap.—New York Sun.

Electric Power.

The development of electric power for industrial uses is almost phenomenal in California, and this fact is notably illustrated in the case of the two big plants in the vicinity of Redlands. It is stated that it requires 34,560 pounds of coal to operate one horse power for one year by means of steam. The Redlands plant produces 1,000-horse power in electricity, in addition to the one producing 2,000-horse power. Further, the plant of the Southern California Power company, producing 4,000-horse power, makes 7,000,000-horse power in electricity by the companies in Mill Creek and Santa Ana canons—equivalent, that is, to the consumption of nearly 121,000 tons of coal per year in the making of power by steam. With coal therefore at $4 per ton, this means $483,840, dividing this by 300, as the number of working days gives an average of 403, the equivalent of this number of tons of coal mined per day and as the water flow is continuous, these plants are, as it were inexhaustible mines producing this enormous output.—New York Sun.

SLEEPY BURKE'S DISCOVERY.

A Reformed Safe-Blower's Cynical Opinion of Most Christians.

"Sleepy" Burke, in the role of a "reformed safe-robber," addressed a heterogeneous Chicago gathering at the noon-hour service in Willard Hall. Many of the seats were occupied by the curious from the neighboring office buildings, while among the spectators were half a dozen strong-arm workers and thieves. Mr. Burke sat on the platform, with eyes downcast, and fanned himself with a hymnal, while Mr. Moyle exhorted the wicked to acknowledge and repent of their sins. At the end of an hour Mrs. Lake briefly introduced "Sleepy."

He walked up to the little marble-topped table and, drawing a "cannon" from his pocket, which had done excellent work in many a hold-up, said, as he placed it on the table: "That's what youse call the X rays."

"I heard 'em speaking of a man what was dyin', whose mother was out in California, an' she don't know where I'm at, alive or dead. Ain't heard from me in four months. I ain't no full-fledged orator, I ain't. I've only been in this business six days. It ain't any wonder, for I've been caged up like a wild beast for most my life.

"There's a lack of Christians in the world. I could see it from me cell doors, as I looked through the bars. There's churches for God, fountains for beasts, but no Christians ready to help a ex-convict who is trying to reform. Since I left prison, a year and a half ago, I've been lookin' for work to earn a honest livin', an' I can't find it, for I tol' th' trut an' said I was an ex-convict. 'Sleepy' Burke is universally known. If he ain't been tryin' to reform there ain't a Christian what's come to me an' said, Burke, there's a place for you.'"

This statement was afterwards modified. One man gave him $5, while another invited him to eat at his restaurant.

In commenting on the lack of societies ready to aid a discharged convict to lead an honest life, Mr. Burke had this to say: "I believe there's a society for the benefit of ex-convicts which was established by an ex-president of the United States, Rutherford B. Hayes. It meets once a year. The last meetin' was accomplished in Philadelphia. That does a whole lot o' good for convicts just comin' from Joliet—don't it?"

Mrs. Lake whispered something to the speaker, who paused and then continued: "She wants me to tell you how I found the Savior. I've prayed for Christ to come for years. Asked Him to come down to my cell, but He didn't. Two months ago there came to me a great light. I realized there was a new life, an' I concluded to bury the hatchet an' smoke th' pipe o' peace with God."

Then "Sleepy" reverted to what he apparently thinks his bete noir by saying:

"There's just as bad as me what wants to lead a honest life. It's impossible for a man to reform in the city of Chicago. Youse ask for aid an they send youse to the Young Men's Christian Association. It sounds very nice, but they tells youse to go to somebody else. Youse gets discouraged when youse t'rown down this a dozen of times, an' gets discouraged an' curses that kind o' Christianity."

Then Mr. Burke told of his release from Chester clad in the uniform of a suicide, with $10 in the pockets of his stained clothes, and his walk to Chicago—features in his career familiar to newspaper readers—observing as a corollary: "Christian organizations shun tramps."

"Thieves," he continued, "were ready to take me in when Christians wouldn't have nothin' to do with me. Last night I spoke at the People's Institute, without me supper at that, an' if it hadn't been for a criminal I'd have slept in the alley last night."

Mr. Burke paused for a moment, and looking about the hall for inspiration, spied his "cannon." Picking it up he resumed:

"For years this has been me weapon an' me frien'. Whenever I brought it down the man usually produced; that's more than a Christian ever did. I had a show on State street, an' intended to give me money to a society what 'ed help ex-convicts, instead of meetin' once a year, electin' a President and Secretary, and blackballin' some o' the members. The police closed me up, because I showed how the keepers at Joliet was robbin' the prisoners of more'n $80,000 a year. They was afraid of a investigation."

Was She Sane?

A man whom the circumstances of travel caused to sit in the same seat with a young lady who was unusually friendly said, as he was leaving,—

"I thank you for a very pleasant chat, but I am afraid you would not have been so kind to me had you known I am a married man."

"You haven't any advantage of me," promptly responded the young lady. "I am an escaped lunatic."

Condensed Truth.

A minister having walked through a village churchyard and observed the indiscriminate praise bestowed upon the dead, wrote upon the gate post the following: "Here lie the dead and here the living lie."—Tid-Bits.

WEALTH IN SAWDUST.

A Ton of It Worth as Much as a Ton of Fairly Good Quartz.

Victor L. Emerson, the Baltimore inventor, who is now in Ottawa, is said to have discovered a process for carbonizing sawdust and extracting the by-products. A long series of experiments in one of the largest sawmills of the dominion has just been concluded and the Ottawa papers say that they surpass all expectations, even those of the sanguine inventor. The experiments are said to have proved that the 500 tons or more of sawdust and refuse of these mills that have been thrown away daily for years should suddenly be discovered to be worth $30 a ton—in other words equal in value to the highest grade of gold quartz—is enough to make the average man catch his breath with surprise and produce in the cynic a smile.

Mr. Emerson went to Canada several months ago upon invitation of the owners of the Edwards sawmills there, who had learned of his supposed discovery.

The sawmill people had been ordered by the government to discontinue emptying sawdust into the Ottawa river and they secured a delay of the enforcement of the order to allow experiments to be made on a large scale by Mr. Emerson. In Ottawa the result which the experiments have produced has been received with the greatest interest. The industrial effect in the lumber region of that part of Canada is predicted to be one of dazzling possibilities, and it is said that in addition to the central plant, erected at large cost for the experiment just concluded, a number of auxilary industries are likely to commence operation in Ottawa, including an iron and steel smelting works, white lead manufactories, printers' ink, manufactories and acetylene gas or calcium carbide works. From the hydrogen carboning process it is said that the whole city can be furnished with light and heat at ten cents a thousand feet. The capitalists behind the inventor do not want to glut the market with the products thus easily and cheaply obtained. They will not risk destroying the market price of the product and by-products by allowing the secret processes to be freely used. A large number of large companies using the products which Mr. Emerson has succeeded in extracting from the sawdust at a nominal cost have been awaiting the result and are ready to purchase all the supply of those products that can be furnished.

Mr. Emerson is a native of Caroline county, Md., and a son of the late Captain Robert R. Emerson, one of the foremost and most wealthy citizens of the county, and a nephew of the late John H. Emerson, the founder of the Denton Union and one of the promoters of the Wilmington, (Del.) Morning News. For a number of years, Mr. Emerson has resided in Baltimore. About six years ago he invented a lumber dry kiln, which has revolutionized the process of drying green lumber and is in use in all the larger sawmills and lumber establishments of the country. He has placed several other paying inventions pertaining to machinery and chemistry on the market.

A Smart Reporter.

One of the most brilliant beats of French reporting happened at the time when a great murder was agitating Paris and France, and when everybody was eager for details.

A reporter, who had the matter in hand, left Paris for Cernay, where the father of the murderer resided. He arrived, called upon the justice of the peace, invited him to follow to the Marie took his seat in the judge's chair and there, with unparalleled audacity, ordered the police to go and bring before him the assassin's father. The officials did not say a word; the reporter had conquered them by his authoritative demeanor. When the father was brought before him, the reporter interrogated him as though officially commissioned to do so. The result of the cross-questioning was that the son had written to his father on the eve and on the day of the crime.

"Monsieur le Commissaire," says the reporter, "please go to the witness' house and seize these letters."

The official obeyed; the letters were brought, the reporter read them, found them full of evidence of the son's guilt, copied them carefully and with a solemn air. Then, with respect, he handed over the originals to the justice of the peace, asked him to seal them carefully and keep them for the further use of the court.

The reporter put the copies into his pocket, saluted the gentlemen, and left.

It was one o'clock in the afternoon and the train that was to bear his letters to Paris would not leave before evening. If he sent his precious report by that train it would be too late for the morning edition of his paper. Besides, he met two other Paris reporters who had just arrived, and who would soon learn the news at Cernay, and send their reports on to Paris at the same time he did his. What does he do?

He goes to his brother reporters, and says: "I am dying of hunger, my friends. Let us lunch together. You go to the tavern there and order a good lunch, with plenty of wine, and I'll come presently."

The two reporters did as he bade them, while our friend jumped into a carriage, had himself driven to the station, and after hard begging and giving money was allowed to leave on a freight train, then about to start, caught a passenger train for Paris at a junction farther on, and arrived at the office of his paper late at night. He communicated his information, and the first page, which was already "closed up," was completely reset.

The next morning 80,000 extra copies of the paper were sold.

OUR ARMY'S RATIONS.

UNCLE SAM APPEARS TO BE VERY LIBERAL WITH THE BOYS.

Spanish Soldiers Get Scarcely Enough to Live On to Say Nothing of Fighting—About Four Pounds of Food to Each American Soldier a Day.

Louis Napoleon said he lost in 1870 because his generals did not know how to move supplies. Wellington said his victories were won at the camp kettles. Napoleon, who fed his armies off the enemy's country, in order to make rapid marches, did not underestimate the value of a well organized commissary. In the Ulm campaign he had 10,000 men flogged for pillaging, which was the usual outcome of his theory of subsistence. His army practically disbanded in the Russian Campaign to hunt for food. Lee lost 25,000 men by straggling in the Gettysburg campaign, whole regiments going away from the army to get something to eat.

So important is the stomach of the man behind the gun that our army has always been provided with a large ration, which competent judges say is really in excess of the wants of the average appetite. No other soldier in the world has so much allowed him to eat in three square meals of the day. It weighs four pounds. The Spaniards never had in their ration full two pounds of food.

A ration in our army is the allowance for subsistence of one person for one day. It consists of twenty ounces of fresh beef, or mutton, when it can be bought for the same price as beef, or twelve ounces of pork of bacon, or twenty-two ounces of salt beef, or fourteen ounces of dried fish when meat cannot be furnished, eighteen ounces of flour or soft bread, or sixteen ounces of hard bread, or twenty ounces of corn meal, and a pound of potatoes or three and one-fifth ounces of onions, and the rest of the pound of potatoes, or four and four-fifths ounces of canned tomatoes, and the rest of potatoes or fresh vegetables to the same amount as the allowance of canned tomatoes. Every ration includes also either two and two-fifths ounces of beans or peas, and one and three-fifths ounces of either rice or hominy. These allowances make fifteen pounds to the hundred rations and ten pounds of rice or hominy. Ten pounds of green coffee, or eight roasted, or two pounds of tea are allowed to the hundred rations. Fifteen pounds of sugar go with a hundred rations, also there is a gallon of vinegar, four pounds of salt and four ounces of black pepper. The boy in blue also receives a candle and soup ration, four of the latter and eight of the former to the hundred rations.

Adding up these amounts, he has about four pounds of food furnished him for daily consumption. This is his allowance in peace or war.

Tommy Atkins doesn't fare as well as this. He gets in barracks, or stationary quarters, one pound of bread and three-fourths of a pound of flesh or preserved meat daily. His groceries and vegetables he must by out of his pay. In the field his country does more for him. For three days at any point where the army halts he is billeted on the innkeeper for hot breakfasts and dinner. When his commissary gets into working order he gets about the same quantity of groceries our boys have and half a pound of vegetables. Yet his ration is little in excess of three pounds of food daily. If his commanding officer orders it, he can have a tenth of a gill of lime juice and half a gill of rum—something our army ration has never included.

The soldiers of France receive ten and a half ounces of meat, fresh, salt, canned or preserved, and twenty-one ounces of bread or biscuit. Only two meals—the "day" and the "night" meal—are provided for by the Government. The soldier's meal fund must get the third. On certain occasions there are issues of wine, beer, cider and brandy, in the discretion of the officer. If the men are fatigued by a hard day's work they can have their liquor. The amounts are a quarter of a litre of wine, half a litre of beer and the same of cider, and a sixteenth of a litre of brandy.

The Italian soldier, whose ration is about the same as that of the French, receives a quarter of a litre of wine daily. The Austrian can choose wine beer, rum or cognac in similar small amounts, and besides receives an ounce of smoking tobacco in this ration. The Austrian officers are favored with half an ounce allowance of cigars daily. Tobacco has not been recognized in our ration except that an army board some years ago proposed allowing half an ounce a day as part of an emergency ration.

Russia gives her soldier in time of peace two pounds of flour and half a pound of meat. To this is added an allowance of the cost of a pound of meat, which may be invested in vegetables and salt. In war the bulk of the ration is somewhat increased and oatmeal added. Diluted wine and a regular vinegar ration when the drinking water is bad are allowed.

Spain's peace ration consists simply of twenty-three ounces of black bread baked in one loaf across the top of which there are two slashes to divide it into three parts for the meals of the day. The soldier buys all else. In war he gets five ounces of potatoes and three and a half of peas. The meal allowance is the smallest known in any military establishment—two and three-fourths ounces of fresh meat, three-fourths of an ounce of pork sausage and three-fourths or an ounce of bacon for his soup. He has six gills of coffee a day, and on feast days is allowed wine.

SPORTING.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The next contest scheduled to take place in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium is the open club swinging coniest, which will be held next Saturday evening. This is something new for the local gymnasts. Not but they have used the Indian clubs many times, but this is the first time that a contest in that class of work has been arranged. There will be silver and bronze medals to the contestants scoring the greatest number of points. Competent judges will score the points.

Another meeting of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association will be held in a few days when the association will take action on the question of withdrawing from the New Jersey Interscholastic Athletic Association. The withdrawal has met some opposition from the advisory board. While, at present, the High School has few if any athletes, it is possible that another year will see a different state of affairs. If the High School once leaves the league there may be trouble in getting back again, so the opposition favors tiding over this year and not taking any such decisive action until there is a change.

This year the Plainfield High School Athletic Association and the Girls' Athletic Assaciation of the Plainfield High School have combined forces and are to give a joint benefit entertainment. For the last two years the boys have given an entertainment to raise the funds in their treasury and have succeed very well, Now that the girls have a basket ball team to look after, they have decided that a well-filled treasury is a very convenient thing to have around. The proposition for a joint benefit was made by the boys and was promptly accepted. Now a joint committee has been appointed with Miss Angie S. Kuhl and William A. Fisher at the head, to arrange the details for the entertaiment. The affair will probably be held some time during the latter part of this month. The character of the programme has not yet been definitely settled, but the success in the past of the benefit entertainments promises something good, whatever it is.

AROUND THE BASES.

Benjamin A. Mumford, who was promoter and manager of the late Plainfield Crescent baseball nine, says that he will not have a nine on the diamond this season. He has had all the baseball he wants for a while, he says.

The baseball enthusiasts of the Plainfield High School are preparing to organize a team this spring whether the High School decides to leave the State interscholastic league or not. William A. Fisher was elected manager of the team at the last meeting of the association. He will take things in hand and conduct an energetic campaign. At a meeting of the candidates for the team Claude Edwards was chosen captain. There are several new boys at the High School this year who bear the reputation of being good ball players.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

Jacob Long, of Avon Park, has purchased an Arabian mare, which is one of the finest steppers in this vicinity.

Harry Gwynette, of East Front street, has entered his two colts in the Kentucky Futurity stakes for $20,000 each, at Lexington, Ky. The Futurity is for two and three year olds. Mr. Gwynette is in hopes of showing two fine race horses.

FEAR ROESEL WILL BREAK DOWN.

Murderer Who Is to Be Hanged Friday Will Not Eat.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 7.—That Louis Roesel, the murderer of Farmer James C. Pitts, of Summit, fully realizes that he must be hanged Friday has been shown since he was notified by his counsel, Frank Bergen, and Sheriff Kirk of the action of the Court of Pardons

He took the announcement bravely, but last night he tossed on the cot in his cell and never closed his eyes until 5 o'clock this morning, when he dozed for a short time. He scarcely touched the supper brought to him last night or the breakfast, and fears are entertained that he will completely break down before Friday.

The long confinement of over seventeen months has told greatly on Roesel's health, and his face is as sallow as a man suffering from yellow jaundice.

Dr. Lewis' Lecture Postponed.

On account of the storm today, the lecture to be given by Dr. A. H. Lewis in the Seventh-Day Baptis church tonight on the Spanish-American War is postponed and will probably be given Tuesday evening, March 14th. Due announcement will be given in the daily papers.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement, that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store. Only 50 cents and $1.00, every bottle guaranteed.

SURPRISED BY CLERKS.

PLEASANT TIME ENJOYED BY WOODHULL & MARTIN'S EMPLOYES.

Paid an Unexpected Visit to the Senior Member of the Firm in Honor of Their Second Business Anniversary.

Yesterday was the second anniversary of the opening of Woodhull & Martin's mammoth dry goods house on West Front street, and Mr. Woodhull, the senior member of the firm, was agreeably reminded of it last night by his employes and their friends who went to his house in a body after the store closed, and surprised him.

The surprise party was arranged by Miss Mabel Gillies and Miss Sarah Carney, who conceived the idea Saturday. Mrs. Woodhull was let into the secret and contrived to keep her husband home from the store last evening, so as to enable the clerks to perfect the arrangements without his knowledge.

Soon after 8 o'clock a company of about forty young people, laden with baskets and boxes, might have been seen wending their way from the store towards Sycamore avenue. Arriving at the house the doorbell was rung, while the party gathered about on the front piazza. Mr. Woodhull himself came to the door, and to say he was surprised is putting it mildly. But the self-invited guests pushed past him and took possession of the house. A merry evening was spent in playing games, dancing and listening to violin solos and duets by Mr. Martin and Mrs. Saums, and vocal solos by Mr. Martin.

Refreshments were taken, consisting of ice cream, cake, fruit, nuts and confectionery, and these were served about 11 o'clock. Altogether it was one of the happiest affairs imaginable, and showed the cordiality and good feeling that exists in this store between employer and employed.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd T. Woodhull, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Shirley, Harold Shirley, Mr. and Mrs. William Messler, Mr. and Mr. William Saums, Henry Blazure, John Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Boice, Miss Hazel Boice, H. P. Greenwood, Miss Alice Kennedy, Charles Greer, Miss Matie VanHorn, Charles Suhr, Miss Elizabeth and Miss Miriam Wilcox, Miss Sarah Carney, Miss Mabel Gillies, Nelson VanWinkle, Miss Ella Mullen, Miss Cora Young, Miss Angar, Cornelius Barry, Alfred Harold, Miss Ella and Miss Eva DeCamp and Miss Annie Kelley. All the clerks were present, and having their wives and friends with them, passed the evening pleasantly indeed. Mr. Martin, of the firm, was treated the same way last year, so Mr. Woodhull was given the surprise this time.

MET DEATH ON TROLLEY TRACK.

Mrs. Delia Hennessey, of Skillman, Run Over at Bound Brook Last Night.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Bound Brook, March 7.—A fatal trolley accident occurred on Main street, last evening, when car No. 107, of the Brunswick Traction Company, struck and ran over Mrs. Delia Hennessey, of Skillman, N. J.

She had been visiting relatives in Bound Brook and was returning home when it is supposed that she tripped and fell on the tracks. The front truck of the car passed over her. Motorman Hendershot, of New Brunswick, was in charge.

Coroner Reed and Dr. Wild are performing an autopsy this afternoon. An inquest will be held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. The crew of the car was paroled under the custody of Supt. Rand, of the Traction Company.

Mrs. Hennessey was sixty years old. She leaves three children.

SALARIES OF KINGS.

Russia's Czar Gets Most and Switzerland's Ruler Least.

The extremes of salary are illustrated by the pay of the czar of Russia and the president of Switzerland. The former gets $24,000 a day, while the latter is happy and satisfied with $7.92 each twenty-four hours. These figures are based on 365 working days in the year, for monarchs are supposed to be always working.

Now these executives—of Russia and Switzerland—are at the extremes of the rulers' payroll, the first getting $8,766,000 a year and the other $2,900. Between these extremes the other eleven nations considered are scattered in a haphazard manner, with no uniform relation between the amount of yearly salary and the number of persons who must pay it. The emperor of Austria, with his $4,380,000 annually, comes under the czar of all the Russias, while President McKinley, with his $50,000, comes next above the president of little Switzerland. After Austria comes Germany, which pays Emperor William $3,400,000; then the king of Italy, with $2,435,000; Shah of Persia, $2,335,000; Queen Victoria, $1,875,000; King of Belgium, $632,000; King of Norway and Sweden, $560,000; Queen of the Netherlands, $292,000; King of Greece, $253,000; and the president of France, $239,000. President Faure receives but little more regular salary than President McKinley, but he has fixed perquisites that bring his income from the state to the amount given.

The amounts of the salaries of these honored men and women bear very odd relations to the number of persons for whose benefit they are supposed to administer laws of their own or the people's making. Now, each subject of the czar has to annually pay seven and four-fifths cents to his ruler, and stands eighth on the list, while the Persians, each of whom must yearly pay to the Shah thirty and three-quarters cents, heads it. Switzerland, with the smallest population and salary, does not pay the least per capita, for the United States, with seven-one hundredths of a cent for each inhabitant, is at the bottom of the list, Switzerland being next above, with eight-one hundredths of a cent. Turkey, with twenty cents for each subject, naturally comes next below Persia, and Greece, with eleven and two-fifths cents, comes next. Then, in the descending scale, come Austria, with ten and two-fifths cents for each subject to pay to the ruler; Belgium, ten and one-fifth cents; Italy, nine cents; Norway and Sweden, eight cents; then Russia, then Germany, six and three-fifths cents; Holland, six and one-fifth; France, six; Great Britain, four and three-fifths, and then Switzerland and the United States.—N. EXCITEMENT BROUGHT ON A SUDDEN DEATH

Randolph Runyon Stricken While Climbing Into a Wagon.

HORSE HAD BEEN PLUNGING

A WEAK HEART WAS EXERTED AND DID THE FATAL WORK.

Mr. Runyon Has Been in Ill Health for Some Time, But His Condition Was Not Considered Serious — Born and Brought Up in Dunellen—Leaves a Widow and Three-Year-Old Child.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Dunellen, March 8.—A sudden death that has saddened this community occurred here yesterday afternoon after 1 o'clock. Randolph Runyon, whose untimely death it was that occurred, was in good health and spirits at noon yesterday, but a little excitement caused by a fractious horse was too much for his weak heart, and in five minutes after the first symptoms appeared Mr. Runyon was dead.

For several years past Mr. Runyon has not been in the best of health and for the last two months has been confined to the house, unable to do anything that required exertion. The physicians said it was heart trouble and warned him against any unnecessary excitement or worry. Within the past week Mr. Runyon grew better and was so well yesterday morning that he went to one of the stores to do some shopping. After dinner he came out again, and he and his brother were preparing to drive to the Samptown cemetery to see about stoning up a vault for the late Peter Finger, of Washingtonville.

As the horse was led from the stable towards the street a loose curtain on the back of a wagon startled the animal. Randolph reached out and seized the animal by the head, and after a short struggle succeeded in subduing him. Then walking towards the buggy to take his place inside, he suddenly fell forward and clutched at one of the wheels, but his grasp loosened, and he would have fallen had hot Firman Giles and Arthur Giles, who were standing near, caught him.

He was carried into Walter Runyon's office, a few feet away, and Dr. Brakeley summoned, but in a few minutes after the unconscious spell came he died. The remains were taken home soon after, but not before Mrs. Annie Tinsman had reached the house and told the sad news to his wife. Arrangements will be made today for the funeral.

The deceased was about 28 years of age and was a member of William G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., and Rockview Council, D. of L. From the first the widow will receive $250, and from the other $200.

Mr. Runyon was born and brought up in Dunellen, and is one of the three sons of Eugene Runyon. He was educated in the schools here and when of age went to work with his brother, Walter G. Runyon, the undertaker, and was in his employ when he died. The deceased married Ernestine, one of George Giles' daughters, and they have one child, a three-year-old girl.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER DIED WHILE AT WORK.

EMPLOYED IN S. A. GINNA'S SHOP.

Patrick Brenley Sat Conversing With a Fellow Employe When Death Overtook Him.

On Monday last in New York occurred the sudden death of Patrick Brenley, aged 50 years, a former resident of Plainfield. Mr. Brenly was for many years employed at the home of Stephen A. Ginna, of Watchung avenue, after which Mr. Ginna gave him employment in his factory in New York city, where he was a faithful and efficient employee, having charge of one of the floors. Monday morning he went to work as usual and greeted his fellows as was his custom. Soon afterward he took a seat on a packing case and was conversing with a shipping clerk. A few minutes later he fell backward. He was picked up by his fellows and laid on the floor, and an examination showed that life had left the body. He leaves a wife and three children.

SALE FIRST, THEN FIGHT

PROPERTY OF BARD COMPANY TO BE SOLD AT ONCE.

Will be Disposed of as Advantageously as Possible, Then the Contestants Will Scramble After the Cash Proceeds.

The combatants in the warfare over the goods of the defunct Bard Company have agreed to an armistice. After each side has been checkmated in its efforts to sell the property under its claim, they have now all agreed it the better plan to sell the goods under the most favorable circumstances first and then fight over the final distribution of the proceeds afterwards.

The last step, before the making of the armistice, was taken yesterday but did not go into effect until today At the application of the mortgagee in the case, the First National Bank, through its lawyer, Former Judge W. M. Stillman, Sheriff Kirk replevined the goods in question this morning and took them out of the hands of Constable Mattox, who was constable for the execution.

As a result of the armistice the property belonging to the company is to be placed in the hands of George W Wrennick, vice-president of the Bard Company. Mr. Wrennick will open the store and dispose of the goods at very reasonable terms. The contestants in the matter realize that every day that the property is held it decreases in value in comparison with the new and improved stock that is constantly appearing on the market. An auction sale usually disposes of the goods far below market value. So Mr. Wrennick, who is particularly competent to take charge, will dispose of the property remaining for cash. After everything is sold then the warfare will be resumed and the money from the sale of the property will be held until the case is settled by the courts. Meanwhile the store will open for trade tomorrow.

TROLLEY TO LAKE HOPATCONG?

New Rumors That a Line Is to Be Built from Newark

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Morristown, March 8—A strong rumor has been revived that during the coming summer a trolley line will be constructed from Newark to Lake Hopatcong, via Morristown and Dover. Recent extensive improvements in the plant of the Morristown Electric Light and Power Company, such as the addition of new and powerful engines and motors, also the erection of Hazelton porcupine boilers with larger capacity, and the reorganization of the Dover Electric Light and Power Company, lend considerable color to the general opinion that these plants are to be used to supply power to the proposed trolley line.

The officials of both companies decline to discuss anything bearing upon the future business arrangements of the companies.

WHY JUDGE RUNYON DISCHARGED KENNETT.

He Explains Reasons to a Press Reporter.

LAW DOESN'T COVER IT.

IMPORTANT EVIDENCE THAT DID NOT COME UP IN COURT.

Judge Says That Police Officers Investigated and Found That it was Impossible for Anyone to Look Into Kennett's Rooms Through Windows—Present Ordinance is Explained by City Judge.

There has been considerable criticism of City Judge Runyon's action in discharging all the prisoners made by Patrolmen Totten and Saffron in their raid on the alleged poker game at the home of Stephen Kennett, 433 West Fourth street. Comment was made at the apparent disregard of the testimony of the officers who participated in the raid. The trial also made public a phase of the local ordinances heretofore generally unknown.

A Daily Press reporter called on City Judge Runyon in his office yesterday afternoon and interviewed him regarding his reasons for the decision that has caused so much talk. The Judge was perfectly frank about stating his position.

Regarding his statement that the young men arrested at Kennett's house even if they had been gambling were not violating the city ordinances, the Judge said that such was the only interpetation that could be placed on the law of the city. It only provided for punishing those who conducted the gambling houses and not the frequenters unless the latter were interested in any way in the proprietorship of the establishment. Under the latter case, the Judge explained, came Henderson and his fellow collegues of the Neapolitan Athletic Club a month ago.

In reference to the discharge of Kennett himself, the Judge said that he was perfectly satisfied that the man was innocent. After the men were arrested, they were given no chance, he said, to make any changes in the house. When at the direction of the Judge the police accompanied them back to the house later that night, he had it on the authority of Sergeant Kiely and several other officers who were with him that the blanket had hung in front of the window as Kennett had told and that it was simply impossible for anyone to see inside the room. As the men were all locked up and the house kept locked in the interval, it was impossible, said the Judge, that the blanket should have been hung up after the raid had been made.

"Another and really more cogent reason for my action in this case," remarked the Judge, "is the fact that according to my interpetation of the only section of a city ordinance applicable to gambling, (Section 6 of the ordinance relating to the Morals, Peace and Good Order of the city,) the only defendant who could by any possibility have been held, would have been Kennett, who was proprietor of the house where the alleged playing took place. In his case I could not feel justified in holding him, as his house is in no sense a gambling house, and if he be liable, then every one in the city playing any game of cards in his own house, whether for stakes or not, is liable under this section, as the following language quoted therefrom, must make apparent. 'For keeping or causing or permitting to be kept a house, shop, room or place of any description . . . in which is kept any table or device of any kind, upon or by which any game of chance or hazard shall be played, any sum not exceeding $100 etc.'

"To my mind this section must apply, and apply only to such as maintain regular gambling places, in which I include clubs, where there is a common proprietorship and does not apply to private individuals who play games of chance in their own houses with their friends at frequent intervals.

"For the foregoing reasons and especially the last one," said the Judge in conclusion. "I feel absolutely justified in having decided as I did."

LOCAL BILLS ACTED ON BY LEGISLATORS.

Senate Passes Measure Authorizing Bond Issue.

REBATE FOR TAXES PAID.

MR. MURRAY FATHERED TWO BILLS AMENDING ELECTION LAWS.

The Measure Authorizing a Rebate of Six Per Cent. on Taxes Paid in Advance Was Recommitted to Avoid Being Lost—City Will be Able to Borrow Money For Storm Sewer.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, March 8.—The Senate passed a number of bills yesterday afternoon that were of interest to Plainfielders and other sections of Union county. The bill authorizing Plainfield to issue bonds for the construction of a sewer to carry off surface water on Park avenue was passed. Under the provisions of another bill that was passed the Plainfield voters may make the salary of their mayor $2 500 or as much less as they desire. But it is not expected that Plainfield will take advantage of the law if the Governor signs it. The Summit city bill was also passed.

In the Assembly Mr. Murray fathered two bills amending the electing law, one requiring the announcement of the full title of each ballot counted, and the other providing that members of county boards shall sit from 1 to 9 o'clock each afternoon on the Thursday and Saturday preceding election day for the purpose of revising the registry.

Mr. Murray's bill allowing the authorities of Plainfield to grant a rebate for taxes paid in advance, at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, coming up on final passage, Mr. Murray advocated the measure, saying it was the practice in boroughs, and worked so well that Plainfield desired a similar privilege. His bill, however, is drawn in general terms, and applies to all cities. Mr. Guenther and other Newark members opposed the bill, saying it would affect that city disastrously. The money lost to the city under the provisions of this bill would be sufficient to build a new schoolhouse every year. The bill, they held, was bad, too, because it was in the interest of the rich taxpayer, and ultimately must increase the burden of the poor property owner. The 6 per cent rate was altogether too high. The fight against the bill was so strong that Mr. Murray had it recommitted for amendment. Mr. Wakelee's suggestion that the rebate be fixed at a rate not to exceed 6 per cent will probably be adopted, thus not interfering with the rate as fixed in Newark and other cities.

An effort will be made to increase the powers of the State Board of Arbitration so that it may be able to force its services upon manufacturers who happen to be at loggerheads with their employes. Senator Pitney introduced a bill which provides that the Board of Arbitration in investigating labor disputes may issue subpœnaes to witnesses, and in case the subpœna is disregarded application may be made to any Supreme Justice for an attachment for contempt, with a penalty of fine or imprisonment.

Senator Ketcham introduced a bill requiring building and loan associations to make an annual report to the bureau of statistics, such as its chief shall designate; he is empowered to require more frequent reports if necessary. Associations not reporting shall incur a fine of $10 a day for the term of their delinquency. An appropriation of $1 000 is provided in favor of the bureau.

Valuable Dog Returned.

The valuable dog owned by Hon Bourke Cochran, of New York, which strayed away from the kennels of J. D. James, of Sycamore avenue, was returned to the latter by O F. Pearson, the contractor, of East Front street. Mr. Pearson's young son saw the dog in an open field near their place and coaxed it to his home. When the elder Mr. Pearson saw the animal he was convinced that it was Mr Cochran's animal. Mr. James paid the lad the $25 reward that he had offered for its return. The dog is worth several hundred dollars

MR. MURRAY PROPOSES TO MAKE A HOT FIGHT

Determined That His Trolley Bill Shall Have a Fair Chance.

A PLAIN SPOKEN CIRCULAR.

PLAINFIELD'S STATESMAN DOES NOT MINCE HIS WORDS.

He Has Attacked a Vicious Piece of Legislation and He Does Not Propose to See It Squelched as Most Anti-Corporations Bills Are—The Bill of Mr. Murray's Is a Just One.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, March 8.—Assemblyman Roger Franklin Murray has determined that his House Bill No 10 shall come before the House and either win or be beaten on its merits. The Plainfield statesman has made a fight in the House several weeks in succession to have his bill brought out, and there is a prospect now that it will receive early consideration. Assemblyman Carroll held the bill up last week on a plea that he had an amendment to offer. The Hudson man is now keeping mum in regard to his amendment.

Meantime Mr. Murray has been working overtime in the effort to enlist favor for his bill. As a step in this direction a circular was left on the desk of each member of the House in such a position that the members could not fail to see it.

After calling attention to the vicious law which extends the time to July 1, 1900, for corporations to fulfill their contracts for building street railways, irrespective of whether the corporations have made a contract with a municipalty for a quicker completion of their road, Assemblyman Murray puts down these questions:

"Do you want the contracts of your Board of Aldermen, Common Council or Township Committee extended and perpetuated in this way?

"Do you believe a contract entered into between your municipalty and a corporation should be over-ruled by the Legislature?

"Is this local government and home rule?"

Assembly Bill No. 10 repeals chapter No 189 of the laws of 1898.

This bill was introduced in the Senate March 16, 1898, was reported March 23, 1898, read the second time March 24, 1898, was engrossed and reported on the same day and passed the Senate under suspension of the rules on the same day, March 24, 1898, by a vote of 11 to 5.

The bill was received in the House March 24, 1898, the same day it passed the Senate. The Consolidated Traction Company did not need an extension of time to complete its railroad from the Senate to the House; it certainly had it laid before the bill was introduced in the Senate. It was reported by the Committee on Railroads and Canals immediately (the committee certainly had considered the bill before they received it, for we all know that the Committee on Railroads and Canals of the House of 1898 examined all bills with great deliberation,) and passed the House the next day by a vote of 37 to 16.

Assembly Bill No. 10 was introduced January 16, 1899. Reported without amendment February 7, 1899, passed second reading February 7, 1899, took three weeks to engross it and was reported February 27, 1899.

If you are opposed to Chapter 189 (laws of 1898,) vote for and speak for the passage of Assembly Bill No. 10.

The New Clothing House.

Schepflin & Schultz, the wholesale clothing merchants, have opened a retail clothing store in the Schepflin block, at 321 West Front street. It is their intention to give their customers the benefit of the commission that usually goes to the middleman and sell their stack at wholesale prices, coming direct from the manufacturer to the consumer. They have a stock of men's, boys' and children's clothing of great variety and are selling everything at prices so low as to astonish everyone. They deal also in men's furnishings. M. J. Cashin is manager of the new store.

New Telephone Line.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 8.—The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company will build a trunk line from Roselle to Bound Brook, which will parallel the tracks of the Lehigh Valley Railroad and connect all the small towns along that road. A great boom in the felt factories of Picton is expected, and thereby more direct telephone service will be required. The residents in each village along the line of the railroad are welcoming the telephone with open hands.

SILK MILL ENTERPRISE NOT DEAD BY ANY MEANS.

PLANT WILL BE PUT IN OPERATION.

Board of Directors Are Encouraged by Prospects—New Machinery May Be Bought.

Last Monday evening the Watchung Silk Mill Company held a meeting in the Board of Trade rooms and discussed matters pertaining to the starting of the proposed plant. There were signs of encouragement in the fact that several thousand dollars worth of stock was subscribed, and the chances are favorable for an early start of the plant.

Just as soon as the company realizes the necessary cash, operations will begin. An expert silk weaver has been secured, who will have entire control of the business.

There is a bare possibility that the company may purchase entirely new machinery for their plant, as there seems to be some features about the machinery now owned by the company that are not desirable.

FACTORY FOR GARWOOD.

BIG PLANT OF COMBINED ORGAN COMPANIES WILL LOCATE THERE.

Officers of the Concern Favor Garwood—Factory Would Cost $200,000—Would Employ Several Hundred Men.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Garwood, March 8.—Another large industry is planning to locate here and spend several hundred thousand dollars in the erection of a plant. President Germain and Superintendent Chase, of the Æolian Organ Company, of Meriden, Conn., and Treasurer Cross, of the Votey Organ Company, of Detroit, Mich., were the guests Monday of Superintendent Frank W. Morse, of the Garwood Land Improvement Company.

They came here with the idea of locating a big factory here. A combination of the Æolian and Votey companies has been effected and the combination intends establishing a large manufactory.

The visitors were much pleased with the situation and seemed of the opinion that Garwood would be selected as the site for the factory. The factory would cost $200,000, and when finished would employ several hundred men.

There has been a steady boom in real estate here for the last month. A number of new families have moved here and contracts have been made for a number of new houses.

Fire Makes a Big Hole in Spotswood.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, March 8.—A fire which began in the store of Appleby & Dill, at Spotswood, ten miles from here, about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, destroyed nine buildings, including the store in which it originated, five buildings formerly used as a snuff factory and three unoccupied houses. The buildings were all the property of Mrs. Leonard F. Appleby, of New York city.

Party Lines All Cut Up.

Nothwithstanding the fact that on the surface political affairs are apparently very quiet in the borough, there is a great deal of missionary work being done by both parties. That the entire vote is divided there is no denying, and the wisest of the politicians say that the tickets will be scratched more this year than ever before.

Engine Had to Run Backwards.

The 8:48 New York train pulled in the station this morning drawn by an engine running backwards. The train starts from Dunellen, and something was the matter with the turn table, so that the locomotive could not be turned around. The trip to New York was therefore made running backwards.

An Ad That Had No Results.

B W. Hand, of North avenue, lost a roll of money last week. There was $18 in the roll, and must have been picked up by a dishonest person, as Mr. Hand has advertised for the return of the money without avail.

C. W. King, of Watchung avenue, has recovered from the grip.

BUT TWO DAYS MORE FOR ROESEL TO LIVE.

All Arrangements Made For the Execution Friday.

VANHISE IS TO DO THE JOB.

THE CONDEMNED MAN IS CLOSELY WATCHED DAY AND NIGHT.

Gallows Will Be Erected in the Main Corridor—Execution Will Take Place Soon After 10 o'Clock in the Morning and Witnessed by Only Those Allowed by Law to View Such Scene.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, March 8—With only two more days to live, the meantime being in the shadow of the gallows that will jerk his life out in a jiffy, Louis Roesel is enjoying life as well as a man can under such circumstances. At times Roesel seems wrapped up in his own thoughts and wants to be left severely alone; at other moments he is lively and passes the time away in cracking jokes with those whose whole duty it is to see that he does not cheat the gallows by making way with his own life.

Yesterday morning VanHise, the hangman, of Newark, visited the jail, and in company with Sheriff Kirk took measurements to see if it would be possible to erect the gallows he has instead of building a new one. He found in the main corridor plenty of room; and the timber for the gallows will be brought here today or tomorrow. The gallows will not be erected until Thursday night or early Friday morning. It is made to go together with bolts, and will take but a few hours to put it up ready for use.

The hanging will be witnessed by but a few men. Among them will be a sheriff's jury of 24 men, all of whom have been appointed and notified to be present at 10 o'clock on Friday morning next to be sworn in. Besides, three members of Roesel's family will be allowed to be present, two clergymen, a few newspapermen, and the assistants of the hangman and sheriff. Just when the execution will take place is not known, but it will be as soon after 10 o'clock as possible.

Now that preparations are about made for the hanging, Sheriff Kirk has doubled the number of the death watch in the daytime. Two men watch Roesel by day and two by night. His every move is most closely watched, but there is little to do, for Roesel, when not laughing and joking with his guard, is spending his time in writing and talking with Rev. I. N. Phelps, his spiritual adviser. He still adheres to his statement that he will meet his fate like a man, and will not make any trouble for anyone.

Sheriff Kirk is already beginning to wish the affair was over. He is greatly bothered with persons who want to witness the hanging.

WRIT DISMISSED.

Important Decision in the Action of Robinson Against Randolph.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, March 8—Lawyer Winfield S. Angleman appeared before the Court of Errors and Appeals yesterday to argue in the case of Peter Robinson against former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, both of Plainfield. Robinson sued the defendant for $2 000 damages in the Union County Court and succeeded in getting a verdict of $50. The defendant certiorarled the case in the Court of Errors and Appeals to secure a new trial.

Mr. Angleman made an exhaustive argument in the case and succeeded in having the writ dismissed, which is considered a victory for the plaintiff. Former Congressman Dunn, of Elizabeth, represents Mr. Randolph, but it is not known whether he will contest the verdict any further.

TO ELECT SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

Five Members of the Borough Board of Education to be Chosen

The annual meeting for the election of five members of the Board of Education of the borough will be held Tuesday evening, March 21st, in the schoolhouse on Somerset street at 8 o'clock. The polls will remain open one hour and as much longer as may be necessary to enable all voters present to cast their ballots. At the meeting will be submitted the question of voting a tax to pay teachers salaries and the current expenses of the school, the amount thought necessary being $10,800, also a tax to provide free text books and other supplies, this amount thought necessary being $1,200. In all the total amount thought necessary to raise is $12,000.

B. A. Hegeman, Jr., of the borough, has returned from a business trip to Buffalo.

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. IS IT A TRIFLE?

THAT COMMON TROUBLE, ACID DYSPEPSIA OR SOUR STOMACH.

Now Recognized as a Cause of Serious Disease.

Acid dyspepsia, commonly called heartburn or sour stomach, is a form of indigestion resulting from fermentation of the food. The stomach being too weak to digest it, the food remains until fermentation begins, filling the stomach with gas, and a bitter, sour, burning taste in the mouth is often present. This condition soon becomes chronic and being an every day occurence is given but little attention. Because dyspepsia is not immediately fatal, many people do nothing for the trouble.

Within a recent period a remedy has been discovered prepared solely to cure dyspepsia and stomach troubles. It is known as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and is becoming rapidly used and prescribed as a radical cure for every form of Dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been placed before the public and are sold by all druggists for 50 cents per package. It is prepared by the F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., and while it promptly and effectually restores a vigorous digestion, at the same time is perfectly harmless and will not injure the most delicate stomach, but on the contrary by giving perfect digestion strengthens the stomach, improves the appetite and makes life worth living.

Grippe Cured.

"Last winter I had a bad cold and severe cough. I was lame in every joint and muscle. I was sick and felt as though I was coming down with typhoid fever. It was no doubt a bad case of grippe. Mr. E. P. Budge gave me a bottle of Brazilian Balm, saying he was sure it would help me. The relief was almost instantaneous. It quickly stopped my cough and took the grippe with all the pains and soreness out of my system. I gave the balance of the 50-cent bottle to Mrs. Bishop Wiley for her daughter. It proved so beneficial she says she never intends to be without it."—Edwin Fitz Jones, Cincinnati, Ohio.

50,000 ENUMERATORS

That Number Will be Required for the Next Census.

DEPEW IN CHEROKEE STRIP

Director Merriam Hopes to Organize at Once for the Census, but No Appointments Will be Made for Some Time—Enumeration Does Not Begin Until June 1900.

Washington, D. C., March 8.—"No appointments in the census force will be made at present," said ex-Governor W. R. Merriam, director of the census, yesterday. He is going to Minnesota in a few days to close up some matters of business, and when he returns the work of organizing the bureau will be begun.

By that time it is expected that Frederick H. Wines of Illinois, the assistant director, who is to supervise the statistical work, the tabulation and deductions therefrom, will be in Washington and aid his chief in arranging the preliminaries. Governor Merriam says:

"I hope to get the organization started by April 1. It will proceed slowly. The three hundred supervisors will not be appointed before December 1 next, but in the meantime I will be selecting the various experts who will have the details in charge. I am not a statistician nor expert, but I hope to prove capable of giving the census a good organization, so that when the work of enumerating the population and collecting the statisticsd begins we can go right ahead without losing any time.

"The enumeration does not begin until June 1, 1900. Under the law the census is to relate specifically to four items—population, mortality statistics, the products of agriculture and those of manufacturing and mechanical establishments. The reports covering these four branches must be completed in two years. Then we are authorized to take up special questions including statistics relating, among other things, to insane, blind and deaf persons, criminal and reformatory institutions, public indebtedness, electric telephone and telegraph business, transportation, and mines and mining. We have three years in which to publish this great mass of information."

"How many enumerators will be required?"

"At least fifty thousand. We shall occupy this summer and next winter in plotting the United States into geographical divisions and sub-divisions, and assigning the supervisors and the enumerators to their respective districts. This will be really the first work we shall do."

The law directs that the census shall be taken in Alaska and Hawaii.

"It will be a difficult task to operate in Alaska," said Governor Merriam, on account of the great stretches of almost uninhabited territory there, but by putting some experienced and capable man in charge and leaving the management very largely in his hands, I do not anticipate trouble. We shall have to follow the same plan in Hawaii, on account of the difficulty of communicating with these islands. I do not know yet what is to be done in regard to Porto Rico and the Philippines, although both will undoubtedly be American territory, in the fullest sense of the word in 1900."

Our Major Generals.

Washington, D. C., March 8.—An interpretation of several provisions of the army reorganization act will be asked by the war department of the attorney general. The law provides that one major general may be appointed for every twelve thousand enlisted men and the war department and the president are anxious to know whether this means that the twelve thousand men must be actually enlisted before the major general can be commissioned. The provision for the appointment of brigadier generals specifically says that there shall be one brigadier general for every four thousand men "actually enlisted," and the president and Secretary Alger have practically decided that this applies to the major generals. It was in accordance with this construction that they selected only two instead of five major generals at their conference Monday; but to settle the matter positively they will secure an opinion from the attorney general.

Another point involved is whether either Major General Otis or Major General Shafter can be appointed to their present volunteer rank under the new law until sixty thousand men have been enlisted. There are now forty thousand enlisted men in the army. If the attorney general decides that actual enlistments are necessary to justify the appointment of additional major generals, it will be necessary to recruit eight thousand more troops before General Otis can secure his new commission, and twenty thousand more before General Shafter can be appointed to the highest grade under the law.

The three major generals of the regular army, Miles, Merritt and Brooke, are equivalent to 36,000 men. This leaves a surplus of four thousand men now in service, to which must be added eight thousand to legalize the appointment of Otis, provided, of course, that the attorney general decides that twelve thousand men must be actually in service for every major general appointed.

The provision of the law permitting the re-enlistment for six months of the volunteers in the Philippines is construed by the war department as authority to continue in service the general officers now in the archipelago.

To Inspect Canal Routes.

Washington, D. C., March 8.—An invitation has been extended, it is said, by the Nicaragua Maritime and Panama Canal Companies jointly to the members of the House committee on rivers and harbors to inspect their two routes across the isthmus. Should the invitation be accepted a steamship will be chartered and the trip made within the next few weeks.

In the meantime there is much speculation as to what the president will do under the provision of the river and harbor bill authorizing him to make an investigation of the several proposed routes for a canal and report to Congress the best and most available route for the purposes of the United States.

This provision was inserted in obedience to the universal demand that something should be done toward a realization of the desire of the people for a canal.

A commission of seven members is provided for, but inasmuch as the Walker commission has not yet completed its work the president may continue it in existence, and add two members to make it comply with the new law as to numbers.

If that be done, the commission will return to the Isthmus and examine the Panama route.

As a result of its investigation of the Nicaragua lines, the Walker commission has decided to recommend construction along the Lull route, but had also prepared details for six others, so that full information can be given Congress respecting them all.

Senator Depew's Seat.

Washington, D. C., March 8.—Senator Depew was assigned his seat in the Senate yesterday afternoon. It is on the front row of the Democratic side, near the door leading to the lobby, and was occupied by the late Senator Harris of Tennessee.

It is the Cherokee Strip, as that section of the Democratic side, to be occupied by Republicans, will be known. There will be three Republicans there, Depew, Foraker and Spooner.

MOVEMENTS OF THE STORM.

Belief That It Will Be a Short One—Very Cold in the West.

Washington, D. C., March 8.—The weather bureau officials say that by to-day a cold wave will cover the Atlantic coast states. The temperature in this city will fall twelve or fourteen degrees to about six degrees above zero, and north of here the mercury will fall twenty to twenty-five degrees.

It will not be any colder in the South than it is now, and just at present it is warmer in New England than south of that section.

Later in the day, however, a decided change is predicted throughout New England. The weather will be very severe all along the New Jersey and New England coast.

Throughout the West it is now exceedingly cold, the temperature running a little below zero, but it will continue fair through the central portion of the country and will warm up a little. In the Northwest the mercury is rising rapidly, and yesterday stood at 38 above in Montana. The coldest place on record yesterday was White River, Ontario, thirty-six degrees below, and the lowest temperature in the United States was eight degrees below zero at St. Paul, Minn., and Lacrosse, Wis. The course of the storm is very slow, but it is expected to disappear some time to-day or to-morrow, like last month's blizzard, off the coast of Labrador.

No More Volunteers.

Washington, D. C., March 8.—The fact, announced in these dispatches, that the president had decided not to raise any volunteer or provisional regiments authorized under the new army bill, is being discussed by members of Congress, who are seeking appointments.

Within twenty-four hours the president has told callers there would be no army appointments, except the one hundred and one second lieutenants appointed from civil life, and the twenty appointed at large by the president, making one hundred and twenty-one in all, as authorized by the bill.

He pointed out that there is not a staff appointment to be made, and that there are enough regular army officers to officer all the regiments.

Work has been begun at the war department for mustering out volunteer regiments, and there is no chance of reappointing volunteer officers in the regular army.

A number of young men have come here with the hope of getting appointments in the army and many have been at the White House.

The president advised them to return home, that there were no appointments to be made.

Gen. Eagan Going to Hawaii.

Washington, D. C., March 8.—Former Commissary General Eagan left Washington last night for San Francisco, and thence will embark for Honolulu, where he has a son who is largely interested in coffee plantations.

Mr. Kipling Better.

New York, March 8.—Mr. Kipling had a good rest last night and is somewhat better this morning. His condition continues to improve slowly. He is being carefully attended to guard against a relapse.

The child Elsie is said to be doing well this morning, after a trying night. The funeral of Josephine will not be public. Mrs. Kipling is grateful for the expressions of condolence, but requests that she be permitted more privacy in her troubles.

Comment on Kaiser's Despatch.

Berlin, March 8.—Emperor William's message of sympathy to Mrs. Rudyard Kipling, occasioned by her husband's serious illness, is commented upon by the press here. The Vossische Zeitung says:

"This new manifestation of the emperor's and the recent ones by German ministers form a pleasant contrast to the erroneous statement that Germany is about to declare a tariff war against the United States. The German nation, on the contrary, is strongly desirous of living in peace with America, and in economic peace as well, but hopes for full reciprocity, and that the legitimate interests of Germany will be considered."

In Favor of Voting-Machines.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 8.—The special committee of aldermen appointed to consider the proposition of redistricting the city for the use of voting machines at all future elections reported in favor of the adoption of the voting machines, and their report was adopted with but one dissenting vote.

No Hope For Clifford.

Trenton, N. J., March 8.—The Court of errors and appeals has dismissed the writ of error taken out by counsel for Edward Clifford, convicted in the Hudson county courts of murder in the first degree for the killing of Superintendent Wattson of the West Shore Railroad.

OTIS WILL NOT WAIT

Expects to Attack the Rebels at Manila Immediately

HOPES TO GET AGUINALDO

It is Desired to End the Insurrection in Luzon—Arrival of Transports Ohio and Senator Gave Enough Men to Begin His Contemplated Advance Upon the Insurgents.

Washington, D. C., March 8.—The war department expects important news from Manila within the next 24 hours. Word has been received from General Otis that he will not wait for the arrival of General Lawton, and the troops on the Grant and Sherman before he begins his general attack on the insurgents.

The advices say that General Otis will either to-day or to-morrow make his contemplated advance upon the Filipinos with his entire force.

The arrival of the men on the transports Senator and Ohio has given him enough reinforcements to hold Manila while he uses the other troops for an aggressive campaign against the rebels.

It is expected that in this attack Aguinaldo will be captured and much done to end the insurrection in the island of Luzon.

Scattering the Rebels.

Manila, March 8.—While the rebels had concentrated their forces yesterday, with the evident purpose of attacking the water works, no direct attempt was made to capture the American position there. Detachments from General Hale's and General Wheaton's brigades cleared the country.

At daylight this morning the enemy was discovered trying to mount a gun across the river from San Pedro, and the Sixth Artillery promptly shelled the rebel battery. Temporarily stopping work, the enemy poured a fusilade of musketry across the river, but a gunboat moved up and cleared the banks of the stream with rapid fire guns. All was quiet during the evening.

Postoffices have been established at Negros, Cebu and Iloilo, and the clerks left yesterday for their respective posts by the steamer Espana.

QUAY LEAVES FOR FLORIDA

Lacked but 15 of an Election Upon Tuesday's Ballot.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 8.—Senator Quay left for Florida yesterday, and although his fdiends here say that no significance attaches to his departure for his San Lucie retreat at this time, because he needs a rest, dissatisfaction is expressed among some of his followers who say that his departure at this time indicates a lack of interest in his fight. They insist that he is needed here and that unless he is on the ground it will be hard to hold his forces in line.

It is expected that Quay will return here within the next two weeks. Whether he will then withdraw or continue in the contest to the end of the session remains to be seen.

It is believed by Senator David Martin and others that the legislature will certainly elect Quay's successor at this session and State Senator Magee's friends believe now that he is to succeed Quay in the United States Senate.

The joint ballot yesterday was: Quoy 101, Jenks 77, Dalzell 17, Irvin 6, Stewart 8, Tubbs 1, Huff 8, Stone 4, Rice 2, Grow 1, Markle 1, Widener 3, Riter 2, total 231. Necessary to elect, 116. No election.

Conservative men, who have been supporting Quay, think that his fight has been much injured by the indiscreet opposition to the investigation of the bribery charges.

A prominent lieutenant of Senator Quay sai dthat there might have been a possibility of his friends agreeing to a compromise, but since the opposition had started out to take his votes away from him and had driven him to bay, he would fight for his friends to the last.

Senator Martin says, however, that public sentiment will force the legislature to act.

The committee appointed by the House last Friday to consider and report on Speaker Farr's alleged "arbitrary and revolutionary" conduct, reported last night. The committee did not recommend deposing the speaker, but scored him for unfairness.

Knit Goods Men to Meet.

Utica, N. Y., March 8.—Knit goods manufacturers here and in the Mohawk valley have received invitations to a meeting to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York city, March 15, for the purpose of forming a knit goods trust.

Fifty-eight concerns are said to have signified their intention of sending representatives to the meeting.

One of the largest manufacturers of knit goods in this section says that he is very sorry to see this movement, as the trade is in excellent condition and prices are good. He does not believe that the combination will be as well for the manufacturers or the public.

The proposed trust will be capitalized at fifty million dollars if it is organized.

Armour's Oleomargarine Suits.

Albany, March 8.—The proposition to compromise the suits brought by the state against Armour & Co. for selling oleomargarine, is pending in the executive chamber.

An agreement was entered into and signed by Armour & Co. and State Commissioner of Agriculture Charles A. Wieting and Attorney General Hancock that the suits be discontinued on condition that Armour & Co. pay to the state twenty thousand dollars, and pledge itself not to sell any more oleomargarine in this state.

This agreement was presented to Governor Black for ratification, and he refused to take any action in the matter.

Admiral Von Knorr Resigns.

Berlin, March 8.—Admiral Von Knorr, commander-in-chief of the navy, has resigned. His intention to take this step was announced last autumn.

A lady from Kansas City writes: "I was ill with dyspepsia and indigestion for about seven years without permanent relief until I finally tried

MRS. CODY A WITNESS.

The Defendant in Gould Blackmail Trial Testifies.

Albany, N. Y., March 8.—At the opening of the trial of Mrs. Margaret E. Cody, charged with blackmailing the heirs of Jay Gould, yesterday, the aged defendant was called.

Miss Helen Gould was dressed in the black tailor-made gown she wore on the first day of the trial.

Mrs. Cody was asked to identify a number of letters written to her from Rock Springs, Wyoming, by Mrs. J. F. Pierce, the alleged child of Jay Gould, and Mrs. Angell, and from Mrs. Pierce's husband. The writers stated positively that Jay Gould was Mrs. Pierce's lawful father, and announced their intention to press the suit to secure a share in the Gould millions.

Mrs. Cody was offered a large sum to conduct the suit. The letters were read to the jury, the object being to show that the defendant did not instigate the suit, but assumed control at the request of others, believing fully in the justice of their claim.

A letter was read, written by James Morton, who adopted Mrs. Pierce. It stated that the papers of adoption were signed by Mrs. Pierce's mother, "Sarah Brown." The matter of his adopted daughter's birth, said Morton, was a mystery to him. He had never heard Jay Gould's name mentioned in this connection.

Mrs. Cody related the circumstances connected with her trip to Rouse's Point in search of the mother of Mrs. J. F. Pierce. She met Mrs. Angell, who told her that Mrs. Pierce was her daughter by an early marriage with Jason Gould, the date of which, she thought, was April 2, 1853.

Mrs. Angell leaned over to Dr. Munn and said in a very audible voice: "The woman's crazy."

"The issue of this marriage," continued Mrs. Cody, "Mrs. Angell told me, was a daughter, which was bound to a Canadian weaver when she was 12 years old, and Gould deserted his wife. I asked her if she had the marriage certificate, and she said that after Gould left her and she went to live with her parents, her father tore the certificate up and threw it into the fire. I asked her if she wished me to handle her case and obtain her dower rights for her, and she answered that she did, and would pay me half of what I got for her."

One letter was from the Rev. M. Leighton, a Presbyterian clergyman of Tunkhannock, Pa., who, the defence alleges, performed the marriage between Jay Gould and Mrs. Angell, in which the clergyman refers to the marriage and the marriage certificate.

An affidavit was read, signed by Mary Ann Shields, who swore she was a servant in Mr. Leighton's family in 1853, and was a witness to the marriage of Sarah (Mrs. Angell) and Jay Gould on April 2, 1853, who, she asserted, lived together for some time.

Mrs. Cody told of her interview with Mrs. Mary Hoyle of Rouse's Point, whose testimony, given Monday, created such a sensation. The defendant's report of the conversation between her and Mrs. Hoyle agreed in the main with the latter's account.

"Mrs. Hoyle," said she, "placed her hands over her heart and said: 'But I have information here which I shall not divulge until I am paid for it. It will make a fortune for me."

Mrs. Hoyle's son, whose evidence on Monday was equally damaging to the defendant, was referred to.

"Was Mr. Hoyle in the room?" inquired Mr. Dugan.

"Yes; he was sitting at a machine there making dolls' clothes."

Judge Gregory then interrupted the proceedings by putting this question to the witness:

"Mrs. Cody, I understand that you employed Parker and Speer to act as the attorneys of Mrs. Angell under your direction. Is that so?"

"Yes, sir."

District Attorney Dyer then began his cross examination. In answer to his preliminary questions Mrs. Cody said that she at one time lived at Oswego with her husband, a man of the name of Goodnow, from whom she obtained a divorce. Later she went west to Missouri, where she married Mr. Cody, and engaged in the dry goods business until 1881.

The witness said that since she began to look up Mrs. Pierce's claim she had employed as many as 25 persons to write letters for her.

"You obtained your first knowledge of law when you were divorced?"

"No, sir; I had been interested in other law suits."

"Well, you were unencumbered when you took this case up?"

"Yes, sir."

Ohio River Still Rising.

Cincinnati, March 8.—The Ohio river is still rising here, but slowly, and will probably be stationary before evening, after which it will recede rapidly. The cold snap has checked all feeding streams. The Kanawha and Big Sandy are falling fast. It was snowing this morning at Charleston, W. Va.

Everywhere in the Ohio valley indications are that the worst is over. Several hundred families have been driven from their homes in the low lying districts of this city and Newport, Ky. They are well cared for by the authorities.

Merchants have been put to great expense and inconvenience moving goods from cellars. Another foot of water would stop one or two trolley lines by inundating the tracks.

Market gardeners in Mill Creek valley have lost about their entire crop of early vegetables, worth thousands of dollars.

All trains were forced at midnight to abandon the Grand Central Depot and are receiving and transferring passengers from crossings at higher points. Freight is received as usual and is handled rapidly, that there may be no unnecessary amount on hand should a water blockade ensue.

By to-night the larger river steamboats will be unable to get under the bridges here, the present space, fifty-eight feet, barely allowing the smoke stacks to clear.

Our Immunes in Cuba.

Rome, Ga., March 8.—Dr. W. A. Chapman, assistant surgeon of Colonel Ray's immunes, is here on a month's sick leave. He says thirty-three deaths have occurred in the regiment since its organization, all of them in Cuba or from diseases contracted there. Every man in the regiment has been in except Colonel Ray.

SANTIAGO IS UNHAPPY

The Politicians Want a Cuban Republic Established Now.

OTHERS ASK ANNEXATION

Business Men See No Future of the Island Except in Its Becoming a Part of the United States—Would Suffer Were the Island to be Made Independent—The Sugar Industry.

Santiago de Cuba, March 8.—The complexion of political affairs in the Province of Santiago has been gradually changing since the beginning of January. Probably the main reason is the fact that the people themselves are out of sympathy with everything, even a benefaction, that comes to them through Havana.

Men who a few short weeks ago were enthusiastically in favor of annexation, are to-day talking about declaring war against the United States if the troops are not removed from the island by July 1.

The business men of Santiago are very glum. They say that it is impossible to invest any large sums in the island until some settled form of government is established, and that for Cuba to be an independent republic would mean its utter ruin, even supposing that the Cubans were better able to govern themselves than any people in the world, for at one blow the sugar industry would be annihilated, as the United States is in possession of Porto Rico on the one side and of Hawaii on the other, which are also two great sugar producing islands, and the sugar from those places would go into the United States free of duty, whereas, even on the best terms, the sugar of Cuba, unless the island was annexed, would have to pay some duty and would be entirely unable to compete with that of the other islands.

No More Cuban Bonds Wanted.

New York, March 8.—The reports from Havana yesterday that the Cuban assembly is considering the proposition for a new issue of bonds, amounting to twelve million dollars, in order to pay the Cuban troops, raised in Wall street some question as to the status of the previous issues. The interest in these bonds here is by no means general. The quotations are almost wholly nominal, and present holders show no indications of a desire to increase their lines; but some of the bonds would undoubtedly come into demand should the United States governmetn interest itself in the next issues.

There are three Cuban bond issues now on the market, those of 1869, 1872 and 1896. Their aggregate amount has never been trustworthily stated. The early bonds are now quoted on the basis of virtual repudiation, the price being about 1¾. The recognition of the early obligations would have made the payment of interest on the loan of 1896 impossible. That issue was put out at 40 or 50 cents on the dollar.

Holders of the 1896 loan are now said to be waiting anxiously to see what may be done about a new issue. They say the present financial heads of the Cuban government cannot hope to establish credit unless the 1896 loan is recognized as valid. Others confess that they cannot see why there should be any difference in the Cubans' attitude towards any particular loan, and that some arrangement should also be made regarding the earlier issues.

VOTED THEMSELVES SALARIES

Justice Gaynor Decides that the Interests of Stockholders Must be Considered.

Brooklyn, March 8.—Justice Gaynor in the supreme court, declared in a decision which he handed down yesterday morning that the directors of a corporation could not vote to officers salaries that were alleged to be unjust to the outside stockholders.

The case in hand was that of the American Bill Posting Company, which was incorporated in 1894. There were ninety shares of stock distributed among only four stockholders, all of whom were officers, each receiving $50 a week salary.

Two years ago George H. Fitchett, one of the stockholders and also an officer of the company, died, and his salary thereupon ceased. His widow sold a part of her holdings to a man of the name of Hyde, but neither she nor Hyde at the next election was made an officer of the concern.

On the other hand, the three original stockholders continued in control, electing themselves officers and increasing their salaries.

The officers were: President, Thomas J. Murphy, salary one hundred dollars a week; treasurer, Bernard Link, salary eighty dollars a week; secretary William P. Fay, salary fifty dollars a week.

It developed at the hearing in court that the total receipts of the company for the past year amounted to sixty-five thousand dollars, while the expenses were thirty-five thousand dollars.

Justice Gaynor, after hearing the testimony in the case, declared that the aggregate compensation for the officers of the concern should not be over $5,500, and so ordered, thereby cutting the salaries in two. He said that directors have no right to vote salaries to one another as mere incidents to their office, but that they are entitled to a reasonable compensation.

Noted Editor Dead.

Springfield, Mass., March 8.—Henry M. Burt, founder of the paper on the top of Mount Washington, known as "Among the Clouds," died in this city yesterday morning of pneumonia. Mr. Burt at one time was an editor on the Springfield Republican.

Mr. Burt, just before his death, published the second volume of his book, "First Century of the History of Springfield."

New York for Pure Beer.

Albany, N. Y., March 8.—The Senate has passed by a vote of 37 to 8 Senator Coggeshall's bill prohibiting the use of any substitutes for hops or pure extract of hops in the manufacture of ale and beer.

An amendment offered by Senator Ford, providing that another substitute not unwholesome, deleterious or poisonous might be used as a substitute for hops, was voted down—27 to 15.

LORD HERSCHELL'S BODY.

Escorted by English and American Marines.

New York, March 8.—The body of Lord Herschell, chairman of the high joint commission, who died last week in Washington, D. C., reached Jersey City yesterday morning on a special train. It was accompanied by the Hon. C. W. Cartwright, secretary of the commission, and by H. Williamson, Lord Herschell's private secretary.

It was met by British Consul General Sanderson, Lieutenant Russell of the British ship of war, with a detail of twelve marines, Commodore John W. Philip, Captain Kelly and a detail of fifty marines from the Brooklyn navy yard.

The British marines wore straw hats and carried no arms. The marines from the navy yard carried rifles.

The navy yard tug Narkeeta was in waiting. The casket was transferred to the Adams Express Company pier on a truck, led by the American marines, a bugler and two drummers.

The British marines carried the casket aboard the Narkeeta on their shoulders.

The escort then boarded the tug and it proceeded to where the Talbot lay, off Ellis island. The transfer of the casket from the tugboat to the Talbot was made and the Narkeeta then returned with the British consul general and the American escort to the navy yard.

Mr. Sanderson said that when the supplies which have been ordered on board the Talbot arrived, she would at once start for England.

Fort Wadsworth, at the Narrows, will fire a salute of seventeen guns as the Talbot leaves the harbor.

Hawaiians Happy Now.

Chicago, March 8.—James Wakefield, a prominent English merchant of Honolulu, arrived here yesterday from the island of Hawaii, en route to New York. He spoke glowingly of the prospects of Hawaii under United States rule. In the course of conversation he said:

"The ambition of the best residents and natives of the islands has been realized in annexation to the United States. There is a marked sentiment there also in favor of the annexation of the Philippines, as such action on the part of the United States government would increase to a large extent the business of Honolulu through ships bound for the Philippines touching at that port.

"All through the islands in business circles there is a feeling of security for the people know now that they are under a stable and substantial government. They are not bothering very much about representation in Congress. They are more interested in the laying of a cable, and there is a unanimous desire to see this accomplished as soon as possible."

School Girls Stole Jewelry.

Binghampton, March 8.—The arrest of half a dozen school girls for robbing jewelry stores has caused a sensation in this city. The girls belong to well known families in the city, being the daughters of merchants and professional men.

For some time past the jewelry stores have missed rings, but no clew could be found to explain their disappearance. A prominent society woman of this city recently called at a local jewelry store, showing a ring that had been offered for sale to her by one of the girls.

Detective Stephenson, who was placed on the case, arrested two of the girls as they were returning from school, and at headquarters they broke down, implicating the others.

So far twenty-one rings have been recovered.

Croker Has Little to Say.

New York, March 8.—Richard Croker was not in a talkative mood yesterday when he was seen at his office at 111 Broadway. He was asked what he had to say in reply to former Judge John F. Dillon's statement to the effect that the board of health had no more power over the Manhattan Elevated Railway than it had over any other private property, and that the board's decisions, unless confirmed by the courts, would not conclude the railway company.

Mr. Croker said: "That's the Manhattan's side of the case. The best place to find out what powers the board of health actually has is at the office of that board. I have nothing to say as to the board's powers."

Italy to Compel an Apology.

Rome, March 8.—The Italian government is fully determined to obtain an apology from China for the Tsung-li-Yamen's (foreign office) refusal of the demand of Signor Martino, Italian minister at Pekin, of a concession at San Mun Bay, Province of Che-Kiang, to be used as a naval base and coaling station.

A squadron of five cruisers, with one hundred guns and fifteen hundred men, soon will arrive at San Mun Bay.

Woman Killed by a Pin.

Lebanon, Pa., March 8.—After suffering for twenty-five years with a pin in her throat, Mrs. Catherine Hackman died yesterday.

While living at Newville, Pa., a quarter of a century ago, she accidentally swallowed a pin, which lodged in her throat, and it could not be removed. She suffered excruciating pain and often was obliged to take food through a tube. Her throat was nearly closed.

Making Fun of Jersey Editors.

Trenton, N. J., March 8.—The House has passed Assemblyman Klein's bill regulating the hours of labor of newspaper men. It was amended in a spirit of fun, until it now provides that reporters and editors shall work eight hours a day for eight dollars per day, with eight hours for lunch. The bill will, of course, be killed in the Senate.

Earthquake Affects Japan.

Yokohama, March 8.—A severe earthquake shock was experienced here at ten o'clock yesterday morning, the disturbance visiting the same places as the great shock of 1891, with some loss of life and property.

One Thing or the Other.

According to the statement of the City Judge, who is at the head of the local judiciary, there is no ordinance that prohibits gambling within the city limits. The only reference to the subject in the city ordinances is in the sixth section of the Ordanance relating to the Morals, Peace and Good Order of the City of Plainfield, which is as follows:

Section 6. For keeping or causing or permitting to be kept a house, shop, room or place of any description, in which any kind of disorder or noise is made, or permitted, to the alarm, annoyance or disturbance of the neighborhood, or in which persons assemble, or to which persons resort for the purpose of buying or drinking spirituous or fermented liquors, or which place is injurious to the public health, public quiet or public morals, or in which is kept any table or device of any kind, upon or by which any game of chance or hazard shall be played, any sum not exceeding $100, or thirty days imprisonment in the city or county jail, or both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

The public at large has generally supposed that the local ordinances prohibited against gambling under any shape or form. The fact is that that the local legislation has provided only against regular gambling houses and that there is no ordinance to hold the individual gamblers unless they are interested in some way in the running of an establishment. There is a State law against gambling, but that necessitates indictment by the Grand Jury and is beyond the power of the local court.

A glance over the records of the past show that offenders have been sent down to the county jail and compelled to serve terms there for gambling. If it is the wish of the City Fathers that gambling in the city should be punished, then let them pass such ordinances as will make it a punishable offence. If not, then let all be treated alike in the matter.

Advertising In The Daily Press.

Both theoretically and practically the daily newspaper is regarded as the best medium for advertisements of a general character. This being a recognized fact the next thing for the advertiser to do is to select such daily newspapers in their particular fields as have the largest circulations among the purchasing class of citizens.

In Plainfield it has come to be understood among the leading advertisers that the one paper that offers the most advantageous terms is The Daily Press. This opinion is not held in the view of simply spending money for advertising without a consideration of what the returns are to be, but in light of the volume of business which an advertisement in The Daily Press is bound to bring.

The increase of 288 in the number of subscribers to The Daily Press within the last five weeks increases materially the business-making power of an advertisement in this paper. This increase is a bona fide one, and its worth to merchants who use the columns of The Daily Press in placing trade arguments before the residents of Plainfield and its surburbs, whose purchasing practices mean either success or failure, cannot be underestimated.

RIVER PASIG AT MANILA AND STREET IN ILOILO.
The Pasig river will be known to fame because it was into that stream that the Filipinos were forced by Brigadier General King's brigade. The street scene in Iloilo is interesting, as that town was taken by our troops recently. Iloilo is the principal town on the island of Panay.

There is a strong probability that after the borough election there will will be a change in the appointment of borough physician, now held by J. H. Carman, of this city. The latter has been a very efficient officer, but there is a number of people who do not think that Dr Carman should hold the position inasmuch as he is a resident of Plainfield. Among the candidates mentioned for the position are Dr J. H. Buchanan and Dr. Pittis. Either one is liable to receive the appointment.

Miles Ross, whose name has been associated with Democratic politics in New Jersey for many years, is soon to retire from the office of Riparian Commissioner. The Hon. Mr. Ross had had his share of public honors and emoluments and can well afford to spend the rest of his days in the serene contemplation of how fortune has favored him.

Plainfield's troubles with the disposal of sewage pales into insignificance when the trials and tribulations of the towns along the Passaic are contemplated, after reading Chancellor McGill's decision concerning the use of that stream as a dumping place for the offal of those various municipalities.

The Philadelphia Ledger sententiously remarks: "If New Jersey could but own all the trusts she creates what a wealthy State she would be," and the Newark Advertiser pointedly comments that, "The reverse seems about to happen. The trusts are coming to own New Jersey."

Other sections of the country may feel inclined to criticise the billion-dollar Congress that has just adjourned, but New Brunswick is very well satisfied. The sum of $100,000 for a public building affords plenty of solace for the Old Dutch city.

The Democratic leaders in the Legislature are having a hard time of it by having their measures killed in committees without being given a chance to give them respectful funerals in open discussion on the floor of either House

Among those named as possibilities for the position of Chief Marshal of the borough is William N. Pangborn. It is understood that he has placed himself in line for the appointment and is making strong overtures for it.

Never before in the history of the borough has betting been so prevalent as regards election which takes place next week Tuesday. Large sums of money are being put up on both sides, and it is generally covered.

The Court of Errors and Appeals has decided that struck juries are legal in the trial of murder cases This, however, will not tend to increase the desire of people to stand up before them.

There is a general and well defined feeling that the Senatorial battle in Pennsylvania will not run over into another week; but who is to wear the toga recently dropped by M. S. Quay is yet a mystery.

A newspaper like The Daily Press that reaches the people in the quiet of their home, where plain facts can best appeal to the intellect, is by far the most preferable medium of communication.

The Montana Legislature has legalized prize fighting and made gambling a felony. Under such circumstances it will be pretty difficult to describe the exact moral status of Montana.

A trust in coffin hardware is the latest. Though it will not cost much for the trust's obsequies it will undoubtedly die hard.

Dry goods merchants are generally men of sobriety, but yet they delight to see things on the tear.

A week from today the knowledge of borough politicians will be more complete than it is now.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

We cannot but regard with irresistible sympathy the wretched Roesel to be hung in our own State next Friday. Deliberately his life is to be taken We are told, in the interest of society. We are opposed to capital punishment. It is a relic of barbarism; a commentary on our boasted civilization. It is a judicial murder. Roesel has proved himself unfit to be free, or to associate with his kind. Send him, therefore, back to the solemn silence of his narrow cell, after burning into his brow the letter M, as a guard against escape. Let him toil lest he be an expense to law abiding men; let his fare be course, his couch hard, if you will. But do not take his life and his thought Leave him to his Maker, after confining him for life for the security of society.—Westfield Standard.

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

Dunellen, March 8—The following is a list of those for whom unclaimed letters remain in the postoffice: Miss Lulu Cook, Miss L. Chedister, Miss Mabel Garwood, Mrs. Martha Lukes, O. Marr, Mr. Bounfortes and John Kolesan.

The Juniors of the Presbyterian church entertained their friends with a little entertainment last night. The programme included songs, recitations, music and a "broom drill," in which a good representation of the society took part. An admission fee of 10 cents was charged, which will be used for the cause of Christian Endeavor.

Owing to the death of one of its members, William G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will postpone the reception to Corporal John Fisher, which was to have been held tonight, until a future date.

The reception which was to be given John S. Fisher tonight will be postponed until March 16th on account of the death of Bro. Randolph Runyon.

Mr. Wolfson, of New York State, who has been spending a few days with Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Westcott has returned to his home.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 8—Irving I. Ross, the Democratic nominee for township clerk, is a sure winner, according to the sayings of the party workers. They claim that no man the Republicans can nominate can defeat him. The Clark man, who were a little sore at loosing the nomination for their candidate, are now working for Mr. Ross.

The Republican primary was held in Etta Hall last evening when the following nominations were made: Committeeman, Martin Wells; clerk, Charles D. Reese; overseer of the poor, Fred. O. Decker; constables, George W. Peek, Jr., and Fred. Tood; commissioners of appeal, James T. Pierson, W. W. Connoly, S. D. Winters; surveyors of the highways, J. N Wilcox, Sherman Cooper; justice of the peace, P. J. DeBois, J. Henry Townley. There was a fight for the last office, the present justice of the peace, L. E. Hart, being named but Isaac Seeley made an address in which he accused Mr. Hart of working for a Democratic candidate for the freeholdership at the last election and he was defeated.

NEW SPRNG COSTUMES—LIGHT IN COLOR AS WELL AS WEIGHT.

Heavy Demand for Fabrics that Wear Well—Pique and Linen Take High Place Among Afternoon Costumes—The Styles in Coats, Jackets and Capes.

There is now a universal rage for spots and dots—oval, coin, and cone-shaped, seed, pastelle, and bird's-eye—and nothing escapes from fairy frills to flannels, from borderings to bridal veils, from chiffons to tailor-cloths, velvets, silks, satins, bows and bonnet feathers. And these dotted materials form guimpes, yokes, vests, cuffs, panels, straps, bindings, blouse and petticoat fronts, revers, and gowns entire.

Many of the new spring costumes will be light in color as well as weight, and when the weather will permit the removal of wraps, the size of the fashionable woman will be in strong contrast to that of a season or so ago, when full, spreading sleeves and voluminous skirts were the rule. The close sleeves and the straight clinging, demi-trained skirts are designed to give the effect of height and slenderness.

This season the material that will not cling closely to the figure has no part among the most fashionable creations in dress. Drap d' Alma and drap d'ete are much used; also the beautiful cloth called drap de Chine, which is as fine, rich, and glossy as any of the handsome faced cloths, and lighter in weight. Even the silks, satins, and brocades, of which the Parisian atelier so heartily approves, are quite without the "dressing" formerly characteristic of these textiles, and cling to the figure.

The great advance in the taste for out-door sports and recreations has caused a heavy demand for fabrics that will wear well through all kinds of weather. In view of this, the manufacturers have made special preparation, and the importing-houses already present a goodly array of much improved weaves in mohair, camel's hair, serge, cheviot, tweed, Scotch and English fancies and beautifully blended meltons and heather cloths. The rough, double-faced Scotch mixtures, for golf and cycling, are still very fashionable, and some smart but simple tailor costumes for general wear have been made of these fabrics. Very attractive are the soft vicunas, likewise used. While of most serviceable quality, these goods are remarkably light, and possess the clinging qualification now so essential to dress fabrics of every sort.

Pique and linen will take high place this summer among the afternoon costumes for country or seaside wear. Although both of these are distinctly hot-weather fabrics, they are not as comfortable to wear as almost any of the other countless diaphanous or semi-transparent materials, but following the vogue of all fabrics this year, they are much more pliable and softer to the touch than formerly, and the colors brought out in both piques and linens are very charming. The most fashionable models will be tailor-made, with plain machine-stitched or gimp-trimmed skirts, and coats of the very short, jaunty, round-fronted order. On these rather expensive gowns handsome white applique designs or linen braid in fancy patterns will be applied very much as similar decorations were used all winter on cloth costumes. Some will be white throughout, others will have pink, yellow, or red blouse waists, revers, collar, and cuffs, or shirt-waists of wash-silk.

Yoke and guimpe effects in silk or chenille embroidered on cloth or peau de soie, chiffon over faille tucked taffeta, or Liberty satin, polka-dotted materials of various kinds, and guipure net over satin, are more than ever in vogue, and with a soft becoming scarf of net carried twice around the throat and tied under the chin they form distinctive features of the new modes. Very large revers are the exception thus far. It is more common to see two revers, one slightly narrower than the other, and of a contrasting fabric, like one of white cloth above a wider one of dark velvet, or vice-versa. Again, the revers may be of daintily braided cloth, lapping over slightly larger ones of soft corded silk. Black cloth tailor costumes show vivid contrasts; for instance, the vest is of white Venice net over white silk, the smaller revers of turquoise blue velvet, the larger shapes of barid-edged white moire.

Besides the very complete and varied styles in new coats and jackets there are also some very pretty small capes and pelerines, with and without long stole fronts, their originality consisting chiefly in their greatly varied fabrics and novel and beautiful finishings, two or three different materials being employed in their formation. They are graced with silk embroideries, applique bands, points, and special neck, shoulder, and stole pieces, and decorations in chenille and velvet cut-work, with fringes to match. A simple tailor-made cape of fine cloth may be charmingly elaborated by the use of these garnitures, and a small wrap of special distinction produced.

The sheath-shaped skirts of introductory tailor gowns are in many instances unlined if the goods are at all heavy. French designers have found it almost impossible to give them the proper clinging fit about the hips and entire upper portion with even light silk linings. To provide each skirt with the necessary flare on the lower portion, the hem is silk-faced and trimmed with very many rows of machine-stitching, lines of gimp, straps, and buttons and other tailor finishings, the skirt to be worn over a silk petticoat elaborately trimmed with plaited or gathered frills and flounces, which are generally corded at the edges to aid in producing the required distended effect. Other models of lighter wool have the usual silk linings, but to give the svelte effect, these are devoid of "dressing," clinging so closely to the outer skirt material that the additional thickness is hardly perceptible.

A detailed description of the varied uses of tiny ruches which flourish as a dress decoration would more than fill this column. Yards and yards of this pretty and popular garniture adorn the fashionable toilets and costumes of both French and American designing. These ruches, made of chiffon, tulle, net, silk, and ribbon of every width and color, are used alike on skirts, bodices, fichus, sleeve-caps and cuffs, revers, collars, and vest fronts. On white or black gowns, or those in black and white mixtures, black and white edging laces are combined to form very effective ruches, and those of soft black tulle are used with equally good results on toilets of pale pink, green, or blue India silk, veiling, etamine, or foulard. They edge the ruffles, outline or decorate the actual overdress, and they garnish and daintily finish the most elaborate gowns of lace or jet-embroidered net. The most satisfactory thing about them is the fact that they are sold at all the fancy dry-goods houses ready to apply, making them not only of great aid and value to the high-class modiste, who utilizes them in most artistic and ingenious ways, but also to the amateur and home dressmaker, to whom they are of great service.

It is remarkable what a variety of contrasting styles and novel and taking effects can be produced season after season with so simple and modest an article of dress as the shirt waist. All rumors concerning the passing of this small garment are silenced when every available space in shop and display-window is taken up with an advance display of numbers of fresh models. Tradespeople affirm that this season will surpass all others in the use of these neat, comfortable, and economical styles, for the reason that there are more open-fronted shapes in diminutive jackets, requiring shirt waists beneath, for spring and summer, when no wraps are required.

An Indian's Comet Theory.

When the last comet was streaming in the sky, I was camping one night in a canon near the foot of Cook's Peak. In the party was an old and—for an Indian—a fairly intelligent Ute, named Sam. Sam had been attached to some cavalry troop at Fort Cummings as a scout, but his day of leaving the service being reached, he attached himself to me—for a consideration.

Pointing to the comet, I asked Sam what he could say in its defense from the standpoint of a Ute. Sam was, unlike most Indians, a great talker, and could speak English very well. He was ambitious to perfect himself in the language, and readily seized on every chance for a talk. Indeed I discovered him on one or two occasions all alone, and talking vigorously at a mark like a savage Demosthenes.

"Tell about that?" said Sam, pointing toward the comet. "Sam do it in a heap easy. The sun is the man, and he have moon for squaw. The stars—big stars and little stars—are all their children. The sun don't like 'em. If he catch one, he eats it. This makes the stars heap 'fraid, and when the sun has his sleep over and comes out the stars run and hide. When the sun comes stars go—creep into holes and hide. But the moon is good. She loves her children—the stars—and when the sun sleeps she comes out in the sky, and the stars are glad, and they come out of the places they hid in, and forget to be 'fraid and play. But when the sun makes gain they run. He is always after them, and he catches them sometimes. This one," continued Sam, again pointing at the comet, "the sun catch one time. He got away, though, but the sun hit him and hurt him. That's why he bleed so. Now he's heap scared, and so he keeps his face always toward the place where the sun is sleeping."

The Useful Banana.

Immense fortunes have been made out of the banana business. Revenues do not accrue from the sale of the fruit alone, for the leaves are used for packing; the juice being strong in tannin, makes an indelible ink and shoe-blacking, the wax found on the under side of the leaves is a valuable article of commerce; manila hemp is made from the stems of this hemp are made mats, palited work, and lace handkerchiefs of the finest texture, moreover the banana is ground into banana flour. The fruit to be sold for dessert is ripened by the ruddy warmth of flaring gas jets in the storage places in which it is kept, and immense care has to be taken to prevent softening or over-ripening. The island of Jamacia yields great crops of this useful and money-making fruit.—Boston Transcript.

Why We Yawn.

The reason we yawn is that, as we become weary the nervous impulses which direct the respiratory movements are enfeebled. It has been said that these movements are involuntary, and that the parts engaged in producing them are not subject to fatigue. But the operation of breathing is to some extent voluntary, though when we cease to direct it voluntarily, it is involuntarily continued by organs which know no fatigue.

There is, however, another cause which produces what may be called the yawn sympathetic—an involuntary tendency to imitation.

"Wouldn'yer help a man along wha was starvin'?"

"Certainly. But I don't see what help a man wants to starve."

NEW WAY TO PROPOSE.

A Clean Cut Business Statement that Convinced the Old Man.

As the young man entered the old man looked up and scowled.

"Well?" said the old man, shortly.

"Your daughter," began the young man, but the old man cut him off abruptly.

"I've noticed that you've been hanging around a good deal," he said. "I suppose you've come to tell me that you love her and want to marry her?"

"No," replied the young man calmly. "I've come to tell you that she loves me and wants to marry me."

"What?" roared the old man.

"She says so herself," persisted the young man.

"I never heard of such an exhibition of egotistical impertinence," said the old man.

"Then you misunderstand me," explained the young man. "My assertion is dictated by policy and not by impertinence. You see, it's just this way. What I want is nothing to you, now, is it?"

"Why—er—not exactly."

"I might want a million dollars, but that wouldn't cut any figure with you, would it?"

"Certainly not."

"Then what a fool proposition it would be for me to come to you and say: 'Mr. Parbinson, I have been favorably impressed with your house and lot,' or 'I think I'd like your daughter,' or anything else in that line. But when your daughter wants anything it's different. Now, isn't it different?"

"I certainly is different," admitted the old man, cautiously.

"Precisely," said the young man. "She and I figured that out carefully last night. You see, I have no particular prospects, and we could both see that there wasn't one chance in a hundred that you would give her to me. Then she suggested that you had never yet refused anything that she wanted, no matter what the cost might be, and that perhaps it would be a good plan to change the usual order somewhat. We sort of felt that it wouldn't be right to ask you to do anything for me, but it's different in her case, as I remarked before. So I'm here merely as her agent to say that she wants me, that she wants me very much, and to ask you to please see that she gets me. She never has wanted anything so much as she wants me, and I am so favorably disposed toward her that if you care to make the investment I shall be quite willing to leave the terms entirely to you and her."

Naturally she got him. No wide-awake business man is going to overlook a chance to get such a fine sample of nerve in the family.—Chicago Post.

Bacteria in Plants.

It appears that there is more truth in the claim that each plant has its own particular bacteria than may be supposed. A farmer in New Jersey who could not grow clover on his land, though following every recommendation in regard to cultivation and the use of fertilizers, procured soil from a field in Pennsylvania upon which a magnificent growth of clover had been secured and broadcasted the soil over his field, so as to inoculate it with the clover bacteria. The result was an excellent growth of clover where before it seemed impossible to have a strand of it.

A Princess of Hawaii.

Princess Kaiulani of Hawaii is one of the most interesting personages in "our new possessions." She is the daughter of the Hon. A. S. Cleghorn, an English gentleman who made Honolulu his home for many years, and Princess Likelike, sister of the late King Kalakaua and the recently deposed Liliuokalani. As the title to the throne of the Hawaiian Islands descends on the maternal side, and as Liliuokalani is childless, Kalulani was the heir to the throne. She is said to be an accomplished linguist, an affable hostess, and a charming woman. She was educated chiefly in London, where she lived for about eight years. She also spent several seasons in Paris. Her home in Honolulu is a perfect paradise of tropical foliage, surrounding lawns upon which strut a dignified flock of peacocks. In spite of the fall of the monarchy, her position is still that of a social leader.

Bold Fakir in Park Row.

Fakirs are by no means confined to country fairs. They do good business right here in the great metropolis where everyone is supposed to be well up in all sorts of tricks. A fakir with a novel stock in trade was doing business in Park row only last week. His equipment consisted of a neat leather case, something like a dress-suit case, which, when opened, revealed two compartments. One of these is filled with small round boxes, while in the other is a single box identical in appearance with the others. Having gathered a sufficiently large crowd the fakir opens the boxes, and those in one side are seen to be empty, while in the solitary one in the other compartment is exposed a five dollar note. The fakir then puts the box containing the note in among the other boxes, shakes the case up and permits any bystander who is willing to pay 10 cents to pick out three boxes. If any of the three chosen contains the bill it becomes the property of the fortunate one. However, though the reporter watched the transaction for nearly half an hour, during which time there were a dozen or more persons who tried their luck, I did not see that any one was successful.

It is an old game, but the boldness of using it on Park row is the most astonishing thing about it.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Straßburg. Bei den Mitgliedern des sozialistischen Landeskomites Boehle, Hoffmann, Manstein und Kontrolleur Emmel, hat die Polizei Haussuchung gehalten, um festzustellen, ob in den Reichslanden eine unerlaubte einheitliche Organisation der sozialdemokratischen Wahlverbände besteht. Die bei Kontrolleur Emmel vorgefundenen Kassenbücher wurden mit Beschlag belegt.

Mülhausen. Aus dem hiesigen Bezirksgefängniß ist Nachts ein gefährlicher Verbrecher Namens Widemann entsprungen. Er war bei seiner Flucht nur mit einem Hemd bekleidet. Die Flucht hatte er dadurch bewerkstelligt, daß er die vor seinem Fenster befindlichen Gitterstäbe auseinanderbog und sich dann hindurch zwängte. Hier hatte der Verbrecher noch zwei Jahre Gefängniß und dann in Baden fünf Jahre Zuchthaus zu verbüßen.

Niederweiler. In einer hiesigen Wirthschaft hatte ein Schiffer gewettet, er werde in kurzer Zeit 16 Glaser Schnaps austrinken. Nach dem 14. Glase konnte er nicht mehr weiter trinken und mußte bewußtlos nach Hause verbracht werden, wo er alsbald verstarb.

Wien. Das hiesige Landesgericht befahl die Konfiszirung und Einstampfung einer in Leipzig erschienenen Broschüre, in welcher die dreibundzerstörende Wirksamkeit der Kabinette Badeni und Thun gekennzeichnet ist und die Zersplitterung des Dreibundes prophezeit wird.—Gräfin Selma Stadnicka, die Wittwe des Grafen Heinrich Stadnicki, hat in einem Wiener Kafe-Chantant ein Engagement als Sängerin angenommen. Mißliche Familien- und Vermögensverhältnisse bildeten den Anlaß zu diesem Schritt.

Bozen. Nächst Schlining ging eine kolossale Lawine zu Thale, welche den Schlininger Schießstand vernichtete und Wald und Kulturen großen Schaden zufügte. Auch an anderen Stellen des Thales gingen große Lawinen nieder.

Bregenz. Das zukünftige neue Rheinbett wird zweimal überbrückt werden. Für die großen Pfeiler, die die beiden eisernen Brücken zu tragen bestimmt sind, sind bereits die erforderlichen Fundationsarbeiten im Gange. Besonders rege Thätigkeit herrscht in der Nähe des Seeufers, weil der gegenwärtige, verhältnißmäßig niedrige Wasserstand des Bodensees die Wuhr- und Dammbauten sehr begünstigt.

Eger. Die hiesige Bezirkshauptmannschaft hat die Errichtung eines Bismarck-Denkmals dahier verboten und das Verbot damit motivirt, daß sie zwar die Größe und Würdigkeit des Staatsmannes anerkenne, aber dennoch aus österreichisch-patriotischen Gründen eine Ehrung durch ein Denkmal nicht für zulässig halten könne.

Innsbruck. Dieser Tage ist der in weiteren Kreisen bekannte Finanz-Rechnungsoffizial Sebastian Kastner hier im Alter von 95 Jahren gestorben. Im Jahre 1873 wurde er nach mehr als 40jähriger Dienstzeit in den bleibenden Ruhestand versetzt. Kastner machte 1849 als Lieutenant den Feldzug gegen Italien mit.

Irdning. Hier hat das Franz Stieg'sche Ehepaar die goldene Hochzeit gefeiert. Frau Stieg ist eine Enkelin von Andreas Hofer.

Kis-Czell. Die hiesige Sparkasse ist in Konkurs gerathen. Der Direktor der Sparkasse Ludwig Rosenberg wurde verhaftet.

Teplitz. Hier ist die mechanische Stickerei der Firma Ortner ein Raub der Flammen geworden.

Schweiz.

Bern. Kürzlich haben die Herren Liesegang, Günther und Zurflüh, Hoteliers in Meiringen, in Begleitung eines Führers dem Wetterhorn (3703 Meter) einen Besuch gemacht. Der Aufstieg erfolgte von Rosenlaui aus direkt auf das Wetterhorn, ohne vorher die Dossenhütte zu berühren; nach 20stündiger anstrengender Wanderung, zum Theil durch weichen Schnee, gelangte die Karawane glücklich in die Klubhütte am Gauligletscher.

Luzern. Die Kurhaus-Gesellschaft Luzern hat im Jahre 1898 nach erfolgten Abschreibungen einen Reingewinn von 9832 Francs erzielt. Das Rößlispiel im Kursaal hat verflossenes Jahr 16,512 Francs weniger abgeworfen, als im Vorjahr, offenbar in Folge der vom Bundesrath verfügten Einschränkungen.

Schwyz. Das Aktienkapital von 150,000 Francs für den Bau einer elektrischen Straßenbahn von Schwyz nach der Bahnstation Schwyz-Seemen ist vollständig gezeichnet. Der Bau soll sofort in Angriff genommen werden, und schon im Juli hofft man, die Bahn dem Betriebe übergeben zu können.

The Sun's Bear Stories.

For many years one of the most conspicuous features of the New York Sun has been its annual stories. Its tales of bear hunting may justly be accorded the palm, although its snake stories are a close second.

The Sun correspondent at Kipp, Montana, writes this under date: John H. Harris, one of our cattle kings, tells a very amusing story of a bear hunt he once had; that is, it's amusing now, but at the time it happened it was a serious enough matter to him.

"When I came to this country," he said, "there wasn't a thing to do except whack bulls or hunt, and I chose the latter vocation, as it afforded an independent life, with a chance to make more money than driving bulls along a dry and dusty freight road to and from the mines. I had been but a few days in Fort Benton when I met a couple of old trappers and hunters, and putting in my share of the outfit I went with them for a hunt in the Judith Mountains. Antelope and deer were on every hand, thousands of them, and as their hides were then worth a dollar each we expected to make a lot of money. We would have done so, too, had the Indians not run us out; but that's another story.

"One day I was riding along looking for game when I saw a very large grizzly up on the steep side of a mountain digging roots. I rode up to the foot of the butte, and having a long rope picketed my horse to the edge of a cherry-brush patch so it could feed about while I was after the bear. There was a deep, narrow gulch leading up toward the top of the mountain, and I started up it, although I was in plain sight of the bear all the time; but, as you know, bears have very poor eyesight, depending almost entirely on their nose to warn them of danger, and anyhow this fellow was busy digging. So I slipped along up the gulch until I was right opposite, and as you may say, under him, for from him to me the mountain sloped down at an angle of at least fifty degrees. I had the best gun that money could buy in those days, a rim-fire .44-calibre Winchester. It didn't have much range or penetration as compared to our modern rifles, still at 100 yards it did good work, and I had great confidence in it. The bear was not more than eighty yards distant, and waiting until I had a good opportunity I took a very careful aim for a point just below his shoulder and fired. When the bullet struck him he let out an awful yell, and falling rolled right down toward me. I didn't expect that, and it rather ratted me, but I ran a few steps up the opposite side of the gulch just as he rolled down into it at the very place I had been standing. He lit on his feet and charged right at me, and I fired a wild shot at him and ran. Never before or since did I make such time as I did down that mountain. I really believe that on the steeper places I made thirty feet at a jump, and the bear wasn't far behind me, in spite of the fact that one of my shots was in his body and the other one had broken a front leg.

"Well, I was about forty yards ahead of the bear when I reached my horse, and I didn't even touch the stirrup, but vaulted into the saddle at one leap and dug my heels into his flanks as hard as I could. This startled the animal, for he wasn't used to it, and he started off as fast as he could go. But in the excitement I had forgotten all about the picket rope, and when the horse reached the end of it he turned a grand somersault in the air, and I went flying through space beyond him, and fell to the ground with a thud which knocked the wind out of me, my rifle disappearing in some other direction among the high grass. By the time the horse regained his feet the bear was upon him, and then they had it up and down the length of that picket rope for what seemed to me an age. Having but one good forefoot, the bear could not grasp the horse and hang on. Had he been able to do so he would have killed it in two minutes, but he did the best he could, and chased it up and down, occasionally biting a mouthful out of its tail and scarring its haunches with his sound foreclaw.

"All this time I sat still, not daring to move, even to look for my rifle, for the wind was quite knocked out of me. I couldn't run, and I knew my only chance was to keep quiet, and then, perhaps the grizzly would not notice me. At last the bear got out of breath and sat down on his haunches, panting, the foam dropping out of his mouth. He gazed at the horse a while, and then looking around spied me. He straightened up and acted as if he was going to charge, but he seemed to think better of it and resumed his sitting position and gazed again at the horse and then at me, alternately, for what seemed like hours, and then finally he got up and staggered off three or four hundred yards into another patch of brush. Then I looked about for my rifle, and, finding it, I untied the picket rope and quietly led what was left of my horse to camp. His tail had been chewed off almost entirely, and his quarters were fearfully lacerated. The next day I got my partners to accompany me to the scene of the battle, and we found the bear, a very large, old grizzly, dead in the brush patch. The bullet which entered his body had pierced a lung, and cutting the liver, had ranged back into the intestines."

Tests of bicycle tires, recently made by Prof. R. C. Carpenter, of Cornell University, shows that, other things being equal, the larger the tire the easier runs the wheel. A marked difference in ease of running is found between a 1 1-2 inch and a 2-inch tire. A single tube tire runs easier than a double tube tire.

HOW TO MARRY.

A Divinity School Will Teach the Art of Officiating.

Professor Robert McLean Cumnock, president of the Cumnock School of Oratory at the Northwestern University, has instituted a new regime in preparing his divinity students for the practical side of their future work. Each Friday the chords of Lohengrin's "Wedding March" float from the keys of the chapel organ, the melodious voice of a divinity student chants the marriage service, and the mock marriage ceremony is solemnized with attention to the minutest details. There is the student groom and blushing "coed" for a bride, the best man and the bridesmaids. Professor Cumnock acting as guardian to give away the bride.

In placing this course in Northwestern's curriculum it is the intention of Professor Cumnock to give his divinity students drill in officiating at marriages of every class that they may meet within the vicissitudes of their future work. There are to be marriages in high life with six bridesmaids and as many groomsmen as can be crowded at the chancel rail. There will be conducted the quiet wedding with only a few friends of the family present. All of the services—both brief and prolix—are to be used. The embryonic divine will be shown just where to stand and how. He will be instructed in regard to the best usages of etiquette, the manner of receiving his fee and how to kiss the bride. He will also learn how to compose his countenance and restrain his lacerated feelings when there is no fee forthcoming.

Professor Cumnock is of the opinion that a mild, even monotone is more preferable for the officiating clergyman to assume than a grand, reverential and sublime style. He argues that the tones of the human voice, when properly trained, are most soothing to the perturbed feelings of novices at the altar, and those hardened by many visits to the matrimonial shrine are left out of the professor's consideration. The ministers to be are instructed not to shout the words "Please join your right hands," like an excited general giving the order to close up ranks, but the entire service, from the filling out of the certificates to the pocketing of the fees, must be conducted in a smooth, even monotone consistent with the whispered replies in which the trembling pair swear fealty to one another.

"If we should attempt to place that feature in our curriculum," said Professor Cumnock, "we would need a building that would cover the campus, and then we would have to refuse admittance to hundreds at matriculation. The only object in going through the marriage ceremony is to give the divinity students practical experience before they enter upon their ministry. For this reason we also include the reading of the liturgy, and we follow the burial service in detail. Many of my senior students are preparing to teach oratory, and there is no better cultivation of the voice than the expressive power of the Bible, the hymn book and the liturgy."

Advice to Tourists.

The most marked characteristics of tourists, when seen en masse, crowded behind restraining gates on pier or boat, is a lack of tidiness. The fault lies in the main with the hats, which are usually conspicuous for anything but neatness. Flowers are unsuitable for traveling, as are also picturesque hats or those with irregularly indented brims. The best cut skirt and jacket are spoiled in effect, when traveling if surmounted by a beflowered, dressy hat. Ribbons, silk and stiff feathers are the neatest, most serviceable and generally most fit ornamentation for touring hats. The appearance of women tourists would be must improved if they were neater about hair arrangement, their especial slovenliness consisting in their not properly tethering with hairpins the short hairs that grow about the nape of the neck, and which they allow to hang down over their collars in most unsightly fashion. A small hand glass, carried in the traveling bag and used at frequent intervals in the dressing room, would accomplish much needed missionary work for back hair neatness among women.—Vogue.

Care of the Dining Room.

"The dining room of the house," says Miss Maria Parloa, who may be called the mother of home economics as a popular teachable science, "should be kept in perfect order, clean and free from odors. There are reasons against a carpet in this room. Woolen carpets absorb odors, and if anything is spilled on them are more difficult to clean than is a bare floor, or a rug, which may be carried out and aired without trouble. On the other hand noiseless service is more difficult on the polished floor, and there is danger of accidents from slipping. Two or three breadths of Japanese matting sewed together into a square, and the ends bound, make a very satisfactory rug for the centre of the dining room.

"Whether the floor is polished or carpeted, it should be brushed each morning. The room should be thoroughly aired and dusted each morning, and once a week there should be a thorough cleaning of the room. In this general cleaning the closets, sideboards, and shelves should have special care. The table should be rubbed free from spots, and be oiled or waxed, as the case may be; the spots on the woodwork wiped, and the windows washed. In addition to the general airing the room should be aired for a short time after each meal, even in the coldest weather."

IN THE LADRONE ISLANDS.

The New American Governor of Guam in the Ladrones.

Captain Richard P. Leary, U. S. N., who was recently appointed by President McKinley Governor of the Island of Guam, in the Ladrone group, has started for his Pacific island post in the auxiliary cruiser Yosemite. Guam is the principal island of the Ladrones, which were formerly under the general government of the Philippines. There is but one town in all the Ladrones, San Ignacio de Agana, and that is situated at Guam. The population of the Ladrones only amounts to about ten thousand souls. It consists of descendants from the original inhabitants, called by the Spaniards Chammorros; of Tagal settlers from the Philippines, and of a mixed race formed by the union of Spaniards and Chammorros.

Captain Leary is well known in navy circles as a brave and efficient officer and a man of remarkable executive ability. He hails from Maryland, and entered the Naval Academy in 1860.

Samoa in 1888.

History repeats itself even in Samoa, and the same cause was behind the troubles in 1887-88 as is behind them to-day—the desire of Germany to bring about German control.

Malietoa Laupepa, who had been recognized as King of all Samoa by an agreement between Germany, Great Britain and the United States in 1881, was deported from Samoa by a German war ship in 1887, on a flimsy pretext of having insulted the German government. Tamasese, a rebel, was set up in his stead. A civil war then broke out between Tamasese and Mataafa, the chief of the loyalist party and a relative of the exiled King. While this war was raging, in 1888, there were but two foreign war ships in Samoan waters—the Adler, a German vessel, and the Adams, a small and obsolete man-of-war, commanded by Captain Leary, then bearing the rank of commander. The Adler was by far the more powerful ship, but the strength of the United States navy has never been in the superiority of her ships, only in the superiority of the officers and of the men behind the guns.

Some Incisive Messages.

Soon afterward Captain Leary had occasion to pay his respects to the captain of the Adler. While the war was raging between Tamasese and Mataafa the German captain made his war vessel a sort of tow boat for Tamasese's war canoes, and trained his guns upon villages occupied only by women and children. Many villages were entirely destroyed. Captain Leary sent this just if incisive remonstrance to the Adler's captain: "Such action, especially after the Tamasese party had been represented as a strong government not needing the armed support of a foreign power, appears to be a violation of the principles of international law, as well as a violation of the generally recognized laws of humanity."

Leary Upholds the Flag.

On the evening of November 14, 1888, a messenger came to Captain Leary from Mataafa with the information that the German war ship was in the dawn of the following day, going to bombard a stronghold which Mataafa had established on land under American protection. That night Captain Leary quietly got steam up without attracting the German's attention, and had his anchor chains muffled. All hands were called to quarters before dawn. At daybreak the Adler's anchors came up, and she made for the threatened fort. Silently the sailors of the Adams came up also, much to the amazement of the German captain. A boat craft put after him with a full head of steam, and darted in between him and the shore. Captain Leary cleared his ship for action and the German followed suit. A shot from either ship would now have precipitated war.

When opposite the threatened fort the German dropped his anchors, and the Yankee did likewise, taking care to get between the Adler and the shore. Captain Leary then sent this note to the German captain:

"I have the honor to inform you that, having received information that American property in the Latogo vicinity of Lapili, Lotoanun, and Solo Solo is liable to be invaded this day, I am here for the purpose of protecting the same."

The crews on the two ships stood at their guns for hours, but the German captain made no attempt to fire upon the fort. Finally he started on a cruise down the coast, but Captain Leary followed him and would not be shaken off. The two ships came at length into harbor again, and the American had gained his point of preventing the German from firing upon the fort.

A Huge Bowlder.

Buffalo is about to erect a memorial monument in the form of a huge bowlder to the gallant Thirteenth United States infantry for the heroism they displayed at San Juan Hill and before Santiago. This bowlder has a width of ten and one-half feet, is nine feet long and seven feet high. It resembles an egg in shape and is of red granite. It was obtained near Lewiston, N. Y., on the mountain side, and is about the largest bowlder in Western New York. It will be erected on government ground at Fort Porter, and will bear a bronze tablet, on which will be inscribed data of the regiment's history. Distinguished men are expected to be present at the dedication of the monument, which will occur soon. The bowlder was taken to Buffalo on a special car over the New York Central.

"Who is your most prominent citizen?"

"John Dolittle, I guess; he stands on the post office corner more 'n any one else in town."

AN EQUINE HERO.

The Rescue of an English Officer by His Horse.

A graphic story is told by Surgeon-Captain Grey, one of the officers who served in Rhodesia. In the attack on Mashangombi's the horses began to drop, and soon thirteen lay on the ground, and it looked as if the men would all be killed. Evidently Captain Turner thought so, for he virtually gave the order, "Sauve qui peut," telling every man to fight the best he could for his own hand. But, though the horses continued to fall, the men escaped. Dr. Grey, to use his own words, "led toward the way out under a raking fire at a gallop, and was closely followed by the troop. Very soon, however, I fell from the saddle, struck with a bullet from an elephant gun about 500 yards off. The bullet struck me on the top of the thigh, smashing the socket of the thigh-bone, breaking a vein, and otherwise wounding me. My horse was carried on at full speed to clear the pocket-like entrance of the drift, where the natives were rallying in the hope of killing us. As I lay on the grass, bleeding profusely, I looked up and saw two natives aiming at me at a distance of about forty feet. At the same moment I saw my horse come thundering back from the drift. It suddenly stopped and stood over my prostrate body, covering me from the firing and at the same time making a peculiar noise through its nostrils. I thought it had been wounded, and that with the pain, noise and confusion it had gone mad. This notion, however, was soon dispelled, and it continued to stand over me in a kneeling posture, and I could see that the faithful animal had come back to protect me. I may remark here that this horse, which I myself selected, I made a pet of. The assegais from the approaching natives were now beginning to fly around me, and, thinking if I could reach my horse's back I should be shot which was preferable to being assegaied, I seized the reins, put my right foot in the stirrup, and made a supreme effort to mount. And I was successful, but how I did it I do not know, for my left side was entirely paralyzed. On finding myself in the saddle, I called 'Go!' to my horse, which darted like an arrow toward the exit from the drift."—St. James Budget.

HERRMANN'S KINDNESS.

Cancelled a Note for $15,000 Upon Learning the Distress of the Man's Wife.

A professional man who had struck a streak of hard luck went to Herrmann for a loan. He wanted $2,500, and was willing to secure it with a life insurance policy for $15,000. Herrmann let him have the money and took the policy, as it was purely a business proposition and not a matter of friendship. The borrower's fortunes fluctuated from bad to worse, and about a year after the loan was made he died, leaving his affairs in a very tangled condition.

The death notice of the man recalled the circumstances of the loan to Herrmann, and he hunted up the policy, which he had forgotten entirely. He was on the point of placing it in the hands of an attorney for collection—in fact, I believe he had given it to his lawyer—when he heard that the dead man's wife was absolutely penniless and helpless, with several children on her hands. He instructed the attorney to discontinue proceedings, and the policy was transferred to the widow with the explanation that the debt had been cancelled before her husband's death, and that the policy having been misplaced accounted for the delay in its return.—New York Journal.

Three Remarkable Sisters.

The case of Mrs. Emma Hare, who told a magistrate the other day that she had twenty-seven children, was striking enough, but that of three sisters who live in Kingston, Jamaica, is perhaps more remarkable. These sisters had respectively nineteen, twenty and twenty-one children each, but, unlike Mrs. Hare, who lost most of them at an early age, these sisters succeeded in rearing the whole of their families, and on certain occasions all the sixty children, with their parents—sixty-six souls in all—have met in the celebration of some family event.—Tid-Bits.

A Brave Protector.

"I tell you, that Johnson is a brave fellow."

"How so?"

"He was once walking with his fiance in Africa, when a big lion came bounding toward them. John kissed the girl and then ran forward so that the lion might eat him instead of the girl."

"Did the scheme work?"

"Nope, the mighty king of the jungle took one smell of his whisko—tobaccani breath, and then jumped over him and ate the girl."—Downsville Breeze.

Paternal Advice.

"Micky," said Mr. Dolan to his son, "Oi do be afraid ye're gettin' to be a dude."

"I hope not."

"Well, I've noticed yez wearin' yer Sunday clothes the week t'rough, and that ye gave up yer job in the blacksmith shop. Oi want to say, widout harrum till anybody's feelin's, that it'll be doin' yez no hurt to be rollin' up yer sleeves more an' yer trousers less."—Washington Post.

The Loss Was Infinitesimal.

A reporter in describing the murder of a man named Jordin said: "The murderer was evidently in quest of money, but luckily Mr. Jorkin had deposited all his funds in the bank the day before, so that he lost nothing but his life."—Tid-Bits.

SLEEPY BURKE'S DISCOVERY.

A Reformed Safe-Blower's Cynical Opinion of Most Christians.

"Sleepy" Burke, in the role of a "reformed safe-robber," addressed a heterogeneous Chicago gathering at the noon-hour service in Willard Hall. Many of the seats were occupied by the curious from the neighboring office buildings, while among the spectators were half a dozen strong-arm workers and thieves. Mr. Burke sat on the platform, with eyes downcast, and fanned himself with a hymnal, while Mr. Moyle exhorted the wicked to acknowledge and repent of their sins. At the end of an hour Mrs. Lake briefly introduced "Sleepy."

He walked up to the little marble-topped table and, drawing a "cannon" from his pocket, which had done excellent work in many a hold-up, said, as he placed it on the table: "That's what youse call the X rays."

"I heard 'em speaking of a man what was dyin', whose mother was out in California. My mother is in California, an' she don't know where I'm at, alive or dead. Ain't heard from me in four months. I ain't no full-fledged orator, I ain't. I've only been in this business six days. It ain't any wonder, for I've been caged up like a wild beast for most my life.

"There's a lack of Christians in the world. I could see it from me cell doors, as I looked through the bars. There's churches for God, fountains for beasts, but no Christians ready to help a ex-convict who is trying to reform. Since I left prison, a year and a half ago, I've been lookin' for work to earn a honest livin', an' I can't find it, for I tol' th' trut an' said I was an ex-convict. 'Sleepy' Burke is universally known. If he ain't been tryin' to reform there ain't a Christian what's come to me an' said, Burke, there's a place for you.'"

This statement was afterwards modified. One man gave him $5, while another invited him to eat at his restaurant.

In commenting on the lack of societies ready to aid a discharged convict to lead an honest life, Mr. Burke had this to say: "I believe there's a society for the benefit of ex-convicts which was established by an ex-president of the United States, Rutherford B. Hayes. It meets once a year. The last meetin' was accomplished in Philadelphia. That does a whole lot o' good for convicts just comin' from Joilet—don't it?"

Mrs. Lake whispered something to the speaker, who paused and then continued: "She wants me to tell you how I found the Savior. I've prayed for Christ to come for years. Asked Him to come down to my cell, but He didn't. Two months ago there came to me a great light. I realized there was a new life, an' I concluded to bury the hatchet an' smoke th' pipe o' peace with God."

Then "Sleepy" reverted to what he apparently thinks his bete noir by saying:

"There's just as bad as me what wants to lead a honest life. It's impossible for a man to reform in the city of Chicago. Youse ask for aid an' they send youse to the Young Men's Christian Association. It sounds very nice, but they tells youse to go to somebody else. Youse gets discouraged when youse t'rown down like this a dozen of times, an' gets discouraged an' curses that kind o' Christianity."

Then Mr. Burke told of his release from Chester clad in the underclothes of a suicide, with $10 in the pockets of his stained clothes, and his walk to Chicago—features in his reformation familiar to newspaper readers—observing as a corollary: "Christian organizations shun tramps."

"Thieves," he continued, "were ready to take me in when Christians wouldn't have nothin' to do with me. Last night I spoke at the People's Institute, without me supper at that, an' if it hadn't been for a criminal I'd have slept in the alley last night."

Mr. Burke paused for a moment, and looking about the hall for inspiration, spied his "cannon." Picking it up he resumed:

"For years this has been me weapon an' me frien'. Whenever I brought it down the man usually produced; that's more than a Christian ever did. I had a show on State street, an' intended to give me money to a society what 'ed help ex-convicts, instead of meetin' once a year, electin' a President and Secretary, and blackballin' some o' the members. The police closed me up, because I showed how the keepers at Joliet was robbin' the prisoners of more'n $80,000 a year. They was afraid of an investigation."

Was She Sane?

A man whom the circumstances of travel caused to sit in the same seat with a young lady who was unusually friendly said, as he was leaving,—

"I thank you for a very pleasant chat, but I am afraid you would not have been so kind to me had you known I am a married man."

"You haven't any advantage of me," promptly responded the young lady. "I am an escaped lunatic."

THE GREAT INDOOR GAME

WHAT IS GOING ON IN LOCAL BASKET BALL CIRCLES.

Happenings of Interest to Plainfield Enthusiasts—What the Local Teams are Doing—Gossip Among the Players.

There are some good players among the embryo mining engineers who make up the team from the School of Mines of Columbia College. Among them are two old Twenty-third Street Branch players who have been training their colleguee into an excellent team. The team will play here in a few weeks.

There will be no match game in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium this evening as was previously announced. Manager George E. Fuller learned on Friday afternoon that the Summit Y. M. C. A. team would be unable to come this week and so the game was postponed a week. The Summit boys have been practicing steadily and promise that they will give Plainfield a warm rub when the teams finally meet.

Those who witnessed the game that the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team put up against the Ycung Men's Institute team, of New York, in the latter's gymnasium last week, say that the local team played a good game although not up to its best work perhaps. The remarkable score that the Institute boys made against their Plainfield rivals can be accounted for by the wonderful goal throwing done by the home team, particularly Grimm, the Institute centre. Out of the fifteen goals thrown he made seven of them. He was very accurate and hardly missed a shot while the Plainfield boys threw frequently, but failed to score. The best critics in the game who have seen the Plainfield boys play say that their team play is hard to beat but that they are weak in goal throwing. During several of the last games played in the city, the local team has shown a decided improvement in that particular. More practice will surely result in bringing them to an even better standard.

VARICUS SPORTS.

Something new in the line of a contest will be held in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Saturday evening. It will be a club swingiug contest, open to all members of the association, medal winners and all. The Indian club, that useful piece of hand apparatus of the gymnasium, will be used and the the local gymnasts will be asked to show their ability along that line. This conte-t will be followed two weeks later by another dumb-bell contest. The contest Saturday evening will be open to visitors and the privileges of the visitor's gallery will be free to all who care to witness the exhibition of work.

CYCLING COMMENT.

T. H. Cleveley has purchased one of the new Cleveland wheels of the '99 model.

A meeting will be called shortly of the Y. M. C. A. Cyclers to reorganize for the spring. It is probable that the Plainfield association will not be represented this year in the State cycling league.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement, that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at L. W. THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

The famous Washburn's minstrels bigger and brighter than ever, comes to Music Hall for a return visit this season, Friday night. The company has been enlarged since its appearance last December and now numbers fifty well known artists. In speaking of this grand double enterprise Mr. J. M. Wall, the able manager of the organization says: "The first part is new and novel; every song is new, and the end men keep the audience in an uproar through this portion of the performance. The olio consists of such well known black face celebrities as, Kersands and Matt Diamond, Lew Benedict, the Crescent City Quartette, Horner Bros., Weaver and Platt, Knox Bros. and the wonder of the age, Joe Lewis, the world's contortionist. "The Sugar Grinder's Holiday" is a pleasing feature, and some very fine buck and wing dancing is introduced in this part of the programme. The performance closes with the War magniscope showing the very latest pictures of the Spanish-American war, intermingled with grotesque pictures. The performance from beginning to end is one of merit.

* * * * *

Continued success is enjoyed by the Broadway Theatre Opera Company in New York, with their latest comic opera, by de Koven & Smith, "The Three Dragoons." It is spoken of as simply a stunning production, with the most gorgeous costuming and scenery that has been displayed for a great long while. A masterhand has drilled the large chorus in the most animated fashion. Great bunches of pretty girls are continually moving picturesquely about and forming in striking groups, while they warble the catchy music with which de Koven has embellished the piece. Marguerite Lemon, the dainty prima donna of wonderful vocal powers, permeates the opera with her charming personality.

FARMER ORATOR STIRRED UP.

He Waxes Sarcastic Over Senator Kean's Tariff Ideas

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—It is interesting to tariff reformers to note the progress of the more liberal trade policy in the Republican party. In past campaigns we were glibly told by protectionists that we wanted no trade with the outside world, that we could live within ourselves. The silly twaddle that we could make all our own goods and wanted no outside market, has been the burden of the protection song, but who have changed their theme now. They now tell us that we must have the Philippines, Cuba, Porto Rico, and everything else we can clutch, because it opens a market for our goods; and then their products and handiwork are wanted by us.

And now last, but not least, comes our own Hon. John Kean as a tariff reformer, who has written the Secretary of the Treasury for a more liberal construction of the tariff on raw skins, etc., that they may pay less duty. My Honorable friend, this is all wrong; or have you forgotten the teachings of your pa ty and your promises as a protectionist? Now, seriously, John, are you not mixed? Had you not better write the Secretary to make the tariff higher that we may thrive; that you upon your Ursino farm and I on my Cedar brook farm may grow sheep, goat and chamois skins profitably, and be protected against the pauper product and skin game of Europe? The farmers of our commonwealth will look to you for this protection and blessing. Oh! you will protect us, won't you? J. E. Martine.

Fraleigh's Suit Again Adjourned.

Harry W. Fraleigh's suit against the Patrolman's Benefit Association, which was set down for trial last week, was again postponed, this time owing to the illness of an important witness. Fraleigh, who was formerly a policeman, belonged to the association, and when he was discharged from the force claimed $200 from them as due him for being discharged from the force through no fault of his own. The case, when it comes up for trial, promises to prove of interest to all members of the police force.

An Exchange of Property

Through an exchange of residential property with A. D. Thompson, John Ross yesterday afternoon became the owner of the Love building at the corner of North and Watchung avenues. The deal was made by Charles H. Lyman, the real estate agent. It is said that $20,000 was involved in the exchange.

HOW BOROUGH MONEY WAS SPENT LAST YEAR

An Important Statement of Mayor Wilson's Work.

BILLS THAT HAD TO BE MET.

A COUNCILMAN REVIEWS THE FACTS AND FIGURES.

Declares That Mayor Wilson's Administration was an Excellent One and Only Just and Necessary Expenses Were Paid—Several Accounts Subject to Criticism are Fully Explained.

In the gossip anent the borough election there are countless rumors and counter-rumors. Few of them come from official sources, but nevertheless they are discussed with avidity by the excited voters of the municipality. Mayor Wilson's administration and its financial affairs form a prolific subject for gossip and rumor, and much is said and accepted as the truth that really has no foundation. The following will help to put the voters in possession of the real truth:

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Owing to varied and unjust criticisms cast upon Mayor Wilson, as the executive head of the borough financial affairs, I feel constrained to prepare and submit to those whom it may concern a statement of facts to which the careful attention of every voter and taxpayer in the borough is invited.

The past administration is accused of spending more money than any preceding it. That is true. Credit, however, is not given for the manner in which the extra money was procured wherewith needed improvements could be made. Under the usual manner of conducting the business of the borough the expense of the past year would not have exceeded $26,000, but it was deemed wise to attempt certain improvements which have resulted in a real advantage to the borough, and have enabled the Mayor and Council to accomplish much that would have otherwise remained undone.

1. Expert accountants were appointed and revealed a very unsettled state of affairs, but the borough has received monies of which, unless such an examination had taken place, no one would have known the existence.

2. Council headquarters were removed to a new location and rooms properly fitted for the public and the Mayor and the Council.

3. A collector of delinquent taxes was appointed.

4. The Council was called upon to pay the Commissioners' fees in the Watchung avenue opening, which should have been paid during the year 1897, and to defend an action brought against the borough to show cause why the assessment for benefits from the opening of said avenue should be approved. This action required considerable expense which it was absolutely impossible to avoid.

Also the sum of $650 09 was paid to Messrs. Spencer and Cooley for salaries and expenses for which they should have presented a bill in 1897. (Under existing rules relative to payment of salaries all bills must be presented every three months which thus relieves one administration of a charge due another.)

Your special attention is called to the following. There is much criticism relative to the proposals or amount asked for by taxation during the coming year as shown in the annual statement. The Mayor and Council ask for the sum of $20,400 to be raised by taxation. Few people understand this matter, assuming that the $20,400 asked for is all that is needed to maintain the borough. Such is not the case.

After carefully approximating the receipts from all other sources the Mayor and Council ask for the balance only by taxation. See schedule.

It will be unnecessary unless unforseen matters arise to expend more than $26,500 during the year 1899 in order to maintain the Borough at the same standard as now exists. The tax rate so far as the Borough is concerned should not be increased. The Mayor and Council are not responsible for the county and school taxes to be raised, the rates for which have a tendency to advance each year.

The Borough rate last year was three cents less on $100 than the year before and should not be increased this year unless the new Mayor and Council to be elected imposes burdens that to the past Mayor and Council seemed unnecessary.

To the present Mayor much credit is due for the manner in which he has guarded the interests of the Borough. No matter who the next Mayor shall

TOO COLD IN COURT FOR THE LAWYER AND JUDGE.

ONLY A TEN MINUTE SESSION HELD.

Failure of Heating Apparatus Causes Much Discomfort Around County Buildings.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 9.—Owing to an accident to the big boiler that heats the Union Court House and jail in Elizabeth, together with the advent of a cold wave, there was much discomfort yesterday for those employed in the County Clerk's, Sheriff's and Surrogate's offices, together with the inmates of the County Jail. The lawyers who came to the court house had to wear their overcoats.

There was a lively scurrying for gas stoves and all the gas and electric lights in the building were kept burning full blast all day to try to take the chill out of the air. The large court room was like a refrigerator, and the weekly session of court had to be cut very short, as every one wanted to get out. Some of the copyists in the building had to go home, as no heat could be got in their workrooms. To make matters worse, the workmen repairing the boiler found another break in the afternoon, which it will take until Saturday or longer to repair.

The fifty prisoners in the Union County Jail shivered in their cells last night, the temperature being twenty-five degrees lower than usual.

A SHORT TERM IN JAIL.

JOHN TEEPLE ARRAIGNED ON THE CHARGE OF EMBEZZLEMENT.

He Was Formerly Employed by P. M. French, Who Preferred the Charge—Clemency Plea by Prisoner's Counsel.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, March 9—John Teeple, of Plainfield, who was arrested sometime ago on the charge of embezzlement, preferred by P. M. French, of Somerset street, that city, was arraigned in the Union county court yesterday before Judge Vail. There was a conference between the lawyers and Prosecutor English over the case before the prisoner was arraigned.

Statement was made by former Judge W. A. Coddington, who represented the complainant, that Teeple had made restitution, and that it was evident that he had offended through ignorance rather than with criminal intent. The complainant did not desire to press the charge.

Lawyer Swackhamer, counsel for the prisoner, also made a plea for leniency. Prosecutor English said that restitution in part had been made, but the State did not think the prisoner should wholly escape punishment.

Judge Vail sentenced Teeple to the county jail for thirty days.

SCHOOL CHILDREN ARE BEING VACCINATED FREE.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST SMALL POX.

Pupils at the Stillman and Whittier Building Undergoing Treatment Today

While small pox has not made its appearance in this section at present, the fact that it has prevailed in the schools in several of the neighboring states caused the Board of Education to take steps providing for the vaccinating of the local school children. This morning the work of vaccinating them was begun. Dr. Murray treated the pupils at the Stillman school and Dr. Tomlinson at the Whittier building. Each child that was to be vaccinated brought a card signed by a parent.

There are a number that were revaccinated, the first vaccination having been more than seven years ago. Next week the Franklin and Washington schools will be visited. The points used are ordered fresh from the labratory a day or two before they are used and no point is used for more than one child. The teachers will all be vaccinated the last of the term.

Debating Society No More.

The Plainfield Law Debating Society is no more, having disbanded a few days ago. Lack of interest in the society is the cause of its sudden end. Only law students were taken into membership at first, but finally several outsiders got in and tried to make a social club of the society. This failed because the young ladies could not be induced to join, and finally it was decided to disband.

Easter Sunday comes this year on April 2d, and the services in the several churches will excel those given in previous years. Rehearsals are now being held by the various choirs, and special efforts are being made by the choirs in the Catholic churches.

RUNAWAY CARS CRASH INTO A LOCOMOTIVE.

Sleeping Trainman in Caboose Instantly Killed.

COAL TRAIN BROKE IN TWO.

REAR SECTION RAN BACKWARD INTO ANOTHER COAL TRAIN.

The Crash Came Near the Eight Row on East Bound Freight Track of Jersey Central Railroad Last Night, Just Before Midnight—Ten Cars Broke Loose on Grade—Jacob Adams, Flagman, Killed.

A loaded coal train on the Jersey Central Railroad broke in two on the grade near Clinton avenue, last night, just before midnight. The rear section ran backward carrying death to the sleeping trainman in the caboose and destruction to itself. Just before reaching Dunellen, it crashed into the approaching locomotive of another coal train. One life was lost and four cars and the caboose were scattered about the tracks, blocking the east bound tracks for two hours.

A long coal train, composed of both gondolas and coal jimmies, was bound from Easton to Jersey City. It was drawn by the Jersey Central locomotive No 314. There is a long grade through Dunellen and on toward Grant avenue. At some point, the train broke in two, some ten cars forming the rear section.

There was no brakeman on the runaways which speedily came to a stop. Then they began to run backward, the grade being sufficient to start them. The crew on the forward part did not discover the break until too late. Meanwhile the runaways began to gather greater impetus.

In the caboose No. 381, was Jacob Adams, of Jersey City, the flagman of the train. It is supposed that he was asleep. At any rate he apparently knew nothing of the break.

Another coal train, drawn by locomotive No. 410, was following in the next block. The engineer saw the lights on the approaching caboose but supposed that the train in front had stopped. He slowed down intending to stop. Then he discovered that the caboose was approaching.

There was not sufficient time in which to bring the heavy train to a standstill. Right opposite the Eight Row, half a mile east of Dunellen, the runaway cars crashed into the locomotive. The caboose was ground into kindling wood and its solitary occupant instantly killed. Two of the large coal gondolas and two of the little jimmies were totally wrecked and heaped over the two east-bound tracks. The coal was scattered all about. Several other of the cars in the runaway section were derailed.

The crew of locomotive No. 410 escaped serious injury. The front of the locomotive was dented and scratched and part of the woodwork torn off. The engine still remained on the track, however.

Patrolman Saffron notified Chief Grant of the wreck and the latter gave permission to the railroad men to remove the body of Adams to Casey's morgue. The body was badly crushed. Adams was evidently instantly killed. It will never be known whether he made any attempt to escape the danger or whether he was asleep.

A wrecking train was telegraphed for and came from Elizabethport. In two hours the tracks were cleared for traffic. The four cars were so badly wrecked that the trucks were the only parts worth saving. The wreckage was burned. Some empty cars were sent to the scene of the wreck this morning and the scattered coal collected and sent away.

County Physician Westcott viewed the body this morning and granted a burial permit. The face of the dead man was badly disfigured. Dr. Westcott said that death was caused instantly by fracture of the skull.

The remains of Adams were sent to Jersey City where the funeral will be held. Adams leaves a widow and several children. He was forty five years old.

Death of Mrs. Driscoll.

Mrs. Mary Driscoll, aged thirty-one years, a well-known resident of this city, died last evening. The deceased had been ill for a long time and her death was not wholly unexpected. She resided at 660 South Second street. The notice of the funeral will be given in tomorrow's paper.

PARTY FENCES DOWN IN TOWNSHIP ELECTION

Different Factions Will Meet at Citizen's Primary.

ONLY ONE TICKET PROBABLE

SCOTCH PLAINS PEOPLE WANT BETTER ROADS HEREAFTER.

Have Candidate For Township Committee Nomination to Push Their Interests—Citizen's Primary to be Held at Washingtonville Tonight—Ticket Then Selected Will Meet With no Opposition.

The politicians of North Plainfield township, Republicans and Democrats, have decided to fight out their local issues this spring at the primary instead of at the ballot box. The neutral ground of the "Citizens'" primary has been chosen for the meeting. Party affiliations have been scattered to the winds for the occasion and G. O. P. men, Free Traders and Mugwumps are fraternizing in truly delightful fashion.

This evening, the Citizens' primary will be held at Will Demler's feed store at Washingtonville. Then the ticket for the township election, March 14th, will be nominated. It will, unless there is some expected bolt from the results of the caucus, be the only ticket on the field.

In the fight for the nomination for township committeeman, it will be largely a question of policy. The residents near Scotch Plains complain about the condition of the roads in their vicinity. They want representation on the committee so that their interests may be looked after. Benjamin Clark, of Scotch Plains, is their candidate, and is likely to defeat William H. Smith, of Washingtonville, who is a candidate for a renomination.

There are three men after the nomination for assessor, H. P. Voorhees, of Greenbrook, Steven Beeching, of Washingtonville, and Al Johnson, of Washingtonville. Will Demler seems a probable candidate for renomination for township clerk, as against William H. Morris, of Greenbrook.

Constable George Steward, of Washingtonville, and Harry N. Acker, of the same place, are prominent for the office of constable. For justice of the peace Dan VanOrden, of Washingtonville, is the most prominent man mentioned for the nomination.

The only other office to be filled is that of surveyor of the highways for which there are several candidates.

There will be a big attendance at the meeting tonight and a lively time is expected.

ROBERT C RAND ASSIGNS

STATIONERY BUSINESS NOW IN THE HANDS OF A. B. THORN.

The Assets are $2,140 and the Liabilities $8,195.45—His Father Has Claims to the Amount of $6,213.52 for Advances

Robert C. Rand, who since 1894 has been conducting a stationery store on West Front street, made an assignment yesterday to A. B. Thorn, of Somerset street, and today the assignee is taking an inventory of the stock. Lawyer Winfield S. Angleman represents the assignee.

The assets amount to $2,140 and the liabilities $8,195.45. Of the latter amount $6,213 52 is in claims which A. W. Rand, father of Robert C. Rand, holds against the son, which makes the merchandise liabilities about equal. Yesterday in the Union county court Judge Vail made an order giving all creditors until April 17th to exhibit their claims to the assignee.

Mr Rand took the business, as stated, in 1894, and succeeded his father, who conducted a very successful business. It is the intention of Mr. Rand to take a trip for his health and to give up business temporarily

War Waged on Policy

Prosecutor Voorhees has declared war against the policy dealers in New Brunswick, and with the assistance of the local police and several detectives, conducted an organized raid Monday night.

Louis Haas, who is charged with being the messenger who brought the results of the drawings from New York, was arrested as he stepped from a New York train. Policy slips were found on him. Joseph Carroll, Daniel Maloney and Thomas Williams were also taken in custody. In each case policy slips were confiscated

Complaints against the men were made by Theodore B. Booream, who is the law partner of Prosecutor Voorhees. All of the accused gave bail for the Grand Jury.

GOVERNOR SIGNS LAWS OF LOCAL IMPORTANCE

Assemblyman Murray Introduces Amendment to Election Laws.

PROBE FOR COAL COMBINE.

THE LEGISLATURE DECIDES THAT AN INQUIRY IS PROPER.

If There is No Adequate Law for Protection of the People From the Combination of Capital a Special Bill Will be Drawn to Cover the Situation—Bill Authorizing the District Courts Also.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Trenton, March 9.—Governor Voorhees yesterday signed two laws which were introduced in the Legislature by Assemblyman Murray. One was relative to the pay of election officers, which had the honor of being the first measure introduced in the Assembly. The other was Assemblyman Murray's measure providing for additional procedure regulating the construction of sidewalks and payment therefor.

Mr. Murray also introduced a bill seeking to amend the election law. It requires several county boards to sit on Thursday next preceding the day of general election from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. and on Saturday preceding day of general election from 1 to 9 p. m.

Several bills of local importance in various parts of the State were passed by each branch. Assemblyman Abbett offered a resolution prompted by the rumor that a combination of all the important coal mining companies and coal carrying railroads in this country was about to be formed. The resolution requires the Attorney General of the State to forward at once to the House a statement of the law of New Jersey bearing on the subject of such a combination, together with his opinion in regard to the possibility of enforcing such law. The resolutions provide that if in the opinion of the Attorney General no adequate law exists to stop such a combination, he at once prepare a bill which will have that effect and provide for the forfeit of the charters and prevent any railroad or corporation attempting to enter into such a combination. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

In a caucus held by the Republican members of the House, Senate bill No 21, which provides for the operation of more than one bar on picnic grounds under a single license, came up for consideration. The measure was opposed by the North Jersey members because bars are run in picnic grounds under the present law without the expense of $100 for each bar provided in the bill. The members concluded that it would not be wise to make the bill a caucus measure because of the danger of creating an unfriendly feeling against the party among the Germans in the counties of Essex and Hudson. The bill will probably be reported to the House without recommendation.

The Senate passed the House bill prohibiting the removal of police officers in cities for political reasons.

Senator Johnson, of Bergen, introduced a bill to pay $130 000 worth of bills contracted by the State in fitting out the New Jersey troops for the recent war. The State has a claim filed with the Secretary of War for the same amount.

Senator Francis introduced a bill allowing District Courts in all cities where the Common Council decides such a court is necessary.

A TRIPLE-DECK PRESS.

Potter Company Ships One of Its Machines to the Minneapolis Tribune.

Yesterday the Potter Press Company shipped a triple-deck press to Minneapolis, Minn., for the Tribune. The press will be erected under the direction of Thomas Buckley, one of the company's expert workmen. Some time ago the Tribune building was destroyed by fire, badly damaging their old press. David E. Titsworth was able to place one of the Potter presses in the office. Mr. Titsworth is at present in Minneapolis, but will return in a short time. This is the first triple-deck press built by the Potter company, and considerable interest will be manifested in its work.

JUST ONE VOTE WOULD HAVE LET ROESEL LIVE.

THE COURT NEARLY SAVED HIM.

Everything in Readiness For the Hanging—Condemned Man Still Keeps Cool.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 9—James VanHise, the hangman, yesterday erected the gallows on which Louis G. Roesel, the youthful muderer of James O. Pitts, a farmer, of Summit, will be executed tomorrow morning in the corridor of the Union county jail in Elizabeth.

The prisoners who occupy cells fronting the corridor will be removed early in the morning to a tier of cells in the rear so that they cannot witness the execution. Roesel has never lost his self-composure and laughed and joked yesterday with the Sheriff when the latter called on him. He says that he knows now that he has got to die and will make the best of it. His coolness is the marvel of every one who comes in contact with him. He slept most of yesterday and eats his meals with a fairly good appetite.

It is now known that one vote in the Court of Pardons would have saved him from the scaffold. The court consists of eight members, and it is said that Governor Voorhees, Chancellor McGill and two others voted to commute the sentence to imprisonment for life. This made the full vote a tie and the motion to commute was therefore lost.

The congregation of the Seventh-Day Baptist church was entertained in the church parlors last evening with a sociable given by the Ladies' Society for Christian Work of the church. Spring being near at hand the programme was of an appropriate character. It included the following: Duet, "Blue Bird," George and Beulah Rogers; recitation, "Crocus," George Rogers, Albert Morris, Milton St. John, Boardman Mosher and Raymond Randolph; recitation, "Spring Flowers," Ethel Rogers, Helen Rogers, Grace Weeks, Queena Force and Eva Rogers; recitation, "Song of Spring," Bessie Dunham; chorus of young people, "Daffadondilly."

The programme was followed by refreshments and a social hour. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. George H. Babcock, chairman, Mrs. William H. Rogers, Mrs. William Maxson and Miss Mira Clark.

HOT WEATHER NOT TO STOP CHURCH SERVICES.

EVENING MEETINGS IN AUGUST.

Park Avenue Baptists Vote Down Motion to Close Their Church Part of the Time.

At a short business meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist church last night, a vote was taken as to whether services should be held Sunday evenings during the month of August. The motion was carried by a vote of 16 to 11, but as it was evident that nearly one-half of the people did not favor such a change, the motion was reconsidered and laid on the table.

During July and August the pastor, Rev J. W. Richardson, always takes his vacation and the pulpit is occupied by supplies. During August the attendance at the evening services is always so slim that it was thought advisable by the deacons to omit the services during that month if it was the wish of the people, but as there was so much opposition the change will not be made.

A Few New Voters.

Last Tuesday being registry day in the borough a few names were added and erased from the lists. Owing to the very inclement weather the Board of Registry had little to do. In the first district 24 names were added and 12 were erased. In the second district 22 names were added and 6 were erased. In the first district the total number registered is 677 and in the second district 562.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS DEFEATED MONTCLAIR

Exciting Basket Ball Game With Montclair High School.

TEAM PLAY WON GAME.

PLAINFIELD GIRLS VICTORIOUS BY SCORE OF 8 TO 4.

Match Was Played in Gymnasium of Montclair High School Yesterday Afternoon—Home Team Played a Rougher Game Than Visitors—Score Stood 6 to 4 in Favor of Plainfield in First Half.

Five young women from the Plainfield High School won a signal victory in the gymnasium of the Montclair High School yesterday afternoon, by defeating the basket ball team from the Montclair School by a score of 8 to 4. It was the first game in which the local High School girls have encountered any of the rival teams from the neighboring schools and the excellent showing they made promises to put the Plainfield team into prominence in the basket ball world.

After many postponements and discouragements, the Plainfield High School girls reached Montclair yesterday afternoon. Owing to delays en route, the game was not begun until four o'clock.

The Montclair girls played a rougher game than their opponents but they lacked the team play in which the Plainfield team had been so carefully drilled. The first half was very close, the visitors only leading by a score of 6 to 4. At goal throwing both sides were somewhat erratic.

In the second half both sides settled down for hard work. The visitors recovered their nerve and played better, preventing their oppenents from scoring at all. Montclair also improved and fought handily. One goal was scored for Plainfield however.

TROLLEY'S ONWARD PROGRESS.

Monmouth Company's Franchise to Run to Camden County Line.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Mount Holly, March 9—There was a see-saw time in the Burlington County Board of Freeholders Tuesday over the passage of the ordinance giving the Monmouth Traction Company the right to use the roads, culverts and bridges of the county free of charge.

The Traction Company agrees to pay one-half of the expense of widening the county bridges in order to admit of the laying of trolley tracks. As the county will have to pay the other half it will cost the taxpayers a good many thousand dollars for bridge work. This called forth a protest from some of the members, especially as the Traction Company had withdrawn its previous offer of a percentage of the gross receipts.

A number of people thought the trolley line should be built at all hazards, and a majority of the board seemed to feel the same way, as the ordinance was passed by a vote of 15 to 8. There was an investigation of the charge that the members had been influenced by the receipt of free passes.

BUILDING FOR EXEMPTS.

Committee is Looking Around, but Have Done Nothing Definite.

Some time ago the members of the Exempt Firemen's Association decided to secure a building of their own, either to buy, build or arrange for some place suitable for the association's needs. President Auguste Saltzman appointed as a committee to take charge of the matter Messrs. Daniel W. Littell, Charles J. Fisk, T. O. Doane, William A. Woodruff and Eugene M. Laing. This committee, as yet, has done absolutely nothing in the matter, but are looking about to see what can be done on the the most advantageous terms. It will be some time yet before the committee will report, but when they do it will be complete in every particular.

YES OR NO.

Plainfield People Are Respectfully Asked To Answer These Questions.

Is there anything in the evidence of one's senses?

Can the reader dispute and then disprove local evidence?

Can reliance be placed upon statements from people we know?

Are the opinions of residents of Plainfield of any greater moment than opinions held by residents of Maine or Michigan?

Would you sooner believe people living in those states than those in your own city?

Answer these questions honestly after you have quietly read the following:

Mr. F. O. Smith of 686 West Front street, contractor for painting, etc., says: "For some time I had symptoms of kidney trouble, and despite all my endeavors to get rid of it, I never was successful until I obtained a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at L. W. Randolph's drug store. There was a distressing pain across the small of my back which clung to me all the time. When I got seated at times if I moved a sharp pain struck me in the back and loins and almost made me exclaim. Any change in the weather if I caught the least cold always aggravated the trouble and cause me to suffer severely. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommened to me by one of my employes who had been cured of a long standing case of kidney complaint by their use. I commenced the treatment and derived benefit from it immediately, and before I had finished the first box I was cured.

MRS. ANGELL TESTIFIES

She Was the Alleged Mrs. Gould in the Blackmail Scheme.

SHE NEVER SAW GOULD.

The Catspaw in the Hands of Those Who Tried to Extort Money from the Gould Heirs on the Witness Stand—She Says That She Never Told Mrs. Cody That She Married Jay Gould.

Albany, N. Y., March 9.—The star witness in the second trial of Mrs. Margaret E. Cody, the alleged blackmailer of Miss Helen M. Gould and George J. Gould, appeared in court yesterday. She was Mrs. Angell, the pretended wife of Jay Gould, of Rouse's Point, N. Y. Mrs. Angell testified as follows:

"What is your name?" asked Mr. Dyer.

"Mary Angell."

"Do you know the defendant?"

"I saw her."

"Do you remember the first conversation you had?"

"She asked me if I ever was married to Mr. Gould. I told her I never was married to Mr. Gould. She came to the house and wanted to know if I was Mrs. Angell. 'I said 'Yes.' I told her that my first husband was a Frenchman, De Rousseau. 'Let that name be buried; never let it pass your lips,' said she. She said that I had been married to Mr. Gould. I said that I had not. Then she asked me if I had a daughter in the West. I said I had. She said that she was worth millions. 'That's news to me,' said I. 'The man I married was a poor man—a carpenter.'"

"Did you ever tell Mrs. Cody that you married Jay Gould?" asked Mr. Dyer.

"No, sir. I did not."

"Who told you that you were married to Jay Gould?"

"Mrs. Cody did."

Cross examined by Mr. Dugan, Mrs. Angell said she had never seen Jay Gould.

"Now, just try to refresh your memory," said Mr. Dugan. "Don't you remember when a man came to your house when you were about 14 years old and asked for a cup of water?"

"That wasn't Mr. Gould."

"Your father said it was. Now, what road was being built about five miles from your house that this surveyor was working on?"

"The Ogdensburg, I am told."

"How long had you known this man that stopped to get a drink?"

"I never saw him before."

"Didn't you tell your daughter in 1895 that she was the eldest child of Jay Gould?"

"No, sir."

"Now we will go back to the time that this fellow called to get a drink. One was a big man, De Rousseau, and the other a young boy. He was dark, not as fair as you were." (Laughter.)

"Yes. I think he was."

"Now, this child of yours—you bound it out in Canada to a weaver named Morton when it was two years old?"

"Yes, sir."

Witness here said that she understood that her daughter now lived at Rock Springs. She saw her about five years ago at Rouse's Point. She went West about two years after her child was born.

"Now you always lived in Canada before you went West, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"Did De Rousseau go West with you?"

"No, sir."

"He was pretty old, wasn't he, about eighty?"

"Yes, sir."

"Now, Mrs. Angell, you don't mean to tell me that you and this De Rousseau were married, do you?"

"Yes, sir. We were married at the parsonage by Mr. Leighton. There were present the minister's wife and his hired girl, Mary, they called her."

"Did you get a certificate?"

"Yes, sir."

"Where did you go after the wedding?"

"Back to Mr. De Rousseau's house."

"Your child wasn't born until after you went home, was it?"

"No, sir."

"Now, how long after you got the marriage certificate did you go home? You lived in the Moore family a little while, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Now, when you went home, what happened?"

"My father didn't like the marriage and burned up the certificate."

"Your husband left you before you went home, didn't he?"

"No, sir. He took me home and left me there because he could not support me."

The witness here stated that her mother and sisters and brother were alive at the time.

"Were any of them present when you were married?"

"No, sir."

They were at home when you went home, weren't they?"

"Yes, sir."

"How many children have you ever had?"

Mr. Dugan then questioned Mrs. Angell about the adoption papers. She did not remember whether she signed them Sarah or some other name.

"Sometimes I am called Sarah, sometimes Mary and sometimes Mary Melissa. I have been Mary for forty years," she said.

"How old are you?"

"About 52 or 53."

"Now, can't you state it exactly? Don't you remember when you were born?" (Laughter.)

She reiterated the statement that she was 52 or 53, and said that she was married when about 15 and baptised when about 17 years old.

"You were baptised at Tiffin, O., after you went West, weren't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Don't you remember writing to Mrs. Cody asking her to write to Parker to find out what he had done in the case?"

"I can't write."

A letter dated October 29, 1895, written in green ink, was shown Mrs. Angell. She said she could not have written it because she always "wrote" with black ink.

"Did you ever see Mr. Everest?"

"I don't know."

Mr. Everest stood up. Mrs. Angell said she had seen him at her house. He is the district attorney of Clinton county.

A representative of the New York county clerk's office here handed Mr. Dugan a package of papers.

"Now, Mrs. Angell, don't you remember signing an affidavit before Mr. Everest on May 20, 1896? He says you did."

"I don't remember."

In the affidavit referred to Mrs. Angell had sworn that she was Jay Gould's wife.

"Did you make such a statement?"

"No, sir."

"Do you remember writing in 1897 to your daughter: 'You are Jay Gould's daughter. Excuse writing. It is a little girl that does this?'"

"No, sir. I never wrote that."

SENATOR QUAY'S CONTEST.

His Adherents Say the Senatorial Deadlock Will Not Be Broken This Session.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 9.—Senator Quay's departure for Florida is followed by the announcement of Senator Grady and other prominent Quay men that the deadlock will continue to the end of the session, April 20, when the contest will be carried to the people, are construed here to mean that the fight is one to the finish.

It has been apparent for several days that there is no immediate hope of a break in the deadlock, but several of the anti-Quay leaders do not concur in the view expressed by Senator Grady. It is probable that the anti-Quay leaders will now do everything possible to cause o disintegration of the Quay forces.

They hope in this way to reduce the Quay vote so much that there will be no basis for an appeal to the people.

Stulb and Scott of Philadelphia and others have been voting for Quay while privately protesting, and they are likely to change at any time.

Senator Quay, before leaving Washington for Florida, wired his supporters in the legislature as follows:

"'I leave for the South to-day for a rest of ten days. Upon my return I will maining in close touch with them until the end of the senatorial contest, which I believe will terminate successfully. Before leaving I cannot refrain from thanking you and your colleagues for the magnificent support I have received for the past two months."

The bribery investigation will play an important part in the final settlement of the deadlock. As an outgrowth of the factional fighting the Republican party will go into the campaign for state treasurer this year with factional lines closely drawn.

It is said that General David M. Gregg of Reading, former auditor general, will be the Quay candidate for state treasurer. He is a distinguished veteran of the civil war, and his record as auditor of the state was unimpeachable. The anti-Quay candidate, should he fail to be elected United States senator, will be Colonel George F. Huff of Westmoreland.

The only thing out of the ordinary in yesterday's voting was a speech by Captain John S. Bare of Huntingdon, who protested against the farce of voting day after day without result. He said:

"I believe it to be my duty to my constituents and to my party to cast my vote to-day as I have regularly done during this long contest. But, sir, I protest to this joint meeting that it is the duty of the leaders of all the various Republican factions to make an honest effort to stop the farce that has been enacted here for the past two months. It were better to sacrifice some of our principles and friends now than to sacrifice principles, friends and party in the future. Let us elect a Republican by Republican votes."

Mr. Spatz of Berks, a Democrat, who has been suspected of Quay tendencies, arose when his name was called and said:

"I have been accused of a purpose to change my vote from Jenks, but I will fool the public once more by voting for Jenks."

The ballot was as follows: Quay 105, Jenks 80, Dalzell 17, Irvin 5, Stewart 8, Tubbs 2, Huff 9, Stone 4, Rice 2, Grow 3, Smith 1, Widener 3, Riter 2. Total, 242. Necessary to election, 122.

A FIGHT WITH BURGLARS.

One of a Gang Robbing the Depot at Peckville, Pa., Badly Wounded

Scranton, Pa., March 9.—Five burglars entered the Delaware & Hudson depot at Peckville about two o'clock Wednesday morning. They forced their way through a window. In doing so they set an alarm going in the house of Agent Broad, a quarter of a mile away. The agent called Chief of Police Craig and Theodore Dickman to his assistance, and they started for the station. As they drew near the burglars opened fire on them, but without effect.

The fire was returned and one of the burglars fell. The others managed to get away in a wagon they had conveniently near, though it is believed from blood marks in the snow that one of those who escaped was wounded.

The burglar who was shot was handed over to Detective Crippen, who brought him to a hospital here on a special locomotive. He said his name was Shannon and that his home was in Shamokin.

His wound is near the heart. He soon lapsed into unconsciousness without having betrayed his companions.

Kipling Still Improving.

New York, March 9.—The quietest night in the apartments of the Kipling family in the Hotel Grenoble since the illness of the author was that of Tuesday night. From midnight to seven o'clock in the morning there was no stir of any kind in their rooms.

Mr. Doubleday visited the Kipling apartments and he said later that Mr. Kipling had passed a comfortable and restful night and that he was then sleeping. His sleep was a long one he said.

Mr. Kipling is now taking beef tea only, but his diet scale will be increased as fast as his condition will admit.

Mr. Doubleday also announced that the child Elsie had enjoyed a comfortable night.

A BATTLE AT MANILA

Filipinos Very Aggressive at San Pedro Macati.

THE WEATHER OPPRESSIVE

Battalion of the 23d Infantry Landed at Cebu—American Troops Warmly Received by Inhabitants of Negros—Cable from There to Iloilo Opened—Skirmishing About Iloilo.

Washington, D. C., March 9.—Although no reports have been received at the war department up to this morning, in regard to a battle at Manila, Adjutant General Corbin said that from dispatches already received from General Otis he judged that the general attack against the rebels was taking place and that reports would be received as soon as General Otis had time to prepare them.

Manila, March 9.—Brigadier General Hale has withdrawn his lines to the position they occupied prior to yesterday's fighting, and the insurgents followed, reoccupying their lost ground. General Wheaton estimates that there are fifteen hundred rebels on his front.

Captain Linck of the First Idaho infantry captured nineteen insurgent sharpshooters without loss to his command. The sharpshooters laid down their arms without firing.

Colonel Potter has returned from Cebu. He reports that Major Goodale landed a battalion of the Twenty-third infantry without opposition on March 3d.

Colonel Smith's battalion of California volunteers were received with enthusiastic greetings by the inhabitants of Bacolod, the capital of Negros island. An hour after the landing at Bacolod, Captain Tilly of the Signal Corps opened the cable to Iloilo, exchanging greetings with General Miller.

Skirmishing continues around Iloilo.

The Filipino insurgents are busily preparing their defences at various points, and are most aggressive near San Pedro Macati, where their sharpshooters maintain a persistant annoyance.

Scott's Battery, on the hill top, is the center of fire from both sides of the river.

Further trouble is probable in the vicinity of the water works when the rebels rally, but it would be almost an impossibility for them to interfere with the water supply, owing to the strength of the American position.

The temperature yesterday at three o'clock was 87 degrees, but the cloudy air was like steam and the troops were greatly inconvenienced on the line, in spite of the temporary shade afforded by matting and bamboos wherever feasible. There were fewer prostrations, however, from the heat.

Our troops are not compelled to remain in the open country to the same extent as the day before, when they were engaged in clearing the jungle. The rebels seldom appear in the open, except in the cool of the morning and in the evening. Our soldiers will probably feel the heat less when they are on the move.

Arms of Reinforcing Troops

Washington, D. C., March 9.—A fact in connection with the regulars who are now reinforcing General Otis in the Philippines that is giving considerable satisfaction to the war department is that they are all armed with the "calibre 30" rifle, commonly known as the Krag-Jorgensen. There has been more or less uneasiness over the fact that the volunteers on the firing line around Manila were at a decided disadvantage against the natives, owing to the fact that the Filipino sharpshooters, armed with Mausers, could lie out of range of the Springfields, with which our volunteers were armed, and pot them to an extent that was limited only by the bad marksmanship of the natives.

This was not only the source of a good many casualties among our men, but had a bad moral effect on them, since it was very trying to be continually under fire from an enemy who kept out of range.

With the arrival of the regulars this situation will be completely changed. The reinforcements all have the calibre 30 rifle, which is practically just as good a gun as the Mauser, while, in addition, many of our regular troops are sharpshooters.

This is largely owing to the fact that for years the target ammunition allowance in our small army has been about six dollars per man per annum, an amount no European nation has thought of spending.

Second Offer to Barrows.

Washington, D. C., March 9.—Ex-Representative S. J. Barrows of Massachusetts, whose nomination as librarian of Congress failed of confirmation by the Senate, has again received a tender of the place as a recess appointment.

Mr. Barrows presented a letter to the president declining the honor and stating:

feel that it would be impossible for me to meet your expectations, or to do justice to your wise and enlightened policy concerning the library without the hearty support which the Senate, by its failure to act on my previous nomination, has not given."

Swindler Bidwell Dead.

Butte, Mont., March 9.—Austin Bidwell of Hartford, who, with his brother George, swindled the Bank of England out of $2,500,000 by forging its notes, died here last night of the grip.

Bidwell and his brother came here about two weeks ago to engage in mining.

The first swindle of the Bank of England was accomplished in 1873 by the Bidwells and two companions. After getting $2,500,000, they decided to get ten times that amount and then compromise with the bank. They failed and were captured.

Austin Bidwell was caught by the officers of the law in Cuba, and George Bidwell was arrested in France. Both received life sentences, but after twenty years they were released.

They returned to Hartford, where they were born, and Austin Bidwell later wrote a book describing his experiences.

A gentleman employed in the wholesale drug trade, and living on Franklin Avenue in Brooklyn, has been for years in a very discouraging state of mind. "I have been subject to biliousness and indigestion for years past," he says, "and have tried many medicines with no permanent results. I was almost discouraged. I happened to read in a circular the composition of Ripans Tabules, and knew at once the combination was excellent. Being in the wholesale drug trade, I obtained a package of Tabules at the store, and was very much surprised at the relief I obtained. I always carry a small bottle with me now, and would not think of being without them, though I feel so much improved that I don't need one oftener than once in six weeks. I can not say too much for Ripans Tabules."

A new style packet containing THE RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (10 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (five tabules) will be sent for five cents.

COST OF MR. DINGLEY'S FUNERAL

Washington, D. C., March 9.—The bill sent in for the expenses incurred in the funeral of the late Representative Nelson Dingley of Maine afford Clerk McDowell of the House of Representatives ground for some observations regarding the "canny" disposition of New England folk. The total cost of the funeral will be about $4,500.

"Those New Englanders are frugal folk," commented Mr. McDowell. "Why the undertaker at Lewiston wanted to charge five hundred dollars for his services. I guess he won't get it. There was an item of seventy-five dollars for a steel case, in which the casket was to be placed while it rested within the vault at the cemetery. Then there was another item. I think it was for seventy-five dollars for a slate case, in which the casket was to be placed at the beginning of spring, and the undertaker wanted to charge ninety dollars for the catafalque on which the casket rested while the remains of Mr. Dingley were lying in state at Lewiston. He wanted pay for thirty-six carriages. Then the choir that sang at the house wanted to charge us eight dollars a song. The total bill for the 'four trained singers,' as they were styled, and for the director was $60."

One of the big items for the state funeral given Mr. Dingley was the special train of four cars. That cost the House $2,340, and Clerk McDowell has the vouchers for that amount of money disbursed.

The House pays for every conceivable item in connection with burial trips, even to ten cent cigars and liquid refreshments. These were excluded on the trip to Maine with Mr. Dingley's body.

Representative Boutelle, out of respect to Mr. Dingley's memory and his long abstinence from the use of intoxicants, issued orders that there should be nothing of the kind on the funeral train. But even that order did not prevail.

A large purchase of whiskey was made at Portsmouth, N. H., just before crossing the line into Maine, where theoretically it is impossible to purchase such stimulants. All this was done by direction of a prominent statesman, whose name need not be mentioned. He also insisted on champagne during a portion of the trip and that was furnished.

Vouchers that certify payment for it are now part of the papers of the clerk's office.

REWARDS FOR GALLANTRY.

Nominations to be Renewed at the Next Session of the Senate.

Washington, D. C., March 9.—All of the nominations of army officers for brevet commissions on account of gallantry during the Cuban, Porto Rican and Philippine campaigns failed of action on the part of the Senate.

It is believed at the war department that this resulted from lack of time and not from any intention on the part of any considerable number of senators to deny this purely honorary recognition of the courage of our soldiers. Altogether there were six hundred and twenty-five of these nominations. The number appeared to be unreasonably large to persons who had not looked into the conditions, but each case was made the subject of a critical examination by a special board, which has vouched for their merits.

One of the members of the board declared that the fact that the board found so many soldiers worthy of reward for gallantry should be a matter of pride for the American people rather than a cause for criticism, for it went to demonstrate that the army was approaching very near that ideal state when every man on the firing line was both brave and gallant.

Probably the entire list of brevets will be again nominated to the Senate at the next session, with considerable additions, for the board is willing to receive recommendations in cases which have not been officially reported owing to any cause, such as the absence of a commanding officer.

Big Bill Held-Up.

Washington, D. C., March 9.—On advice of the war department, the treasury accounting officers have held up payment of about a quarter of a million dollars to the Atlantic Construction Company on account of harbor improvements performed at Cumberland Sound, Georgia.

It was one of the projects under the direction of Captain Oberlin M. Carter, Corps of Engineers, and the work there was the basis for consideration by the court martial in the case of that officer.

It will be held up pending final action by the government in the case of Captain Carter.

Tom Johnson's Search.

Louisville, Ky., March 9.—Tom Johnson, the millionaire single tax champion of New York and Cleveland, has detectives from a Cincinnati agency in this city searching for a son of the late Robert Johnson of this city, who was a brother of the millionaire.

Two weeks ago Tom Johnson, by a chance, discovered that his brother had secretly married his housekeeper 12 years ago and that a son was born to them.

After Robert Johnson's death the wife and son disappeared.

Tom Johnson last week employed detectives to look for the mother and son. If they are found he says that he will give both a fortune and make them live at his own home.

This city has been searched thoroughly by the detectives without success. The only clew obtained was a note received by a New Albany playmate of young Johnson, dated New York. It was written three years ago and new detectives will go to New York, hoping to find the boy and mother.

Mme. Bianchini Found Guilty.

Paris, March 9.—Mme. Bianchini, whose trial for attempting to kill her husband with atropine has attracted wide attention, suggesting in some respects the celebrated Maybrick case, was found guilty and sentenced to five years' imprisonment at hard labor.

When the sentence was pronounced Mme. Bianchini attempted to stab herself in the heart with a hatpin, but she was seized by gendarmes and prevented from injuring herself.

TRUSTS OF ALL KINDS

New Jersey, the Home of Combines Takes Action.

THE COAL ROAD OCTUPUS

Since the First of the Year the Number of Trust Combinations Has Become So Great That Several States Attorneys Are Looking Into Their Legality—Many More Are Forming.

New York, March 9.—It was reported in Wall street yesterday that J. Pierpont Morgan, while in London obtained the assent of the Reading Railroad Company's English stockholders to a plan which involves all the large eastern coal interests, and also the Vanderbilt, Pennsylvania, Jersey Central, and Delaware and Lackawanna roads. The chief object of this plan, it is asserted, is to effect a combination of all the more important eastern coal interests under one head. Under such a consolidation it is pointed out, the middlemen or jobbers would be done away with.

These companies are said to have agreed to enter the combination: Philadelphia and Reading, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, Pennsylvania Railroad Company, Pennsylvania Coal Company, New York, Lake Erie and Western Coal and Railroad Company, New York, Ontario and Western Railway, Jersey Central, New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad Company and the Schuylkill and Susquehanna Railroad Company.

William H. Truesdale, the new president of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, had a protracted conference with Mr. Morgan soon after the arrival of the latter on Tuesday.

Thomas F. Gilroy, Jr., is reported to be promoting a combination of hatters. Yesterday he conferred with wool hat manufacturers in Reading Pa., and asked for options to purchase the establishments outright.

There are about a dozen wool hat factories in the vicinity of Reading, valued at more than one million dollars. Leading hat men in this city believe that the trust will not be perfected. The wool hat industry is declining because of the competition of soft fur hats. Several years ago a similar movement was unsuccessful.

Steam pump manufacturers are being solicited to unite their interests. It is said that the Henry R. Worthington Pump Company, Blake & Knowles, the Deane Pump Company of Holyoke Mass., the Snow Pump Company of Buffalo, N. Y., Laidlaw, Dunn, Gordon Company of Cincinnati, and the Holly Manufacturing Company of Lockport, N. Y., are willing to enter a combination. The capital stock of the company has been set at twenty-five million dollars, to be divided into half common and half preferred.

It is supposed that the financing of the scheme will be done in such a way as to enable the companies owning the constituent concerns to control a majority of the stock.

Legislation Against a Coal Combine.

Trenton, N. J., March 9.—Assemblyman Abbet introduced in the House yesterday a resolution directed against the proposed coal combination.

The resolution, which was unanimously adopted in the House, read as follows:

"Whereas, It appears by the public prints that a combination of all the important coal mining companies and coal carrying railroads of this country has been, or is about to be formed, and

"Whereas, Such a combination or consolidation of interests will be a great detriment to the people of this state, and would work a great hardship upon our people, and especially our citizens who are known as wage-earners, and

"Whereas, Such a combination is or should be made illegal, and is or should be made a crime of the highest degree, and

"Whereas, All or nearly all of such companies are within this state or doing business in this state, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That, if in the opinion of the attorney general no adequate law exists to stop and prevent such combination, he at once prepare and forward to this house a bill which will, if the same become a law, prevent such combinations and severely punish any persons attempting to form the same, and which will provide for the forfeit of the charters and prevent any railroad company or corporation from attempting the same from hereafter operating or doing any business in this state."

Soap Trust Talk.

Chicago, March 9.—Soap makers are trying to form a consolidation with seventy-five million capital. If formed it will include all the largest manufacturers except Armour and Swift. James S. Kirk & Co., the N. K. Fairbank Company of this city, Proctor & Gamble of Cincinnati, and B. T. Babbitt of New York are said to be in it. In all twenty-one firms are contemplated in the combination.

Bought by the Wire Trust.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 9.—It is announced that negotiations for the purchase of the Schonberger Steel Company's property by the American Steel and Wire Company have been formally closed.

The price paid by the wire trust, it is said, approximates three million dollars, of which part was cash and part stock in the consolidated company.

A Stove Trust Forming.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 9.—All of the Pittsburg stove manufacturers will be represented at a meeting to be held at Chicago this week of the National Association of Stove Manufacturers. At this meeting the question of the formation of a stove trust will be considered.

The Coffin-Trust Project.

Columbus, O., March 9.—A telegram to the Despatch from Upper Sandusky, O., says that it is learned there on the most reliable authority that the capital stock of the coffin combination will be $25,000,000, and that J. Pierpont Morgan of New York will float the bonds.

The trust will include one hundred and thirteen coffin companies and coffin hardware factories, one-third of which will be shut down as soon as the trust is incorporated, which will be done in New Jersey.

The telegram further says that two months may see the combine completed.

HAVANAS STARTLED.

Shops Must Close on Sundays—Policemen Not to Smoke.

Havana, March 9.—The shop keepers throughout the city are upset over the intimation that the authorities have decided to make them close their places of business at seven o'clock each week night, and, with the exception of barber shops, groceries and the like, all day on Sunday.

At present the shop keepers of the capital do just as they please in the matter of business hours. The majority of the stores remain open until long after ten o'clock at night, and hundreds of the best stores are open all day on Sunday, those that close being the exceptions.

It has been positively settled by the American military authorities that the business hours must be changed and that a general observance of the Sabbath must be had.

The Spaniards and Cubans do not like the last part of the proposed programme.

John McCullagh has shocked the natives of Havana by ordering that the members of the new police force shall not be permitted to smoke during business hours. It is a shocking blow to this land of tobacco, where men blow "fuma" into the faces of ladies, where the servant girl smokes long cigars as black as herself in the kitchen and on the streets, and where the grave diggers puff away for dear life while lowering the corpse into its last resting place.

A man must remove his hat while visiting the civil governor, but not his lighted cigar or cigarette. It is the custom and life of the city.

The new street brigade spends three-quarters of its time behind smoke, the weary hack drivers go to bed smoking, and the majority of the children are brought up in smoke and filth.

Only One "Waltham."

Boston, Mass., March 9.—A novel case in the low of unfair competition has just been decided by the full bench of the supreme court of Massachusetts. The effect of the decision will be to restrict, in an important degree, the use of a geographical name upon his goods by a manufacturer, even when such name constitutes his business address, provided it appears that the geographical name has become identified with the goods of another manufacturer earlier, on the ground that the use of the name by the second comer leads the public to confuse the goods of the two manufactorers.

The case is that of the American Waltham Watch Company versus the United States Watch Company. Both companies are located at Waltham, Mass.

The plaintiff is the original and old established company, the maker of the "Waltham Watches." The defendant began business at Waltham in 1885, long after the plaintiff's watches had become widely known.

This suit was brought to enjoin the defendant from stamping its watches with the word "Waltham," whereby the public, as was claimed, were being misled at the hands of dishonest dealers, into buying defendant's watches, supposing them to be the genuine Waltham Watches."

By this decision, from which there is no appeal, the defendant will be enjoined (a) from advertising its watches as "Waltham Watches," (b) from placing the word "Waltham" on the dial of its watches, (c) from using the word "Waltham," or the words "Waltham, Mass.," on the plates of its watches, unless such words are accompanied by the statement, "Not the Original Waltham Watch Company," or some similar explanatory statement.

Suicide Hall Not Molested.

New York, March 9.—So far as can be ascertained at police headquarters, John H. McGuirk, the Bowery saloon keeper, is not in the slightest danger of having trouble because of the notoriety arising out of the suicides, within a week, of three young women who frequented his place.

In spite of the fact that McGuirk's place is known to every police officer south of Union Square, nothing wrong about the resort is known in Mulberry street.

Inspector Cross, in whose district McGuirk's place is situated, was asked yesterday if the resort would be investigated by the police. He said:

"I don't know. I don't see why the place should either be investigated or raided. No complaint has ever come to headquarters about the condition of the place. McGuirk is not a bad fellow. His place is clearly within the law. McGuirk has a license and his resort is only a poor man's saloon. There are several other places like it on the Bowery, and they are the poor man's only pleasure resorts. Some persons say that McGuirk is backed by Senator Timothy D. Sullivan. I don't know that to be a fact. I don't know a single thing to make me think that he is. Some say that McGuirk is a stool pigeon for the police. He isn't any different from many another good citizen who gives information to the police and who helps them to catch criminals. That's all that I know about McGuirk."

"You have heard about the suicides there, haven't you?" the inspector was asked.

"No, I haven't heard of them," he replied.

The Call System.

Ideas of false economy seem to prevail in the minds of those who have set out to oppose the passage of the new fire department ordinance which provides for the adoption of the "call system." The opponents of the measure are not very numerous, but they have raised their voices against it and are trying to win support among the City Fathers.

They point out, with much feeling, that the proposed change will necessitate an increase in the appropriation for the fire department this year. There is not anything new in that fact. It was stated in these columns when the details of the system were explained and the relative cost figured out. What the opponents do not take into consideration, however, is that the cost of the volunteer department of the city, through the exemption from taxes, will keep growing every year until the total cost far exceeds that of the proposed "call system."

The fire committee has not any pet scheme that they wish to palm off on the city by way of experiment. Everybody knows that there must be a change of some kind quickly and the committee has studied the situation rationally and carefully. The ordinance that they will introduce at the meeting of the Council Monday night, will be the result of these labors and will include their recommendations for the good of the department and the city as well.

How the Money Was Spent.

The communication of Councilman McLaughlin, printed in today's Press, is both a defense and a recommendation of Mayor Wilson's administration. Coming from one who has been closely associated with the affairs of the borough during the past year, the statements made in the communication possess especial importance.

There has been much said in criticism of Mayor Wilson's administration because of the alleged extraordinary expenses attendant thereto. Mr. McLaughlin takes up this phase of the quesiton and in a recital of facts and figures shows a situation of affairs that reflects credit upon Mayor Wilson, because the detailed accounts set forth evidence the fact that the Mayor has but did his duty in the office he fills.

A perusual of Mr. McLaughlin's communicetion shows plainly just where the alleged extraordinary expenses went, and as facts and figures taken from the borough books do not lie the communication should and probably will have the effect of setting at rest many irresponsible stories that have been circulated in the borough within the last few days.

The Assembly got funny Tuesday and passed a bill aimed to put the newspapermen in good humor. The measure provides that persons engaged in newspaper work shall not be permitted to work more than eight hours a day, and the compensation for such labor shall be $8 an hour, with eight hours for lunch on week days and ten hours on Sunday. We are opposed to such niggardly legislation. The bill should have provided that every reporter should not work more than twenty-four hours a day, and should receive $24 an hour whether they worked or not

COLONEL A. A. WOODHULL.

Colonel A. A. Woodhull, who is in command of the Josiah Simpson General Hospital, at Fort Monroe, has been selected by the government to build and have charge of a new American hospital to be established at Manila. He will also have direction of the building of Uncle Sam's convalescent hospital in Yokohama.

A supplement to the Board of Arbitration Act has been drawn by President of the Senate Reed, but in accordance with Legislative formalities was introducted by Senator Pitney. It provides that the board, in investigating labor disputes, may issue subpoenas to witness and in case the subpoena is disregarded, application may be made to any Supreme Court justice for an attachment for contempt with a penalty of fine or imprisonment.

New Jersey municipalities ranging along the Passaic river, or placing vital dependence upon it, embracing in all a population of nearly a million people, are just beginning to appreciate the startling vista of possibilities opened up by recent developments as to the pollution of that stream It is now belived that the legal complications likely or certain to result will involve all of the big cities in the expenditure of millions of dollars in litigation that may extend over many years.

A few voters who have taken up their residence in this city and elsewhere recently, and who are still entitled to a vote in the borough election, will this year be compelled to swear in their votes as the Boards of Registry have determined not to become responsible for such voters in the future

Temperance advocates must have a hard time of it in Trenton if the following from the Trenton True American is true: "Trenton's drinking water just now is of the color and consistency of diluted pea soup. We suppose it is healthy, but it certainly is not nice."

The wheels of the Legislative mill are beginning to hum and there is an apparent disposition on the part of the lawmakers to wind up the business of the session as quickly as possible, but it is not likely that the curtain will fall on the last act before March 23d.

Mayor Mack, of Elizabeth, is reported as being disgusted because the Assembly did not pass the bill designed to throw the expense of the Elizabeth District Court upon Union county. The rest of the county is very well satisfied, however.

The Leon W. Washburn's big double minstrels, under management of J. M. Wall will appear at Music Hall for the second and last time this season, Friday night. The Bridgeport Union says of them: The Leon W. Washburn's minstrels, white and colored, opened its three day's engagement at Smith's theatre last night to an audience that filled the house to standing room. It was a good show in every sense of the expression and sent every one away thoroughly pleased with the entertainment. The jokes and stories of the end men, Lew Benedict and Sam Horner, were new and up-to-date and took well with the audience. Mr. Benedict was particularly funny and kept the audience in roars. Although an old time minstrel, he fully demonstrated that it is by no means a "has been." All the musical features of the first part are rendered by singers who possess exceptionally fine voices. Benedict, Weaver and Kersands in "The New Route" create no end of amusement and laughter. The olio introduces an excellent lot of specialties. The Horner Bros. Sam and J. LeClare Horner, Lawrence and Matt Diamond, the Crescent City Quartette, Joe Lewis, the Knox Bros. and Harry Weaver. The eight colored performers in the new "Sugar Grinders' Holiday" execute a number of very difficult movements. The War magniscope, closes the show and every one is pleased.

"The Last Chapter," George H. Broadhurst's new play, had its first New York presentation at the Garden Theatre last Monday night, and won on its merits. While the play contains no sensational melo dramatic features, nor the nauseating rieque of a too-literally adapted adapted French composition, Mr. Broadhurst's latest effort succeeded, as it was intended it should, in giving the theatre-goers a a clean, wholesome, intensely-interesting love story. The cast is all that could be desired, including Grace Filkins, Ellie Wilton, Laura Case, Clara Emery, Gertrude Whitty. Edgar L. Davenport, Edwin Holt, Thomas A. Wise, Horace Lewis, Harrison Armstrong, Newton Chisnell, F. Newton-Lindo, Harry McArdle and William E. Brown.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, March 9.—The Citizens' primary for the nomination of borough officers has been called for Saturday evening. A Mayor, two Councilmen and a Collector are to be nominated and there promises to be a lively election Tuesday.

The Township Committee have advised the appropriation of $1,500 for the purchasing of crushed stone for the roads in the township. Both primaries will no doubt heed their advice and make the road appropriations on both tickets that amount.

Remember the primaries to be held this evening to nominate officers for the township election to be held Tuesday of next week.

Having stood the test of continued successful use, Ely's Cream Balm is recognized as a specific for membranal diseases in the nasal passages, and you make a great mistake in not resorting to this treatment in your own case. To test it a trial size for 10 cents or the large for 50 cents is mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York. Druggists keep it.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

Discovery of the Attar of Roses.

Delicious perfumes are always interesting to women. The far-famed otto (or attar) of roses is chiefly made in Bulgaria. Kasanlik is the centre of the rose-growing country. Red roses only are used in making the perfume, but white roses, which grow more freely, form the hedges of the fields.

The trees, which grow to a great height, are separated by paths nine feet in width, to allow the oxen and plow to pass. The perfume is obtained not only from the petals, but also from the stalks and leaves. These give a peculiar scent, which adds greatly to the delicacy of the perfume of the petals.

October, April and June are the months for planting branches of the old trees. Weeding, pruning and digging are necessary for three years, when they are full grown, and repay the labor spent upon them by bearing for twenty years.

The discovery of the delicious attar was quite an accident and took place three centuries ago. The Persian Princess Nour Djihan was strolling through the splendid galleries of her palace with her betrothed (the Mongolian Prince Djihanguyr) and noticed in the rose water basins about the passages an ugly, yellowish oil floating on the surface. Orders were instantly given to remove the unsightly fluid, when it was discovered the perfume also was removed. Thus the virtue of the essential oil was found out, which is still called in Persia "Attar Djihan."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Fault of Business Women.

A professional woman who has to employ a young woman assistant says that one of her greatest troubles is that her assistants are constantly trying to impress not only upon her, but upon her patients, that they are not accustomed to such employment, but have been brought up to better things, though she is well aware of the fact that the young women have come from homes where there was neither culture nor money.

It is one of the weaknesses of many nice girls that they do not feel sure enough of themselves in taking up employment outside their homes, but they must needs offer some excuse or reiterate the fact that they are accustomed to something better. It is a weakness which brings them little credit from their confidantes. A girl entering a school for typewriting and stenography was asked by the other students why she had come to the school. "Are you taking up stenography, and going to take a position just for fun?" they asked. "Why, certainly not," she replied. "It is too hard work; I do not do hard work for the pleasure of it." "We are so glad," answered her querists. "The greater number of the girls here say they have come 'just for fun' and will take positions to 'pass away the time.'"—Chicago Times Herald.

Well-Bred Children.

Discipline for child and man alike is the secret of happiness. No one can doubt that the well-bred, properly disciplined child is happier than the rough little boor, the embodiment of selfishness and rudeness. The boy need not be a prig, nor the girl an automatic doll; let them be as natural as possible, but let the naturalness be that of the little lady and gentleman, and not of a being with the instincts of a savage.

An American lady writing from Brussels, says that though "hotel children" have long been a terror to her, she has been quite captivated by the conduct of the English children in her Brussels hotel. Her windows open on a gallery in which a number of children belonging to English families play daily. What especially charms her is that the children carry their good breeding into their play, and though they shout and romp, they do not raise their voices to the screeching point, nor do they stop before her windows. They have been properly taught—by precept and example—to be considerate of the rights of others, and being properly taught, obedience follows as a matter of course.

Caring for Wet Shoes.

When with out overshoes you are caught in the rain, carefully remove all surface water and mud from the shoes as soon as they are taken off. Then, while still wet, rub them with kerosene oil on the furry side of canton flannel. Set them aside until partially dry, and again apply the kerosene. They may then be placed in a moderately warm room and left to dry gradually and thoroughly.

Before applying French kid dressing or any polish give them a final rubbing with the flannel, still slightly dampened with the kerosene, and the shoes will be as soft and flexible as when new, and will be very little affected by their bath in the rain.—New York Journal.

Dressing for Bruises.

Turpentine, in which is dissolved as much camphor as it will take up, is pre-eminently the dressing for lacerations, bruises and cuts. Its antiseptic action is equal to that of carbolic acid; it speedily stops bleeding. Few if any ulcers long resist its continued application.

Cholly—I heah that Chappie committed suicide in Lunnon.

Dudely—Ya-as. The pwince spoke to him on the sweet and he nevah wished to be recognized by an inferioh pehson afterwards.—Truth.

NEST AS BIG AS A CITY LOT.

Wonderful Mounds Built by the Mallee Hens of Australia.

The mallee hen of Australia lays its eggs in a huge nest. The nest is really an artificial mound of gigantic proportions for the size of its maker and the purpose it is to serve. This artificial mound is a co-operation incubator. It is built by many pairs of birds, male and female working alike to construct it. These same pairs or flocks of birds annually repair and enlarge the queer-looking cone, which rises up like a turret dome from the level prairie.

Sometimes these tunnels attain a height of fully fifteen feet in the perpendicular, with a radius of equal measurement. Many of these nests have measured as much as fifty yards, or 150 feet, around their base. That would give the largest one measured a diameter of about fifty feet. These mound-nests are entered through a sort of funnel cavity at the top of the cone.

The hens of all the building and repairing pairs lay in this immense nest. The eggs are deposited about six feet below the surface. While each hen lays her eggs in the family mound, no hen drops her egg closer than twenty inches to that of her neighbor. These eggs are deposited in a cavity made for it wherein it is placed in a vertical position, carefully covered, and the surface as carefully smoothed over by the hen before she quits the nest. Contrary to the usual practice of the bird and fowl species, these mallee hens lay at night instead of in the day. Several days elapse also between the dropping of two eggs by the same hen.

The eggs of the mallee hen are out of all proportion to her size. They are as large as those of a goose, and of large hense are very much smaller.

The eggs thus laid and covered in this great sand oven in the hot districts are never again disturbed by the hens. The eggs are hatched by the heat the sun bakes into the soil where they lay. It has never been known how the young chicks are excavated from their egg grave, for the eggs are deposited fully six feet below the surface, and the hardening rains do not aid their exit very much.

The hen is so very shy and vigilant that no one is able to study her maternal and domestic habits with satisfaction. As she lays her egg at night, and transacts most of her affairs in the night watch so that no naturalist or curious individual can ferret her out, possibly she steals to her expected brood under cover of night also, and gives them the parental unearthing which they must surely need after the pipping of the eggshell.

Bush naturalists have been curious to know how this peculiar fowl builds that nest. The birds have been seen working at it, and the mounds have been inspected, but the piling of the dirt is not from the immediate vicinity, for that is undisturbed. Small sprigs and the like enter into the plastic masonry, which stands storms and heavy rains, when they do fall, without serious injury.

These huge cones stand for years, to be annually nested in by the same flock which originally constructed the family incubator. When detected the hens emit a pitiful little cackle, and flutter away like a wounded innocent. The young of a covey either root under the sand or hide behind some mound or object of a friendly color.—Col. John F. Hobbs in Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Story of a Repentant Dog.

This little dog tried to make amends for his sins. But, unfortunately, he did not do it in the best way, although he did the best he could. A story comes from New Haven about a black spaniel that abstracted a feather duster from his owner's house, and while playing with it tore out all the feathers. The dog, after being shown the featherless handle, was given a severe whipping with it. He then disappeared, and about an hour afterward walked bravely into the house with a brand new duster in his mouth. He walked up to his mistress and meekly deposited the new brush at her feet. By the mark on it she saw that the dog had stolen it from a neighboring fancy goods store.

SUGAR MAKING IN AFRICA.

Englishmen Have Demonstrated That the Industry Can be Successfully Worked.

In the distant future Africa promises to be a great sugar producing country. A number of Englishmen have demonstrated after several years of difficulties that the industry can be successfully worked.

The first expedition of the company proceeded to the Zambesi late in 1890. The river had not been opened for traffic: the men were landed at Quilimane, and paddled up a small river to a point called Mopea, where it almost joins the Zambesi at about a hundred miles from the mouth. Here the men settled, with Kaffir huts to live in and Kaffir food to eat.

GATHERING THE CANE

The first work was the planting. Up to this time there was no sugar cane in the whole of the Zambesi Delta, consequently hundreds of tons of plants had to be imported from the neighboring Colony of Natal. The cane plants were brought up the river in fleets of native canoes, rude enough vessels, made by simply scooping out the trunk of a tree; but, owing to the black man's innate penchant for sweet things more than half the plants were eaten on the way, the native children swarming like monkeys along the banks for a bite of sugar-cane. The next task was the education of the Kaffirs, a tedious business, for before they could be started on the A. B. C. of the work they had to be initiated in the reason for work at all, and then to be convinced of the absolute necessity that the worker should do a regular full day's work. They preferred an hour or two at a time with a corresponding amount of sleep to follow, and if the overseer turned his back for a moment, he would find half his men fishing in the river or catching rats, the latter being a very tasty morsel to a Kaffir. However, perseverance, fair treatment and good temper have had their reward; and to-day the company has seven hundred good workers. In June of 1892 the first crop was reaped, amounting to six hundred tons, but it was only finished in November, owing to the innumerable difficulties and delays before the natives could be taught how to work with machinery. In 1894, eight hundred tons of sugar were made in three months, which showed an immense improvement. To give the Kaffir his due it must be said that the tedium of instructing him is not without its alleviations. It was distinctly humorous to watch the utter surprise on the negro's countenance when he first saw the sugar made and tasted it; and that of the man who, trying to stop the fly-wheel of one of the engines with his hands, found himself precipitated into a heap of sawdust some four yards off. The humour, however, was not always so unmixed with pain. A common accident was for the men to get their toes jammed in trying to stop the loaded trucks of cane with their naked feet. One inquisitive fellow, wanting to test by feeling the revolutions of the circular saw, did so with disastrous result, and at the sight of his hand minus a finger he bolted, and has not been seen again to this day.

LOADING SUGAR INTO LIGHTERS

Cremation of Plague Victims.

The plague has not yet been stamped out in India by any means and in the Poona district deaths are constantly occurring and new cases cropping up. In this section the Hindoos remove the bodies of the victims to the outskirts of the town and place them upon funeral pyres. The match is then applied and in a short time the whole is reduced to a small pile of ashes.

Berlin. Zwei romantische Punkte der alten Kolonie Moabit werden noch in diesem Jahre verschwinden. Schon ist der Spaten angesetzt, um den Kaninchenberg, den an der Ecke der Kirchstraße und der Straße Altmoabit belegenen Theil des früher von wilden Kaninchen bevölkerten Moabiter Berges zu beseitigen. Nach Süden zu fällt der Kaninchenberg zu dem sumpfigen Gelände der Wulwe-Lanke (Wolfs-Lanke) ab, einer Ausbuchtung der Spree, welche verschüttet und durch die Verlängerung des Helgoländer Ufers ersetzt werden wird. —In Ausübung seines Berufes gestorben ist der in der Diphtheriestation der Charite thätig gewesene Unterarzt Dr. Krause, ein Angehöriger der Pepiniere. Der junge Arzt zog sich eine schwere Diphtherieansteckung zu, der er rasch erlag.

Charlottenburg. Die Zahl der Einwohner Charlottenburgs betrug nach der soeben veröffentlichten Aufstellung des statistischen Amts Anfangs Dezember 174,297, so daß jetzt jedenfalls 175,000 Einwohner die Nachbarresidenz Berlins bewohnen. Anfangs April v. J. hatte die Stadt nur 163,882 Einwohner. Der Frühjahrsumzug brachte es auf 167,223 Seelen, der Oktoberzuzug auf 173,585.

Hannover. Für die Aufforstung von Oedeländereien in der Provinz Hannover will sowohl die Staatsregierung wie die Provinzialverwaltung erhöhte Mittel bewilligen. Verschiedene größere Darlehen hat die Provinzialverwaltung schon vor einem Jahre an verschiedene Interessenten zum Zinssatze von zwei Prozent gewährt. An Amortisation werden drei Prozent gerechnet. Die Darlehensnehmer waren 53 Privatpersonen, 10 Stadt- und Landgemeinden und 15 Waldgenossenschaften.

Kassel. Hier hat der aus der Herkules-Brauerei wegen Widersetzlichkeit entlassene Oberbrauburschc Fellner den Herkulesbrauerei-Direktor Schmidt erschossen, weil er mit dem von diesem ihm ausgestellten Dienstzeugniß unzufrieden war. Fellner wurde verhaftet.

Frankfurt. Wilhelm Jordan, Deutschlands größter Rhapsode der neueren Zeit, hat hier seinen 80. Geburtstag gefeiert.

Limburg. Ein eigenartiger Fall von Urkundenfälschung ist vor der hiesigen Strafkammer verhandelt worden. Als Kollekteur für die geplante Lungenheilstätte in Davos hatte ein gewisser Mathias Kölsch auf der Kollektantenliste die gezeichneten Beträge in höhere umgewandelt mit der guten Absicht, dadurch andere Geber zu höheren Beiträgen zu veranlassen. Das Gericht erkannte auf eine Woche Gefängniß gegen den übereifrigen Kollektanten.

POPE LEO AS A CHILD.

NEW STORIES OF THE HOLY FATHER'S BOYHOOD.

His Earliest Tastes Seemed to Run Toward the Church—Kindness to a Little Peasant Lad—An Early Poem From His Pen.

It is a long time since Pope Leo XIII was a little boy, for it was 89 years ago that he came into the family of Colonel Ludovico Pecci. The colonel and his beautiful wife lived in a palace situated in the little village of Carpineto and had already been blessed with five sons and two daughters before little Joachim Vincenzo was born. For more than 20 years the Pecci family had resided in Carpineto, fighting hard for Italy whenever called upon, but by no means rich, though their palace was comfortable. Their fare was simple—for dinner soup, roast of beef or fowl and fruit. The children ate nothing but eggs and milk.

Little Vincenzo, or Nino, as he was called, had for his playmate an elder brother, John Baptista—called Titta for short—who was always building altars and playing at church, while Nino was most fond of horses. Yet the wild Nino was to become pope, while Titta was to marry and take his father's place in Carpineto. The boys soon found the palace too small for them, and often with father or mother they ran over the hills near their home. One day Nino and his father were walking on one of the mountains and the father was pointing out the beauties of nature to the boy. "There is Aquino in the distance and there Montecassino," said the count, for he had been raised to this rank.

Here Nino broke in: "Aquino, where the father of the church, St. Thomas, was born; Montecassino, where he learned to read and write. Babbo, can't I go there to learn as he did—how a man should read and write?"

The count questioned the child further and learned that the child, then 7 years old, knew the story of St. Thomas Aquinas as well as he did that of Napoleon, who was then the scourge of Europe. When the count told his wife about it, he said: "I am disappointed. I wanted to make a soldier of him, a general at least."

"Well, what is the difference? You may make a pope of him instead," his mother answered.

It was a little while before this that an incident occurred showing the kind heartedness of the future pope. He had been to Anagui, a neighboring village, with his tutor. While they were driving back home he saw a poor boy with torn and dirty clothes lying on a stone by the roadside. Nino stopped the carriage, jumped out and ran up to the poor boy, saying: "What's the matter with you? Is your leg broken?"

"I don't know," the shepherd lad replied as the tears ran down his dirty cheeks. "Ten minutes ago one of the shepherds was driving his cart fast through the street, and before I could jump out of the way it knocked me down, and the wheel ran over my ankle. The man didn't listen to my cries, but drove right on. Oh, how it hurts!"

Joachim ran to a hollow, where there was a small brook, filled his cap with its clear water and gave it to the boy to drink. Then he washed his foot and tied it up with his white linen handkerchief. "Where do you live?" said Nino.

"You can't get there like this. Come to Carpineto with me, and we will help you." The poor boy smiled and limped to the carriage, leaning on the arm of his benefactor.

"What are you doing now, Joachim?" said his tutor.

"What am I doing? What every true Christian ought to do. I am helping the unfortunate. Could we leave this poor little wounded boy here helpless on the road?"

"Do you want to take him home? What will father and mother say?"

"They will say that I have acted rightly. Is it so extraordinary to succor a wounded child? Wouldn't any one do the same thing in my place?"

The teacher slapped him kindly on the shoulder, and all rode on to Carpineto. Joachim's mother was angry at her son at first when she saw a stranger in the carriage, but when she had heard the story she sent for the family physician and had him attend to the suffering boy. Joachim had tears of joy in his eyes while the ankle was being properly cared for.

"Did I do right, mother?" said he.

"Yes, my dear child, your act was a noble one," and proudly and joyfully she folded him to her motherly heart.

The boys were sent to their Uncle Antonio in Rome, to be prepared for the Viterbo school, which they entered October, 1818, whence a letter came from their teacher.

"Vincenzo's work is remarkable. I consider him a little angel. Reply." And their mother sent them some of the homemade cakes so dear to the hearts of all children at boarding school.

When later their teacher reported that his pupils had acquitted themselves well in a scholarly disputation (Nino was then 12 years old), Count Ludovico sent them each a dollar by way of encouragement. Nino had already written a sonnet in Italian and was trying his hand at Latin verses. On the occasion of a visit to the school by a famous Jesuit, Vincenzo Pavoni, Vincenzo Pecci, then 11 years old, wrote this Latin verse:

Nomine Vincenti quo tu, Pavone, vocaris,
Parvulus atque insans Peccius ipse vocar;
Quas or virtutes magnas, Pavone, secutus,
O Utinam possim Peccius ipse sequi.

It may be freely translated:

Vincent is the name by which thou art called,
O Pavoni;
Vincent Pecci's my name, still a small boy and weak;
Great are thy virtues, Pavoni, happy possessor.
O would that I, Pecci, might imitate thee in them!

How many boys in America could do as well at this age?—Omaha Bee.

WITTY ARCHBISHOP RYAN.

Two Good Stories Illustrating His Keen Sense of Humor.

Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia, who was formerly coadjutor bishop to the late Archbishop Kenrick of St. Louis, is one of the best known wits in the Catholic hierarchy of the United States.

On the occasion of his recent visit to St. Louis to officiate at the golden jubilee celebration of St. John's church, the Philadelphia prelate rode in a carriage to the parochial residence with Bishop Glennon, who also assisted in the ceremonies. Bishop Glennon is rather diminutive in size and of slight build, especially in the stomachic regions, while Archbishop Ryan is tall and very robust. As they alighted from the carriage Archbishop Ryan said to his companion:

"Bishop Glennon, I once was asked to explain the difference between a bishop and an archbishop. I answered (and the archbishop extended his arms in a semicircle from his own healthy body, at the same time glancing rather sharply at Bishop Glennon), 'The difference is all in the arch.'"

On the evening of the day of the celebration the archbishop received an invitation to dine at the residence of a well known citizen in Longfellow boulevard. Circumstances compelled him to decline the invitation, and he sent a messenger boy with his regrets. About 7 o'clock the boy returned, saying he could not find the gentleman's house. Then the archbishop discovered that he had addressed the note to a house of the same number in Leffingwell avenue. For a moment he was at a loss what to do. He had been expected, and in the absence of word from him that he could not go, his friend would be greatly inconvenienced. The messenger had departed, and Father Coffey, the pastor, was appealed to for assistance in the matter. The archbishop, somewhat anxious, concluded to send another note at once to the correct address. In the company of clergymen present an available messenger hardly could be found.

Just then Father Collins, assistant pastor, stepped up and offered to lend his aid. Father Collins is a very tall man, considerably over six feet, but he was quite willing to accept in the emergency a task that might be accomplished as well by a person of fewer years and inches.

"Your grace," he said, just a little embarrassed, "if it is anything urgent, I will take the note myself."

"Oh, no," replied the archbishop, "I wouldn't put you to the trouble, but (and he measured the height of the young priest at one good look) I admit that you would be a very appropriate man to send to Longfellow boulevard."—St. Louis Republic.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH.

Some Tributes of Praise From the Pen of a Protestant.

Henry A. Stimson, D. D., writes in The Independent an article on the Catholic church and expansion. There are some things in the article at which a Catholic may take umbrage, but as a whole the article is very favorable to Catholicity. Speaking of the attacks made on the Catholic church, he says, writing as a Protestant:

"We have successfully passed through our various stages of attack of anti-Romanism and know nothingism, while Father Chiniquy, the escaped nun, Brother Fulton and lastly the A. P. A. have made us shiver down the back with grewsome tales and awesome fears. Nor do I think that it is altogether due to the growing familiarity with which we contemplate the ways of St. Mary the Virgin and St. Ignatius, or the presence on the streets of Episcopal brethren wearing shovel hats and the soutane that our fears of a gunpowder plot have disappeared, or the name Jesuit has been robbed for us of its terrors. We have simply grown in confidence in American common sense and in the power of American institutions to meet all sorts of strain and to control and modify all sorts of people."

In speaking of the late Ferdinand Fabre, the great French writer, and his works, he remarks:

"What, then, is the conclusion to which we come:

"First, that the priesthood of the Catholic church, certainly in France, and with every probability none the less in the United States, is composed of men who in the main are clean of life, wholly devoted to their church, in which they believe utterly; honored and loved by their parishioners, upon the youth of whom they exercise boundless influence, and trained in a professional discipline which has no parallel among us. That this discipline does not produce visible spiritual results that would be entirely approved by the standards to which we are accustomed does not detract from the tremendous power it exerts both upon the individual and the church."

A Notable Convert.

Hon. Walter McHenry, son of Judge W. H. McHenry of Des Moines, Ia., has been received into the Catholic church. The McHenrys are a family distinguished for their many excellent qualities as well as their mental endowments. They can trace their ancestors back to the famous Patrick Henry of Revolutionary fame. Walter McHenry, who has entered the true fold of Christ, is a young man in the prime of life and a rising star in the legal profession. His conversion is noticeable from the fact that all his early associates and youthful companions were trained in a school hostile to the faith of the apostles.

Father McKinnon of California, who is superintendent of schools out at Manila, hoisted the stars and stripes recently over the school at Malate, a suburb of the Philippine capital, on the occasion of the reopening of the school in that district.

Richelieu's Mausoleum.

One of the most interesting buildings in Paris was the old Sorbonne, commenced by Richelieu in 1627. It was not large enough, however, to accommodate the 11,000 students who gathered there, and in 1894 it was pulled down—save only the chapel, in which is situated the tomb of the famous cardinal. Regarding this interesting relic there is now in progress a perplexing conflict between the Paris municipality, the State, and the Richelieu family, whose principal representative is the Princess of Monaco. The chapel is in a very bad state of repair, and more than a year ago the architect of the Sorbonne put up scaffolding all around it for the purpose of making good the dilapidations. He then applied to the municipality for the necessary funds, which were refused, and he was recommended to apply to the State. The State will not consider the matter unless the entire control of the building is handed over. This does not suit the Richelieu family, who declare that the cardinal built the chapel with his own money on the understanding that it should be a mausoleum for the members of his family. These rights are considered by the municipality to have fallen into abeyance, and the case is to go to the law courts. The pity is that while the matter continues to be discussed the venerable building, so rich in historical associations, is fast decaying.

ROUNDED CHAPEL OF THE SORBONNE

Sinking of the Etonians.

Five Etonians recently made an attempt to row across the English channel in a "racing four." The whole arrangement was a foolish one with the exception of that part relating to a tug which was to follow and render assistance in case of accident.

The accident came just as soon as the boat ran into the merry chop of the channel. The boat filled and went down gracefully, and a photographer on the tug pictured the scene. The men clung to the boat until the tug came up and took them aboard. Now the venturesome boys are the laughing stock of the whole school.

Bravery of the Afridis.

The bravery of the rebellious Afridis of India is conceded to be wonderful. With calm daring they swarm up the precipitous sides of lofty mountains and attack the stone forts on the summit in the face of continual fire from magazine guns.

FORT ALI MUSJID CAPTURED BY AFRIDIS

One of the forts recently reduced by them is that of Ali Musjid and although its location makes it seemingly invulnerable the Afridis captured it in less than two hours work.

COST OF CARELESSNESS

A Woman Lost a Fine Legacy Through Use of a Revenue Stamp.

The post office department does its utmost to promptly deliver all letters properly addressed and stamped. Lax methods on the part of the public result in untold trouble for the department, which is constantly reminding the people that a letter will not be forwarded unless postage to the amount of two cents is affixed.

It has just been developed that the carelessness of a writer lost a poor woman a fine legacy. In a Massachusetts town an old man was dying. He called a friend in and asked her to write at once to his niece and tell her to come at once. The friend did as requested, but very foolishly put a two-cent revenue stamp on the lettter in place of the ordinary stamp. Revenue stamps are not accepted as postage, and the department has said so repeatedly in bulletins and advertisements. The letter was held at the post office and the niece notified by mail of the letter which would be forwarded upon the receipt of proper postage. There was nothing on the letter to indicate where it was from, and by the time the proper postage arrived the old man had died and cut off the niece without a dollar. Now the officials say if the sender had simply written her address on the envelope the letter would have been promptly returned to her, and the legacy would have gone to the niece, who would have received notification in time to arrive at the bedside of her dying uncle. The department permits such addresses to be written on the envelope, and would prefer that writers take advantage of it. Many letters which now find their way to the dead letter office could be promptly returned and much unnecessary trouble avoided.

Don't Worry About Yourself.

To retain or recover health, persons should be relieved from anxiety concerning disease. The mind has power over the body,—for a person to think he has a disease will often produce that disease. This we see effected when the mind is intensely concentrated upon the disease of another. It is found in hospitals that physicians and surgeons who make a specialty of certain diseases are liable to die themselves and the mental power is so great that sometimes people die of the disease which they have only in imagination. We have seen a person seasick in anticipation of a voyage, before reaching the vessel. We have known people to die of cancer in the stomach, when they had no cancer in the stomach, or any other mortal disease. A blindfolded man, slightly pricked in the arm, has fainted and died from believing he was bleeding to death.

Therefore, well persons, to remain well, should be cheerful and happy; and sick persons should have their minds diverted as much as possible from themselves. It is by their faith that men are saved, and it is by their faith that they die. As a man thinketh so is he. If he wills not to die, he can often live in spite of disease; and if he has little or no attachment to life, he will slip away as easily as a child will fall asleep. Men live by their minds as well as by their bodies. Their bodies have no life of themselves; they are only receptacles of life—tenements for their minds, and the will has much to do in continuing the physical occupancy or giving it up.

Big Fishes Come Ashore.

Mrs. George O. Barnes, who lives on Sanibel island, in the Gulf of Mexico, has written a letter to her youthful kinsman, Master John Bogle of Danville, in which she relates a most interesting and at the same time a most extraordinary fish story, says the Danville Advocate. This story, unlike many yarns told by gentlemen who go a-fishing can be relied upon.

One morning as Mrs. Barnes was upon the beach she and two others saw a great commotion in the water. Huge black objects were splashing about and spray was rising up before them. The party soon reached the scene and stood in wonder at what was before them.

They saw a great shoal of monster fish lying four and five abreast in the shallow water, helplessly lashing the surf with their immense tails, unable to move and slowly dying, although the water of the gulf still washed over them and the tide was coming in. The sea was calm—there had not been a storm or even a gale—and there was no way of accounting for the trap these poor fish were in, except that they had gone into the channel when the water was deep, and swimming in a body were caught in shoal water, from which they could not extricate themselves.

The fish were counted, and there were between 50 and 60 of them. They were from 10 to 22 feet in length and weighed from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds each. A number of them were estimated as weighing a ton each. Six mules could not drag some of them away.

What to do with them, says Mrs. Barnes, was a serious question. They were dying, and if left upon the beach would have driven the people nearly from their homes. "Twenty-three of the monsters lay side by side, looking like huge siege guns, black and terrible."

The men folks, after sitting upon the case, decided to cut the fish into pieces and cart and drag them to a point where the decaying flesh would not be offensive to the smell or poisonous to its surroundings. Sunday intervened, however, before this great task was completed, and on the Sabbath the air was so rank with the dreadful odor that the Barneses could not go out of doors.

The queer visitors were of the family known as blackfish, a species of the whale that is found in tropical waters.

There are 156,973,873 watches in use at the present time.

BURIED THE WRONG BOX.

Mistake at a Funeral Which Made Even the Mourners Laugh.

It is not often that a man's funeral is funny enough to make his near relatives laugh. That, however, is what happened at the funeral of Dr. Kellogg, of Ashland, Ohio. The Kellogg family is an old and respected one in town, and, as often happens in old families of small towns, is connected with nearly every other family in the town.

Dr. Kellogg died in New York. He was a widower, without any children, and left orders in his will for his body to be cremated and the ashes deposited in the grave of his wife at Ashland. Mrs. Patterson, a cousin, was directed to carry out this request. The death of the doctor cast a gloom over the whole big family of kinsfolk. Mrs. Patterson telegraphed directions for the cremation of the body, and watched anxiously for the arrival of the remains. One morning the expressman drove up with the box. A funeral was held, and attended by Ashland in a body. The wife's grave was opened, the box deposited solemnly, and the mourners dispersed.

A few days afterward Mrs. Patterson received a small zinc box, about the size of the first. She was horrified to find that this last box undoubtedly contained the ashes of her cousin, Dr. Kellogg. She knew, of course, at once that something else, no telling what, had been deposited in the cemetery in lieu of the doctor. A quiet investigation was made. It was found that another Mrs. Patterson in Ashland, a sister-in-law, had sent a dress to a dye firm in New York. The box containing this dress had been deposited in the grave of the late Mrs. Kellogg.

A second and very quiet burying was held at which only Mrs. Patterson and the sexton were present. The story was too good to keep, and was soon passed around.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Household Horrors.

"Where did you get those antimacassars?" asked Gwilliams.

"At Harris's," replied Mrs. Gwilliams.

"They're Greek, I see," he said, examining them.

"What?"

"Yes. 'Arris tidies. Don't you see?"

And the next day he was taken down with the grip.—Chicago Tribune.

Fooled a Book Agent.

"He is a tall, thin man with a lean face," said the book agent. "I understand that he has gone to Chicago, where his wife is visiting friends. If I wasn't afraid of missing him on the way I would take the first train West; as it is, I think I will remain right here nursing my wrath until he returns. I went into his office the other day to sell him a work that should be in the home of every man who has the welfare of the country at heart, bound in calf and profusely illustrated. He received me with a cold stare and continued writing at his desk while I was expatiating on the beauties of the work that I was handling. But I am used to that sort of treatment, so I talked on, regardless of the silent hint that he wanted the space that I was occupying.

"Suddenly he looked at his watch, shut his desk with a snap, and said he was going out to lunch.

"That was an old dodge, so I merely answered that I was about to go to lunch myself and would go along with him. When we were in front of the telephone office he suddenly turned and said:

"'See here, I'll go in here and call up my wife, and if she cares anything about the infernal book, I'll buy it.'

"I thought it was another dodge to give me the slip, so I smiled pleasantly, nodded assent and followed him in. He entered a private booth for a few minutes, and then, coming out, beckoned me and said:

"'Go in there and explain to my wife what you have for sale.'

"I entered and fully explained to the party at the other end of the wire the value of the matchless work that I was selling. I might have been talking yet if the other end hadn't rung off. When I came out of the booth I discovered that my victim had fled, while a clerk was waiting for me with a bill that nearly took my breath away.

"That miserable scoundrel had called up his wife, who was in Chicago, by the long-distance telephone, and then calmly let me bankrupt myself, under the impression that I was using a local line. If I ever succeed in getting that party in a corner where he cannot escape, I'll talk him to death!"—Detroit Free Press.

Before the Bar.

The other day an Irishman, who was charged with being drunk and disorderly, nearly drove a magistrate mad. The following colloquy took place between the two:

Magistrate—Will you sign the pledge if I let you off this time?

Prisoner—Shure, Oi can't wroite, yer honor.

Magistrate—But you can make a mark.

Prisoner—Phwat koind av a mark, yer honor?

Magistrate (testily)—A cross, man—a cross!

Prisoner—Across phwat, yer honor?

Magistrate— (out of all patience)—Ten shillings and costs, or seven days' hard labor!

Prisoner (aghast)—Tin shillins an' costs! Shure, Oi haven't cost anywan anything, yer honor; Oi paid fer all me drinks.

Magistrate (severely)—Stand down, sir—stand down!

Prisoner—Oi always shtand up whin Oi shtand at all. Is it sit down yer honor manes?

Then the jailer took the prisoner in hand, and the magistrate mopped his moist brow.—Exchange.

Outdoor Work Preferred.

Some years ago a young Irishman was hunting for work among the farmers of a western town at harvest time.

He made his application to a benevolent looking farmer, who was attracted by the young man's frank, merry face, but who was not really in need of extra help.

"Can you cradle?" he asked, after a moment's hesitation.

"Cradle is it?" repeated the young Irishman in bewilderment. "That Oi can, sorr, bein' the owldest of ellivin childer; but," he added, persuasively, "can't yez give me a job out av dures, sorr?"

One Unsettled Point.

An old man who bore evidence of more work than culture approached a representative of a free silver paper the other day in the State Library.

"Can I ask you a question?"

"Certainly."

"Well, if we have free silver coinage, we'll all have more money, won't we?"

"Why, yes, certainly; that's easy to answer."

"Well, what I want to know," said the old father, earnestly, "is whether they will bring it to me or whether I'll have to go after it."

	$27,444.00

From these schedules it will be seen that the anticipated receipts for 1899 being $27,444, and the approximated expense being $26,310, there will be a balance in the borough treasury of about one thousand dollars to meet emergencies.

Much comment has been made upon a warrant drawn to the order of the Chief of Police, amounting to $97.34:

COPY OF VOUCHER.

1898. August 2, Salary	$66 66
Cleaning station house	2.00
Cleaning one uniform	1.50
Eight commitments to county jail	15.18
Twelve meals at 25 cts each	3.00
Eighteen dogs caught and killed	9.00
	$97.34

All sums above set forth, except the salary, were advanced by the Chief and refunded by the borough, except the amount allowed by law for mileage.

This statement is made to correct an impression that has gone forth relative to the salary paid to the Chief of Police.

Very respectfully submitted,
John G. McLaughlin.

MET HIS FATE FIRM

Roesel Executed at Elizabeth This Morning.

MET DEATH BY HANGING.

ANSWERING FOR THE MURDER OF FARMER PITTS.

Met His End Bravely, Still Declaring That He Did Not Strike the Fatal Blow—Execution Passed Off Quietly—Forty People Present.

(By a Staff Representative.)

Elizabeth, March 10.—The murder of Farmer Pitts, of Summit, was expiated this morning by the death of Louis Roesel on the gallows in the south corrodor of the county jail, this city. It was the first time in twenty-two years that a crime, committed in Union county, has been punished by death. Roesel, the convicted murderer, met his death without flinching, protesting to the last that while present when the crime was committed, it was not he who struck the fatal blow.

The execution was witnessed by forty people. The rope that launched Roesel into eternity was pulled at 10:13 o'clock by Hangman VanHise. At 10:29 o'clock Roesel's heart stopped beating. At just 11 o'clock, the body was lowered and placed in the casket, its final resting place.

The day preceding the execution was a quiet one at the county jail. The condemned man occupied a large cell at the end of the south corridor. Several of the constables were with him constantly. Mrs. Dodd, the matron, gave the prisoner a bouquet of flowers, which were placed on his little table. Several Elizabeth women also sent flowers.

During the afternoon Roesel expressed a wish to Warden Dodd to make a short statement before his death. Joseph D. Lowden, city editor of the Elizabeth Journal, went to see him and prepared a brief statement over Roesel's signature. In it he thanked his lawyers, Sheriff Kirk, Warden and Matron Dodd, and his spiritual advisors. He said that he was fully resigned to his fate and that he died without malice toward anyone.

The condemned man spent a very quiet night. While it was evident that he realized that his end was near he retained his self possession to the last. He sat up until 1:40 o'clock this morning. Constables H. J. Schoppe, Gustave Deinlein and James Carey occupying the cell with him. Then he lay down and slept quietly from 3 o'clock until 6 o'clock. He was given a breakfast at 7 o'clock, but took nothing except a cup of coffee.

Rev. L. N. Phelps, curate of St. John's P. E. church, Elizabeth, was in Roesel's cell yesterday. Rev. Dr. Otis A. Glazebrook, rector of that church, was with the condemned man many times since he has been sentenced.

After Roesel's breakfast, Rev. Mr. Phelps was with him for an hour. At 9 o'clock, Dr. Glazebrook came and remained with him up to the time of the execution.

In the hour previous to the hanging, Dr. Glazebrook read the death service. He had administered the sacrament yesterday. Dr. Glazebrook says that Roesel was the firmest man, under such circumstances, that he had ever attended. There was no braggadocia about him He was quiet, but self-possessed, and declared himself ready to meet the end demanded by law. He said that he was ready to die and had made his peace with God. He still persisted that he did not strike the blow. He explained that they had only wanted to stun Pitts and get his money.

The scaffold, the same that has been used by Hangman VanHise on many other occasions, was erected in the south corridor this morning in thirty minutes.

As the hour for the execution, 10 o'clock, drew nigh, Sheriff Kirk and Mr. VanHise went to the condemned man's cell. The noose was adjusted about his neck. When the Sheriff started to bind Roesel's arms, the latter begged that it should not be done "I want to die like a man," he said. The Sheriff explained it was necessary. Then the black cap was put on but pushed back from Roesel's face.

At 10 o'clock the persons who were to witness the hanging were summoned to the Court Room.

The jury of inspection recommended by Prosecutor English and appointed by Judge Vail was as follows: Mulford M. Scudder, Chas. P. Russ, William M. Oliver, Emmot K. Adams, Wm. H. Swain, Edward S. E. Newbury, George Ball, Dr. Victor Mravlag, Edward B. Kelly, Henry A. Rath and William Allen.

The deputy sheriffs appointed by Sheriff Kirk were: Dr. B. B Sinclair, George J. Tobin, Andrew McArdle, Louis A. Graff, John K. English, H. C. VanEmburgh, Patrick Kiely, John F. Dorwall, Abe J. David, James B. Terwin, J B. Cassidy, I E. Robinson and Dr. W. A. M. Mack.

The newspapermen present were: A. W. Schwartz, Elizabeth Journal, Francis E. Whiteside, Plainfield Courier-News, Michael F. Gannon, Newark News, I. Melvin Sheldon, Standard News Association, Charles Burdette Moorse, Plainfield Daily Press, E. R. Clyma, Elizabeth Leader.

At 10:07 o'clock the jury and other witnesses were ushered into the presence of the gallows by Former Under Sheriff J. Casper Kirkner, who assisted Sheriff Kirk in the preparations.

At 10:12 the procession from the condemned man's cell appeared. The Sheriff came first. Roesel, quiet but pale followed with Dr. Glazebrook and the Hangman close behind.

As they arrived in front of the gallows Sheriff Kirk asked Roesel if he had anything to say. In a low voice the condemned prisoner said:

"I forgive my enemies and thank my friends and all those who have been kind to me, I am at peace with God."

The Sheriff repeated the words after him.

The convicted murderer was a small slight man of twenty-two years. He wore a black cutaway coat and trousers of same material. He also wore a white shirt and turndown collar and black bow tie.

When VanHise leaned down to strap Roesel's legs, the prisoner stood perfectly firm. The black cap was pulled over his face and the noose fastened to the rope of the scaffold. On the other end of the rope was an iron weight of 700 pounds.

VanHise stepped over the rope that released the weight. At 10:13 he pulled it and the body of Roesel was shot into the air. There was not a sound save the sullen thud of the weight as it struck a box of ashes to deaden the fall.

The body of the murderer soon hung quietly, save for convulsive movements of the hands and limbs. At 10:19 these movements had ceased and the body was lowered to within a foot of the floor. Dr. Mravlag examined the body. At 10:29 Dr. Mravlag announced that the heart had stopped beating The body was not taken down until 11 o'clock. This was VanHise's sixty-first hanging.

The body was carefully examined by the physicians present and all declared Roesel dead. The neck was not broken, but death was caused by strangulation. They said that the man was unconscious from the first.

The body was placed in a coffin by Undertaker J. C. Ogden and was buried this afternoon in the Poor House lot, Elizabeth Dr. Glazebrook conducted the burial service.

ROESEL'S CRIME.

It was a Particular Brutal One and was Planned Out.

Louis Roesel was convicted of murdering Mr. Pitts, an old farmer, of Summit, a year ago last August. The story of the crime, as brought out at the trial, was that Roesel and George Manshanda, an older fellow-countryman, went to the Pitts homestead that night for the purpose of robbery. Roesel had worked as a farmhand for Mr. Pitts' nearest neighbor, Mr. Woodruff, for six months at one time, and for a month at a later date. Manshanda had also worked in the neighborhood. Mr. Pitts was a man of some means, a retired farmer, and was popularly supposed to carry considerable money with him and to keep more in the house. Manshanda and Roesel, being hard up, formed a plan to go there and rob him. The murdered man's only companion was an aged colored woman who kept house for him, so that they evidently considered that they had an easy task before them.

The alarm reached Summit quickly—the Pitts' homestead is a mile from town—and before midnight the country side was alive with searching parties, whose quest, however, was in vain, except for the finding of clues which were of value later. Manshanda

MONEY LOST IN THE PAST.

CHILDREN TO BE CHARGED 25 CENTS AND ADULTS 50 CENTS.

The Matter Discussed in a Lively Manner at the Annual Meeting of the Teachers Last Night—The Excursion to be Held July 13th—George H. Batchelor Re-elected Superintendent.

The annual meeting of the officers and teachers of the Sunday-school of the First Baptist church was held last evening. Superintendent George H. Batchelor occupied the chair and guided the business of the evening.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Superintendent, George H. Batchelor; secretary, W. O. Chapman; assistant secretary, Harry B. Drake; treasurer, Frank W. Jones; librarian, B. J. Shreve; superintendent of East Third Street mission, L. Warren Randolph; superintendent of Mt. Olive Baptist Sunday-school, M. C. Dobbins.

The report of Treasurer Jones showed the receipts during the year to be $2,060.23 and the expenditures $1.706 43, leaving a cash balance of $353 80

One of the principal questions under discussion was that regarding the annual excursion. Each year when this matter is introduced it always occasions considerable discussion and this year was no exception. It is a fact that these affairs are generally conducted on the smallest margin, and as a rule there is always a deficit. To overcome this difficulty a new plan was inaugurated last year whereby the scholars were charged 25 cents, while the teachers were charged 50 cents. So far as this went it was all right, but the number of scholars and teachers attending was comparatively small.

Last evening the subject was generally discussed at length. Some of the members thought that no charge should be made, and the friends of this plan stated that twenty or more persons could be found who would be willing to contribute $5 each and thus meet the expenses of the outing. This plan was not received with open arms, and it was then proposed that last year's plan be adopted this year. This seemed to be received more favorably, but one of the ladies thought that inasmuch as teachers were to be charged 50 cents that all adults attending the school should be charged similarly. It was finally so agreed and the plan was adopted.

The date for the excursion was set for Thursday, July 13th, and Superintendent Batchelor will soon appoint a committee to take charge An agreement has been made with the Central Railroad that no o her excursion is to go from this city during that week, thus giving the Baptists a greater opportunity for success.

HIS WORK AMONG THE AFRICANS.

Charles A. Swan Talked Interestingly of Missionary Experiences.

Charles A. Swan, an English missionary to Africa, gave a lecture in the Y. M. C. A. last night dealing with his work among the tribes of the dark continent. The lecture was to have been illustrated with lime light views, but through some mistake the views did not arrive so a map was used instead.

Mr. Swan has been among the Africans for three years, and has made wonderful progress with them. He speaks twenty-seven dialects, most of which he has learned during his stay on the continent.

Mr. Swan began his lecture by giving his hearers some idea of the size of Africa, and said that from north to south it was 5,000 miles, and at its widest part about 4,700 miles across. He spoke of the difficulty of getting from place to place on account of the lack of roads, and then described his work among the deluded natives at length.

Value of Organized Charity.

A public meeting of the Organized Aid Association, of Plainfield, will be held in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church on the evening of Monday next, at 8 o'clock W. I. Nichols, General Secretary of the Brooklyn bureau of Charities, will speak on "The Value of Organized Charity to the Benevolent and to Those Needing Assistance."

President Cahoone to Lead.

President Cahoone will address the Y. M. C. A. meeting Sunday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock. Miss Harris, soprano at the First Baptist church, will sing, and Wm. McKillop will render violin solos.

CITY LIKELY TO BUY IT.

COUNCILMEN AND REPRESENTATIVE OF SANITARY COMPANY CONFER.

Collection of Garbage Would be Undertaken, But the Gathering of Ashes Would be Left to Private Enterprise as Now.

A representative from the Plainfield Sanitary Company met the members of the Councilmanic streets and sewers committee last evening to discuss matters pertaining to the disposal of the company's plant. The proposition made to the Councilmanic committee was looked upon in a favorable light and the committee will bring the matter before the Council next Monday evening at the adjourned meeting.

The committee is inclined to look with favor on the matter of taking hold of the garbage business, but do not feel disposed to collect ashes, as this business is taken care of by a number of local ash-carters, and there is no disposition to interfere with them. If the city should collect the garbage and use the sanitary plant, which seems probable, a slight tax will be imposed on the taxpayers to defray the expense of the work. That is the plan now being considered by the Council committee, although nothing definite has been decided.

THESE CANDIDATES ARE GOOD AS ELECTED NOW.

NO POLITICS IN THIS PRIMARY.

Voters of North Plainfield Township Met in a Citizens' Primary—Benjamin Clark for Town Committeeman.

The voters of North Plainfield town ship know no such thing as politics in the choice of their local officials. As told in yesterday's Press a Citizens' primary was held last night, in which men of all political parties mixed in a good-natured manner.

The contest in the primary was a good-natured one and was conducted on the lines predicted in The Press story yesterday. The residents of the eastern end of the township turned out in force to secure the nomination of one of their neighbors as Town Committeeman, and they were successful, for Benjamin Clark was named over the present incumbent, William H. Smith, by a vote of 45 to 16. The minority faction accepted their defeat in good grace, and have no thought of rebelling at the outcome.

William Demler was renominated for Town Clerk without opposition. George N. Steward, the old reliable Constable, was renominated, though there was slight opposition. William H. Morris was named for Assessor, and Dan VanOrden for Justice of the Peace. The election will be but a formality, as there will be no opposition to the ticket.

For Child Study.

Tomorrow the State Association for Child Study will complete its organization at a meeting to be held in the new high school, Newark, at 10 a. m. An instructive programme has been arranged, and its prime feature is an address to be made by Dr. G. Stanley Hall of Worcester, Mass., the father of the "child-study" movement. School teachers and all others interested in the training of child life are cordially invited to attend the meeting and affiliate with the organization.

Entertained Her Scholars.

Mrs. T. W. Powell, teacher in the Sunday-school at Grace M. E. church, entertained her class last evening at her home on Fairview avenue, and a very pleasant time resulted. There were recitations, songs and the playing of games, all of which helped to pass the time too quickly. The hostess served refreshments in abundance to her guests, after which they departed, thanking Mrs. Powell for the very enjoyable evening.

Resolutions of Condolence.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Roselle, March 10—Roselle Lodge, Knights of Pythias, held a special meeting Wednesday night to take action on the death of Peter Finger, of Plainfield, who was a member. Resolutions of condolence to his family were passed, and a committee appointed to represent the lodge at the funeral services.

Chancery Clerk Thompson Home.

Clerk in Chancery L. A. Thompson reached his home in Somerville yesterday morning from Florida. He has been spending the last six weeks visiting his daughter, Mrs. Charles Roberts, of Basking Ridge, who is spending the winter south.

Members of Board of Health.

The Board of Health for the ensuing year consists of Messrs. H. B. Newhall, J. A. Smith, Fred W. Dunn, B. VanD. Hedges, M. D. and W. H Murray, M. D. The officials of the Board are Wm. Addis, inspector, and M. B. Lewis clerk.

—The annual meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church will be held tonight.

RIVAL GYMNASIS MEET NEXT WEEK.

Dual Contest Between Plainfield and New Brunswick Y.M.C.A.'s

TEAMS HAVE BEEN CHOSEN.

CONTEST WILL BE HELD IN NEW BRUNSWICK NEXT THURSDAY.

Three Moves on Three Pieces of Apparatus by Each Man—Each Association Selects a Move and the Other Will be an Original One—Details Have Been Settled by the Physical Directors.

The date for the dual gymnastic contest between the Plainfield and New Brunswick Y. M. C. A.'s has been set Wednesday afternoon Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood, of the local association, went to New Brunswick and completed the arrangements for the contest. It will be held in the New Brunswick association's gymnasium on the evening of Thurday, March 16th.

The contest is the second of a series. The first was in athletic events and was held in this city, Plainfield winning by a big majority. A new banner will be offered for this contest and will bear on it the name of the members of the winning team. Its design will be selected by the winning association.

Each association willl be represented in the contest by teams of three men each. Three pieces of apparatus will be used, the high horizontal bar, the parallel bars and the German horse. There will be three moves by each man on each piece of apparatus.

There was considerable discussion between the two physical directors over the character of the moves. It has finally been decided that each association shall select a move on each piece of apparatus. One man from one association will lead in a move and then the other team will follow the same move. The other side will try their move in turn. The third move will give each side a chance to try some original move.

The scoring will be similar to that in the gymnastic contest held in the Plainfield Association. There will be a possible ten points for each man on each move, making a possible thirty points on each piece of apparatus, or ninety points for each man in the contest.

Plainfield will be represented by three of her best gymnasts, Frank Marcley, Walter L. Long and Eric Moraller. The New Brunswick team will be composed of Rooney, Thompson and White.

There will be three judges of the contest, all experts. Those selected are Physical Director Smith, of the Newark Y. M. C. A.; one of the best gymnasts of the Twenty-third Street Branch, New York, and one of the Rutgers College gymnasts.

The committee in charge of the ball were B. Linmark, chairman; G. Peterson, secretary; H. Hansen, treasurer. Henry Sorenson was floor manager and the reception committee consisted of G. Nelson, Mrs. C. Rummell, Mrs. Gerlick, Miss E Connell and Miss C. Lumbery.

The Poor Brakeman.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The horrible accident at Bound Brook yesterday to the unfortunate brakeman who had both legs cut off while coupling cars prompts the query: How long will railroads be permitted to ignore State laws that requires automatic couplers? But this involves the expenditure of money, and what matters it to corporations if a poor mortal is maimed, since it is an implied contract between the railroads and the employed, that he takes all chances of loss of limb or life. New Church at Basking Ridge.

The erection of a new M. E. church edifice at Basking Ridge, which has been under discussion a long time, is now an assured thing. Rev. J. E. Appley, the pastor, has now raised $4,000 and has hopes of raising yet by subscription an amount sufficient to build the church free from debt. The new structure will be built of stone, and when finished will be one of the most beautiful edifices in the county.

LOST LEGS, THEN DIED

CHARLES LAWRENCE UNABLE TO SURVIVE THE TERRIBLE INJURIES.

Died at the Hospital Early This Morning, Just Before His Sorrowing Wife Reached the Institution to See Him

Charles Lawrence, of Philadelphia, who had both legs run over by a car on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad while attempting to make a coupling near Bound Brook, yesterday afternoon, died at the Muhlenberg Hospital in this city this morning at 3:30 o'clock.

Lawrence limbs were terrible crushed and the bones in both legs were shattered so that it was impossible to save either one of them. After the injured man had recovered somewhat from the shock to his system both legs were amputated by the hospital staff. After the operation he revived from the anaesthetics administered to him and was conscious up to the time of his death.

His wife, who is twenty-two years of age, arrived at the hospital a few minutes after he died. She was prostrated with grief when she learned the sad news, as she did not know how serious his injuries were until she arrived at the hospital.

The remains were shipped to the dead man's home in Philadelphia this morning, where they will be interred.

POLITICS IN DUNELLEN AN UNKNOWN FACTOR.

HARMONIOUS CITIZENS' PRIMARY.

Mayor Brakeley Re-Nominated Without Opposition—But Little Contest for Other Nominations

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, March 10.—The Citizens' primary was held last night in the town hall, and officers were nominated to be voted for Tuesday. Everything went off smoothly, and there was very little opposition to the original ticket.

The call for the primary was issued by R. J. Swackhamer, a Democrat. Frank Wyncoop was elected chairman. Dr. P. M. Brakeley was given the nomination for Mayor, no one running against him. Firman H. Gise and Joel Giddis were named for Freeholder, but Gise beat Giddis by over forty votes.

J. Newton Apgar and Fred Wilcox were nominated for Councilmen and were elected over Fred Haynes and Frank Humpstone. Samuel Luckey received the nomination for Commissioner of Appeals. The appropriations made were just what the Council had asked for, $1,800 for borough expenses and $150 for the poor.

It is said that another ticket will be placed in the field before election day.

CHURCH OFFICERS CHOSEN.

Charles W. McCutchen President of East Third Street Baptist Society.

The annual meeting of the East Third Street Baptist Society was held last night. Officers were elected as follows: President, Charles W. McCutchen; secretary, Irving L Brady; treasurer, L. W. Serrell.

The terms of L. W. Serrell and I. L. Brady, trustees, expired, and they were elected again for two years. H. E. Neeham was elected to fill the unexpired term of Rufus K. Case. The treasurer reported that there was a balance of $10 in the treasury, and the reports of the secretary and other officers showed that the affairs of the society were in good condition.

Surprised by Her Lodge Sisters.

A surprise party was given to Mrs. John S. Hope, of East Third street, last night. BOROUGH DEMOCRATS OPEN HEADQUARTERS.

Great Activity Among Mayor Wilson's Friends.

REPUBLICANS ACTIVE, TOO.

BOTH POLITICAL PARTIES ARE DOING THEIR BEST.

Democratic Headquarters are Located on Somerset Street Opposite Manning Avenue—Councilman MacLoughlin's Communication Made a Good Impression—Candidate Newt. Smalley is Hustling Hard

The Democrats of the borough opened up headquarters last night at 109 Somerset street, opposite Manning avenue. Flattering reports were received from different sources. The canvass is now under way and everything is progressing smoothly. The supporters of Mayor Wilson are attending to the minor details of the campaign in systematic order. All voters who favor Mayor Wilson's reelection are invited to call. The managers will make a short, sharp and decisive strife and they already claim to scent victory. The headquarters will be kept open day and night until after election.

The perfect organization of the Democrats is only a repetition of their usual activity; sometimes in the face of almost positive defeat. This year they have much encouragement from many sources. A feature of their platform is that they are willing to stand on the borough report. Councilman McLaughlin's communication made a fine impression last night. Old-line Democrats called at headquarters and expressed themselves as highly satisfied with the progress of the campaign, and there were many denials of the reports which have been current during the fore part of the week as to disaffections. Everyone seems to take a personal interest in the campaign and good work is being done.

The Republican workers are not letting any grass grow under their feet, figuratively speaking, either. Candidate Smalley is working day and night to enthuse Republican voters, as well as any others that he comes in contact with, in support of his candidacy. Besides his personal work Mr. Smalley has a large number of regular Republican workers at his back and taken altogether they make a strong force. They are constantly attacking Mayor Wilson's administration and among a certain class of voters it cannot be denied but that they make an impression that will be reflected in the way the votes are cast on election day.

Many people think because Elston M. French opposed the nomination of Mayor Wilson and favored Mr. H. P. Reynolds in the Democratic Primary held last week that he will also oppose the re-election of Mr. Wilson, but we understand this is not the case. Mr. French has no personal feeling against Mayor Wilson and intends to vote for him and support the Democrat ticket. As a member of the Democratic executive committee Mr. French is bound to take this course.

SOCIABLE AT WARREN CHAPEL.

Successful Affair Arranged by the Ladies' Aid Society.

A successful sociable was held at Warren chapel last evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. J. W. Gavett had charge of the entertainment which consisted of recitations by Frank O Bristol, and vocal solos by Miss Olive Lovell, of Flemington, accompanied by Miss Vosseller, of Flemington. Those who entertained did so in an admirable manner and won the hearty approbation of all present.

After the entertainment refreshments were served by a committee consisting of Mrs. Stiglitz, Mrs. William A. Wilson, Mrs. Sutton and Mrs. Fink.

Funeral of Peter Finger.

The funeral of the late Peter Finger was held yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the home at Washingtonville and was very largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Geo. Hauser, pastor of the German Reformed church, officiated. There were present delegations from the Knights of Pythias from Roselle and Plainfield, and from their members pall-bearers were chosen. There was a large number of floral tributes from friends. Interment took place at Samptown.

Lawyer Robert M. Clark delivered a lecture on practical business law at the Plainfield Business College this morning.

IS IT A TRIFLE?
THAT COMMON TROUBLE, ACID DYSPEPSIA OR SOUR STOMACH.
Now Recognized as a Cause of Serious Disease.

Acid dyspepsia, commonly called heartburn or sour stomach, is a form of indigestion resulting from fermentation of the food. The stomach being too weak to digest it, the food remains until fermentation begins, filling the stomach with gas, and a bitter, sour, burning taste in the mouth is often present. This condition soon becomes chronic and being an every day occurence is given but little attention. Because dyspepsia is not immediately fatal, many people do nothing for the trouble.

Within a recent period a remedy has been discovered prepared solely to cure dyspepsia and stomach troubles. It is known as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and is becoming rapidly used and prescribed as a radical cure for every form of Dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been placed before the public and are sold by all druggists for 50 cents per package. It is prepared by the F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., and while it promptly and effectually restores a vigorous digestion, at the same time is perfectly harmless and will not injure the most delicate stomach, but on the contrary by giving perfect digestion strengthens the stomach, improves the appetite and makes life worth living

DEWEY IS NOT WELL

Washington Authorities Believe Reports About His Ill Health.

TOM REED OBSTRUCTIONIST

Canned Beef Abandoned as a Ration—The Soldier Congressmen Have Had No Salary for Three Months—Crowds Continue to Crowd the White House Seeking Appointments.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—When his attention was called to the report that Admiral Dewey is breaking down, Secretary Long said that he had no information on the matter. The rumors of the admiral's ill health have been in circulation with more or less persistency for the past four months They are all traceable to private reports, though naval officers who have returned recently from Manila agree that the stories probably have some basis in fact.

These officers do not deny that the admiral has aged in appearance notably within the past year. His hair is undoubtedly whiter and his figure shows signs of that weakness which might be expected to come with advancing years. Dewey will be sixty-two years old next December, and for many years has not been a strong man physically.

Meantime he has had imposed upon him the most severe and exacting duties so that it is but natural that his physique should show the effects of the tremendous strain.

Some time ago the president feared that the great strain he was under might overtax him, so he cabled Dewey, through Secretary Long, permission to return to the United States.

The admiral declined to avail himself of this permission, saying that he wished to finish the task he had begun at Manila.

The president accepted this statement and Dewey remains by his own wish; he is free to return to the United States whenever he cares to do so, and the department will relieve him by cable orders.

In that case Captain N. H. Dyer, the commander of the Baltimore, the senior captain on the Asiatic squadron, would have command of the American squadron temporarily, and probably would be relieved later by one of the rear admirals recently created, nearly all of whom are anxious to assume active flag rank before retirement.

Canned Beef Abandoned.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Regarding the statement recently made that the troops now afloat for the Philippines and hereafter to be sent, would be furnished beef on the hoof as travel rations, it was said at the war department yesterday that this is in a way true, but does not indicate any material change of plan in the handling of troops in transit.

The transports destined for the Philippines are being furnished as far as possible with refrigerated beef, but this plan is limited in a number of cases by the size of the refrigerating plant aboard the vessel.

Where the refrigerating apparatus is not large enough to take care of fresh beef for the whole voyage, cattle on the hoof are being shipped, to be killed as required.

Mr. Reed's Attitude.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—There is an impression around Washington that Thomas B. Reed, who has declared his antagonism to the administration, is not going to let his opponents have a clear field this summer in their fight against his re-election as speaker of the next House.

Already his hand is seen in the work of the Republican House caucus committee, appointed to prepare a financial measure for the next Congress. Although the committee was named by General Grosvenor, a friend of the administration, there are several members on it who are out and out Reed men and who will follow his wishes.

It is the idea of Mr. Reed and his adherents to prepare a measure for temporary relief while the administration is anxious for one for general currency reform.

Mr. Reed, it is claimed, believes that some temporary measure is all that the committee should recommend, and that it should not go beyond permission to national banks to issue notes up to the full face value of the bonds deposited to secure circulation, and a provision that greenbacks, when once redeemed in gold, shall not again be issued except in exchange for gold. On the other hand the party represented by the secretary of the treasury and the Indianapolis Monetary Commission, desires a general currency reform law, such as proposed in the bill prepared by Mr. Gage.

It is hinted in more than one quarter that this position of Mr. Reed will do a great way in influencing the administration forces in the organization of the next House. They certainly do not want a speaker in the chair who not only opposes the administration expansion policy, but also its ideals of currency reform. The feasibility of putting up a candidate against him is already being discussed.

Pay of Soldier Congressmen

Washington, D. C., March 10.—It was supposed that when the House declined to consider the report of the committee on the judiciary, which held that Representatives Wheeler, Colson, Robbins and Campbell had vacated their seats in the House by accepting commissions in the army, the speaker would withdraw his opposition to these members.

This impression proved to be wrong for Speaker Reed declined to recognize General Wheeler when he attempted to address the House on Saturday morning and has so far declined to sign the warrants of these members for their pay for the session.

That the speaker is able to prevent members of the House from drawing their pay is somewhat remarkable, for it would seem that it is beyond his power to say who shall be paid and who shall not. It is the case, however, that none of them has drawn any pay since Congress met for their services as members of the House, and it looks as if they never would.

PANEL OF THE QUAY JURY.

Drawing Held in Philadelphia in the Presence of Judge Beitler.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 10.—The panel from which the jury is to be made up for the trial on April 10th of M. S. Quay and Richard R. Quay, on charges of conspiracy to misuse the state funds and money of the People's Bank, was drawn yesterday in common pleas court room No. 1 in the presence of Judge Beitler, who is expected to preside at the trial.

District Attorney Rothermel was on hand, and his presence gave an indication of the care that was being exercised.

The proceedings were watched by an unusual number of onlookers, it having become known early in the afternoon that the drawing would take place. The work has heretofore been done in a perfunctory manner, and by custom has been conducted almost wholly by the sheriff or his representative.

When the February jury was drawn it is said, the slips taken from the wheel were neither read aloud nor recorded in the court room.

The sheriff is nettled at the criticisms concerning the jury, especially the assertion that many of the talesmen came from wards controlled by Quay factional leaders, and he yesterday exhibited a determination to adhere to the letter of the law.

Judge Beitler several days ago notified the sheriff to draw a panel of fifth men, and this number was taken out. Between five and ten of these will probably not be found by the writ servers, leaving forty or forty-five from whom the twelve jury men will be taken.

Deadlock Tighter Than Ever.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 10.—There has been a stiffening of the Quay lines since the receipt of Senator Quay's telegram saying that he would be here in two weeks to take personal charge of his campaign for re-election, and the conference of Quay men, which was addressed by United States Senator Penrose, Attorney General Elkin and others, has also encouraged the Quay men.

The politicians generally regard the Penrose conference as direct notice to the insurgent Republicans that there will be no surrender; that it must be Quay or nobody.

The bribery investigation is expected by those opposing Quay to bring about such a disintegration of his forces as to compass his defeat in the end.

Both sides predict that something will happen in a week or two, but they do not intimate in what way.

Senator Stober of Lancaster, a prominent Quay supporter, slipped and fell at the Union station yesterday, and fractured his left leg. He was removed to his home.

A pair was secured with Senator Higgins, Democrat.

The Business Men's League, having offered thirty thousand dollars reward for the detection of bribery, may take the initial step in the prosecutions.

The anti-Quay men say that the Penrose conference was planned to counteract the rapid change of sentiment regarding the continuance of the dead lock, and to inject new vigor into the fight for Quay.

Disinterested politicians say whether Quay is elected or not his friends will stand together for the purpose of maintaining the party organization, which is now in their control.

Congressman-elect Joseph C. Sibley left for his home yesterday, admitting the failure of his plan to bring about the election of a United States senator. He says that history will justify his cause.

Tom Johnson's Lost Relatives Found.

Louisville, Ky., March 10.—Mrs. Ellen Johnson and her fifteen year old son, the sister-in-law and nephew of Millionaire Tom Johnson, the single tax champion, were found by the detectives employed by Mr. Johnson yesterday.

It is said that the mother and son are heirs to an estate worth nearly two million dollars. Investigation by detectives shows that the late Colonel Charles F. Johnson, the brother of Tom Johnson, secretly married an Irish maid, Ellen McMahon. She and her sister, Margaret McMahon, had lived in the county Tipperary, as nearly as can be learned. Their grandfather, James O'Rourke, was a wealthy East Indian trader, with a residence in Bombay.

When in their twenties the two girls left their home in Ireland and came to meet friends in the new world. This was about twenty-five years ago. The two landed in New York and finally took up their homes in Louisville.

Ellen McMahon secured employment in the family of Colonel Johnson, where she worked as a seamstress and governess. He married her secretly, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Father Keilp of the Trinity Catholic church in New Albany, on October 31, 1882.

The heirs will send lawyers to Ireland to settle the estate which was left by the grandfather, James O'Rourke.

Big Iron Mill Trust Forming.

Birmingham, Ala., March 10.—An expert from the East is here examining all rolling mill plants, with a view to taking them into a new iron mill trust now forming in the east.

Representatives of the Birmingham district mills are just back from New York, where, it is understood, arrangements were practically concluded by which the local mills will enter the proposed combination.

The new trust, which will be incorporated in New Jersey, will, it is said, have a capital of thirty million dollars and will be organized within two weeks.

Practically all the mills in the South will be included, as well as thirty or more eastern plants.

Monster Gold Nugget

San Francisco, Cal., March 10.—The steamer Alameda brings news of a gold nugget found in western Australia weighing twenty and one-half pounds avoirdupois.

The strike was made early in February by the McFie brothers and a man named Parkes, about twenty miles from Marble Bar, in the Pilbarra gold field.

The massive slug, together with over two hundred ounces of smaller size, was uncovered just two miles north of where the Pantomime nugget, weighing thirty-four ounces, was found nine years ago.

ENGLAND'S GREAT NAVY

Two Cruisers Suddenly Ordered to China from Gibraltar.

UPHOLDS ITALY'S DEMANDS

The Admiralty Reveals in the House of Commons a Stupendous Naval Programme for the Ensuing Year—Personnel to be Increased by 40,000—Comment on Chinese Situation.

London, March 10.—The British cruisers Aurora and Orlando, which are coaling at Gibraltar, have been ordered to proceed to China.

In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Broderick, Parliamentary foreign secretary, said, in reply to a question, that the government sympathized with Italy in her desire to possess a coaling station in Chinese waters.

Mr. Broderick also said that France had agreed to accept a coaling station in Muscat upon the same terms as those granted by the sultan to England.

Mr. Broderick further said that the government was not aware that Russia had renewed her protest against the Chinese northeastern extension loan.

He announced that it was untrue that England supported the Belgian claim to the concession of Hankau.

Mr. Goschen said that the cost of last year's naval work had been enormous, but if, as he maintained, it had placed the navy in a state of preparedness, the taxpayer would be rewarded by the serene equanimity with which the country was ready to face any danger.

No reference to the czar's peace conference had appeared in the estimates of any nation. A total of 685,000 tons of warships, he said, were in course of construction in France, Russia, Japan, the United States, Italy and Germany, and 225,000 tons more were projected.

In the face of these figures England's programme could not be termed aggressive. He had decided that during the coming year two ironclads should be constructed, together with two armored cruisers and three smaller cruisers of the fastest type. The total increase of expense entailed by these additions to the navy would be 2,016,000 pounds, making the total estimate for the coming year 26,594,000 pounds.

In conclusion Mr. Goschen said he hoped that the result of the peace conference might be the means of permitting him to amend his proposals.

FILIPINOS CAPTURE STEAMSHIPS.

The Gloria and the Saturnus Were in the Hands of Insurgents.

Manila, March 10.—Two overdue English steamships, sailing under American registers, have returned here. One of these, the Gloria, sailed northward from Manila on January 10, and the other, the Saturnus, departed on February 1.

The insurgents seized both vessels at Curriamo, and the crews deserted after looting the ships.

The vessels were released by the insurgents on February 6.

The captain of the Gloria reports that the crew of the steamship San Joaquin have killed their captain.

Everything is quiet along the lines around Manila.

The Filipino Outbreak.

San Francisco, Cal., March 10.—Advices from Hong Kong give an account of an interview with John Barrett, ex-United States minister to Siam, in which he gives it as his opinion that the attack of the Filipinos on the American troops was contrary to the wishes of the Filipino political leaders. He says that the so-called Filipino army is thoroughly disorganized, many of its branches being entirely outside of the control of its leaders.

Mr. Barrett further says: "Now that the treaty is ratified right after their reckless opening of hostilities, the Filipino leaders are almost dumbfounded and are completely at a loss as to their future policy.

"They candidly admit that the worst blow possible has been struck at their prospects. One even confessed to me that the very best thing that they could do now was to disband, disarm, and quietly yield to American control, trusting that full justice would eventually be done them.

New Troops for Philippines.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—The adjutant general yesterday designated the order in which the six regiments of regulars recently assigned to duty in the Philippines will leave the United States.

All the troops will sail from San Francisco, as that route is considered more practical than the Suez canal route.

The first regiment of the six to leave will be the Ninth infantry, now at the Madison Barracks, New York. It will be followed in turn as fast as transports can be provided, by the Sixth artillery and the Twenty-first, Thirteenth, Sixth and Sixteenth regiments of infantry in the order named.

Part of the Sixth artillery will be assigned to garrison duty at Honolulu.

KIPLING IMPROVES STEADILY.

Has a Long Talk With His Wife and Asks About the Philippines.

New York, March 10.—Rudyard Kipling and his daughter Elsie are both improving very rapidly now.

Mr. Doubleday, the publisher, made the following statement:

"Mr. Kipling is still too weak to take any very solid food. We feed him daily with beef juice, oysters and eggs. When we will be able to change his diet for something more substantial, I can't tell.

"Mr. Kipling cannot as yet sit up. He is bright and cheerful, however, and last night had a long talk with his wife. Not a word has yet been said to him concerning Josephine's death. We are keeping that until he is stronger and better able to stand it."

Mr. Doubleday said also that Mr. Kipling had been informed about the condition of affairs in the Philippines. He seemed to be interested in the news of the fighting.

A West Townsend, Mass., lady suffered from severe stomach trouble for four years. Food distressed her and made her dizzy; she could eat only the plainest food, and even that caused her distress. She bought a box of Ripans Tabules and, she says, "began to feel stronger and notice that my food did not distress me so badly. I have received great benefit from them."

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

Crowds at the White House.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—The White House is a sight to behold. Senators and representatives are standing "six deep" waiting for a chance to get at the president. Their ostensible purpose in calling upon him this week is "just to say good bye," but their tireless zeal in attending to this courtesy is actuated by a desire to put in a word in regard to army commissions, staff appointments and the few fat places under the census.

The president intends in a few days to announce the appointment of one hundred and one second lieutenants, whom he is authorized by the reorganization bill to add to the regular army. It is said that twenty thousand applications for these places are already on file, and some of the applicants were personally represented at the White House this morning.

The Beef Inquiry.

Chicago, March 10.—Major General James F. Wade and Brigadier General George L. Gillespie, members of the military court of inquiry investigating General Miles's beef charges, arrived here yesterday. The board held a brief executive session at division army headquarters in the Pullman building. As a result of the executive session the members left at once for the stock yard district to visit the packing houses and observe the slaughtering methods and the various processes of packing and refrigerating beef.

M. Cambon at the White House.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—The French ambassador, M. Cambon, called at the White House yesterday to pay his respects to President McKinley The election of M. Loubet as president of the French Republic occurred a few days before the ambassador left Paris for Washington.

He paid a farewell call on the new president, who, after a high tribute to the United States, charged the ambassador to convey a personal expression of good will to President McKinley.

M. Cambon was accompanied by M. Thiebaut, secretary of the French embassy.

The president received them in his private library and warmly greeted the ambassador on his return.

M. Cambon, in turn, spoke of M. Loubet's high regard for America, and expressed the French president's personal greeting to the president of the United States.

TAMMANY TO RAZE CHINATOWN.

Gambling Houses, Opium Dens and Other Places of More or Less Fame Will Go.

New York, March 10.—Tammany Hall intends to root out Chinatown as it exists to-day. Pell street is to be made one hundred feet wide from Chatham Square west to Mott street, and from Mott street to Mulberry Bend Park, an extension of Pell street, also one hundred feet wide, will be made.

The powers of the police department and the department of health have been exhausted in the effort to remedy the evils of Chinatown. It is felt that nothing can be done except to wipe the section off the map of the city.

For some time the Christian missions which, for years have been working in Chinatown, have been complaining that opium dens, gambling places and disorderly houses are open in defiance of the police, and that the few acres which lie between Chatham square, Pell and Mott streets, will soon be as bad as the Chinatown in San Francisco.

The police claim to have been energetic of late, but the pipe smokers, gamblers and other law breakers are wily. The department of health has found that it can go no further in its efforts to improve the sanitary condition of the place, for although the population of Chinatown is dense, no fault can be found with it on the score of cleanliness.

The present mayor of Chinatown is Yung Shung. He took office last April, succeeding Chung Yuk Chin. Of course his office is not recognized by the charter, although the mayor is elected regularly every year by the leading merchants of Pell, Doyers and Mott streets. These merchants have an organization known as Chong Wah Gong Shaw, and they run things in Chinatown.

High Diver May Die

New York, March 10.—Thomas Donaldson, the diver, whose skull was fractured in a daring 54-foot dive from the roof of Madison Square Garden into a tank, had not recovered consciousness at any time and his condition is said by the physicians to be very critical.

This was his third dive from the little platform in the girders of the roof to the water of the tank some fifty feet below.

Each time thousands of spectators crowded around the tank and watched the event with bated breath, and cheered when the sturdy little Englishman appeared after the plunge apparently unhurt.

The last time he dove straighter and more gracefully than ever. The spectators were again all ready to cheer, but Donaldson remained under water. Something like a panic then ensued among the women in the crowd. Two expert swimmers leaped into the tank with their clothes on and a minute later Donaldson, bleeding and unconscious, was lying on the floor surrounded by the doctors.

He had made similar and even more dangerous dives hundreds of times before.

Neil Burgess a Bankrupt.

New York, March 10.—Neil Burgess, the actor of "Widow Bedott" fame, who lives at 109 East Fifty-second street, and who was recently a defendant in a number of suits to obtain a judgment for debt, filed yesterday in the clerk's office of the United States district court a formal petition in bankruptcy.

Burgess's liabilities, as presented in the petition, amount to $104,059. The assets are nothing, there being no mention of personal effects to the extent even of a scarfpin.

Burgess's adversity dates from his management of the Star theatre three or more years ago. The long list of liabilities contains numerous bills for advertising, one of them amounting to $2,000.

A loan from Denman Thompson for five hundred dollars figures in the list. The largest amount due to any one of the creditors is a debt of $35,000 to Jacob Steiner, with $14,000 more specified as Mrs. Burgess's account. The smallest amount is $2.25 for soap.

LI HUNG CALLED BACK

Empress Dowager Fears British and American Ministers.

THE EMPEROR STILL ALIVE

The Wearer of the Yellow Jacket and Peacock Feather Again in Favor—Uncertainty of Foreign and Palace Politics Calls for His Immediate Presence—Assassins Executed.

Vancouver, B. C., March 10.—Advices from China by the steamer Empress of Japan, state that Li Hung Chang, who has been busily occupied in the construction of Yellow river works in Shan Tung province, has been ordered by an imperial edict of the Empress Dowager to return at once to Pekin. It is said that this step is due to the uncertainty of foreign and palace politics, and that the Empress Dowager wishes to have her old adviser with her.

Meanwhile Emperor Kwang-Hsu appears only to be kept alive at the Dowager Empress's will. He may be murdered at any time. The Empress Dowager's fear of the ministers of Great Britain, America and other nations alone prevented the summary poisoning of the Emperor after the coup d'etat of September, and the health of the Emperor gradually improved, the suggestion being that slow poisoning had been attempted. Encouraged, however, by the apparent indifference of the foreign representatives, especially by the cordiality with which the wives of the foreign ambassadors accepted invitations to the palace, the Empress Dowager, urged by Nang-Yi, president of the board of punishments, has determined to make way with Kwang-Hsu.

A Pekin letter states that the Emperor's condition recently has grown worse, and this appears to point to the fact that the Empress Dowager has learned the secret of pitting the jealousies of opposing ministers against each other and reaping benefit therefrom.

The Japanese government has decided to dispatch another warship of shallow draught to China for the further protection of Japanese subjects in South China.

The negotiations between the United States and Chinese governments for compensation for the murder of the American missionary McKearthey, who was killed a short time ago by rebels at Shung-King, have been brought to a satisfactory conclusion, the Chinese government acceding to all demands.

At the instance of the British consul the murderers of Missionary Fleming were executed at Chung Kiang. The French priest, Fleury, who was captured by the notorious Yu-Mantze, has been delivered to the French consul at Chung-Tiang in consequence of the victory of imperial troops.

Yu-Mantze escaped, and is said to have fled further west, toward Tibet, with several of his family and 200 adherents.

Forty Russian harbor engineers commissioned by the government have gone to Talien-Wan to carry out the harbor works, the Russian government having set apart five million roubles. On an island in front of Talien-Wan a strong fort will protect the entrance to the harbor. Two docks will be constructed to accommodate shipping, and warehouses and custom houses will be erected.

A branch line of the East Asian Railway will run to Talien-Wan, which will be ready as a commercial harbor in the summer of 1900.

England and China are gradually settling the Burmo-Chinese frontier. Work has progressed smoothly, the Chinese being gratified by a slight modification of the frontier line in the shape of a hill, which apparently they desire to fortify.

ARREST OF AN EDITOR-POSTMASTER

Edward F. Bogert of Wilkesbarre Charged With Tampering With the Mails.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 10.—Edward F. Bogert, postmaster of this city, was arrested at midnight yesterday in his private office while in the act of opening and reading private letters belonging to other persons. He was charged with tampering with the mails. He waived a hearing and entered bail in the sum of eight thousand dollars to appear at the next session of the United States court.

The news has created a profound sensation throughout the city.

It has been for some time suspected that private letters were being tampered with, and prominent persons were complainants, among them being Marshall Barring of Barring's Detective Agency, and Editor Flick, proprietor of the Evening Times.

A quiet investigation has been going on for some time, and the discovery was made through the agency of a decoy letter.

United States secret service men have been working on the case.

Mr. Bogert was appointed to the Wilkesbarre postoffice three years ago by President Cleveland. He was one of the last lot of appointments made by the Cleveland administration. A strong fight was made against him on the ground that the postoffice had been formerly held by a brother, J. K. Bogert, and after that by the widow of J. K. Bogert, and that another brother, who had been a deputy postmaster, had been convicted of stealing postage stamps, but was let off on full payment being made to the government.

The contest was prolonged and many prominent politicians became involved in it.

United States Commissioner Hahn is quoted as saying that the evidence against Bogert is strong and that there is plenty of it. The salary of Mr. Bogert as postmaster is thirty-five hundred dollars a year. The deputy postmastership is held by his sister-in-law and the salary for the position is eighteen hundred dollars.

In case of the removal of the postmaster for the present offence the deputyship will also be changed. Bogert is proprietor of the Evening Leader and has always been prominent in various beneficial and social organizations in this city.

He was for years a director in the Eastern League Baseball Association, and he was president of the Wilkesbarre Baseball Club.

THE GOULD BLACKMAIL CASE.

Counsel in Summing Up Score Each Other's Clients Unmercifully.

Albany, March 10.—The Albany County court-room was crowded to the doors yesterday by those who had come to hear the summing-up arguments in the case of Mrs. Cody, indicted for attempting to blackmail the Gould heirs. Mr. Dugan said in opening that the contest was one between millions on the one side and poverty on the other. Almost as soon as he began to speak out came Mrs. Cody's handkerchief and she sat with her elbows on her knees and her head bowed upon her hand while her counsel was presenting her case.

After a few words of introduction the attorney proceeded to review the case. "This is not a trial to determine whether Mrs. Angell was the wife of Jay Gould," he said. "It is to determine whether Mrs. Cody was guilty of blackmail in sending this letter to George Gould. Take this letter with you and I defy you to spell out a threat in its contents. This is not a trial for perjury. If it were Mrs. Angell herself would be the chief party to it. Mrs. Cody in all her work was only faithfully and honestly performing the business of her clients."

In opening for the prosecution, Mr. Dyer said: "Gentlemen, I ask you to find this old woman guilty because her life has been a life of crime, and because she has been prosecuting her blackmailing schemes for the last fifteen years."

Continuing, he asserted that she had not only engineered her blackmailing schemes but had originated them, by putting in the newspapers the very notices from reading which Mrs. Pierce came to believe that she was the daughter of Jay Gould. "If that woman did not change the marriage-record, she knows who did," said he.

He admitted that Mrs. Angell may have committed perjury, but said that it was due to Mrs. Cody's influence. Mr. Dyer spoke for fifty-five minutes.

In charging the jury Judge Gregory, after the usual preliminary remarks said: "You will have little difficulty in finding that Mrs. Cody sent the letter to George Gould. Mrs. Cody herself admitted it, and young Dack swore that he wrote it at her dictation. The question is, does it contain a threat?" At Mr. Dugan's request it was charged that "the threat, if there is one, must be in the Gould letter."

Albany, N. Y., March 10.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Margaret Cody, charged with attempting to blackmail Miss Helen Gould and George Gould, brought in a verdict of guilty last night, after being out eight hours.

Now that Miss Helen Gould has succeeded in her purpose of clearing the memory of her father from the stain that Mrs. Cody's plot put upon it, she again shows that she is a woman of noble sentiments, for no sooner was the verdict of guilty announced than she set about to obtain, if possible, the freedom of the aged convict.

She has advised and urged, now that all doubt of her father's alleged marriage is removed, that Mrs. Cody be not punished further.

It was said last night that Judge Gregory, in response to the magnanimous appeal of Miss Gould, has consented to allow Mrs. Cody to go free on her own recognizance to-day.

The jury in the case took seven ballots, the first standing: Guilty, eight; not guilty, three, blank one. When a verdict of guilty finally was reached it was coupled with a recommendation of mercy.

Mrs. Cody, who had remained in her chair in the court room most of the afternoon after the court adjourned, waiting to hear her fate, gasped and almost fainted when she heard the verdict of guilty. It was a quarter of an hour before she had recovered sufficiently to be conducted back to the jail.

Typhoid in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 10.—Typhoid fever prevails to an alarming extent in this city, the spread of the disease being so rapid as to almost justify a statement that it is epidemic. There are no fewer than six hundred typhoid patients in the hospitals, and it is estimated that three times that number are under treatment at their homes. Official reports to the board of health show that 3,232 persons have been stricken since the beginning of the year and of these 341 have died.

Dread of the disease is giving way to indignation. The people generally are convinced that the sickness and deaths could have been averted, and they are becoming aroused in a manner that may lead to summary proceedings if the agitation is kept up.

The disease is attributed to foul drinking water, and the state of the water supply is charged to dirty politics. Every movement for a better water system has been met promptly by political noses sniffing for "jobs."

Though a loan of $3,200,000 for improving the supply was authorized by direct vote of the people, in the month of February last year, not one step has been taken in the matter.

The loan itself has been tied up in the courts because of factional bickerings, one faction apparently being determined that the other shall not have the spending of the money.

Powderly to Investigate Barge Office.

New York, March 10.—Terence V. Powderly, commissioner general of immigration, has begun an investigation of affairs at the barge office at this port and will make any changes or modification which he thinks will facilitate the handling of immigrants.

"I am going to investigate every department," he said, "and a great many employes, from the lowest to the highest. It may take a week, perhaps a month. My work, however, will be thorough."

Mr. Powderly further said: "The tide of immigration at the present time is setting in strong at this port. The officers here say that they are handicapped for space. I will look into this some time before returning to Washington. It may be that I will find it necessary to order the enlargement of the barge office and of the accommodations for immigrants on Ellis island."

Mr. Powderly will carefully examine the immigrant officers as to their efficiency. It is understood that the special board of inquiry will also be subjected to investigation. This board decides whether or not an immigrant shall be allowed to enter this country.

The Grasping Capitalists.

During the agitation of the terms upon which the Plainfield Street Railway Company should be granted a franchise for the use of the city's streets to make their Scotch Plains extension, The Daily Press insisted that the capitalists desired the franchise principally that it might become an important link in a great trolley system which would eventually absorb the local lines.

Such being the case, we urged that extraordinary terms be secured from the capitalists for the use of the streets—which were conceded to be a pivotal point in their plans—and we are pleased to know that our advice was accepted to a great degree by the city officials. Under the terms advocated by The Daily Press one important part was the limiting of the length of years the franchise is to run. That this is a proper safe-guard for the people's rights is now evidenced in the prospect of the various trolley lines in this section of New Jersey being consolidated under one system. In considering the consolidation of these trolley interests the Elizabeth Journal makes the following comments:

A long time ago The Journal pointed out the tendency toward trolley consolidation. It foretold exactly what has since been verified, that all the separate trolley companies which started up in Plainfield, New Brunswick, Somerville, Elizabeth, Newark, Paterson and all the cities of this State, were but different phases of one gigantic scheme which would sooner or later include them all under one head and management, and which would control enormous capital and practically own all the trolley franchises in the State.

There is no longer any doubt in any mind that this was the original plan, known to its projectors, and that it has largely been carried out exactly as intended.

The application of these facts to the people of Union county is found in the Westfield avenue boulevard and trolley plan. The franchise between Elizabeth and Plainfield is very valuable. The trolley magnates want it as a part of their gigantic scheme. They will make vast sums of money out of it, and every year will increase its value and its money-making power.

Do the people want this, or do they want to give it away irrevocably? If they give it away, no matter whether on the north side or on the south side, it will soon fall into the hands of the consolidation; it will be reorganized and capitalized at many times its original cost; the consolidated companies will reap the constantly increasing revenues and the people will have little or nothing.

On the other hand, if the county keeps this valuable franchise in its own hands, it can reap all the revenues which would otherwise go into private purses.

If the people want to hold and own the most valuable franchise in Union county, with its constantly increasing revenue, now is the time for them to so decide. If they want to put millions in the pockets of private corporations they can do so.

The question hinges upon Westfield avenue. Shall it be a lease or a giveaway?

The District Court Bill.

Elizabeth officials are in a state of mind over the defeat of the bill in the Assembly designed to saddle the expense of running the District Court in that city upon Union county. The Leader indulges in this bit of sarcasm:

The bill to amend the District Court act, recommended by Mayor Mack in his inaugural message, and introduced in the House by Assemblyman Houston, was defeated through the efforts of Assemblyman Murray, of Plainfield, at the dictation of Union county "hayseeders," who, although willing to use the court for their purposes, are unwilling to have the expense thereof imposed upon the county.

Mr. Houston intends introducing another bill which City Attorney Connolly drew up, applying to counties of the second class, and he hopes to have it passed, but as the Legislature will likely adjourn next week, it is hardly probable that he will be successful.

The District Court bill should never have been passed in the first place, but if such a court was necessary to relieve the upper courts, it should have been maintained at the cost of the county and not of the people of Elizabeth.

J. Pierpont Morgan has offered to bear the entire cost, $25,000, of putting electric lights into St. Paul's cathedral in London. We shall hear next of Mr. Rockfeller or Mr. Carnegie offering to pay the expense of putting elevators in Windsor castle or the Tower of London.—Westerly (R. I.) Sun.

Comment on the above is scarcely nesessary, but we wonder if we will hear of the monarch of trusts aiding in the better construction, lighting or ventilating the homes of squalor in the country in which he has made his colossal fortune.

In Elizabeth the other day the fire engines stuck fast in the mud while going to a fire. Elizabeth is evidently in the same fix as New Brunswick and is economizing on the non-borrowing plan. Cities can burn down, of course, but they should never get into debt. Oh, no.—New Brunswick Home News.

The trouble with Elizabeth and New Brunswick is not so much that they do not have enough money. The real trouble is that there are too many political frills on the municipal garment.

The editor of the Westfield Standard complains because the editor of the Irvington News appropriated one of his editorial paragraphs without giving the proper credit. If such is really the case it is the first time on record that anyone has had the temerity to stand sponsor for the genial, but erratic, Pearsall's thoughts. The Standard editor should feel complimented rather than piqued.

Assemblyman Murray's bill permitting municipalities to offer a rebate for the payment of taxes previous to the regularly-appointed time under the local laws, has passed the Lower House. It is a measure founded on a sensible view of conducting a local government, and should meet with favorable action in the Senate and then go to Governor Voorhees for his signature to become a law.

The Orange school boys and girls have decided in a debate that man—represented in Adam—is a worse sinner than woman—represented in Eve. It is well that the discussion was confined to the original parties, else the debate might still be in progress.

Ambassador Choate has chosen a home in London right in the midst of nobles, dukes, princes and other royal personages. But the titled people will find that plain Mister Choate is quite as great as any one of them.

Charles Bradley, of Essex county, has been appointed State Director of Railroads and Canals by Governor Voorhees. It is a high-sounding title, but it is one office in which there is "all honor and no pay."

Senator Reed has the happy faculty of doing the right thing at the right time. He referred the bill making eight hours a day's work for newspapermen at $8 per hour to the Committee on Agriculture.

Elizabeth Democrats are preparing for the spring municipal campaign. Plainfield Democrats have not got over the sockdolager they received at the last municipal election in this city.

The Legislature has one good mark to its credit is passing the bill abolishing the "store order" payment of wages to the hard-working employes of the glass industry in South Jersey.

It was a disagreeable job for Sheriff Kirk to stand as the legal executioner of Roesel, but as long as it had to be done there is no man who is happier that the event is over than the Sheriff.

"Now a Pump Trust." And none but the elected few will use the handle.

HAYDN, THE COMPOSER OF "CREATION."

"Creation," Hayda's famous oratorio, was first performed March 19, 1799. On the centennial anniversaey of that event, March 19, 1899, the German Liederkranz, of New York, will sing "Creation" in Carnegie Music Hall. The fame of the composer, his composition and the society to sing the latter all combine to make this a great event.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

A new map of the city of Plainfield and North Plainfield has just been published, but one of the most important features of Plainfield has failed to be designated—the sewer beds.—Dunellen Call.

A bill has been passed in the assembly which protects the police of Elizabeth and Rahway from removal from office for political purposes. This is all right in its way, but now will the Assembly pass a bill prohibiting the appointment of police officers for political reasons? It's a poor rule that does not work both ways.—Elizabeth Journal.

The trolley forces in the Legislature are doing their best to kill Assemblyman Murray's bill repealing a franchise extender law passed last year. This law extends to July, 1900, lapsing franchises for street railroads regardless of the conditions on which the franchises were granted. As the trolley syndicates are sufficiently non partisan to have friends on both sides of the House, the outlook for Mr. Murray's repealer is anything but bright.—New York Tribune.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Last Tuesday evening there was a gathering of residents in the borough and in the party there were forty-three men not one of whom resided in what is known as the "Park" district. During the evening conversation drifted to politics and a vote was taken to see how those stood on the Mayorality. The result was that 41 voted for Mayor Wilson, while N.B. Smalley, the Republican candidate, received two votes.

GRAIN-O BRINGS RELIEF

to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a habit that is universally indulged in and almost as universally injurious. Have you tried Grain-O? It is almost like coffee but the effects are just the opposite. Coffee upsets the heart and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O tones up the stomach, aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. There is nothing but nourishment in Grain-O. It can't be otherwise. 15 and 25c. per package.

A

Grand Climax.

Tomorrow ends our Anniversary Week, and a busy week it has been for us. Right heartily have the good people of Plainfield responded to the inducements we have held out to them, and have made it a week memorable in our business history, not only for large selling, but for the making of many new business acquaintances. We desire to express our appreciation of and return our thanks for the liberal patronage of the week just closing. We hope for a continuance of the same and shall endeavor to merit it by putting forth every effort to make ours an ideal establishment in which to shop. We come to Plainfield to give its people a store second to none in New Jersey. With your co-operation we are fast succeeding.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, March 10—The case in tort of William B. Hayes against Drummond Williams came up for trial before Justice Sedam, of New Brunswick, Wednesday but was adjourned for a week after several motions had been made and granted. Hayes sued Williams in tort for fraud and deceit relating to the retaining illegally of a note. The case came up Wednesday but the plaintiff was not present. They failed to prove their action of deceit and made a motion to change the action from tort to contract. Williams admits that he owes Hayes $22 but has a bill against Hayes for $68. The Justice granted this motion, and granted Williams one week in which to file an off set. Williams now has the upper hand in the case. H. B. Cook, of New Brunswick, secured an execution against Williams for $10 a few weeks ago, and the sale to satify the judgment was to have taken place a few days ago, but was adjourned. Wednesday C. T. Rogers, of New Market, who held a chattel mortgage on all William's horses, carriages, harness, etc. forclosed, and everything was sold. Mr. Rogers was the purchaser, and bought everything in.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

Reserve Toys.

Each year, with the arrival of Christmas, there rushes into the home in which children dwell a flood of toys that threatens to inundate the nursery and make all semblance of order impossible. The playthings are so numerous that the satiated owners turn from one to the other without deriving thorough enjoyment from any one of them. The novelty soon wears off, and in a few weeks the pretty trifles are more or less broken or marred, and the little ones view them discontentedly, and long aloud for fresh fields and pastures new. To avert this certain reaction from the Yuletide excitement, the judicious mother will select from among the mass of toys a number which are to be laid aside for some future time. It is not necessary to tell the children of this scheme. A large box in the attic or in the upper shelf of some closet may be a storehouse for many of these treasures. There they will rest unharmed until the playthings in the nursery become an old story, when they in their turn are relegated to the upper shelf, and the new toys appear. These will be hailed with delight by the little ones by whom they have been forgotten. Or it may be that the children have been confined to the house by a storm, or, more trying still, to the nursery by some ailment that makes life seem dreary to their baby eyes. Then mamma appears with the reserve fund, and outdoor allurements and indoor ailments are forgotten in the joy of the new possessions. This system keeps the nursery from being overcrowded with toys, and preserves the toys from the breakages consequent upon such overcrowding. But best of all, it provides the children with a variety of amusements through the monotonous winter days.—Harper's Bazar.

Grooms for the Wheel.

Bicycle grooms and bicycle stables are the newest additions to the modern establishment. The stable may, in a small city house, be in the basement. The stalls for tandems and single machines are properly fitted up, and there the groom attends to his duties of oiling, cleaning, polishing, and inflating. His main duty, however, is to follow his mistress at a stated distance, whether she rides demurely along a city avenue or flies over a country road; so appearance is the main consideration in his selection. Observation shows that a rather young boy, of the "buttons" type, with a decided English air, is looked upon with the most favor. The liveries for these new attendants may be as resplendent or as picturesque as the taste of the mistress dictates.

The great majority of people, however, cannot afford the luxury of an especial attendant for their wheels, and "cleaning companies" have been established to meet their wants. Operators are sent to residences and for a comparatively small amount they keep the machines in perfect order. Very soon the people who persist in grooming their own wheels will be looked upon with the raised eyebrows that are bestowed on those who are so poor, or so independent, that they "do their own work."—Puritan.

The Mirror Does Not Flatter.

No doubt the human race would consider it little short of a universal tragedy if there were no looking glasses. Yet, in spite of their widespread use, it is an astonishing fact that none of us have ever seen ourselves as others see us.

In the first place, the reflection in the mirror does not portray our likeness with any attempt at accuracy. The hair is wrong in tone; the eyes are not correct in color, and our complexions are hopelessly libelled by this specious household deceiver. It is certain that if the looking glasses spoke the truth the sale of various complexion washes would decrease to half, for any fair skin looks gray and pallid in the glass, and numbers of women who have splendid complexions ruin them by trying to improve them because they look bad in the mirror. You may be certain that, however plain your face seems, it is by no means as plain as it appears in the telltale mirror. Secondly, you cannot assume your natural expression while peering in the looking glass. The eye must be in a certain position before you can see at all, and the eye, so far as expression is concerned, governs the face. The consequence is that you can see only one of your expressions in the glass, and that expression is one of attentive examination. All the other expressions by which your friends know you, favorable or unfavorable, you have never seen, and never will see.

Good for Throat Irritation.

A troublesome throat irritation or cough, the result of a winter cold, is most annoying, but a home remedy will relieve and oftentimes cure it without the aid of other medicines. The following formula was given by a physician many years ago, and has been found to be of great value: Take one-quarter of a pound of the best gum arabic and pour over it a half pint of hot water; cover and leave it until the gum is dissolved; then add one-quarter of a pound of pure white sugar and a generous half gill of strained lemon juice. Place these ingredients over the fire and let them simmer about ten minutes; then pour the mixture into a bottle and cork. When taking this syrup a little water may be added.

MOTHER'S LOOK.

I 'member such a lot of things
That happened long ago,
When me an' Jim was six years old
An' now we're ten or so.
But those I remember best—
The ones I most can see—
Are the things that used to happen
When mother looked at me.

It's funny how it makes you feel—
I ain't afraid of her.
She's about the nicest person
You'd find most anywhere;
But the queerest sort of feeling,
As queer as queer can be,
Makes everything seem different
When mother looks at me.

Respect for the Flag.

The new cadet at the National Military Academy, whether he has come from the little country school with its home-made flag and staff, or from the city school where floats sometimes a flag big enough to cover half the roof of the other school, has been taught to respect the beautiful emblem of his country; but he will learn at West Point, as soon as he begins his career as a future officer of the army, how thoroughly he is to be trained to honor it in his daily life. The laughing schoolboy salute he has perhaps given the flag from time to time now becomes a matter of sober ceremony, so rigidly required and handsomely ordered that it at once sets him to thinking; and the good, sound patriotism that was in him all along soon envelops every glimpse and ceremony of the colors with a sacredness that will deepen day by day.

One of his first lessons is to doff his cap each time he passes the "color line," where the color is guarded by a sentinel. Every summer the cadets pass several months in camp on the lovely banks of the Hudson, and beneath the grand old trees of the academy grounds.

During certain hours of the day a long line of stacked rifles extends along the front of the camp. Across the two stacks, in the center of the line, is laid the color, rolled about its staff. Up and down by this flag marches a natty cadet sentinel, and woe be unto the unlucky cadet who tries to pass this sacred trust without raising his cap.

So, during his life at the academy this lesson of respect is continued, and when he has "doffed the cadet and donned the brevet, and changed the gray for the blue," and reported for duty with his regiment, he finds the same lessons being taught the enlisted men, and then, probably for the first time, does he realize the full importance of those early lessons taught in the far-away schoolhouse.—Lieutenant B. W. Atkinson in St. Nicholas.

Even Princes Must Be Orderly.

That admirable nursery law, which sensible American mothers insist upon, of a child picking up its own toys after the day's play is over, is also enforced by the nurses in the royal house of York, in deference to the wishes of the duchess. The little princes are made to collect all their toys, while nursey stands by and directs this first lesson in law and order. But the other day all the Yorklings were at Balmoral, the little Edward, who was spending the morning with his great-grandmother, was having a lovely time with his bricks and lead soldiers when the door opened and nursey appeared to take him off to his dinner. She glanced at the toys and then at the child, but Prince Edward was not inclined to pick them up. This, he thought, would be a fine time to break the hateful rules, and he stood irresolute, looking first at the playthings and then at granny. At last a happy thought struck him, and, pointing to the stout, infirm queen, he exclaimed, in a tone half of entreaty, half of command, "You help me pick them up." There is no doubt but her majesty would have aided her great-grandson if she could have stooped, for the youngster is the apple of her eye; but, under the circumstances, Master Edward was obliged to do it all himself, receiving a little lecture on "duty," meanwhile.—Boston Journal.

Why Do the Eyes of Animals Shine.

Everyone knows how the eyes of a cat or a dog gleam green or red at night, and many suppose that this shining is due to some luminous quality in the eye itself—in fact, a sort of phosphorescence. But this is a great mistake.

The fact is that there is practically no such thing as utter darkness. Even on the darkest night or in a tight closed room there are rays of light which the human eye has not the power of gathering. But the animal's eye, particularly that of a carnivorous creature, can and does gather these (to us) invisible rays. So the gleam is in reality the light reflected from the bottom of the eyes, and its color varies with the color of the "choroid back of the semi-transparent retina." What makes the gleam the stronger is the extraordinary way in which the pupils of an animal's eyes dilate at night.

Deutsch-Eylau. Kürzlich entdeckte Förster Buchhorn von hier im Schnee die Fährte eines Hirsches, welche den Abdruck von nur drei Hufen aufwies. Als er der Fährte folgte, kam ihm ein alter Hirschbulle zu Schuß, welchem an einem Hinterbein der Unterschenkel fehlte. Die Besichtigung ergab, daß das Thier schon vor langer Zeit—wahrscheinlich in Folge eines Schusses—das fehlende Glied verloren haben muß, da die Wunde vollständig vernarbt und der Oberschenkel des Beines ganz verkümmert, sowie die Geweihhälfte auf dieser Seite sehr klein und ganz mißgestaltet war.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 12—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Fellowship in Christian service.—Neh. iv, 6, 16-23.

The rebuilding of the wall of Jerusalem may be taken as an illustration of the life of the church in this world. We may see illustrated in it many of the essential elements of successful church work, not least of which is the necessity of fellowship in service, co-operation in work, division of labor. How splendidly the necessity and efficiency of hearty co-operation in Christian work is here illustrated. Every class had a work to do, and every one did it in harmony with every other one, and the result was that the wall, joined together, completed in every part, rose before them in spite of the immenseness of the task and the enemies without, who constantly threatened them. Some were builders, some were burden bearers, some were guards, and the princes stood behind and directed the work. Every man had his place, and every man stood in it and performed his duty, and success was the result. Such a splendid result could only have been achieved by the heartiest co-operation and fellowship. We may be taught here some lessons in Christian fellowship.

1. Fellowship in Christian service is Scriptural. This is one Scriptural illustration, and many others could be cited. Christ sent His apostles and disciples out "two by two" upon their preaching tours, thus giving His sanction and approval of fellowship in Christian work. After Christ had ascended the apostles usually followed the same plan. Christianity teaches fellowship in prayer, fellowship in burden bearing as well as fellowship in service.

2. Fellowship in Christian service gives strength and encouragement. The Jews were strong because they were united. They held their enemies at bay. They overcame almost insurmountable obstacles. They accomplished wonders, and all because unitedly they did the work. Two are stronger than one. When the heart of one fails, a word or act of encouragement from the other strengthens it, and thus from fellowship comes increased strength both against enemies without and discouragements within.

3. Fellowship in Christian service is efficient. It is so especially because it gives an opportunity for all to do that which they are best able to do. All have not been given the same gifts. Some in Nehemiah's time could build, some could carry burdens, some could direct, some could guard, and when all these qualities were combined successful work was accomplished. It is the same today. Some are strong, others weak; some can sing, others can pray; some can teach, others can carry burdens; separated, all would be weak and ineffective, but united in harmony and in Christian fellowship and wisely directed, all become a mighty power for good.

Let us see the wisdom and power of fellowship in service. The church is the body of Christ. The members are the organs of the body, the church. Each organ has a distinctive work to do, but each must work in union and in harmony with the others, if the work of the body is to be successfully done.

Good Courage.

Every Christian worker needs to have the secret of good courage. Courage is no more necessary to the soldier that fights his country's battles than to the soldier of Christ who wages war against the evil of the world. The need of it is constant and urgent. To lose it is to lose power to overcome. Without it Joshua would have been but poorly equipped for the great task thrust upon him after the death of Moses. No doubt he was dismayed when he saw what was expected of him. He was to lead Israel into the promised land. They had been rescued from slavery in Egypt, brought to the borders of Canaan and were ready to enter upon the inheritance promised to Abraham and his seed.—Independent.

The Joy of Heaven.

The joy of heaven is a never ending song, a communion of all pure and blessed souls, and the most humble in the adoring multitude may look with boldness toward the throne and say, "Abba, Father!" It is a perfect home. Oh, that ours were nearer to the pattern of it. We may make them so. Where virtue and charity and contentment are met together at an altar dedicated to God's worship there life is an earnest of the heavenly life, and home is lit with the sunlight of the Father's house.—Rev. D. J. Burrell, D. D.

All Things to All Men.

Paul tried to please all men in all things that he might by all means save some. Many demand that all things shall please themselves, no matter how many souls should be lost thereby.—Christian Instructor.

Over Life's Pathway.

The Christ light cast over life's pathway clears the vision and imparts joy, cheer, strength and hope.—Presbyterian.

The God of All Comfort.

I look to Thee in every need and never look in vain;
I feel Thy strong and tender love, and all is well again.
The thought of Thee is mightier far
Than sin and pain and sorrow are.

Discouraged in the work of life, disheartened by its load,
Shamed by its failures or its fears, I sink beside the road,
But let me only think of Thee,
And then new heart springs up in me.

Thy calmness bends serene above, my restlessness to still;
Around me flows thy quickening life, to nerve my faltering will.
Thy presence fills my solitude,
Thy providence turns all to good.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 12. "Fellowship in Christian Service"—Text, Neh. iv, 6, 16-23.

"So built we the wall, for the people had a mind to work."

It was a critical time for the Jews returned from Babylon to Jerusalem. Rubbish was piled high in every street. Ruins lay on every side. The city had been destroyed. The Israelites were few. The work was great. Enemies swarmed. Every device that malice could invent was used to hinder them from rebuilding the walls of the city.

Nehemiah was equal to all emergencies. He planned, he exhorted, he threatened, he gave lavishly of money and labored hardest of all. He was tactful, resourceful, bold, undaunted by threats and undeceived by flattery. He succeeded.

The people backed him. All grades of the people worked—silversmiths, apothecaries, nobles and commoners, women and priests. No wonder the wall went up and the gates were put in place.

What a dedication then followed—hymns and prayers, shouts and trumpet blasts! The people who had held trowel in one hand and spear in the other in building lest their foes surprise them might now lay aside both and take up instruments of music.

So shall it be with the church. How many a feeble, discouraged company, divided by petty jealousies, threatened by enemies on every side, would be strong if they would join the brotherhood of Nehemiah. Many fail to build the walls of Zion because it will take time and money and hard work. They deserve to be poor and despised.

How much better to join forces and build! Put time and cash and hard work into your religion and it will be worth something. Clear away the rubbish! Rise and build!

The Governor of West Virginia.

It is a hopeful indication when Christian men occupy the positions of honor and trust in civic affairs. Among the honored laymen of the Methodist Episcopal church Governor G. W. Atkinson of West Virginia finds a place. He is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan and of Columbia universities. He has been postmaster of his native city, Charleston, W. Va., revenue agent and United States marshal, has served a term in congress and edited a paper. He is interested in the Epworth League, and his voice is often heard in her gatherings.

Builders Together.

More geography has been learned in a year past by the average American from daily papers and magazines than the schools have taught by textbooks in a long time. More history has been reviewed and written than for years before. We are beginning to see that the passing of the Spaniard is only the closing scene in one of the most stupendous dramas the world has ever seen played. The contrasted civilization of the Spanish peninsula and the British Isles comes into clearer light. From the destruction of the Spanish armada to the destruction of Cervera's fleet is a long period, but the conflict of ideas was inevitable.

All Leaguers should reread the story of the English struggle for liberty, centuries long. The Puritans and pilgrims builded bravely. Both sides the sea have labored. The walls have risen slowly, with many reverses, but risen surely. Now, at length, we see the walls joined together. As never before, Briton and American are recognizing their common aim, their common rights. More and more all true men will recognize that they are laborers together for a common good. It may prove in the end that the results of the late war will be of greatest benefit to Spain. If it should serve to open her eyes to the folly of oppression and the necessity for freedom, the loss of her colonies will not be too high a price to have paid for the lesson.

More and Better Work.

The rapid advance made in late years in all departments of manufacture and trade has revolutionized the manner of living. We have not yet become adjusted to the new world in which we live. In the church matters have moved more slowly. Yet there has been a remarkable change in religious conditions during the last half century. In the nature of things, religious worship must ever take the direction of praise, prayer and teaching. But Christian life means much more than this. All forms of benevolence and charity are necessary parts of religious work. Never was the church in such good condition for labor as now. The coming years must bring greater zeal, better methods and wider usefulness. At home and abroad this is the pressing need. Who will help build the walls?

Makes Us Almost Believe.

Some professed Christians make such a beautiful show window of their deeds in keeping a few commandments as to make us almost believe it a display of the filling out of the whole law.—Lutheran.

THE SUNDAY LESSON.

INTERNATIONAL SERIES, WITH COMMENTARY BY DR. STEARNS.

Golden Text—One thing I know that whereas I was blind, now I see.—John ix: 25

March 12.

1. "And as Jesus passed by He saw a man which was blind from his birth." In Acts iii, 2, we see a man lame from his birth who was healed through Peter and John. These cases or infirmity from birth are suggestive of the truth that we are all sinners by birth, by nature the children of wrath (Eph. ii, 3). The cases of infirmities which come after birth are suggestive of the after manifestations of the sin that is born in us.

2. "And His disciples asked Him saying, Master, who did sin, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?" The reasoning of Job's friends is brought to mind "whoever perished being innocent," and many such like words (Job iv, 7), but when the Lord summed up the matter He said that these men had not spoken of Him right things (Job xlii, 7). While it is true that whosoever a man soweth that shall he also reap, yet we can judge from seeing one sick or suffering that therefore they are reaping from some sowing, for whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth, and if we endure chastening God dealeth with us as with sons (Heb. xii, 6, 7).

3. "Jesus answered, Neither hath this man sinned nor his parents, but that the works of God should be made manifest in him." This man's blindness was not the result of any special sin on the part of his parents. This is what our Lord says. He does not say that his parents were not sinners needing a Saviour, but He does say that this affliction of having a blind son was not a judgment upon them, but rather an occasion for God to be glorified. There are many nowadays who think that a blind or lame or sickly child is an affliction upon the parents for some sin against God.

4. "I must work the works of Him that sent me while it is day. The night cometh when no man can work." A carpenter wants material on which to use his tools and show his skill, a doctor or a surgeon wants patients, and the worse or more hopeless the case the more credit to the physician for bringing a cure and health. Our Lord often repeats the truth that all His works are commanded by and wrought by the Father who sent Him, and more than once it is written that as the Father sent Him so He sends us. It is equally true that as God wrought in Him so God works in us, for while we are commanded to work we are also told that in the same connection that it is God that worketh in us both to will and to do. It was His hand which prepared all the good works we are to walk in.

5. "As long as I am in the world I am the light of the world." This is oft repeated (chapter i, 4, 9; viii, 12; xii, 46). And in the Sermon on the Mount He said to His disciples, "Ye are the light of the world." We must remember that the life is the light and the life is that which men see and read. Words may amount to but little, but a holy life is unanswerable. We are certainly not equal to it. We cannot live the Christ life nor do His works, but if we are willing and yielded He will live the life and work the works. Paul said, "I live, yet not I, but Christ, liveth in me."

6. "When He had thus spoken, He spat on the ground and made clay of the spittle, and He anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay." Sometimes He works just by a word, sometimes by a touch and at other times as here. He uses means but whether by a word, a touch or other instrumentality it is God who worketh. In the clay we have the dust of the ground and His spittle something of earth and something of God. Is not a saved sinner just that, something human, something divine? And we are His workmanship prepared for good works.

7. "And said unto him, Go, wash in the pool of Siloam (which is by interpretation sent). He went his way, therefore, and washed and came seeing." How often in this gospel does Jesus speak of Himself as sent of God. How suggestive, therefore, is Siloam of Him who was and is truly the sent One! The clay is to be washed off into Siloam. He who made the clay and uses it receives it back to Himself. The clay has no honor. It is not to be saved and laid up as a precious thing, but to be washed off into Siloam. Some of us stick so close to people's eyes that they cannot see.

8. "The neighbors, therefore, and they which before had seen him that he was blind said, Is not this he that sat and begged?" Formerly a blind, helpless beggar, holding out his hand to every passerby for the alms they might be pleased to give, but now upright, with opened eyes, seeing like other men and enjoying what he saw as none others did, for he had never seen before. He is in a new world—the sun, the sky, the trees, the flowers, the faces of his friends, but, best of all, a little later, the face of Christ.

9. "Some said, That is he; others said, He is like him, but he said, I am he." Whatever others knew or did not know, he could say, "One thing I know—that whereas I was blind, now I see" (verse 25). They might argue all they pleased—he had the conscious joy of possessing what he had never possessed in all his life before, and they could not gainsay it nor take it from him. Argument is not profitable; possession is.

LONG-HEADED LINCOLN.

An Anecdote Showing How He Looked Into the Future.

Perhaps no anecdote ever told of Mr. Lincoln illustrates more forcibly his "long-headedness" in laying plans, not even that incident when he asked the "Jedge" a question in his debate with Mr. Douglas, which may be told as follows:

One afternoon during that joint debate Mr. Lincoln was sitting with his friends, planning the programme, when he was observed to go off in a kind of reverie, and for some time appeared totally oblivious to everything around him. Then, slowly bringing his right hand up, holding it a moment in the air, and then letting it fall with a quick slap upon his thigh, he said:

"There I'm going to ask the 'Jedge' (he always called him 'the Jedge') a question to-night, and I don't care the ghost of a continental which way he answers it. If he answers it one way it will lose him the Senatorship. If he answers it the other way, it will lose him the Presidency."

No one asked him what the question was; but that evening it was the turn for Mr. Douglas to speak first, and right in the midst of his address, all at once Mr. Lincoln roused up, as if a new thought had suddenly struck him and said:

"Jedge, will you allow me to ask you one question?"

"Certainly," says Mr. Douglas.

"Suppose, Jedge, there was a new town or colony just started in some Western territory; and suppose there were precisely 100 house-holders—voters—there; and suppose, Jedge, that ninety-nine did not want slavery, and one did. What would be done about it?"

Judge Douglas beat about the bush, but failed to give a direct answer.

"No, no, Jedge; that won't do. Tell us plainly what will be done about it?"

Again Douglas tried to evade; but Lincoln would not be put off, and he insisted that a direct answer should be given At last Douglas admitted that the majority would have their way, by some means or other.

Mr. Lincoln said no more. Douglas had answered the question as Lincoln's people would have answered it, and he got the Senatorship. But that answer was not satisfactory to the people of the South. In 1860 the Charleston convention split in two factions and "it lost him the Presidency," and it made Abraham Lincoln President.—New York Independent.

HOW A SPIDER DISAPPEARS.

A Wiley Little Creature That Understands the Science of Revolution.

On the borders of the Everglades you often see a large yellow spider. He swings a strong web from two pliant twigs on each side of a path of clear space of ground and waits for his prey. The web is in the shape of a hammock, and tapers at each end to a fine point, though quite broad in the middle. The bright color of the owner seems to mark him out for destruction—he is clearly defined against the white sand or dead leaves, and you wonder what he would do for defense in case of attack. Approach quietly and he watches you intently. Now raise your hand suddenly and he will disappear. While you are wondering what became of him you see first a blur where he had been, then several spiders, then you catch sight again of the yellow ball you noticed at first. Repeat the performance and the stage effect is renewed. The disappearance is absolute—there can be no doubt about it, and the little magician trusts to it entirely for his protection. How is it done? As soon as he is threatened he starts the vibrations of his airy hammock; these become too rapid for the eye to follow, and he vanishes. As these become slower you see a blur, and then several spiders as the eyes catches him at different points of his swing, until finally he rests before you.—Florida Citizen.

A Locomotive's Health.

Locomotives, like human beings, have their ailments, many of which defy the skill of those deputed to look after them. We hear of tired razors, a simple complaint which vanishes after a brief period of repose, but locomotives are apt to betray indisposition even after a day's rest and much oiling of the various parts. Two good engines may be made on the most approved principle. They may each cost—as those of the London and Northwestern railway do—£2,200, and yet one will exhibit from the first a hardihood of constitution altogether wanting in its companion. A first-class locomotive, of 300 horse-power, costing £2,000, is expected to travel during its life 200,000 miles, or, say, 13,000 miles per annum for fifteen years; yet now and then an engine is found so impervious to the assaults of time as to be able in its old age to do its daily work with all the zest and vigor of a youngster.—Toronto Mail.

Electricity and Singing.

M. Grainier reports to the Paris Academie de Medicine that a singing voice may be made more full and clear, less rapidly tired and the quality much more agreeable by the singer sitting upon an isolated stool coupled to the negative pole of a static electric machine and breathing the atmosphere electrified by means of a brush electrode for a short time.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

HIS LAST GIFT.

The Emperor's Kindly Thought for His Wife's Birthday.

A pathetic story comes from Russia of the late Emperor's tender regard for the wishes of his wife. The summer before the Emperor's death he and the Empress visited a jeweler's shop in St. Petersburg to select some jewels for their son's future bride. The Empress saw a beautiful bracelet, and expressed great admiration for it, and remarked laughingly to her husband that she must purchase it one day. Shortly after their return to the palace the Tsar was seized with one of those serious attacks of illness to which he was subject, and the Empress forgot the bracelet. The Emperor died, and to the Empress in the early days of her widowhood came a birthday, the first anniversary which she must pass alone. On her previous birthdays the Tsar had been wont to place some flowers in the morning-room of the Empress. Inside the bouquet was always folded some rich rare gift, chosen months beforehand. The Empress had avoided the room, as too full of painful memories; but on this morning, the morning of his wedding-day, Nicholas requested his mother to go there as a favor to him. The first thing she saw there was the bouquet in the usual place, and inside the flowers was a case fastened and sealed by the Tsar's own hands. It contained the bracelet. He had ordered it on the same day that the Empress saw it, and on his death-bed had given instructions as to the birthday gift, bidding his son to be near to comfort her when she received it.

Dr. Holmes' Wit.

Some of Dr. Holmes's brightest things never got into any of his published volumes. His reference in "Elsie Venner" to the "twenty-seventh letter of the alphabet" (so puzzled one lady who was reading the story in company with a relative that she wrote to the author, telling him that neither she nor her cousin Edward could make out his meaning. The answer received was characteristic—"Boston, March 4th, 1861. My dear Miss Lavinia—The twenty-seventh letter of the alphabet is pronounced by applying the lips of the person speaking it to the cheek of a friend, and puckering and parting the same with a peculiar explosive sound. 'Cousin Edward' will show you how to speak this labrial consonant, no doubt, and allow you to show your proficiency by practising it with your lips against his cheek. For further information, you had better consult your gra'ma. Very truly yours, O. W. HOLMES."

Too Stout to Suit the Prince.

Of the deep attachment which existed between the late Prince Henry of Battenberg and Princess Beatrice it is almost unnecessary to speak, so notorious was it. They both carried their love for each other on their sleeves. In this connection an anecdote is related: Last year Princess Beatrice had her portrait done by a well-known lady pastellist, who, while a thorough artist, knows how to combine a good likeness with a pretty picture. One morning when the portrait was nearly finished, Prince Henry happened to enter the studio. After a minute examination, the Prince remarked: "But you have not made my wife stout enough. I am fond of my stout frau, since it shows she is happy." The portrait was altered.—Tid-Bits.

Something Like Tact.

A college principal, who is a great gardener, wears a glass eye. One day he—it being summer, and he on his vacation—rushed in from the garden all soiled and spattered, and without his glass eye. His wife was seated with a caller of importance. She perceived the external unfitness of her husband's condition, and frigidly said to him:

"John, go at once to the library and tell your master Mrs. —— wishes to see him." He went and soon reappeared, clothed, eyed, and in his right mind.

This college principal, it is plain, is himself a man of presence of mind. There are plenty of men who, confronted by such a remark of genius as this, would have stared and faltered out: "But, my dear ——," and spoilt it all.

Diplomacy Scores Again.

"Did I talk in my sleep last night?" he asked cautiously.

"Talk! I should say you did," his wife replied.

"Must have been a nightmare if I did."

"It was four of 'em at least; you were talking about having 'two pairs' all night long."

"Ah! I see—two span. I remember now. I dropped into the horse show for awhile on the way home."—Chicago Times-Herald.

His Reasons.

She—Why are you so much in love with yourself?

He—For two reasons.

She—Two reasons! What are they?

He—Well, one reason is I think it is a good idea to be in love with a worthy person, and the other is I think it a good idea to have a worthy person in love with me.—New York Journal.

Like Beavers.

Tommy—Paw, what does it mean in the paper when it says that the leaders of a party are working like beavers?

Mr. Figg—It might mean they are saying nothing and sawing wood, but it usually means that they have begun throwing mud.—Washington Star.

A Fact Established.

Is it true that Braglow was insane when he died?

Certainly not; didn't he leave all his money to his relatives?—Roxbury Gazette.

The "Ivory" is a favorite shaving soap because it makes a profuse rich lather, which softens the beard to be removed and leaves the skin unharmed.

It costs about one-fifth as much as the so-called shaving soaps and many who have used it for this purpose for years, will not have any other.

The vegetable oils of which Ivory Soap is made, fit it for many special uses for which other soaps are unsafe or unsatisfactory.

CHAPOTS MUST PAY UP.

UNPAID EMPLOYES SUED COMPANY THAT IS NOW DEFUNCT.

But at the Time the Action Was Commenced the Jury Decides That the Corporation Was in Existence.

The Chapots were in Justice Mosher's court yesterday afternoon to prove that the C. Chapot & Sons Leather Company was bought out by the C. Chapot & Sons Chamois Company in December, and therefore an execution levied against the first named company was null and void.

Frank Zabetti, a Frenchman, who was employed by the Chapots as their engineer, sued them in Justice Nash's court for $50 back wages, and secured judgement. When the levy was made the papers were served upon the Chapot Leather Company which, the Chapots say, was then no longer in existence.

W. A. Codington was the attorney for the claimants, and showed to the jury how the affairs of the old company were settled up and a new company organized in December. W. S Angleman, who represented Zabetti, claimed that that the new company was not in existence until their charter was recorded by the clerk, and that from December 13th when the Chamois Company was said to have been organized, until December 20th, when the certificate of incorporation was filed, the factory, which was still operated, was under the direction of the old company, and therefore that Zabetti's claim was still good. The jury, after being out about fifteen minutes, brought in a verdict for the claimant. The jurymen were John Johnson, Peter A. VanFleet, Theodore F. VanHorn, N. C. Pennington, George Kirch and S. P. Larue.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement, that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store. Only 50 cents and $1.00, every bottle guaranteed.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Tonight at Music Hall the famous Washburn Minstrels, numbering over fifty people, forming two complete companies of white and black performers, will be seen for the second and last time this season. Lovers of melody and mirth will be amply repaid for their attendance on this occasion, as since their appearance last December many notable additions have been made in their presentations. No minstrel company that has appeared here the past two or three years has given such universal satisfaction as Washburn's, and the high praise accorded their efforts is certainly deserved. A more meritorious entertainment is not conceivable. New ballads and specialties of refined minstrelsy will be features.

"His Better Half," a new English farcical success, lately produced at Theatre Comique, London, will be presented at Music Hall next Tuesday night. The cast of characters will be interpreted by well-known metropolitan artists, prior to production of the play at the Bijou Theatre, New York.

* * * * *

With the presentation of the Hamilton verson of Dumas' famous story "The Three Musketeers," which occurred last Monday night at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, the public interest in this dramatic subject which has been growing for over a year was fanned into the full blaze of fashion. Coming as this does after years of problem plays and dramas of the morbi-realistic class, the relief of this dashing brilliant and humor story of love and knignt errantry gives unutterable pleasure. The Musketeers are already the talk of the town and everyone is asking everyone else, have you seen them? Now that Mr. Sothern has appeared and the Hamilton version has been judged, all interest has turned turned toward the production of Sydney Grundy's version by James O'Neill and his unexceptionable company which will be made March 13th at the Broadway theatre. Mr. O'Neill accompanied by the New York players sent out to join him, is rehearsing with his cast, literally night and day. "The Musketeers" will be given first by Mr. O'Neill in Montreal for one week commencing March 6th, from which point he will come to New York with a perfect performance for this opening.

was arrested on Staten Island within a month, and Roesel shorty after.

Manshanda confessed to complicity in the murder, and testified before the Grand Jury, and at Roesel's trial. He swore that Roesel struck the fatal blow, and in doing so supposed that that would clear him of the charge. Roesel told a story that agreed with Manshanda's in nearly all respects except that he swore that it was Manshanda who wielded the gambrel with such fatal effect. Both men admitted conspiring to rob, and each thought that if the other was convicted of actually convicting the murder he would go clear, since no robbery had taken place. The courts hold, however, that when murder results from such a conspiracy the conspirators are all guilty of murder.

Manshanda saved his neck by turning State's evidence, but he got a sentence of twenty years in the penitentiary. There are some pretty strong reasons for believing that he was the actual murderer. He is the older, larger and stronger of the two men. Roesel is 22 and small.

The last man hung in Union county was Sylvester Quiller, a negro, who had killed his wife. His execution took place November 14, 1867.

The greatest sale of spring and summer CLOTHING

IN PLAINFIELD'S HISTORY.

A most magnificent saving opportunity,

At 214 West Front St., PLAINFIELD, N. J. NEXT DOOR TO MUSIC HALL.

This advertisement tells of the greatest event ever known. We have purchased the entire stocks of Messrs. Woodhull, Goodale & Bull, of Syracuse, and Quiri & Wilkie, of Amsterdam, N. Y., at a spot cash price, so very much below the real value of the merchandise that a statement of the exact figures would seem marvelous. A great many retail dealers would gladly take this fine stock of clothing off our hands at a good round profit if we desired to sell that way. But having acquired this $15,000 stock at such a ridiculously low figure, we wish to use it to introduce ourselves with our first sale of the season. On account of the way which we have purchased this stock, we will tomorrow and throughout this great sale offer many goods at less than half and less than one-third their usual value.

Every suit made and every overcoat and every pair of trousers being ruthlessly cut regardless of the cost or the present regular value of the goods. We don't wish to impose upon your credulity; these are facts, and we want you to understand now and always that every word in our advertisements can be depended upon if we promise you one dollar's worth of clothing for thirty or forty cents you can be sure you can get it. On account of the way in which we have purchased the stock, we will make this one of the most sensational events ever witnessed.

There can be no competition. No sales of any character that may be introduced to offset this great sale should be considered. We nor any other clothing concern could make such low prices if goods had been purchased in the regular way. Our values will be positively unmatched.

The stock of clothing is of the very best and up-to-date in style. The firms have manufactured the finest clothing in the United States. Every garment is made for this season's trade, the fit is guaranteed. Below we will quote a few of the prices, and there will be thousands of more bargains just as cheap and just as good ready tomorrow morning. It is of a great interest to you to be there as early as you conveniently can. Sale begins Saturday, March 11, 1899, at 8 a. m. sharp. If you are not satisfied with your purchase, you can get your money back.

WANT TO FREEZE OUT PLAINFIELD.

Elizabeth and Rahway Exchange Support.

COUNTY G. O. P. GOSSIP.

PLAINFIELD HAS TWO IMPORTANT CANDIDATES.

There Will Be a Big Fight This Fall Over the Nomination of a Clerk by the Republicans—Howard Wants to Try Again—J. T. MacMurray and Sheriff Kirk Also Prominently Mentioned.

Although the fall campaign is still many months away, political talk regarding the state of affairs in Union county at the next election is frequently heard.

"Honest Bob" Houston, one of the present Assemblyman from Elizabeth, is generally considered as a sure man for the Republican nomination of Sheriff. He wanted the nomination when it was given to Kirk, and his friends have been making a strong demand for the nomination this year ever since.

The fight of the campaign in the Republican party will be the one over the nomination for county clerk. The present incumbent, Mr. Howard, of Rahway, is already in the race. James T. MacMurray, city clerk of Plainfield, was prominently mentioned for the office last fall and even before. Then Sheriff Kirk, of this city, is also in line for the nomination.

While Elizabeth hasn't any candidate for the place, it is highly probable that the county seat will take a prominent part in deciding as to who shall receive the valued plum. There was an understanding between some of the politicans of Rahway and Elizabeth that, when Rahway gave her support to Cross for the senatorial nomination last fall instead of for Ackerman, that Elizabeth should reciprocate and support Rahway's candidate for the county clerkship. Now it still remains to be seen whether all the Elizabeth delegates will agree to any such "freeze out" for Plainfield. It is said that Elizabeth's delegation is nearly certain to split.

It is too early yet to say how the Plainfield candidates stand but MacMurray is reported to have a strong gathering of friends throughout the county outside of the cities. It will doubtless lay with the townships to decide who shall be honored in the race.

THAT NINE DOLLARS.

Remarks About Alleged Debt Made Trouble for Krewson.

Joseph H. Krewson came up before City Judge Runyon this morning charged with taunting his erstwhile tenant, Chester A. Dennis, about rent alleged to be still owing. Dennis says that the rent has long been paid and that he has the receipts for it. The specific alleged offence occurred on February 25th.

Dennis says that Krewson yelled something about "that nine dollars," as he passed in his wogon. Dennis did not hear any profane language used, but he was sure that Krewson had insulted him. The Judge said it was not an insult in the eyes of the law and discharged the prisoner.

Devoted to Temperance.

The Junior Epworth League of Grace M. E. church held its meeting Thursday afternoon. It was a temperance meeting and was led by Mrs. G. W. Gardner. The programme included the following: Singing by the Juniors; declamation, John Bodenheimer; solo, Rachel DeCamp; recitation, Norman Amermann; singing by a quartette of boys, John Carney, David Fairchild, Earl Pope and Frankie DeCamp; illustrated temperance address, Mrs. G. W. Gardner; recitation, David Fairchild.

Charged With Breaking the Law.

Henry Staats was arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning, charged by Peter Robinson with violating the health ordinance of the city. Francis J. Blatz, of the law firm of Murphy & Blatz, appeared for the prisoner and asked that the hearing be adjourned. The case will come up for trial next Saturday morning.

Keeley in Court.

John Keely, hackman and liveryman, came up before City Judge Runyon this morning on complaint of Charles Barry, charged with soliciting customers in the forbidden ground at the North avenue station. Barry did not appear against Keely and so the Judge dismissed the complaint.

To Start New Church Edifice.

As soon as the weather permits and the frost is out of the ground work will be started to erect the new edifice for the Church of the Redeemer.

SOME BOROUGH HISTORY

N. B. SMALLEY HAS NO CLAIM ON REGULAR REPUBLICANS.

A Republican Correspondent Declares That He Has Helped to Defeat His Own Party Candidates More Than Once.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—On the editorial page of the News of yesterday I read the following:

The keynote of the political campaign in the borough is struck by Senator Reed in his letter published in our columns today. About 250 Republicans met in their primary and made their ticket. Every man who participated in that primary tacitly agreed to be bound by the outcome, and it is difficult to understand the reasoning upon which any other course upon their part can be fairly followed. The candidates are their own nominees and nothing has been discovered against them since the primary which was not known before it was held. Why should the Republicans of the borough fail to support the ticket which they nominated?

The editor of the News must have forgotten a primary and election held not many years ago when the present nominee for Mayor worked and supported the Democratic nominees, Messrs. Saunders, Neal and Connolly, and helped to cause the defeat of such Republicans of unimpeachable character as Messrs. E. L. Bonny, Geo. H. Hallock and T. Wilfred Powell. He was without any grievance against those gentlemen—only to satisfy a political grievance he had with ex-Mayor Hegeman. Since that time the Republican nominee for Mayor has worked for and supported the Democratic ticket at several local elections. The editor of the News wonders why all the Republicans don't fall in line and vote for the Republican nominee whose political faith seems to be very irregular and causes the defeat of good Republicans nominated at the primary just because they don't suit his notion; or some political grudge must be settled at the expense of honorable nominees. It is about time for the Republicans of the borough to call a halt in this manner of conducting political affairs.

A Republican Taxpayer.

COLORED TROOPS RETURN.

Praise Capt. Jenkinson, and do Not Regret Serving Their Country.

Capt. Henry L. Jenkinson and his entire company of colored troops, which he recruited in Newark, Elizabeth, Plainfield and Paterson in June, and which was mustered into the service of the United States as Company A, Eighth Volunteer Immunes, returned to Newark Thursday, after eight months' service. The Eighth Immunes, were mustered out recently at Chickamauga.

The soldiers looked and felt well. They were enthusiastic in praise for the service they had given their country.

Prosecutors to Organize.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, March 11.—The Prosecutors of the Pleas of the various counties of the State who were in attendance at the session of the Court of Errors, held a meeting in the Trenton House and decided to affect a permanent organization. Walter E Hayhurst, of Hunterdon county, presided, and James S. Erwin, of Hudson county, acted as secretary. It was decided to call another meeting in a few weeks to elect permanent officers and prepare by-laws and constitution. The organization is intended to be for the advancement of the aims of justice throughout the State, and it is also intended that it shall some time be an auxiliary to the State and County Bar Associations.

Politics at a Discount.
(Special to The Daily Press)

Roselle, March 11—The borough of Roselle is not divided on political matters. There has been but one ticket at the borough elections heretofore, and it is not likely that there will be more than one ticket at the coming election. The voters usually meet irrespective of party and nominate men for the offices to be filled, then on election day a few go to the polls and vote the ticket thus made. There is no contest and no excitement over counting the votes. Thus far not even a meeting to nominate the single ticket has been called.

G. W. Twining's Promotion.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 11.—G. W. Twining, formerly superintendent of the Lehigh and Susquehanna division of the Jersey Central, has been appointed superintendent of maintenance of way for both the Lehigh and Susquehanna and Jersey Central. He also takes the place of C. A. Thompson, superintendent of motive power on the Jersey Central, who has held this position about seven years. Mr. Thompson was formerly superintendent of the Long Island Railroad.

Captain Booth to Lead.

Captain Booth, of National Headquarters, will hold very special meetings in the Salvation Army Hall, corner of Park and North avenues, all day Sunday. Everybody welcome.

V. W NASH AN OFFICER.

ELECTED GRAND GUIDE OF THE UNITED WORKMEN.

Grand Lodge Ended Its Services at Trenton Yesterday—Increase of Over 1,000 Members During the Past Year.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, March 11—The Grand Lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen closed its annual session yesterday with the election of officers for the ensuing year.

The officers elected are: Grand master workman, William H. McCullough, Swedesboro; grand foreman, William S. Lambert, Newark; grand overseer, Frank W. Lussy, Camden; grand recorder, J. H. Lippincott, Camden; grand guide, V. W. Nash, Plainfield; grand inside watchman, Edwin Cadmus, Bayonne; grand outside watchman, A. H. Tomlinson, Elizabeth; grand trustee, Thomas Harris, Camden; grand medical examiner, Dr. Elmer E. Barwis, Trenton; representatives to supreme lodge, E. H. Colyer, Newark; E. C. Stahl, Trenton; John Enwright, Freehold. The installation was performed by Supreme Inside Watchman A. B. Jones, of Delaware, assisted by Past Grand Master Sasse, of Delaware.

Sixty-seven lodges were represented by 125 delegates. The financial standing of the order was shown in the report of Grand Recorder J. H. Lippincott, of Camden. During the fiscal year ending December 31, 1898, nineteen assessments were made, and as a result of collections made from the assessments, $113,092.50 was placed in the hands of the grand receiver. Throughout the year fifty eight death claims were paid, amounting in all to $115,000.

Captain E. C. Stahl, of this city, was elected grand master workman a year ago, and in his inaugural address promised that the order should gain a thousand recruits within the year. This promise was redeemed, as on February 1st, 1,003 persons had passed the muster and medical examination. At the end of the fiscal year 1,125 persons had been added.

Grand Master Workman McCullough honored Plainfield again by appointing William Newcorn on the law committee. Plainfield received more recognition in proportion to its size than any other city in the State.

GREATER PLAINFIELD VOTE.

Borough Voters to Have a Chance to Express Their Opinion.

Voters in the borough will be given a chance to express their opinion as to consolidation of Plainfield and North Plainfield at the election to be held Tuesday. The leaders of both parties have agreed to have the following question printed on the bottom of each ballot: Are you in favor of consolidation? There is a blank line at the side of the question for the voter to write either "yes" or "no" as he may desire.

The vote on this question will be in formal and will not be binding in any way. The plan is devised for the purpose of gaining some idea of just what the sentiment in relation to consolidation is in the borough.

Painters are Busy.

WHY HE DREW REVOLVER

ELLSWORTH JOHNSON WAS AFTER INSULTER OF WIFE.

Claims Whepley Insulted Mrs. Johnson and That He Wanted to Bring Him to Justice—Whepley Didn't Appear.

City Judge Runyon heard the story this morning of why Ellsworth Johnson drew a revolver on Clarence Whepley, his former employe. Johnson was arraigned a week ago with Whepley. Johnson pleaded guilty and Whepley not guilty. Their trial was set down for this morning. This morning Johnson was the only one to appear.

The original cause of the trouble was some remarks that Whepley had made to his employer's wife. An attempt was made to bring Whepley before Justice Storms on a criminal charge but he left town. At last Johnson heard that Whelpey was in town and went after him, armed with a revolver. Whelpey attempted to bolt but Johnson drew the revolver and Whelpey remained. Both were arrested for disorderly conduct.

Judge Runyon decided that while Johnson was in the wrong to carry a revolver and threaten anybody with it, the circumstances were more extenuating than they might have been. So he suspended sentence. The police are looking for Whepley.

WOMEN URGED TO RALLY

MRS. FLORENCE HOWE HALL ISSUES A PROCLAMATION.

Women's Rights at School Elections are Described and the Fair sex are Asked Not to Neglect Them This Year.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of this city, president of the Woman's Suffrage Association of New Jersey, has issued the following proclamation to the women of New Jersey:

With the rapid growth of the population in many parts of New Jersey, as in other States, comes a corresponding increase in the number of children of school age. Old school accommodations are thus outgrown, and many little ones either remain without instruction, or gain it in overcrowded rooms where the ventilation is necessarily bad, or perphaps attend school only half of each day. In some localities school houses have become old and are out of repair, or need modernizing in accordance with the best thought of the present day. If we want all the modern improvements in our own homes, we surely want them in the school, the other home of our children, the place where they spend three to five hours every day.

The women in our State, those living in town and rural districts that is to say, have it in their power to give their children proper school accommodations. In all places where school meetings are held women are entitled to vote on the same terms as men—with the single exception that they may not vote for school trustees. But they can vote on all other questions coming before the meeting; can vote for a tax, or for the issuing of bonds, etc., and can themselves be elected to the office of school trustee, an office which a number of women are now holding in different parts of our State, with good results to the schools. One lady, Miss Sterling, has recently served as president of the Board of Education at Englewood, if she is not still filling that office.

School meetings are held in New Jersey on the third Tuesday in March, the 21st, and it is to be hoped that the mothers and daughters of our State will attend these, and see to it that the children have proper school accommodations. In Orange, Westfield, Cranford and elsewhere, the votes of women, added to those of men, have provided new school houses that were much needed. Let all good citizens, men and women, attend the school meetings on the 21st inst.

POEMS BROUGHT LOVE.

ROBERT BROWNING FOUND HIS WIFE BY LITERARY WORK.

An Interesting Sketch of These Famous Literary People Related by Leon Vincent to a Plainfield Audience.

Leon H. Vincent gave his second lecture in the series in Vincent chapel yesterday afternoon, and discussed "Robert and Elizabeth Barrett Browning." These two characters, occupying such lofty positions in the world of poetic thought, are often said to be among the most tedious of the people even to read intelligently, let alone study, but Mr. Vincent brought them and their personalities so strongly and simply before his hearers that they were enabled to understand the poet husband and wife, and something about their aims life.

Mr. Vincent read his lecture yesterday afternoon, but handling his subject in his easy, delightful way, that detracted nothing from its interest. Browning came from an old Dorcetshire family and was born in 1812. His father was a clerk in the Bank of England, but a man of some literary attainments and profound knowledge, especially of Greek and Latin. Surrounded by culture and a desire for learning young Robert naturally turned his attentions to what was good and pure in life, and at an early age was writing poetry. His first poem, "Pauline," was published by himself, and was not a success financially. He found friends on this side of the ocean before being recognized by his own countrymen, as was the case with Thomas Carlyle. Mr. Vincent classed him with Chaucer and Shakespeare.

Although not a romantic age, there was considerable of romance in Robert Browning's courtship and marriage to Elizabeth Barrett. She, too, was a writer of poetry, and it was through some verses of hers that Browning came to know her. She was an invalid, but a love sprang up between them which never died, and culminated finally in their secret marriage September 12th, 1846. At this time Miss Barrett was over 40, while Browning was but 34. Her father's opposition to his daughter marrying any one, was the only reason for their unconventional marriage

With her union with Browning a new life seems to have been born into Mrs. Browning, and she began to allow the bright thoughts in her heart to escape through the medium of poetry.

In closing Mr. Vincent delivered a short criticism upon the work of Browning, and suggested three reasons why he is a great poet. Browning must be read with care, he said, to enable the reader to come to a full understanding of what he writes. He has a style peculiarly his own, which is sometimes hard to comprehend.

CHAPOTS WERE VICTORIOUS.

Misapprehension Caused by Reading Over a News Item

There was a mistake in the heading to the article about the trial of property of the Chapots in yesterday's Press, leading the reader to suppose that the case went against them Instead of this the newly-organized corporation was victorious, and showed that they were the purchasers and owners of the stock and implements of the old company before Pierre Tissier secured judgment against the original corporation.

WOULDN'T BE PRESIDENT

BUT CHOSEN VICE-PRESIDENT, AND MUST ACT AS CHIEF OFFICER.

Curious Outcome of Election of Officers of Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist Church Last Night.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church met last evening in annual session and transacted considerable business, including the election of officers and hearing the reports of the various committees. There was some difficulty in electing a president, as the present holder of the office, L. H. Biglow, Jr., declined to serve again.

The difficulty was overcome by leaving the office of president vacant for two weeks, and electing Mr. Biglow vice-president. By this action Mr. Biglow will serve as president until someone is selected to fill the position. Miss Saxton was elected secretary; Miss Susie Woodland, corresponding secretary, and Miss Belle Velmer, treasurer. The following persons were elected as the heads of the various committees: Lookout, Miss Mattison; prayer meeting, Mrs. Pierce; social, Miss Susie Woodland; missionary, J. Herbert Case; flower, Miss May Serrell; welcome and press, Miss Douglass.

The treasury reported a balance of $5 after all bills were paid. During the year considerable money has been expended in doing good work and the department has been well managed.

There was an attendance last evening of about seventy five, the largest thus far during the year. The report of the secretary showed that the average attendance during the year was thirty-five. The reports of the various committees were all of an encouraging nature and showed the society is prosperous. At present there is a membership of 125. There was an increase of twelve during the year in membership.

Miss Grace Yerkes, as superintendent of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society, presented a very interesting report, showing progress in the various departments. During the year the average attendance was 40. Mrs. J. Elston Woodland was elected as assistant to Miss Yerkes in the junior work.

Another business meeting of the society will be held Friday evening, March 24th, when an attempt will be made to elect a president.

SUMMIT NOW A CITY.

Governor Signs the Bill Giving the Town the Government It Wants.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton March 11—Gov. Voorhees has affixed his signature to the bill which frees Summit, Union county, from its swaddling clothes and enables it to blossom forth as a full-fledged city. The bill which accomplishes the emancipation of the Union county municipality was introduced in the Senate by Mr. Cross and passed the Upper House last week. When it made its appearance in the House it was taken in charge by Mr. Squire, who never let it get out of his way until it had passed, which was late Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Squire saw that there was no time lost in the transmission of the bill to the Governor's room, and he fairly haunted the executive chambers since the bill went that way. The Union county man was more than pleased yesterday when the Governor announced that he had signed the bill.

In Memoriam.

At a regular meeting of Court Plainfield, 1144, Independent Order of Foresters, held March 10th, the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, God in His all-wise providence has taken from our midst our late brother Lewis H. McKenzie, and

WHEREAS, We are deeply grieved by the bereavement, be it therefore

Resolved, That while we lament his absence from our meetings and feel that we have lost a grateful and worthy brother, and while we deeply deplore our loss, yet from his noble Christian character here on earth we believe our loss to be his eternal gain. We will ever cherish his memory and hereby extend our sincere and heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family, and be it further

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread in full on the minutes and a copy of the same be sent to the bereaved family and published in the Plainfield daily papers.

VISITORS TO SCOTCH PLAINS MUST BE GOOD

If They Are Not They Will Be "Jugged" In the Future.

LOCKUP TO BE ERECTED

THE TOWNSPEOPLE ARE TIRED OF PLAINFIELD SPORTS.

At Present It is Useless to Arrest Persons for Being Drunk Because There is No Place to Incarcerate Them In—Appropriation of $300 to be Voted for the Lockup Tuesday.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, March 11.—By the action of both the Republican and Democratic primaries held Thursday evening, it begins to look as though Scotch Plains is to have a long felt want filled. That is a lockup or cage to hold prisoners temporarily. For years Scotch Plains has been the carousing place for drunks and disorderly people Sundays, and the authorities have been practically helpless, for if they were arrested there has been no place to confine them until Monday morning. The disorderly element has known this and when they have been threatened they have laughed and sneered at the law. In some extreme cases the Plainfield authorities have allowed the use of the city lockup, but Scotch Plains could hardly expect to land every drunk and disorderly person upon their Plainfield friends, even if they do furnish the majority of the cases.

So a lockup has been talked of for several years, but nothing was done until the primaries met Thursday evening when it was mutually agreed that each ticket should have the appropriation upon it.

The amount asked for is only $300. This will furnish a double cage capable of holding two or four prisoners and it is needless to say that after they are bought and erected Judge Clark will give some of those who think there is no law in town a chance to meditate upon the evil of their way.

SICKLEY PLEADED GUILTY.

End of the Chicken-Dog Case that Stirred Up Springfield.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 11—James T. Sickley, of Springfield, appeared before Justice Collins yesterday morning to answer to a charge of disorderly conduct preferred by his neighbor, Dr. T. J. Jackson. The witnesses in the case were disappointed, for Mr. Sickley made no defence, but pleaded guilty to the charge. The court imposed a fine of $5, and the defendant paid and was discharged.

The trouble grew out of the killing of a chicken by a dog. Sickley and Jackson have not been friendly for several years, and when Dr. Jackson's dog invaded Mr. Sickley's yard and and killed a chicken, there was an exchange of compliments, which was anything but neighborly. Then Dr. Jackson appeared before Justice Collins and swore out a warrant for Mr. Sickley's arrest. All the village was interested in the case.

A Westfield Democrat Backs Down.

Westfield, March 11—At a meeting of the executive committee of the Democratic party Thursday evening it was decided to run John Darsh for Township Committeeman, the office that Charles Clark refused to stand for. Mr. Darsh is a well known business man of Westfield, having for many years conducted a hardware business in the town. There is expected to be a hot fight between him and Martin Welles for the coveted office next Tuesday.

The various amounts to be voted for running the township were: Records, $1,800; township expenses, $1,500; police, $1 200; poor, $500; Board of Health, $25.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

THE PRESIDENT'S TRIP

Two Weeks to be Spent at the Southern Home of Mr. Hanna.

WHEELER TO BE BRIGADIER

Cabinet Meeting—The Nicaragua Route—Dewey Can Wear Such Uniform as he Pleases—Senator Hanna Will Guard the President Against Office Seekers During His Vacation.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—Senator Hanna saw the president yesterday and final arrangements were made for the trip to Thomasville, Ga. The party will leave here at 6 p. m. Monday, by way of the Atlantic Coast Line, and will consist of the president and Mrs. McKinley, Vice President and Mrs. Hobart, Senator and Mrs. Hanna and Assistant Secretary Cortelyou.

It is probable that they will remain at Thomasville for a couple of weeks, or longer if the public business will permit.

Senator Hanna said, speaking of the president's trip to Thomasville:

"How long the president will stay at my house I cannot say. I shall keep him as long as I possibly can. It is the intention that the president shall be perfectly quiet but if the visitors should become too numerous my brother has a plantation five miles from Thomasville, which is entirely out of the way, and on which there is a fine preserve for wild turkey shooting, and the president can go there."

Mr. Hanna said that he did not expect to come back to Washington this summer.

The Nicaragua Route.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—It now looks as if the friends of the Nicaragua canal route would win a victory in the White House. The president appears to be on their side. He has about decided to increase the present Nicaragua canal committee by adding to it one engineer from the army and one from civil life. If that is done the Panama route will receive but scant consideration.

It is well known that the present committee, of which Admiral Walker is the head, is strongly in favor of the route selected by the Nicaragua Canal Company. It does not think much of the two other Nicaragua routes, but would recommend either of them rather than the new Panama Canal Company's route.

Admiral Walker, Senator Morgan and Chairman Burton of the rivers and harbors committee, had a conference with the president recently and discussed the matter.

The senator and the admiral, of course, think the Nicaragua route the best one. The Ohio man, author of the canal provision in the river and harbor bill, has no preference, but wants all the routes surveyed with the same care that is given in making plans and estimates for river and harbor work. The purpose of his provision will be defeated if the present committee is merely enlarged, because its members will commit themselves to the Nicaragua line in the report, which is expected to be made about the middle of April.

Admiral Dewey's Uniform.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—Admiral Dewey has been instructed to prescribe his own uniform for his new rank. His flag is blue, with four stars set in the shape of a diamond.

His uniform under former regulations would be four stars on his shoulder straps, the end stars being upon anchors. Upon his sleeves he would wear two very broad bands of gold, between which would be a band of yellow half the width of the outside bands. The yellow on his sleeves would extend nearly to the elbows.

Gen. Wheeler's Prospects.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—General Wheeler was at the White House yesterday morning flitting about with his usual enthusiasm. His prime mission was to say that he does not wish in any way to embarrass the president, who, in the reorganization, must feel free to do as he pleases; but still, General Wheeler does not hesitate to say that he hopes to be remembered, and would be perfectly satisfied with a brigadier generalship.

The Postal Commission.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—Vice President Hobart has appointed Senator Martin of Virginia a member of the postal commission, in place of ex-Senator Faulkner of West Virginia, whose term expired on March 4. This commission is composed wholly of senators and representatives.

Census Appointments.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—After a conference between Director Merriam and Assistant Director Wines, it is announced that Albert E. Childs of the District of Columbia, will be chief clerk of the census bureau, and W. A. King of Colorado chief statistician in charge of the division of vital statistics.

They held the same posts in the last census, and since the bureau was abolished Mr. King has been clerk in charge of the records.

Edward McCauley of the District is to be disbursing officer.

The Chicago for a Flag-Ship.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—The Chicago has been detached from the squadron of Rear Admiral Sampson and has sailed from Havana for Hampton Roads.

The Chicago is to become the flagship of Rear Admiral Henry L. Howison, who has been assigned to command the South Atlantic station in South America.

This station was abandoned at the beginning of the Spanish war, the flagship at that time being the Newark. She and two gunboats were brought north to take part in the war.

Rear Admiral Henry F. Picking has been ordered to relieve Rear Admiral Howison as commandant of the navy yard at Boston. The Chicago was one of the first vessels of the new navy, but was not fitted for modern sea service, and for several years has been undergoing repairs which have practically made her a new ship.

New Coaling Stations.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—Under the naval appropriation bill the Bureau of Equipment is authorized to expend four hundred thousand dollars for coaling stations at different points. The location is in the discretion of the secretar yof the navy, but he no doubt will be guided by the recommendations of Rear Admiral Bradford, chief of the Burea uof Equipment.

The admiral has not made any recommendations, but it is known that he believes that there should be good coaling depots at Manila, San Juan, Porto Rico, Guam and at Shanghai, China, to supply United States vessels cruising in the North China Sea and Japanese waters.

It is probable that coaling station and depot will be located somewhere on the Maine coast. Portsmouth, N. H., also is being urged. There is water enough at Portsmouth, but the channel reaching the naval station is somewhat difficult for large vessels.

Meeting of the Cabinet.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—The method of transporting the three million dollars in coin to Cuba for the payment of the native troops was discussed briefly at the regular meeting of the cabinet. It was decided that the money should not all be risked on one steamer, but that two or more vessels should be employed in transporting it so as to reduce the danger of loss by accident of any kind.

The shipment of the money will be done with as much secrecy as possible, for it is thought best to be precautious against even the remote possibility of loss by marine highway robbers. The money will be kept under a strong guard of soldiers on shipboard.

THE GOVERNMET OF CUBA.

Military Administration in Some Instances to be Relaxed.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—The administration is contemplating a change in some features of the government of Cuba. It is probable that the military government will, to a certain extent, be replaced with civil government.

The head of the government must, of course, remain military, but the change in contemplation is to have civil officers in place of the military men in the cabinet and subordinate positions. It is believed that experts in different lines, such as finance and revenue, and in the management of much of the general business of the island in the different municipalities, will get along more smoothly than the army officers.

It is said that the officers, being brought up under strict military discipline, hold not only the statutes, but the army rules and regulations as the guide, in all things, while the civilian officers would hold the statutes as the supreme guide, and endeavor to get along under them in the best manner possible, and with more diplomacy than is possessed by the army men.

It is not known whether the contemplated change has reached a point further than discussion in the war department and with the president, but its advantages have been pointed out. The authority of the government to establish such a civil government under control of the military government has been determined.

The Returning Volunteers.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—In pursuance of the administrative policy of bringing home all the volunteer troops for muster out, in anticipation of the exchange of ratifications of the treaty of peace with Spain, orders were issued yesterday for the muster out of the One Hundred and Sixtieth regiment Indiana volunteer infantry, now at Matanzas. The regiment will be brought home as soon as a troop ship is available, and will be transported to the place of enrollment in Indiana for disbandment.

The order for the muster out of the volunteer troops in Cuba has eheen left to the discretion of General Brooke, commanding the entire Cuban army, on the theory that he is the best judge of theorganizations that can be first relieved of military duty on the island.

The Army's Losses.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—The following statement has been issued, showing the total number of deaths reported to the adjutant general's office between May 1, 1898 and February 28, 1899:

Killed in action, 329; died of wounds, 125; died of disease, 5,277. Total, 5,731.

Suicide Rather Than Trial.

Auburn, March 11.—Frank N. Sheldon on trial here for the second time for the murder of his wife, Eva M. Sheldon, committed suicide in the jail yesterday.

He was found hanging from the door of the cell with a towel around his neck tied to the iron grating over head. After fastening the towel Sheldon had drawn up his legs, allowin gthe weight of his body to fall on his neck, death resulting from strangulation.

Sheldon was convicted on March 15, 1897, of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be electrocuted. The court of appeals reversed conviction on the ground that Justice Dunwell coerced the jury.

The second trial was begun on Monday, February 27. The first week was consumed in impanelling a jury. The evidence was a repetition given at the former trial.

An Elder's Head.

At one time the Presbyterians of Ulster were discussing the ignorance and stupidity of one of their number, whose blunders were constantly getting other people, as well as himself, into trouble.

"And what a notion he has in his head now!" exclaimed one of the elders, in dismay.

"His head!" echoed one of the ministers. "He has no head! What you call a head is only a topknot that his Maker put there to keep him from ravelling out!"

Expected to Tip Them.

Hotel Clerk—"I can give you a pleasant room on the top floor, but you will have to pass the servants' quarters to get to it."

Guest—"Oh, that's all right. I expect to pass 'em quarters to get anything."

JONATHAN IN PARIS

Plans for the Government Buildings at the Exposition.

ONE WILL COST $100,000

It Will Be Very Large and Have a Dome with the American Eagle Standing on the Universe—Equestrian Statue of Washington—Politics Will Cut No Figure With Commissioner Peck.

Washington, March 11.—When Mr. Ferdinand W. Peck, Commissioner General of the Paris Exposition, called on the President the day after Congress adjourned, Mr. McKinley congratulated him upon being the only man to his knowledge who had secured from Congress a larger appropriation than he had asked. When the President asked Congress to provide for an exhibit of the United States at Paris, he asked an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the Commission. Congress appropriated $210,000 more than he requested.

Of this amount, $200,000 is for buildings; $150,000 for the Agricultural Department, and $60,000 for the payment of jurors which leaves $800,000 for general expenses of the Commission.

Soon after the bill was passed the Commissioner General summoned the architects who will have charge of the buildings and aproved the plans. Mr. Coolidge, of Boston, has sailed for Paris to let the contracts and begin work.

The central building of the American exhibit will be 100 feet square and 100 feet high, and will cost $100,000. It is intended to be the headquarters for Commissioners and exhibitors, and for the comfort of American visitors. In this respect, it will be like the German, French and British buildings at the World's Fair. It will stand on the banks of the Seine with a landing, and all boats will stop there. There will be an imposing dome, with the American eagle standing upon the universe.

In the centre of the rotunda will be an equestrian statue of Washington.

The agricultural annex will cost $50,000, and will be connected by colonnades with the American section of the main exhibit building, so that visitors may pass from one to the other without going outside. Secretary of Agriculture Wilson will have personal direction of the agricultural exhibit, and proposes to make it a noteworthy feature of the American section.

The exhibit will be collected and displayed with a view to extending our export trade in foreign products. There will be a corn kitchen in the annex, where all forms of food from corn will be cooked and given or sold. Another annex will be made to the Manufacturers' Building, especially for the exhibition of United States newspaper and printing presses.

Especial attention will be paid to a fine art exhibit, under the direction of John B. Cauldwell of New York. Quality and not quantity will be the rule for acceptance. Many who intend to send exhibits will be disappointed, as not more than 10 per cent. of those already offered will be accepted.

The American exhibit will be based upon the judgment of experts and not upon the enterprise of the exhibitor. Mr. Peck announces that political influences will not make the slightest difference, and exhibitors are particularly warned against agencies and attorneys who are advertising their ability to obtain space and to look after exhibits.

Woman and Man Hanged.

St. Scholastique, Quebec, March 11.—Cordelia Viau and Sam Parslow were hanged on the same scaffold here yesterday for the murder of Isidore Poirier, the husband of the condemned woman.

Shortly before the hour of execution a mob gathered outside of the jail and became unruly. The police found it necessary to place a ringleader under arrest. Later they fired several shots into the air.

This had the effect of restoring quiet, but not before several shots had been fired by the mob.

The Army Beef Inquiry.

Chicago, March 11.—The military court of inquiry regarding beef continued work at the stock yards yesterday, investigating packing house methods. It is expected that the taking of testimony will occur to-day and Monday, and that the court will leave for Omaha or Kansas City on Tuesday or Wednesday, unless something develops to make a longer stay in Chicago imperative.

The Pan-American Exhibition.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 11.—Telegrams signed by Mayor Conrad Diehl, as chairman of the board of directors of the Pan-American Exposition Company, and by the proprietors of all the Buffalo papers, have been sent to the governors of all states where the legislatures are in session, urging appropriations for state buildings and exhibits at the Pan-American Exposition, to be held near Buffalo, on the Niagara frontier, in 1901.

Russia Backs Down in China.

Pekin, March 11.—The Tsung-li-Yamen has received a telegram from the Chinese minister at St. Petersburg saying that as the result of negotiations between the Russian and British governments, M. de Giers, Russian minister to China, will withdraw his protest against the northern extension loan and the contract with the Hong Kong & Shanghai Bank.

To Avoid a Coal Strike.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 11.—Another conference of committees of coal operators and miners of the Pittsburg district, to arrange the local scale of wages for the coming year, is in session here.

The indications point to an amicable settlement without resorting to a strike as has been predicted.

Disclaimer From Austria.

Vienna, March 11.—The Fremdenblatt declares that the report that Austria is seeking to acquire Chinese territory is absolutely unfounded.

DUN'S WEEKLY REVIEW.

A General Increase in Wages Has Been the Feature of the Week Past.

New York, March 11.—By far the best assurance of good business in the future is found in the general rise of wages. Traders and manufacturrs can sell only when wage earners can buy, and in proportion to their buying power. The general advance in earnings of cotton mill operatives, in most cases 10 per cent., of iron and steel workers generally 10 per cent., and tin plate and sheet workers from 5 to 10 per cent., and of coal miners, in some large districts, about as much, has set a pace which most establishments will follow, which have reduced wages in past years of depression. Those who fail to comprehend what such a change may mean have only to consider what a tenth increase in the wages of all labor would put into the markets a new buying demand, in amount about three-quarters of the entire value of exports to all countries. The volume of business shows no signs of decrease, and for the first full week of March has been about 51.7 per cent. greater than in the same week of last year and 60.9 per cent greater than in 1892.

The stock market was quite weak until the close of Tuesday owing to apprehension about money, but rose with strong buying to $72.15 per share, 45 cents higher than a week ago, while trust stocks closed $1.20 cents higher. There is no reason whatever for apprehension about money, the interior markets being overloaded, and they have sent to New York over $3,000,000 this week. The course of foreign trade, exports have exceeded last year's over 4 per cent., while imports have increased at this point only 9 per cent., promises a very heavy balance in favor of this country, and as yet the enormous deferred payments due from other countries on account of past merchandise balances have not been appreciably reduced. Even the considerable shipments of stocks from Great Britain to this country during the past month has not disturbed at all the large amount of exchange deferred and hypothecated here. Failures for the first week of March have been $3,197,735 in amount of liabilities, against $1,770,592 last year, manufacturing $1,784,997 against $480,074, and trading $1,205,905 against $1,117,690 last year. Failures for the week have been 182 in the United States against 248 last year, and 37 in Canada against 36 last year.

Diver Donaldson Dead.

New York, March 11.—Tom Donaldson, the professional diver, whose dive of fifty-four feet into the tank at Madison Square Garden on Wednesday afternoon resulted in the fracture of his skull, died yesterday in the New York Hospital.

Donaldson never recovered consciousness from the time that he was dragged out of the tank after he made his fatal dive. The physicians worked over him all that night in their efforts to render him conscious in order that they might perform anoperation on him.

Donaldson's dive of Wednesday was the third descent he had made during the Sportsmen's Show.

Mrs. Cody Free, Off for Denver.

Albany, N. Y., March 11.—Mrs. Margaret Cody, the aged woman convicted of attempting to blackmail the Goulds, left this city for her home in Denver, Colorado, last night, a free woman. As predicted in these dispatches, Judge Gregory suspended sentence and released the woman on her own cognizance. Cheers greeted the announcement in court.

Judge Gregory and the Gould lawyers had a conference, and the question of what punishment should be inflicted upon the convicted woman, who is 72 years old, was discussed.

The Gould lawyers said that their clients would agree that the woman should go free, as they were satisfied with having her convicted. It was understood last night that Miss Helen Gould, who was in the city, had urged that the aged prisoner be released. Now it appears that the lawyers acted on their own responsibility, and that Miss Gould did not make the request.

Two members of the jury, it is said, voted for conviction only on the assurance that mercy would be recommended, and that Mrs. Cody should not be punished further.

Mrs. Cody has been in jail ten months and she is enfeebled and excitable. She did not seem to appreciate the leniency of the court last night, for she asserted her innocence of the charge on which she was tried, and said that she had been made a "martyr to the money power."

"When I am in eternity," she said, "this declaration of my innocence may be proven true."

Mrs. Cody's counsel seems to be well pleased that his client escaped punishment so easily.

Mrs. Cody was released about 4 p. m. and spent several hours in her counsel's office, where she narrated the injustice which she asserts has been done to her. She dined last night on three slices of bread and butter, a cup of tea and some pickles. On her way to the train she said she was glad to get out of this state.

A Railroad to Connect Two Oceans.

San Francisco, March 11.—Negotiations areon foot between C. P. Huntington and President Cabera of Guatemala, which, if consummated, will result in the building of one hundred and thirty miles of road in Guatemala by the means of which the little southern republic will have an overland line from the Pacific to the Atlantic. Mr. Huntington already owns a road in that country, running from San Jose, a port on the Pacific, to the city of Guatemala, a distance of 74 miles. It has an important branch running from Santa Maria north to Patulul through a rich coffee district. The railroad cost about $3,000,000 in gold, and pays an annual net profit of about 15 per cent.

Mr. Huntington will also probably secure control of the government road from Puerto Barrios to St. Augustin, and a line between Champerico to San Felipe.

Pope Shows Weakness.

London, March 11.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says: "The pope continues to improve, but his physicians say he shows great weakness, which is rather alarming to his entourage.

THE GRANT AT MANILA

Gen. Lawton Arrives and Reports to Gen. Otis.

TO LAND TROOPS AT ONCE

Insurgent Incendiaries Attempt to Terrorize the Inhabitants of Pandacan—Matters Unusually Quiet Along the Line—Prizes Wish Dewey's Men Will Receive.

Manila, March 11.—Rebel incendiaries landed at the village of Pandacan last night for the purpose, it is alleged, of terrorizing those of the inhabitants who do not sympathize with the insurrection. A number of native houses were destroyed.

The transport Grant, which sailed from New York, January 19, with Major General Lawton, the Fourth Infantry and a battalion of the Seventeenth Infantry, arrived this morning.

Gen. Lawton landed and formally reported to Major General Otis, after which he returned on board the Grant The troops will be disembarked immediately.

A battalion of the Twenty-second Infantry reinforced Gen. Wheaton's brigade this afternoon.

The remains of Colonel W. E. Smith, Major E. McConville, Captain David S. Elliott and Second Lieutenant Eugene S. French, who were killed in action, were shipped home to-day by the transport Scandia with military honors, the Second Oregon Volunteers furnishing the escort through the city.

With the exception of San Pedro Macati, where Filipino sharpshooters incessantly annoy the American troops, matters are unusually quiet along the line. The weather is much cooler today.

The Grant's Arrival Reported.

Washington, March 11.—A cablegram received at the War Department dated Manila, March 10, says that the transport Grant arrived with troops in good condition. The Arizona and Newport leave to-day for San Francisco—the Arizona via Hong Kong and the Newport via Nagasaki.

Claims of Dewey's Men for Head Money.

San Francisco, March 11.—George H. Holden, of Washington, who has just returned from the orient, brings 1,100 claims of the officers and men of Dewey's fleet for head money, aggregating $187,500, or $100 per head for the 1,875 officers and men of Admiral Montejo's fleet. The prize money for the officers and men under Admiral Dewey will amount to $400,000, plus the salvage of three vessels recently raised.

Mr. Holden said that Admiral Dewey's health was good and that he looked fairly well.

Orders have been received at army headquarters here to prepare transportation for the Ninth Infantry, which is to be sent to Manila. It has been given out from department headquarters that the War Department is desirous of recruiting for the cavalry service in the Philippines and also for that of artillery.

Agoncillo Talking Again.

London, March 11.—Agoncillo, the agent of Aguinaldo, who has just recovered from the effects of his shipwreck, said in an interview to-day:

"I did not leave Washington on account of the outbreak of hostilities, although I was warned by a high American official that my life was in danger. I left in order to communicate with less restraint with the Filipino Government, as I found my telegrams were tampered with. I categorically deny sending a telegram advising a rupture with the Americans, and I will make an affidavit to that effect. I am thankful to the bulk of the American people, as I am convinced of their just and humanitarian sentiments.

"The Jingo telegrams telling of constant victories of the Americans are ludicrous. Since the beginning of the campaign the victorious army of Gen. Otis has not advanced a yard beyond Caloocan and San Pedro Macati. I have telegrams up to February 27, repeating that six hundred American prisoners are in the hands of the Filipinos. Gen. Otis censors the press telegrams because he knows that if the correspondents were allowed to report the real facts the position of the American forces would be anything but creditable in the eyes of the civilized world and the Junta telegrams would be found to be perfectly correct."

Few Total Abstainers in Massachusetts.

Boston, Mass., March 11.—At the hearing before the education committee of the legislature on the bill for scientific temperance instruction in the public schools, Dr. Henry P. Bowditch presented the result of some inquiries by the so-called committee of fifty upon the matter of temperance in the use of liquor.

The committee sent inquiries to leading men all over the country asking whether they were total abstainers or took alcoholic drink occasionally or regularly. A pledge was given that no names would be published.

Less than one-fifth were total abstainers. Very nearly two-thirds of the whole 892 who replied wrote that they were occasional drinkers, and just about one-sixth wrote that they were regular moderate drinkers.

Dr. Bowditch said that these men are doing the leading work in the world. They include judges of the supreme court and prominent men in all professions. Of the whole number one hundred and fifty-two were clergymen, and this proportion affected the statistical result much, for over half of these men are total abstainers, and only two per cent. wrote that they were regular drinkers.

If the clergymen were omitted the percentage of our leading men who use alcoholic drink would be materially increased.

A Colliery Closed Down.

Hazleton Pa., March 11.—Orders were received yesterday for an indefinite suspension of work at the Jeanesville colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company.

More than five hundred men and boys have been thrown out of employment by the order.

PENNSYLVANIY FINANCES.

A New Tax Bill—Legislative Retrenchment and Additional Revenue.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 11.—The tax bill drafted by the commissioners appointed for the purpose was reported to the Ho[illegible] with amendments, and will be rush[illegible] through the legislature, as Gov[illegible] Stone has declared that the ad[illegible] it provides for is badly [illegible]

The [illegible] will probably look with fa[illegible] bill which taxes [illegible] breweries half a cent a [illegible] a revenue of $500,000 yearly.

A conference of leading members of the staff of administration and the chairmen of the House and Senate appropriations and ways and means committees has been held on the subject of reducing the appropriations usually granted to the various institutions receiving state aid.

The governor is said to be in favor of cutting $1,500,000 off the annual appropriation of $5,500,000 granted to the public schools, and it is probable that the state normal schools, hospitals, and other institutions of a semi-private character will also suffer large cuts. State College at Bellefonte, which is supported largely by the state, is also likely to lose nearly all of its usual grant of one hundred thousand dollars a year.

Andrew Carnegie recently gave one hundred thousand dollars to this institution for a library building, on condition that the state appropriate ten thousand dollars annually for its maintenance, but there is little prospect of the gift becoming operative.

CABLE CHESS MATCH BEGUN.

An Interesting Contest for the News Trophy Which the Britons Held.

Brooklyn, N. Y., March 11.—The fourth annual match by cable between teams of the British and Brooklyn Chess Clubs, representing Great Britain and the United States, was begun at the assembly rooms in the Academy of Music in this city and at the Hotel Cecil in London.

This year's contest is of considerable importance, as the American players must draw the match at least, in order to save the Newnes trophy from becoming the absolute property of the British players, while an American victory would put both clubs on even terms again.

The great interest taken by the public in this match was made manifest by an unusually large and early attendance. Delegations from out of town chess clubs were numerous, notably from Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago, while the South and even the far West were represented.

Two cables were devoted to the match, direct connections being made between the two halls, with special operators at the terminals.

In the Academy of Music the American players were on the stage. Directly behind them, raised high above the players, were ten immense chess boards with hanging pieces, upon which the moves are recorded as they are made, so that the spectators may follow the games as they progress.

Michigan Railroad Taxation.

Lansing, Mich., March 11.—The Pingree-Atkinson bill, providing for taxation of railroad, express, telegraph and telephone property on a basis similar to that upon which other property is taxed, which passed its final stage in the House, repeals former acts under which railroads were taxed in proportion to their gross earnings.

It provides for appointment by the governor, with the consent of the Senate, of a board of assessors, the members of which shall have access to all accounts of the companies to whom it applies, and who shall assess these companies properly at the average rate of state, county and municipal taxes upon all property within the state.

Various features of the new act will doubtless be tested in the supreme court.

England's Deal With Italy

Rome, March 11.—The Gazette del Popolo says that the accord between Italy and Great Britain is complete. Italy is prepared to cede Erythrea to England and the latter will vigorously support Italy's action in China.

The Corriere della Sera says that Senor de Martino, Italian minister to China, will present an ultimatum to the Chinese government demanding a reply to Italy's demand for a Chinese port.

In the event of a refusal Italy will adopt a bold and decisive action for the protection of her interests.

The Harrisburg Bribery Charges.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 11.—The House has granted an extension of time to the special committee which is investigating the charges of bribery in connection with the McCarrel jury bill.

The committee has been ordered to report on March 13. It has held three sessions already and will sit again next Tuesday night.

Developments of an even more sensational nature than have yet been brought out in the matter are promised for next week.

Saved by Dynamite.

Leadville, Col., March 11.—Communication has been established with Chas. Reuss and Bert Frey, imprisoned in the Bonair mine, through caving of the shaft, by ripping asunder the water pipe with a charge of dynamite lowered to the proper depth.

Provisions were lowered through the pipe. A new shaft will have to be sunk seventy-five feet before the men can be reached. The rescue will take about a week.

Robbed Bank Retirel.

Lima, March 11.—The American National Bank, mysteriously robbed of over eighteen thousand dollars, has decided to go into voluntary liquidation Monday morning, followinfi Christmas when the janitor opened the bank, he found the safe doors open. The time lock did not show a mark of violence.

A bank will open in the same room, under different management, to be known as the Bank of Lima.

Mr. Martine's Oratory.

Last week James E. Martine journeyed to Rahway and delivered a characteristic Democratic speech before the Democratic Club of that city. The Rahway Advocate this week handles Mr. Martine's visit in this fashion:

These magic words passed with startling rapidity from lip to lip of the members of the Democratic Club last Thursday afternoon. "Jim's here!" How the faithful swelled until "Expansion" was a condition and they fled from the haunts of man lest they be discovered. "Jim's here!" Can you doubt it? Has not the edict gone forth? Did not the dodgers, pasted 'neath the snow and ice, or stuck in every conceivable place, proclaim the glad tidings? And they were right! "Jim" was here! The same old fire burns unabated in his breast and flashes from his eye; the same dramatic air, the same voice that has pleaded so eloquently in the past for the "Markets of the World," changed not since it scored the money devil and drove the octopus to its lair; that it will cry out against "Imperialism" now that the "markets" are a possibility, we—but we are wandering.

"Jim" was here! Not a single doubt of it. Remember the atmospheric disturbance Tuesday; didn't the wind blow!

The New Jersey editor of The Tribune, whose sallies on Mr. Martine's political oratory affords much amusement to the "Farmer Orator," got his eagle eye on to The Advocate's merry editorial note, and this is the result in today's Tribune:

That cannot possibly refer to anybody but the Hon. James E. Martine, the peerless orator and political prophet. There is none other like him in all the State of New Jersey. He can see and sing the oncoming tide of victory where the aspect appears to others as absolutely hopeless, and he is never so happy as when running for office whenever the possibility of an election is out of the question. Compare to him Mark Tapley, who was a glum old pessimist of the rankest kind.

Defeat It.

The second bill aimed to relieve Elizabeth of the expense of maintaining the District Court in that city by putting it upon the county, has made its appearance in the Assembly. Mr. Houston stands sponsor for it. The only change from the first bill, which was defeated through the efforts of Assemblyman Murray, is that it applies to second-class counties alone. Under such conditions the Elizabeth officials hope that it will not engage the opposition of either Hudson or Essex counties, which are first class counties, and that it will be passed by the Legislature.

If this bill becomes a law it will cost Plainfield about $800 in county tax, and Plainfield will not receive one cent in benefits from the court. Such a piece of legislation as that is all wrong. We understand that Assemblyman Murray will make a stiff fight against its passage. The Common Council of Plainfield, as well as the municipal officers of other sections of the county that receive no benefit from a district court in Elizabeth, should take immediate steps to prevent the passage of this measure.

If Assemblyman Murray reads and keeps in a scrap book all the smart things that are said in the newspapers

LORD TENNYSON.

A son of the late lamented poet laureate is the new governor and commander in chief of the colony of South Australia. Lord Tennyson recently sailed from Liverpool for his new home and responsibilities. With him, as assistant, went his nephew, Alfred Tennyson. The new governor is 47 years of age.

concerning his career as a legislator he will end the session in Trenton with the satisfaction that the name of Roger Franklin Murray is pretty well known from one end of the State to the other. Under the caption of "He Counts Only One," the New Jersey editor of the New York Press thus brusquely treats the Plainfield statesman:

There seems to be that sort of fire of eloquence in Assemblyman Murray, of Union, which thrills and burns into the fibre of his own being, but it chills the marrow of everyone else who hears it. Murray has the sympathy of Speaker Watkins, yet the strong man from Woodbury is only human, and must of necessity consider that there are fifty nine other Assemblymen, each having equal constitutional privilege with the forceful statesman of Plainfield.

In commenting on the recent conviction of a Trenton justice of the peace for malfeasance in office, the Newark News truthfully observes:

It is because unfit men are so frequently elected to the office of justice of the Peace, that that branch of the State's judicial department has fallen into disrepute. The position offers peculiar opportunities to prey upon the victims of vice and ignorance, and for this reason is sought by some men of lax morals and blunted consciences, who care not at all for the obligations which should pertain to the office, but use it only as an instrument of oppression and extortion. Political parties rarely give proper heed to the character of the men nominated for justices of the peace on the respective tickets, nor are the voters any more critical. Thus it frequently happens that unfit men have no trouble in being elected, and by their subsequent conduct bring into dishonor and disrepute an office, which, when properly administered, is one of the most important and useful in the State.

The Bound Brook State Centre prints the following comment on the close of The Daily Press subscription contest:

A subscription contest conducted by the circulation department of the Plainfield Daily Press closed Monday and resulted in securing 288 new subscribers to that popular daily and to the three highest contestants the prizes offered—a course in the Plainfield Business College, course in the Gregg School of Shorthand, and a Webster's International Dictionary. As The Press had already a well cultivated field, its enterprising management is to be highly congratulated on having found ground wherein to plant more good seed. May it grow and prosper!

New Jersey is again held up to the unenviable light of the world as being the commonwealth selected for a monster combination of capital to get together in and control the coal market in defiance of what is right and just in the use of a public commodity. The quicker New Jersey sets down good and hard on the class of capitalists who use their advantages of wealth to deprive people of inherent rights the better it will be for all concerned.

A bill has been introduced in the Delaware Legislature to charge gypsies $50 a year for living in the State. This is a direct uppercut at the horse-trading community of Delaware and we have no doubt but that when opportunity arises dealers in equine flesh will resent the attempt to encroach on their rights, as this proposed law does, in no uncertain tone.

The Philadelphia Record thinks that there's something refreshing in the promptness with which New Jersey sails into the mythic Coal Trust, but it wonders how could the little commonwealth stop long enough in its everyday business of creating new trusts to shake its fist at the anthracite monstrosity?

The Senate has defeated the bill authorizing school districts to establish kindergarten schools for children from four to six years of age. The opinion is expressed that the schools of the State are overcrowded, and that it would be unwise to lower the age of admission, which is now fixed at five years.

A Kansas Legislator has introduced a bill to provide for the office of Inspector of Whiskers. Political students will doubtless call to mind the fact that the Populists met with defeat at the last election in Kansas, and then conclude that such a law resolves itself into adding insult to injury.

A communication printed in another part of today's Press, and signed "A Republican Taxpayer," treats of some very trite political history of North Plainfield. It is especial timely at this moment. It is evident that it makes some difference whose ox is gored.

Mr. Croker declares that his voice obtains no more influence among Democratic Legislators at Albany than the most humble Mugwump. Mr. Croker believes in a good joke once in a while.

A seventy-year-old man was fined $10 in a Paterson court the other day for kissing a pretty widow. It is evident that this was a case where the article did not improve with age.

It looks as though Assemblyman Murray's bill to reduce telephone charges had been rung off at Trenton.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Two fatalities within four days again demonstrate in the most forcible manner that the Bound Brooks with their unsurpassed canal, river and railroad accommodation possess facilities for sudden transition from life unequaled anywhere in this State. For this reason if for no other this locality has greater need of a resident coroner than any other place in this vicinity at least, yet of the three coroners the law allows this county one now lives in Raritan, one in Somerville and the other in North Plainfield. A more convenient arrangement may perhaps be presented by one or the other of the next county conventions, or possibly some may be invented whereby the council of a live borough may appoint its own officer to attend to such deaths as occur without the aid of a physician.—Bound Brook State Centre.

The Republicans of North Plainfield displayed their colors in a most decided manner Saturday evening. The friends of Mayor Wilson had given out that no Republican could be found who would run against him for Mayor, and that he and the Councilmen whom he seemed to control to his way of thinking, would be endorsed by the Republican primary. But there was found to be no lack of Republicans when the primary met. Newton B. Smalley, an old-time Republican worker, was nominated by acclamation, and the three Councilmen whose Resublicanism, it seemed, was exceedingly doubtful, were ignominously turned down, and three men, tried and true Republicans, were nominated to succeed them. There is no doubt that this ticket will be elected as the borough is a Republican place.—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthy, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

A Grand Climax.

Tonight ends our Anniversary Week, and a busy week it has been for us. Right heartily have the good people of Plainfield responded to the inducements we have held out to them, and have made it a week memorable in our business history, not only for large selling, but for the making of many new business acquaintances. We desire to express our appreciation of and return our thanks for the liberal patronage of the week just closing. We hope for a continuance of the same and shall endeavor to merit it by putting forth every effort to make ours an ideal establishment in which to shop. We come to Plainfield to give its people a store second to none in New Jersey. With your co-operation we are fast succeeding.

In its advanced and chronic form a cold in the head is known as Nasal Catarrh and is the recognized source of other diseases. Having stood the test of continued successful use, Ely's Cream Balm is recognized as a specific for membranal diseases in the nasal passages, and you make a great mistake in not resorting to this treatment in your own case. To test it a trial size for 10 cents or the large for 50 cents is mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York. Druggists keep it.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

After the snow storm of a few days ago, some of the hackmen who congregate about the North avenue station, went into the station yard and there built an immense snow man which they decorated with hat and cane.

Jack Kennedy, the hackman, has a little dog which is particularly fond of riding horse back. The dog will take up its place on the back of the horse and stick there whether the horse trots or gallops. Kennedy was driving about town a few afternoons ago with the dog quietly riding in its favorite way.

Melvin Sheldon, who was present at the hanging of Louis Roesel at Elizabeth yesterday, as representative of the Standard News Association, has now witnessed twenty two executions of murderers. Four of them were hanged and eighteen electrocuted. He is on duty at Sing Sing and there saw Carlyle Harris, Dr. Buchannan, Thorn and many other well known murderers die.

* * * * *

Justice Edward B. Kelly, of Summit, who was one of the witnesses at the hanging of Louis Roesel, at the county jail in Elizabeth yesterday, was the man who tracked Roesel down and brought him to justice. He arrested him on Staten Island in a barn where he had hired out as a farm hand. Kelly was much affected at seeing Roesel die so bravely. This is the second man he has arrested, who has been executed in his presence. Kelly is a good hearted man and is well known throughout the county.

Property owners are finding fault at the prospect of being taxed for the carrying away of garbage and ashes, if the city purchases the sanitary plant, as it seems probable they will do now. They claim that it is not fair to make the owners of property pay for this, for where a person owns ten or fifteen houses, the item will be quite an important one. No objection is found to the purchase of the plant by the city, but several who own property here have expressed a desire that each person pay for the collection of his own garbage. When it was suggested that the landlords increase the rents enough to make them whole, the suggestion was laughed at and it was said that rents were so low now that real estate payed a very small profit.

HIS WIFE'S RELATIVES.

A Stratagem that Saved Blueton from Bankruptcy.

"Mrs. Blueton," began her liege lord when he got her alone, "just how many of your relatives do you figure that I have married?"

"What can you mean, dearie?"

"None of that, now. I'm not here to spoon, but to talk business, hot from the bat. The house is packed from cellar to garret with your people, and they're coming at excursion rates on every train. I've been stumbling over brats and running against new faces all morning. Your mother-in law sails around like the flagship of a squadron. Your male relatives smoke a box of my cigars every day, kick on the quality, and telephone for more at my expense. When we eat the dining room looks like a banquet hall, seven or eight babies squall all night, and I receive about as much consideration as a bound boy at a husking."

"But darling—"

"Don't cut in, Mrs. Blueton. Wait till you get my bill of particulars. You asked me to sleep on a cot tonight. Not on your life. I'm going to have at least half a bed, or I'll turn myself loose. You'll be assigning me to the hay loft next or hanging me in a hammock on the back porch. You'll have relatives roosting in the trees and bunking on the roof, if you keep on. You and I have run up against a crisis, madam. If I'm going to conduct a hotel for your multifarious kinship I'll hire clerks, bell boys, cooks, waiters, chambermaids and a couple of detectives, put in an elevator and open up a licensed bar. Then we'll advertise for such remote branches of your relatives as may not be here. The other horns of the dilemma, Mrs. Blueton, are a divorce or an assignment."

But the next day the diplomatic little Mrs. Blueton was so ill that absolute quiet in the house was imperative. Blueton watched the exodus with ghoulish glee, and when a procession of twenty-two, followed by seven stragglers, had pased out, he double-bolted the door to join Mrs. Blueton in a high-step walk-around.

Our Great Impressionist.

"What do you suppose impressed Li Hung Chang more than anything else in America, Mr. Pilcher?"

"The fact that American wives are so lively that a man can't undertake to manage but one at a time."—Chicago Record.

Yes or No?

"Tell me," said the young man, passionately, "is my answer to be spelled with three letters or two?"

"Three," said the summer girl, shyly."

"Darling!"

"That is to say, it is 'nit.'"

A Case of Necessity.

First Chappie—My dear boy, you should never laugh at your own jokes.

Second Chappie—Oh, confound it all, I've got to! I could never stand the everlasting silence that comes after them.—Truth.

A YANKEE INVENTION.

A Much Better and Easier Way Than the Old Method.

Everybody has heard of poultry farms, but poultry factories are in the nature of novelties. Yet one was started, in that good suburb of New York town, Jersey City, and was moved from there to Chicago, so as to be closer to the raw material. It all began in this wise. When Governor Morton was Ambassador to France he took along with him, in a very subordinate capacity, a constituent named Williams; from somewhere up the State Mr. Williams got interested in the French method of fattening fowls. It was a tedious process, he discovered; the birds were confined closely and hand-fed—literally crammed with pellets of dough made of rye and barley flour, mixed with sweet milk.

Mr. Williams thought he knew, or could know, a trick worth several of that. He set his wits actively to work. The result being that he put up an experimental plant and felt justified in bringing his business to the notice of New York hotel proprietors, market moguls and bons vivants.

Then he built a factory—a long, low, square building—inside of which was a big room, whitewashed and as bare as a barn. Across the end a little space was was partitioned off. This was the factory kitchen, in which milk, meal and flour of various grades were compounded into a rich gruel, barely liquid enough to flow easily through a nozzle.

Down each side of the big room ran a row of wooden cylinders, pivoted at top and bottom, and turning easily. All the outer surface of them was cut into box-like compartments, each barely big enough to hold a good-sized hen. To be exact, there were seven hundred compartments to a cylinder. They were open at the back and had a smooth iron ring, as big as the thumb, at one side. From this ring a leather strap was looped around the left leg of the fowl to be fattened. The birds were placed bills out.

A cylinder was charged all at once. The plan was to fill two each day, so as to have fourteen hundred fat birds coming to hand each morning. Three weeks was the period of fattening, and an ordinary-sized fowl gained from a pound and a half to three pounds while in the cylinder. The feeding— and that is where the patents came in—was a sight to see. The feeder sat in a sling swung from the ceiling, and five times each day fed the chicks from a nozzle, with which he shot the food into their wide open mouths.—New York Journal.

IS IT A VENDETTA?

The Queer Story of a Dog, a Kitten and a Hen.

London Punch received the accompanying letter from an Oxford undergraduate:

"Dear Sir—You will interested to hear of the curious action of a little dog belonging to a friend on the same stair-case as myself at Brazenface College, Oxford.

"This animal regularly every morning, at the same hour, brings a young kitten in its mouth and drowns it in a tub of water which always stands in one place. He is invariably accompanied by an old hen, who personally superintends the work of destruction, cackling the whole time as if possessed, as she probably is. The hen gravely stalks away when the drowning is completed. To my certain knowledge no less than thirty-three kittens have thus been destroyed on consecutive days.

"Now, where does the dog obtain the kittens? Why does she drown them? Is it the result of a solemn anti-feline vow? Is it a vendetta? What is the connecting link with the old hen? Does the hen employ the dog to kill the kittens because cats have injured her eggs or her feelings? I confess myself completely baffled. Yours, ever, A. Solomon (Undergrad.)"

Barrie on American Parlors.

Barrie, the novelist, took a dislike to the American parlor, and in the course of some remarks in Washington he said: "The idea of having the largest and best furnished room in the house reserved for infrequent callers, instead of allowing the children of the household to enjoy it, was never a pleasant one to me. It was once told by a bright boy that he seldom was allowed to enter the parlor of his home unless it was during a 'funeral ceremony or something like that.' This may have described the situation too strongly, but it was much nearer the truth than otherwise."—Chicago Chronicle.

Picked Up in the Kitchen.

The following is a good parrot story: A parrot in a certain house was usually kept in the dining-room with the family, but during the winter was removed to the kitchen for greater warmth.

When the winter was past, it again made its appearance among the family, whom it amused with the new remarks it had picked up in the kitchen.

On one occasion, when the bell had been rung for something, the parrot was heard remarking from his cage: "Let 'em ring again!"

State Religion Costs.

The salary of the archbishop of Canterbury is $75,000 a year. He has two palaces provided for him, free of cost, by the British nation, and his attendance and maintenance are also settled for in great part by the British taxpayer.

Not So Funny to the Alderman.

A pretty good joke was that played on an alderman, who wandered about the streets bearing a placard on his broad back, inscribed, "Widened at the expense of the corporation."

DEATH OF A FAMOUS ANT.

Sir John Lubbock Mourns for His Lost Pet Methuselah.

Sir John Lubbock, the celebrated naturalist, is heartbroken over the loss of his favorite ant, Methuselah, which has just departed this life at the advanced age of fifteen years.

Methuselah was no ordinary ant. His long and brilliant career entitled him to high rank in the insect world, and he knew it.

First of all, Methuselah was the oldest ant of which science has any record. Taken at a tender age into the Lubbock home, he was treated always as one of the family, and made to feel that he was a personage of importance.

From the first days of his larvahood he received as much attention as any baby of the blood royal, and as he advanced in years he was made to understand that the interest of the scientific world was concentrated upon him.

It was to ascertain beyond question the limit of longevity of his kind that Sir John grafted Methuselah upon society. Much doubt existed that the life of an ant could be extended beyond four or five years, so Sir John hit upon the idea of rearing one of those ingenious insects under his own eye. For this purpose he had a dainty little glass house made in accordance with designs drawn by himself, so constructed that the daily life of his captive pet could be observed constantly. The microscopic mansion was like no ordinary suburban villa, with a Queen Anne front and a Mary Ann back. In this crystal abode Methuselah though a prisoner, was as magnificent as the reconstructed ducal owner of Marlborough House. He was was kept under observation continually, most of the time by Sir John and his comfort was considered a matter of great importance.

Methuselah was a large black ant of the kind that frequents hollow trees. Had he remained with his own class his time would have been divided between fierce battles with the red ants across the way and sundry foraging expeditions. His life was one long round of pleasure, and when he died he might well have exclaimed, with the famous bon-vivant, "There is no more; I have lived."—New York Journal.

Genuine Western Hospitality.

"Talk about hospitality," remarked a broken-down actor yesterday, "the place to find it is in the far West. The last time I was out there we were playing 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' with a real mule. We played to fair business, and paid our bills until we reached Red Bluff. There the owner of the opera house had a piano for an orchestra, and it stood just below the stage. When the mule came on some one in the audience got funny, and, throwing a lariat around the neck of the animal, pulled him off the stage. The mule and the piano got mixed up, which ruined the orchestra, and when he got away from the piano the mule kicked down one of the boxes before he walked through one of the seats to where the fellow with the lariat wanted him. I had a mouth organ, with which I went on with the orchestral accompaniment, and we closed the play with the fellow that captured the mule riding him around the opera house.

"The manager of the opera house claimed damages, captured all the box receipts, and we could not get out of town. Of course we expected to walk but I'll be blamed if the landlord didn't pack us all with our luggage in a box car, give us plenty of lunch, and send us clear to Virginia City without out paying a cent. The most hospitable fellow I ever saw."—Washington Star

A Long Wait for the Requisition.

When Lord Wolseley was instructed to go to Khartoum he made out a formal requisition for a camel saddle of peculiar construction. After waiting for forty-eight hours he inquired if the saddle was ready, and received the discouraging information that his request had not yet been passed upon by the Inspector-General of Stores. As time was precious, Wolseley sent for a private, unofficial sadler, set him at work, and by next morning the desired article was delivered. Meanwhile the requisition made its slow way through mazes of red tape from one official to another till it reached the Government shops. Then it and the saddle meandered no more rapidly back along the same route, and finally, just six years from the time when Wolseley had been in such a hurry, the saddle and a big bundle of correspondence reached him.—New York Tribune.

Too Many Syllables.

A well-dressed man entered a Wabash avenue florist's shop the other day, threw down a five-dollar bill and said he wanted some flowers to take home. He was quite unsteady, evidently tapering off a spree, and the flowers apparently were intended as a domestic peace offering.

The florist picked out a dozen chrysanthemums and the caller started to leave. At the door he hesitated.

"Say," he said quickly, "whatsh these flowersh, anyway?"

"Chrysanthemums."

The customer shook his head. "Gotter have something easier," he said; "gimme a dozen pinks."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Salt a Luxury in Africa.

The greatest of all luxuries in Central Africa is salt. To say that a man eats salt with his victuals is the same as saying that he is a rich man. Mungo Park says, "the long-continued use of vegetable food creates so painful a longing for salt that no words can sufficiently describe it."—Chicago Tribune.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Sachsen.

Dresden. Zum zweiten Bürgermeister wurde der bisherige dritte Bürgermeister Leupold vom Stadtverordneten-Kollegium gewählt.—Ein originelles Strafmandat hat die Polizeidirektion einem Arbeiter zugesandt. Derselbe soll 20 Mark bezahlen, weil er in einer Versammlung dem überwachenden Beamten Cigarrenrauch in's Gesicht geblasen und dadurch „öffentliches Aergerniß" erregt habe. Bemerkt sei, daß jener Beamte die Versammlung wegen dieser Rauchgeschichte ohne Weiteres aufgelöst hat.

Crimmitschau. In einem fast wasserleeren Teiche an der Dänkritzer Straße wurde der Privatier Ferdinand Hermann List, genannt Donath, erfroren aufgefunden. Wie es heißt, verließ derselbe Nachts seine Wohnung im Stadttheil Wahlen in einem Anfalle von Unzurechnungsfähigkeit und dürfte in den Teich gestürzt sein.

Leipzig. Der 13jährige Schulknabe Schulze, der für ein Geschäft Botengänge besorgt, wurde in einem Hausflur von einem stellenlosen 16jährigen Expedienten überfallen und seiner Tasche, in der sich 240 Mark befanden, beraubt. Der Knabe nahm, trotzdem er niedergeworfen wurde, rasch die Verfolgung des Räubers auf, dessen Ergreifung mit Hilfe eines Dienstmanns auch glückte.—Dieser Tage wurde an der Gundorfer Straße in Leipzig-Lindenau die Grundsteinlegung zum Leipziger Diakonissen- und Krankenhause in feierlicher Weise vollzogen, zu dem aus privaten Mitteln allein über 500,000 Mark gespendet wurden.

Zwickau. Zu den von den Bergarbeitern des hiesigen Bezirks an die Grubenverwaltungen gestellten Forderungen hat das königlich sächsische Bergamt den Bergleuten mitgetheilt, daß über die Dauer der Wechselschichten und über die allgemeine Einrichtung von Mannschaftsbädern mit den Grubenverwaltungen verhandelt werde. Die verlangte achtstündige Schichtzeit und die Erhöhung der Löhne sämmtlicher von den Gruben beschäftigten Arbeiter werden die Werke ohne Zweifel ablehnen.

Thüringische Staaten.

Eisenach. Der Gemeinderath hat zum Bau des Krematoriums, das auf dem hiesigen Friedhofe errichtet werden soll, 14,800 Mark bewilligt. Wenn auch das projektirte Krematorium in Apolda ausgeführt wird, wird Thüringen in Kürze vier Krematorien besitzen.

Weimar. Hier bildete sich eine Genossenschaft zur Errichtung billiger Arbeiterwohnungen.

Zeulenroda. Die Bürgerschaft wählte für den im September v. J. abgegangenen Oberbürgermeister am Ende aus 32 Bewerbern heraus den seitherigen zweiten Bürgermeister Lemcke von Nordhausen zum ersten Bürgermeister.

Freie Städte.

Hamburg. Die Vorstände der Handelsverbände in Hamburg und Berlin haben, wie in den vorangegangenen Jahren, auch für das Jahr 1899 eine Geldsumme bereit gestellt, um aus derselben Demjenigen, welcher im Laufe dieses Jahres eine Veruntreuung oder Unterschlagung an Kaufmannsgütern auf der Schifffahrtsstrecke zwischen Hamburg und Berlin mit dem Erfolge einer rechtskräftigen gerichtlichen Bestrafung des Thäters oder mit dem Erfolge des Schadenersatzes zur Anzeige bringt, eine Belohnung von 50 bis 100 Mark zu gewähren.

Provinz Westfalen.

Münster. Das geplante bischöfliche Progymnasium ist von der Staatsregierung nicht genehmigt worden. Auch das evangelische Gymnasium, für welches die Stadt einen Bauplatz der Regierung angeboten hat, wird nicht errichtet. Da nun die schon bestehenden höheren Lehranstalten überfüllt sind, so werden zu Ostern an dem neuen königlichen Gymnasium, das von unten bis oben schon Parallelklassen hat, einstweilen für drei Jahrgänge dritte Parallelklassen eingerichtet.

Paderborn. Vor Kurzem fanden im benachbarten Stövelhof Arbeiter beim Urbarmachen von Haideland in einer Tiefe von circa einem halben Meter eine große Anzahl alter Silbermünzen. Dieselben sind theils spanischen, theils englischen Ursprungs und tragen die Jahreszahlen 1571 bis 1629. Die Legirung ist wesentlich schlechter als die unserer heutigen Münzsorten. Bei den Münzen, die auf einem Haufen lagen, fanden sich Theile von Wagenrädern und dergleichen, sowie ein Spaten.

DEVOID OF ANIMAL LIFE.

Report from Gen. A. W. Greely of the Antarctic Region.

The Anarctic, is a continental land unique in the world. Its desolate shores, rarely approachable under most favorable conditions, are laved by an ocean the richest on the globe in its marine life—animal and vegetable. Seals and whales in incredible numbers abound in its waters, and countless seabirds cover with nests and eggs the few favored land spots which are free from snow during the brief, comfortless summer. It is a continent where abounds no land animal life, either mammals, birds, insects, spiders or reptiles. No mammal exists within six hundred miles of its borders. It is also devoid of land vegetation (except the lowest forms of cellular tissue, lichens, which have been found in two places only), having neither ferns, flowering plants, shrubs nor trees.

Here, however, Nature displays her forces on a scale elsewhere unknown. Over the millions of square miles of this austral continent ceaselessly continues a titanic struggle between the opposing ancient elements of fire and water. In vain the volcanoes pour forth streams of molten lava and shoot upward pillars of fire. Welcoming the lava as a protecting, non-conducting covering of its lower strata of flowing glaciers, the continental ice cap resistlessly advances, certain that in time, when the processes of erosion have lowered the elevation of the volcanic craters, its countless, tiny snowflakes will quench the apparently unextinguishable fires that now shake from end to end the continent of Antarctica.—Ladies' Home Journal.

WEDDED AT LIFE'S SUNSET.

Mrs. Rivers, 97, Takes Mr. Witham, 87, for Better or for Worse.

In an old weather-worn house on the Dean road, running from Deerfield to Nottingham, Mrs. George Rivers, who is 97 years old and does not wear glasses, married her fourth husband, Jacob Witham, ten years her junior. She is also his fourth wife.

In his younger days Mr. Witham followed the sea, but for nearly half a century he has worked on a farm. He holds the record for wood cutting, having at one time felled and cut into four-foot sticks nine and one-half cords between sun and sun, and is pointed out as the man who once cut fifty cords of wood in twelve days. Once when he was in Cambridge, Mass., he mowed an acre of grass in 57½ minutes. He has lifted 1,000 pounds dead weight, and he could box. This latter accomplishment made the younger roisterers of Deerfield respect him when he was a constable, thirty years ago. In 1861 he went to the front with the Seventh New Hampshire, and was in the ugly charge on Fort Wagner with forty seven others of his company when all but five were killed.—New York Sun.

Not Always Fond of Butter.

"A Boston man and myself," says a Chicago newspaper man, "were once the guests of a Kentucky family. The staple articles of diet there are corn dodgers, baked in the ashes of the open fireplace, and bacon. Butter is practically unknown; it is not a grazing section. Our hostess, with evident pride, brought out for our delectation on the occasion referred to a small piece of butter. It had been bought months before in a faraway city, and was quite superannuated and very self-assertive. Both of us shied. The Boston man, forgetting the fate of Ananias, said he 'never used butter,' and I echoed his statement. The good woman evidently was disappointed. Pointing to a platter of bacon swimming in grease she said: 'I allow you 'uns will oblige me, then, by wallerin' yer dodgers in the dope.' We immediately 'wallowed.'"

His Kindly Suggestion.

An old man was breaking stones one day on a country road in Wales when a gentleman came riding along.

"Bother these stones! Take them out of my way!" he said.

"Where can I take them to, your Honor?"

"I don't care where; take them to hades if you like."

"Don't you think, your Honor," said the old man, "that I'd better take 'em to heaven? They'll be less in your Honor's way there."—From Spare Moments.

New Use for a Map.

A school inspector, having a few minutes to spare after examining the school, put a few questions to the lower form boys on the common objects of the school room.

"What is the use of that map?" he asked, pointing to one stretched across a corner of the room; and half a dozen shrill voices answered:

"Please, sir, it's to hide teacher's bicycle."—Pearson's Weekly.

No Love for Fido.

Wife—Be sure to advertise for Fido in the morning newspapers.

Next day the wife read in the morning newspapers: "Ten Shillings Reward.—Lost, a mangy lap-dog, with one eye and no tail. Too fat to walk. Answers to the name of Fido. Smells like a monkey house. If returned stuffed, thirty shillings reward."—Pearson's Weekly.

Eye Sufferer Puzzles Physicians.

A case that has baffled physicians in New Jersey is that of Miss Anna Carlson, of Lower Alloway, a small settlement in Salem County. Her affliction is with her eyes. While she sees all objects readily and clearly, in taking up reading matter of any kind the letters become inverted.—Philadelphia Times.

January 1 was made the beginning of the legal year in England in 1752.—Boston Budget.

CHOW-CHOW.

In Brazil there are said to be 300 languages and dialects spoken by the Indians.

The recent death of Oliver T. Morton, son of Indiana's war governor, left his mother in straitened circumstances.

A Caribou, Me., church society set the admission to a chicken pie supper given recently at one cent for each inch of waist measure.

The Wesleyan Methodists of England have already in hand a fifth of a fund of $5,000,000 which they recently decided to raise as a "twentieth century offering."

St. Louis has had a plague of dust, which compelled the sprinkling carts to be out in blizzard weather. Dry goods stores were injured to the extent of half a million by the pervasive dust.

A new Robinson Crusoe has been found. The man, according to a Peruvian telegram, was found on one of the deserted Galapagos islands. He had not spoken to or even seen a human being for 14 years, and his body is covered with a thick hair. He has lived on wild birds, shellfish and water.

The governor of New Zealand recently at a public reception at Napier, in complimenting the school children of the town on the hearty manner in which they had rendered the national anthem, solemnly assured them that if they put their shoulders to the wheel they would be sure to reach the top of the tree! Upon which a compatriot turned to a bystander and said: "Sure it was an axle-tree he meant, bedad!"

Miss McGraw of Emporia, Kan., who draws a salary of $125 a month as a stenographer, is an all-around girl, according to the Gazette, which says: "In addition to knowing about the pedigrees of cattle, Miss McGraw is a good whist player, a good dancer, and the best dressed girl in Emporia. She is under 24 years old, has money out at interest, and knows more than half the lawyers in town. That's the kind of a girl Kansas produces."

The last number of "The Harvard Graduate' Magazine" says that Dr. W. L. Russell of Barre, Mass., who was graduated from Harvard in 1826, and is the oldest living Harvard graduate, had his brother, James Russell, of Lowell, as a guest on his 99th birthday, October 28. James, it seems, is 91 years old, and the two old boys, it is stated, "played whist and croquet, climbed apple trees, filling their pockets with the fruit, went in swimming, took a tramp of about four miles after the cows, picked ten quarts of blackberries on the way, went to a corn roast in the evening, followed by an old-fashioned shakedown in the kitchen, and another round of whist later on."

Mr. Rudolf Spreckles of California examines all his hens with an ex-ray apparatus and is thereby able to detect such defects in conformation as will lead to their being bad layers in matter of quantity or size of the eggs. Hens which are not up to Mr. Spreckles' standard pay the penalty of their inferiority by summary condemnation to the fattening process. As Mr. Spreckles finds that on the average there is one bad layer in every five hens, and he keeps some 14,00 of them, an enormous amount of time and labor is saved, which would otherwise be lost in endeavoring to persuade the bad layers to mend their ways. It does not take long, either, for some 30 or 40 hens can be examined in an hour.

A RAILWAY TO MOVE A WOMAN.

Betsey's Longing for Society Accomplished the Feat.

The most curious problem that ever confronted the legal authorities of the United States was that of moving Betsy Mullins, weight 580 pounds. They gave it up, but the task which could not be performed for the enforcement of the law was undertaken in order that Betsy might attend a dance.

Mrs. Mullins belongs the race of Tennessee mountaineers, and lives on the top of Walden's Ridge, in Hancock county. Her occupation is that of selling moonshine whiskey. It furnished her with a livelihood for twenty years. She enjoys absolutely unique advantages for engaging in this nefarious traffic. In the first place, her hut among the mountains is four miles from any other house, and is reached only by a winding and treacherous path.
